MEXICAN REBELS PROTEST SALE OF WAR MATERIALS

Revolutionists Have Sent to the United States Government a Formal Protest Against the Plan of the United States to Sell Equipment and Munitions to the Government of General Obregon in Mexico—No Acknowldgement of the Communication Has Been Made by the Washington Government.

Washington, Dec. 31.—A formal protest against the plan of the United States to sell war materials to the government of General Obregon in Mexico was transmitted to the state department today by representatives here of the De La Hurta revolutionary group. Apparently the communication was doomed to be lost in departmental files as there was no indication that its receipt would even be amknowledged.

The Washington government in the past has scrupulously avoided any dealings with agents in this country of revolutionists against a friendly power. They have been recognized in no official way.

There were signs in congressional circles during the day, however of objections to the sale that might prove more effective. The action of the administration in deciding to grant the request of the Obregon government was under discussion among members of both houses who are in Washington during the holiday recess and some opposition was voiced.

Representative Fairchild, republican, New York, announced his intention of introducing a resolution upon the reconvening of the house this week, proposing to forbid the sale by the government of war equipment to any foreign power. Even if such a resolution should be adopted, however it seems doubtful that it could be put through in time to prevent the completion of the sale to Mexico and no one denies that the president now has full legal powers to make such a sale.

The protest of the De La Huerta faction was addressed to Secretary Hughes and signed by Enrique Soldond, the stationery used being headed, confidential agency of the provisional government of Mexico." The text as made public by the agency follows:

"The undersigned, consul general of the provisional government of Mexico in New York, and in charge, for the time being of the interests of that government in the United States, has the honor to inform the department of state that his government, as a result of its operations, now controls the greater part of the Mexican republic, including all ports on the gulf coast, save one, as well as all ports on the Pacific, except those in Sonora and Sinaloa. The major part of the national military and naval forces are sustaining the provisional government, which expects, within a short period, completely to exercise dominion over the entire country.

"In the midst of the campaign now in progress, the government of the undersigned views with grave concern reports in the press that the government of the United States has determined to extend active material aid to the administration of President Alvaro Obregon, by supplying him with rifles, ammunition and, possibly airplanes on a deferred payment basis, amounting practically to a donation, for use against the revolutionary movements of which ex-President Adolfo De La Huerta is the chief, and the purpose of which is to resist the unconstitutional imposition of General Plutarco Calles as president of the republic by General Obregon, in defiance of all law and the free right of suffrage.

"In event the reports in the press described above are true, and munitions of war are to be delivered as proposed, the undersigned is instructed by his government to inform the department of state that such will only serve to prolong the period of bloodshed essential to the overthrow of the Obregon administration, which, however constitutionally installed in power, has utterly refused and failed to comply with its solemn duty to the people, the great body of whom sustain the principles upon which the present armed movement is based.

"In view of the foregoing facts, the government of the undersigned hereby begs to submit its respectful protest against the delivery of munitions of war of whatsoever kind to the Obregon government by the government of the United States with which to make war on the Mexican people, thus tending to disturb those friendly and neighborly feelings and sentiments which should exist between the government and people of Mexico and those of the United States which the government of the undersigned is so anxious to sustain and to cultivate."

FIRST SHIPMENT OF ARMS EXPECTED SHORTLY

Mexico City, December 30.—(By the A. P.)—The first shipment of arms from the United States, according to official sources today, is expected shortly. The munitions are expected to consist of three thousand rifles, fifteen thousand round of ammunition and ten armored airplanes. They are to be used to equip volunteer agrarian workers who are being organized and drilled.

President Obregon returned to Mexico City today from his field headquarters at Irapuato for the purpose of receiving the foreign diplomats, president to New Year's and to attend the closing session of congress Monday.

On leaving the presidential train, however, the chief executive, after a short rest attended a bull fight. The president apparently carefree, reached the bull ring unescorted and pushed democratically through the throngs besieging the entrance. He seemed to enjoy the performance and left with equal unostentation.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The government closed its financial books for the year tonight with a record of having received $4,184,905,600. Almost half a billion dollars more than was paid into the treasury in the calendar year 1922. Its expenditures were $3,888,063,082, leaving a net balance of $276,842,518.

The year just closed was marked by unusual activity at the treasury. It funded the great British war time debt and the smaller obligation of Finland; it refunded into easy-handling form the last of the $4,500,000,000 Victory loan, and more than $2,000,000,000 other government securities, and made steady progress toward reducing the huge war-time debt of this country. Its budget for the last fiscal year was balanced and officials are confident that the policy of retrenchment has made possible another year of debt reduction and solid government financing.

Swelling receipts during the calendar year 1923 marked the government's two chief revenue sources—internal taxes on incomes and duties collected at the customs houses. Treasury records show income and profits tax payments for 1923 totaled $1,868,698,433 as compared with $1,501,604,002 for 1922. Customs revenue for 1923, the greatest in the history of the country, aggregated $582,589,515, about $125,000,000 more than the previous year.

MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT OF IRISH FREE STATE

Dublin, Dec. 31—(By the A. P.)—In a New Year's message sent out tonight William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State cabinet, says that in Ireland peace and ddrdrd conditions have been established and that the future is now in the hands of the Irish people. The message adds that the people by steadily facing their problems and responsibilities and with an earnest effort to do their level best will make the New Year a stepping stone toward a happy, united and prosperous Ireland.

GRANTED A DIVORCE FROM ROSCOE (FATTY) E. ARBUCKLE

Providence, R. I., Dec. 31—Minta N. Arbuckle, wife of Roscoe (Fatty) E. Arbuckle, was granted a divorce in the superior court here today. The case was heard before Justic Chester W. Barrows on depositions and was granted on the grounds of neglect to provide and desertion. The divorce will become absolute six months from today.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Prohibition officers throughout the country were ordered to make New Year's parties "dry."

Total government receipts for 1923 were said at the treasury to be $4,164,905,600, an increase of nearly half a billion over 1922.

Electric railways of the country carried 15,231,401,801 passengers last year and their net operating revenues were placed at $246,914,378, by the census bureau.

CONCLUDE THAT THE DIXMUDE WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Palermo, Italy, Dec. 31—(By the A. P.)—Bits of charred wreckage swept in by the sea at Sciacca and along the coast near Palermo, have been examined by experts, and the conclusion has been reached that the French dirigible Dixmude was destroyed by fire, probably after an explosion.

A solemn requiem mass was celebrated in the cathedral here today for the victims, and the people of Palermo, in deepest sorrow, have placed flowers on the body of Lieutenant Grenadan, the commander of the dirigible, which is now resting in the station.

A MOTOR BOAT ASHORE WITH CARGO OF LIQUOR

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Dec. 31.—A 40-foot motorboat with a cargo of liquor on board, went ashore at Stone Wall beach on the south end of Martha's Vineyard during the snow storm of last night and was discovered today. Scattered along the shore nearby coast guardsmen found 90 cases of whiskey and several five-gallon kegs of gin.

An attempt had been made to obliterate the name of the boat, but the markings left by the letters on the wood indicated that she was the Columbia of New Bedford.

ESTIMATED POPULATION OF AUSTRALIA 5,688,092

Melbourne, Dec. 31—The estimated population of Australia is 5,688,092, representing an increase of 252,358 since the last official census of 1921. The male sex predominates in the commonwealth, there being 2,897,047 of the latter as against 2,791,045 females.

New South Wales with a population of 2,139,379 is the most populous state.

New Year's Dry Drive in New York

New York, Dec. 31—Augmented government forces working for the enforcement of prohibition today reached the peak of one of the greatest drives of the dry era in the Metropolitan district and sought in the last few hours of the year to seize and destroy some of the stores set aside by bootleggers and restaurateurs for New Year celebrants.

With 50,000 revellers estimated to be spending more than a quarter of a million dollars tonight to welcome in 1924 along the great white way, special squads of dry agents, many reported to have been recruited in Washington, set out to mingle with the merry-makers and check the flashing of flasks in cabarets.

Meanwhile, while keeping their eyes on hte bright lights, enforcement officials reported that the recent efforts to dam the principal tributaries of the rum river that had been flowing into New York for months had been unusually successful. Their work now is to find the sources of "moonshine" and doctored spirits that have been filling hospital beds with agonized drinkers and undertaking establishments with corpses.

"Twelve men have died and more than 300 were stricken from drinking poison peddled by New York bootleggers in one week," said division Prohibition Chief Merrick, "He who drinks bootleg liquor is a fool for he plays with rattlesnakes." There was no word in his vocabulary, he added, to characterize the men who sell such poison.

Poison liquor caused 363 deaths in the period from January to November, the health department reported, the greatest number of casualties from alcoholic poisoning since 1917 and more than twice the number recorded in 1919, the first year of prohibition.

The larger cabarets and all night restaurants were put under watch, for it is in these places, the prohibition men said, that liquor some good, but 90 per cent. bad, is sold "under the table" in great quantities.

"It would be foolish for me to say that we have stopped the main liquor sources entirely," said Mr. Merrick, "but we have done all that is possible and stemmed the tide to some extent."

SECRETARY MELLON LOOKS WITH CONFIDENCE TO 1924

Washington, Dec. 31—Secretary Mellon looks with confidence to a prosperous 1924, although he said in a New Year's message tonight that much depended upon continued efforts of the country to keep its financial house in order. He mentioned at the same time the effect favorable action by congress on the tax measure would have on the economic condition of the country.

"I am convinced," the Secretary's message said, "that if the tax reduction proposals are enacted into law and the sound policy of retrenchin expenditures is continued, the coming year will witness a steady improvement in the favorable conditions which have already begun to make themselve sfelt and this country will enjoy prosperity in 1924."

The secretary recounted the efforts of the treasury to place governmental fiscal affairs on a sound footing end declared the recovery of general business from the "severe industrial depression", was remarkable.

VICTIMS OF "DEATH CODE" OF FLORIDA MOONSHINERS

Jacksonville, Florida, Dec. 31—Eugene Burman, negro, lynched yesterday near Jacksonville by a band of white men, and Edgar Phillips, negro, whose headless body was found in McGirt's Creek Saturday, were victims of a "death code" of Duval county moonshiners, according to the authorities.

A moonshiner's death code includes capital punishment for many offenses according to officials. Stealing whiskey and informing are chief among these

THREE ACCIDENTAL DEATHS OF AGED PERSONS

Gas fumes escaping from a defective stove connection caused the death of Emile Von Gueterman, 72, and his wife, Christina, 79, in Brooklyn. They were found dead in bed.

Mrs. Mary Randall, 73, after suffering a heart attack, was drowned in her bath in an upper West Side apartment.

A NEW YEAR'S HYMN

The path though we know not, we walk without fear;
Untended we go not to live the new year.
O God, who hast led us thus far on our way,
Thy bounty has fed us, Thy love is our stay.

Redeemed and forgiven, defended by grace,
Our soul-fetters riven, we speed on our race.
Christ Jesus, our Brother, has gone on before;
In His name, no other, one year live we more.

The days that await us we ask not to see;
Success would elate us, distress make us flee.
Restrain our steps, Father; lend help as we climb,
And show our way, rather, one day at a time.

In winter's bright morning encourage our start.
With spring earth adorning, send grace for our part.
Let midsummer find us still firm as before;
As harvest sheaves bind us for life evermore.

By E. Morris Fergusson, in Boston Transcript.

Former Luxuries Now "Necessities"

Boston, Dec. 31—Production in manufacturing establishments as a whole in New England is not far from normal, there is little unemployment, wages are high and the purchasing power of the people is good in relation to commodity prices, says the monthly review of the federal reserve bank of Boston, issued tonight. It is difficult, however, the review says, to forecast the direction of the next general major trend in business because of conflicting tendencies.

"The usual autumn peak of manufacturing activity has been passed," the review says, "so that some of the reports of curtailed production which were received during December were not expected. In certain industries, such as cotton manufacturing, the reported curtailment was even more than seasonal. Taking manufacturing establishments in New England as a whole, however, the rate of production is apparently not far from what might be termed 'normal,' that is average or part way between the peak reached in times of prosperity and the bottom reached during a depression. There is little unemployment, and wages are high. The purchasing power of the people is good in relation to commodity prices, although the 'standard of living' seems nowadays to require so many extra things formerly classed as luxuries that trade in some 'necessities' has suffered.

"Department store sales in this district were larger this autumn than a year ago, and in so far as this is typical of retail trade as a whole, the results are encouraging. The increase compared with last year is not as large as most merchants expected, nor perhaps, as large as they were entitled to make, in view of the slightly higher prices this year than last and the normal growth of the stores.

"Price changes in the various commodities have nearly counterbalanced one another during the past few weeks, so that the general average has been more or less static, with a tendency toward a slightly lower rather than a higher level. In fact, the business situation as a whole is in a somewhat similar condition. At such times it is quite difficult to forecast the direction of the next general major trend, because it is hard to foretell which of the factors already at work will become so important that they in time will provide the impetus needed to turn conflicting tendencies into a broad general movement of the business trend.

"The present situation is therefore one of a relatively large volume of distribution of goods to the ultimate consumer, a negligible amount of unemployment, and production reduced to nearly or even below the requirements of shipments. Then, too, credit is relatively cheap and much more readily obtainable than is usually the case during a period when production under way, and the recent tension has been declining for several months. There is a large volume of new construction under way, and the recent tendency has been toward an increase rather than a curtailment. Renewed building activity was one of the foundations upon which the business recovery of 1922 was based.

"The present irregularity in the general situation is apt to continue, however, until some of the factors—whether those working for good or for bad cannot now be foretold—operate more forcefully than they do at present."

NO TRACE OF CONVICTS WHO ESCAPED AT ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 31.—Federal officials working in the wake of four convicts, including George Anderson, the New York "million dollar mail bandit," who ingeniously tunneled their way to freedom from the federal penitentiary here Sunday, reported tonight that they had developed no definite trail.

The descriptions of Anderson, and the others, Hiram Lepper, 50, serving 15 years for altering treasury obligations; Frank Haynes, nearing the end of an 18 months term for counterfeiting and Ludwig Schmidt, doing 10 years for robbing the mails, were broadcast throughout the country.

Investigation at the prison from which the men escaped by digging a tunnel some fifty feet long and reaching a depth of eight feet to pass under the high stone wall, disclosed that the tools probably had been acquired by one of the quartette who worked in the toolshop. A tent occupied by Haynes, a tubercular, furnished the inside covering for their operations. A trap door in the wooden floor of the tent concealed the inside mouth of the tunnel.

66 PHYSICIANS IN STATE ARE NOW UNDER SUBPOENA

Most of the Physicians Belong to the Eclectic School—Majority are from Bridgeport, New Haven and Waterbury—Must Appear Before the Special Grand Jury Investigating Operations of a "Diploma Mill" in Connecticut.

Hartford, Dec. 31—Preliminary to the reconvening on Wednesday of the special grand jury which is in the midst of an investigation of operation of a "diplomas mill" in this state a list of sixty six persons who are now and have been practicing the healing art and are under subpoena to appear before the jury, was made public late today. Most of these physicians belong to the eclectic school of medicine, and have been licensed by the state eclectic examining board. The majority are from Bridgeport New Haven and Waterbury. Few belong in the smaller towns of the state.

A controversy having arisen over origin, support and fate of bills in the last general assembly which apparently were aimed to rewrite the medical laws of the state or investigate the practice of the healing art, Benedict M. Holden, foreman of the grand jury, today stated that "the grand jury has not, and will not have any concern with matters political" and that "it was not concerned in political controversies irrespective of the personality of the gentlemen engaged therein."

No indication has yet been given of the scope of the grand jury inquiry when it resumes its probe. It is known that State's Attorney Alcorn and his staff have been putting into definite shape evidence to present to the grand jury, a part of this material being statements submitted by patients of physicians whose licenses to practice have been revoked by the state health council upon recommendation of the state eclectic examining board. Some patients has complained by letter or verbally of unsatisfactory treatment from certain doctors and the state attorney's office suggested that their grievances be stated in such form as might furnish a basis for consideration by the grand jury.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

Washington, Dec. 31.—President Coolidge tonight extended New Year's Greetings to the American people in a message which said:

"At this end of the old year and the beginning of the new, it is well to take account of our spiritual, moral and material resources and seriously appraise the progress of the past twelve months and the prospect of advancement in the coming year. The nation has made a record of gratifying accomplishment. There is every reason to believe advancement will continue in the coming months.

"It is a pleasure to extend the heartiest of New Year greetings to the American people and express the hope and confidence that 1924 will bring them a full message of prosperity and happiness."

HOW NATIONAL CAPITAL WELCOMED NEW YEAR

Washington, Dec. 31.—The national government and its capital city welcomed the new year tonight with festivity and words of high promise.

President Coolidge and most of his cabinet members remained at home to celebrate the event, but in many crowded ballrooms and cafes a more demonstrative spirit ruled.

Three cabinet officials, Secretaries Mellon, Hoover and Work issued statements bespeaking for the country a more stable and prosperous business year in 1924.

To political Washington 1924 will bring another presidential campaign. Social Washington, too, will see the president and Mrs. Coolidge take their places tomorrow in the Blue room for their first New Year's reception.

The police edict against hip-pocketing was iron-clad tonight but there were many hundreds willing to take a chance. Nor did they worry about the prospect that the new year might see a congressional investigation of liquor-drinking in Washington and a sweeping crusade against sellers and buyers alike.

In any case, that is only one of many things that the federal government must face in 1924 before another new year. President Coolidge and Hiram Johnson and the other presidential candidates will know which of them is to live hereafter in the White House.

KILLED WHEN CAUGHT STEALING FROM CHURCH

Avezzano, Italy, Dec. 31 (By the A. P.)—Francesco Tomei last night met death at the hands of the infuriated townspeople after he had been caught stealing from the church her relics of martyred saints, patrons of Avezzano.

He was badly beaten, trampled upon and then saturated with gasoline and burned alive. The man had cut the electric wires in the church extinguished the lights. Notwithstanding the darkness, however, he was observed by a group of peasants carrying from the church an urn bearing the ashes of one of the saints. The crowd grabbed Tomei, knocked him down and then dragged his body through the streets. While still alive the gasoline was poured over his clothing and a match applied. His body was incinerated.

HOOVER SEES FAVORABLE FACTORS FOR BUSINESS

Washington, Dec. 31.—Considering all factors which make for business prosperity in the United States, "the odds are favorable to 1924," Secretary Hoover declared today. The conclusion was advanced in a summary of world conditions in which the secretary viewed the "high degree" of economic recovery in the Western Hemisphere, Asia and Africa and the "undoubted progress" in Russia, the Balkan states and the Near East, together with the promise of early conference toward solution of the reparations problem, as creating a hopeful foundation for the new year.

New York, Dec. 31.—The second robbery within a month of the fur house of William H. Jackman's Son, Inc., in 35th street, netted cracksman approximately $25,000 in furs tonight. The burglars entered through a rear window and escaped before detectives arrived in response to a burglar alarm.

REVELATIONS IN THE CATAFALQUE OF KING TUT

Paris, Dec. 31—[illegible] the A. P.)—The [illegible] of the supports [illegible] which [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] has [illegible] for [illegible] to the [illegible] work of [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and back supports.

The catafalque rests on carved feet at either end its sections joined with copper hooks still tied up with string as left thirty centuries ago. It is painted reddish gold and black in broad, alternate stripes, but unfortunately the paint, particularly the black between, is coming off wholesale, and Howard Carter, directing the excavation told the correspondent [illegible] he was seriously exercised over the prospect of getting it down without considerable damage.

Unfortunately the oppressive atmosphere in which the excavators have to work renders the employment of paraffin wax, the familiar preservative for ancient woodwork of all sorts, impracticable.

Under the paint, however, the woodwork of the catafalque, as that of every part of the shrine, is extraordinarily solid.

A PLEA FOR STUDENTS OF CENTRAL EUROPE

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 31.—A plea for assistance for students of central Europe many of whom are undernourished and clothed in rags, was voiced tonight before the international convention of the student volunteer movement by Dr. Adolf Keller of Zurich, Switzerland, secretary of the Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical Churches of Europe. Everywhere on the continent, Dr. Keller declared, thousands of students are compelled to work from six to eight hours daily outside the classes to maintain themselves "in wooden barracks, in small miserable rooms, many of them without coal. Many students in Germany are being forced out of school because they can no longer buy books."

Group discussions today by the 7,000 convention delegates centered generally about the race relations and world peace. A program for interracial commissions in American colleges was suggested in several groups and probably will be considered tomorrow at the final session of the convention proper.

SACRIFICED HIS LIFE TO PROTECT HIS GEMS

New York, Dec. 31.—Shot through the abdomen four times by the leader of a bandit trio he defied, Bernardo B. Brown, a jeweler in the Bronx, today sacrificed his life to save the contents of his gem safe.

The bandits' automobile, pursued by a fleet of taxicabs and pleasure cars whose occupants heard Brown scream and collapse at the entrance to his shop, dodged out of a traffic jam and escaped.

Brown told police he had just opened his shop and thrown open his vault when the men appeared and demanded everything. The jeweler slammed the door of the safe, twirled the dial, and confronted the trio.

Two of them fled to their automobile at the curb. Brown struggled with the third, crowding him toward the door when the bandit got his gun free, pressed it against Brown's stomach and pulled four times. Brown crumpled as the bandit car drove off. He died a few hours later.

CONVICTS CAPTURED AFTER SIX HOUR PURSUIT

Elmira, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Four convicts who set out last night in a stolen automobile from the Elmira reformatory here, intent on beginning the New York untrammeled by prison bars, tonight were back in their cells with prospects of freedom more obscure than before. The men were free about six hours and when captured wer plodding warily along the Erie railroad tracks toward Corning, still garbed in their thin prison uniforms and suffering from cold and exhaustion.

INFECTION FROM SMALL SCRATCH CAUSED DEATH

Winsted, Dec. 31.—An infection resulting from a small scratch received while shaving early last week caused the death today of Patrick Carroll. The infection is said to have developed inside the mouth, poisoning the entire system. Carroll had been employed with his brother, a hardware merchant here, and leaves four brothers, Rev. R. J. Carroll, of Westport; Dr. J. J. Carroll, of Naugatuck; Dr. I. F. Carroll, of Stamford; Joseph L. Carroll of Winsted, and two sisters.

Alex Sture, an alien of lower village, will begin his new year by appearing in the police court to be tried for the unlawful possession of firearms. Sture was in the police court Saturday morning charged with breach of peace and it was alleged that he had threatened to kill some of his neighbors. A warrant was made out Monday by Prosecuting Attorney Samuel Harvey and two police officials served it on Sture. Sture had a 38-calibre revolver and an old fashioned muzzle loading shot gun which was loaded. He was ordered to fire it off and the officers thought that the house was falling in over them, when they heard the loud report of the gun.

The new 1924 automobile markers will make their first appearance today, New Year's Day, and anyone not having procured new registration numbers would fare better by leaving his car in the garage, as the police plan to enforce this law strictly. Some leeway will be granted to parties returning to their homes after midnight Monday, but prosecution will follow if drivers appear with old markers after sunlight.

Thomas J. Killourey, city sheriff of this city, arrested on a warrant served by County Detective William E. Jackson late Saturday afternoon on a charge of embezzlement on several counts was presented before Clerk of the Court Edgar M. Warner at the superior court chamber in Putnam, Monday. Bonds of $500 were named and furnished by the defendant's brother, former Chief of Police Daniel J. Killourey of this city. Killourey's case will come up at the opening of the criminal term of the Windham county superior court at Putnam, probably on Wednesday, in this city. County Detective Jackson states that Killourey has admitted his guilt in the matter. It is alleged that in over fifty cases Killourey failed to make returns of money collected in his capacity of sheriff, the amounts ranging from two to twenty dollars.

Mills, stores and banks will be closed all day today in observance of New Year's. The postoffice will be open from 7 to 11 a. m. There will be no deliveries by city or rural carriers. There will be extra masses at both the Catholic churches, the first one being at St. Mary's at 5.30, with masses at 7, 8 and 9 o'clock at both St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches. Motion pictures are the only attraction slisted on the afternoon programs are the only attractions listed on the afternoon program and in the evening a New Year's Night dance is to be held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin.

The funeral of Olive Elizabeth Hoxie, infant daughter of Earl E. and Mary Hendish Hoxie, who died Saturday night in Lebanon, were held Monday afternoon at two o'clock from the parents' home. Burial was in the new cemetery, Lebanon, Avery and VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Uretta J. Reynolds, 74, died Sunday night at her home in South Willington. Mrs. Reynolds was born in New London, October 27, 1849, a daughter of Charles and Fannie R. Smith Jeffry. She is survived by a son, George E. Reynolds of Eagleville, two daughters, Mrs. Lucy A. Tucker of South Willington and Miss Frances Reynolds of Los Angeles, Calif., a grandson, Charles A. Reynolds of Willimantic and a great grandson Charles Reynolds, also of this city.

The funeral of Michael Horrigan was held from his home in South Coventry Monday morning with a high mass of requiem at St. Mary's church of that place, at nine o'clock sung by Rev. William H. Kennedy, the pastor. Miss Celia Day was at the organ and as the body was borne into the church, Misses Catherine Kennedy, Annie Wellwood and Celia Day sang "Nearer My God to Thee". At the offertory "O Salutaris" was sung and George LaFleur sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" as a waiting hymn. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were: Michael Driscoll, George Grimes, Jeremiah Young and George, John and Walter Costello. Killourey Brothers were in charge of the arrangements. The services were largely attended.

At a meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America, held in St. Joseph's Hall with Mrs. Lombardo, vice regent in the chair, Miss Agnes M. Fox, district deputy installed the following officers: Grand Regent Miss Veronica McQuillan; vice grand regent, Miss Mildred Fitzgerald; prophetess, Miss May Connor; organist, Miss Mable McAuliffe; financial secretary, Mis Mildred Pickett; treasurer, Miss Florence Grady; historian, Miss Kathleen Colgan; monitor, Mrs. Mary Costello; sentinel, Mrs. Loretta Costello; lecturer, Mrs. Margaret Squires; trustees, Mrs. Gertrude Dennehey, Mrs. Eileen Racicot, Miss Helen Hearty., Mrs. Ida Grady, Mrs. Mary Lombardo and Miss Margaret Maxwell.

Along with a good snowfall affording fair coasting conditions, Mayor Hormisdas Dion has found it necessary to designate Windham and Summit streets as the official coasting hills of the city and sliding is prohibited on any other hill or grade, especially on Jillson Hill, which is very dangerous. Poice protection will be afforded daily, on school days from 4 to 9 p. m. and from 1 to 9 p. m. on holidays.

A Watch Night meeting held Monday evening at the vestry of the Methodist Church, tok the form of a Community Service starting at nine o'clock with a musical program. Refreshments were then served by the Ladies' Aid Society. A devotional service followed and continued until midnight, a feature being an address by Rev. F. C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church. A brief address was also made by Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist church.

PUT BEST OF PAST INTO THE NEW YEAR
—MAYOR DION

To the people of Willimantic: It is with pleasure that I extend to you my best wishes for a bright and prosperous New Year. The record of the year last past is completed. Before commencing a new register it is eminently fitting that we join in a prayer of thankfulness to divine providence for the material prosperity and spiritual blessings we have heretofore enjoyed. We willingly acknowledge our obligation to all those whose hearts were animated by loyalty to the welfare of our fair city and who promoted its prosperity, either in their administrative capacities or as honest and industrious citizens. In the year we are starting let us endeavor to perpetuate all that is most worthy of the past and strive by the light of experience to lessen our errors of judgment. May the New Year bring to each of you health, contentment, prosperity and happiness.

HORMISDAS DION,
Mayor of Willimantic.

Miss Lucille Harroun who has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Harroun spent the last week-end wit hMr. and Mrs. Ernest Collins, in East Hartford. She will return today (Tuesday) to resume her duties in Washington, D. C.

Miss Beatrice Bill, who has been spending the holiday recess at her home on Prospect street has returned to New York.

Mrs. Susan Marrington of Windham Center is improving, after a recent illness.

WINDHAM

The Junior C. E. society held a Christmas party in the chapel Thursday afternoon, in charge of Mrs. A. W. Clifford, assisted by Harriet Guild, Marguerite Cook and Charlotte Lathrop. There were 27 children and a few mothers present. Carols were sung and a jolly time spent playing games. Each child received a candy cane and an orange, the latter being the gift of the two local grocery firms. There was a prettily decorated tree bearing a gift for each child provided by the members of the Senior C. E. society. Cocoa and cookies were served.

Mrs. Frank Webb went to Providence Thursday to visit her sister, Mrs. Brown.

Although the weather was stormy Sunday evening there were twelve persons at the C. E. meeting led by Alfred Abbe.

Mrs. Halsey Kelley returned to New York Saturday after spending 10 days with her sister, the Misses Johnson and Mrs. H. C. Hatch.

Mrs. John F. Woods returned to New York with Mr. Woods Tuesday to spend several weeks.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. John F. Woods, Miss Gertrude Arnold, H. E. Parry and Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Smith of Willimantic were guests of Mr. and George Stiles of South Windham. There were two tables of auction bridge. Coffee, cake and candy were served by the hostess, assisted by her niece, Miss Lena Abbe. New Year's the same company, with the addition of the Misses Johnson, Miss Dorothy Brown and Miss Rizzo, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Woods.

The Misses Johnson and Mrs. H. C. Hatch gave an auction bridge Friday afternoon in honor of their sister Mrs. Halsey Kelley of New York and Mrs. Lou Kennedy of Brooklyn, N. Y. The other guests were Miss Elizabeth Clarke of Putnam, Mrs. J. F. Woods, Miss Emma Neale and Miss Gertrude Arnold. Tea, cake and candy were served.

Mrs. Lou Kennedy and granddaughter, Miss Carolyn Kennedy, who have been spending the holidays at Miss Neale's and Mrs. E. K. Leffingwell's, have returned to Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sunday night's snowstorm turned to rain Monday which froze as fast as it fell, making the walking slippery. The local and state road plows opened the road and sidewalks promptly.

DeWitt Lathrop of Prospect Harbor, Me., who spent the holidays at his father's, H. C. Lathrop, returned to Nashua, N. H., Tuesday, where he and his wife and child are spending the winter.

The January meeting of the Parent-Teachers association is to be held Thursday at 3.15 p. m. Prof. St. John of the Normal school, Willimantic, will speak on Music in the School and Home.

As an example of the delay in receiving Christmas mail a post card stamped in Jewett City at 11 a. m., Dec. 22, was received in Windham—about 14 miles away—at noon Dec 26. A postcard in a sealed envelope mailed in Stamford on the 22nd was received here on the 29th.

STREAK OF OIL ON SEA WHERE CONEJOS WAS LOST

London, Dec. 31. — A dispatch to Lloyds from Constantinople reports the receipt of a radio message from the United States shipping board steamer Clontarf, a sister ship of the steamer Conejos, which was lost last week in the Black sea. The message follows:

"Located the apparent place of the disaster by following a streak of oil half a mile wide. At the western end of the streak heavy clots of oil were rising to the surface. The position by observation was latitude 24.10 north, longitude 38.19 east. There were no signs of wreckage. Consider further search useless."

The Conejas carried a crew, in addition to her captain and six officers, of about thirty seamen. The vessel went down in the Black sea last Thursday, and it is believed that all hands were lost.

WISHES HEALTH AND PROSPERITY FOR 1924 —WARDEN BURROWS

The greeting of the New Year to the people of Eastern Connecticut.

Health and prosperity is their hope and desire. May both these blessings trail them during every hour of 1924. May they find evidence everywhere that this a good old world. May their industry bring them the rewards that are its heritage. May there be peace and contentment in every hour and wherever man foregather.

W. A. BURROWS,
Warden of Danielson.

DANIELSON

Fines and costs that in total hard pressed the $1,000 mark were imposed in the town court, Monday morning, in what was one of the very interesting sessions of the year, and incidentally the closing session of 1923. In the illness of Judge W. Fenner Woodward, Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis presided.

Julius Souza, Goodyear, a man who should neither be confused with a famous bandmaster nor Julius Caesar, who did a raft of interesting business a few centuries back, was one of the trio hailing from the village where he claims his domicile who, without visible protest took a fine of $200 and costs a total of $277.59, and 15 days in jail, for having illegally sold liquid that in these hectic days passes as liquor, and demands a high tariff in passing. What in the parlance of the street is known as a spotter involved the Goodyear men in the toils of the law. The same man now has been assigned to work in Danielson, which, honest to goodness, is revealing no secret, for every kid in town knew about it by Monday noon. And, anyway, who could imagine anyone in Danielson violating the liquor law? The assumption is absolutely ridiculous! With the turmoil of the past few weeks, no one would dare, or have the courage after their New Year's parties. There certainly is a limit to human endurance.

But getting back to Mr. Sousa, a more or less independent operator, he paid the fine and costs and went over to Brooklyn to watch the old year out and the new year in. With him went Steve Radcus and Henry Gonsales, an historic name, and they went for like reasons. The fines and costs were the same in their cases as in that of Souza and the jail penalty identical. Handling liquid lightning is becoming a real extra-hazardous occupation.

Also in court Monday morning was Oliver P. Bessette, of the West Side, he who with his Ford sedan, survived Saturday night, a bombardment of state police ammunition that was reminiscent of Verdun—and escaped without a scratch—Oliver, but not the Ford. Bessette was assessed $100 and costs, a total of $111.74. The court made a notation of the nature of the case and this will be followed by suspension of Mr. Bessette's operator's license.

Lewis Mondor of Ballouville provided a little business for the court. He was on hand to take the consequences of operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so. He was find $3 and costs.

Francis Decatur of Putnam was fined $5 for breach of the peace.

Charles Lamothe of Elmville was charged with having a punch board in his possession and was fined $5 and costs.

This ended the business of the morning. Attendance at the court was marked by the presence of state police, deputy sheriffs, federal enforcement officers, the county investigator and what was really an impressive array of enforcement talen. No man present would not say that the prospects were not for a dry new year. But, at that, it was raining hard outside!

Once more the warning—the advice is, do not attempt to operate a motor vehicle today or hereafter under any but 1924 registration plates if you would escape an appearance in court. Further, do not try to talk officers charged with enforcing the law out of performing their duty. Telegrams sent out December 31 from the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles at Hartford were insistent that all driving under expired registration plates and licenses be apprehended. There is little excuse for any driver to say that he had not had sufficient notice of what to expect. He knows in the first place that a 1923 license is not worth a second hand newspaper in 1924, and that he has had ample time and ample warning to get his new papers and new plates. Slender, indeed, will be the sympathy of the public for the drivers who get hauled in today or hereafter for trying to operate during a year for which they have not paid the penalty, and many a driver regards the charges as a penalty, no matter how much enjoyment he may get out of paying to ride on the highways of the state of Connecticut.

New Year's eve was quiet in Danielson. The first real snow storm of the winter had come to make a mess of things and chill the ambitions of many "to go somewhere for a party". The storm resulted in many stay at home agreements, and, after all, there was a host of fun at home.

Dead this morning are the hopes and prescriptions of many. Somehow, the public will do things it should not do, and the public persisted in doing them Monday night.

For today, there is little scheduled. It will be a quiet holiday here, if Monday's indications could be taken as forecasting anything.

EXPECTS TWELVE MONTHS OF CONTINUED SUCCESS —MAYOR CHAPDELAINE

To the citizens of the City of Putnam I send the season's greetings and wish each and every one a Happy New Year.

It has fallen to my lot to act as your chief executive, and I pledge my best endeavor to the end that this city may maintain its reputation as one of the most prosperous and progressive cities of the state, and with you I wish this to be a year of continued success.

In order that we may insure the fulfillment of this wish I earnestly invite every organization, every official and each private citizen to share with me the civic responsibility which rests upon us all, each cheerfully and fully doing his own part, so that in a twelve-month we may be able to point with pride to 1924 as a year of harmony, prosperity and progress.

VICTOR CHAPDELAINE,
Mayor of Putnam.

PUTNAM

Harvey William LeClair, who was presented in the Putnam city court last Friday morning on a charge of receiving liquors stolen from the home of Dorothy Beebe, Thompson, in value amounting to $2,100 and with keeping liquor with intent to sell, and whose case was continued until Monday morning, pleaded guilty, before Judge Geissler, to making a sale, to keeping with intent to sell and to the keeping a place where it was reputed spirituous and intoxicating liquors were sold. He was fined $200 for keeping with intent to sell and $100 on each of the other counts, making a total of $400, together with costs taxed at $14.39. The count for receiving stolen goods was nolled.

Prosecuting Attorney J. E. Carpenter made a statement to the court in which he said that after making a careful investigation in the case, the state found that there was no evidence that LeClair had knowledge that the liquors were stolen. That all interested in the case have admitted that he, LeClair, knew nothing about the liquors being stolen.

The prosecutor further stated that the liquors had been advertised as coming from the wine cellar of a Thompson home and that it was a valuable lot of goods, while as a matter of fact there were 2 bottles of grape juice, 1 bottle of White Rock, champagne of the cheapest kind and some sour wines, formerly sold at from 50 to 75 cents a bottle. And at that, not all of it was good and the value would not amount to much. Three men who were familiar with such values had gone over the assortment and found it to be a lot of "junk" not worth fifty dollars.

The statement above applied to the 31 bottles found in LeClair's home. How much other stuff was taken from the Beebe home has not been divulged by the police, but judging from the above samples, the value

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

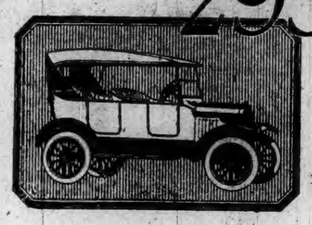
The New Touring Car $295 F.O.B. DETROIT



A Striking Value—at $295

Larger scale production, however, has made it possible to incorporate in this new type touring car a number of decided improvements without increasing its cost to the purchaser.

A comparison extending over a long period of years will reveal the fact that the present price is actually the lowest at which the five-passenger open car has ever been sold.

The Ford Touring Car stands today, as it always has, a most remarkable value in the motor car field.

Philip Chapdelaine and Ulric Dodge, who live in the Manhasset village, were arrested Saturday night, after a quantity of alcohol had been found in their home, on a search warrant. Some of the alcohol had been changed into a species of wine. The men were in court Monday morning but their counsel asked for an adjournment and the court will hold a session at 7.30 o'clock this (Tuesday) evening.

On account of the slippery condition of the road after it began to snow, Sunday evening, two automobiles came togetner in East Putnam about six o'clock. One was a Ford touring car driven by Elias P. Besette of Central Falls, the other a Buick owned in Dudley, driven by Unastasio Marticco of Worcester. Both cars were slightly damaged, Mrs. Besette was slightly injured and had a cut over he rforehead. A baby in the car had its lip cut.

In the Marticco car were Alfred Parmenter of Quinebaug, Miss Annie Pastor, Miss Estelle Astro and Miss Jennie Spiewakawaka all of Webster.

GALES FERRY

Under the auspices of the Christian Herald, for the Bowery Mission, New York, John Good, a representative, spoke in the interest of the mission, in the M. E. church at the morning service, Sunday, speaking from the Parable of the Sower, Matthew 13: 1-9. The theme was made interesting. Prayer was offered by Rev. Frank J. Whidbee of Middletown. The anthem, Glory, Praise and Honor, was sung at the offertory. The offering was for the mission. Preceding Mr. Good's address Rev. W. D. Woodward, pastor, expressed thanks for two envelopes, one for himself and one for Mrs. Woodward, which they received from the Christmas tree in the vestry, Christmas night, each containing gold pieces; the thanks by him were expressed in some original verses. At the Sunday school session, following the morning service, Mr. Good addressed the school, in an instructive manner, telling of his boyhood days when his home was with his parents in Caribou, Colorado, on a plain situated on a mountain, with an elevation of two miles above the level of the sea, because, there was a silver mine in the mountain, and that was the industry of the settlement of log cabin houses. Through the courtesy of Rev. Frank J. Whidbee of Middletown who motored here in his car with Mr. Good, he was taken to Noank for an address in the afternoon and to Mystic in the evening.

Mrs. W. D. Woodward was the appointed leader of the Epworth League evening service, with the topic, What Time Is It?

Mrs. John R. Perkins and daughter, Patricia, left Monday morning to join Mr. Perkins in Philadelphia. The family had been spending the Christmas holidays with Mr. Perkins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, Mr. Perkins returning Wednesday to their home in Philadelphia.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT BUSINESS AT NEW PEAK.

In looking over the past year from the vantage point of the new, it is highly gratifying that the business operations in the two counties making up the eastern end of Connecticut, as disclosed by The Bulletin's survey of manufacturing, banking, building and jobbing lines, show that all previous records have been beaten and a new peak attained. Going over the top by more than $36,000,000, there is outstripped the big year of 1920 and today we stand on the threshold of an annual business in these lines of a billion and three-quarters dollars.

The heavy banking business, with large gains contributed by two Norwich institutions, has served to swell the year's total to unprecedented figures, while manufacturing has moved ahead and wages show a gain of four million.

In certain lines of manufacture there have been quiet periods. Norwich has not skipped spotty conditions but its diversity of manufactures is always helpful and it has had a year of good business.

One barometer that is always reliable as indicating conditions is the postoffice, and with a bigger year than in any of the past ten it must be set down as prosperous.

There has been nothing spectacular in the year's accomplishments in any of the various lines, barring banking. Betterments of transportation, by rail and water have received needed attention. Improved highways put Norwich in closer touch with surrounding towns and cities, while promise of still greater improvements are highly gratifying to several sections of this and of the state.

It has been a good year in construction activity and taken all in all 1923 must go down as a good year.

WAR SUPPLIES FOR MEXICO.

In the decision of this government to sell war supplies to the Obregon government in Mexico there is a departure from the declaration made by President Harding against the disposal of war supplies to foreign countries. But conditions differ and times have changed. The supplies in question are not for the purpose of starting a war, but are needed in an effort to put down a revolution that has developed against an established government which we have recognized.

In Mexico the situation is no different than it has been for many years. Those seeking power are endeavoring to get it by means of a revolution instead of confining themselves to the peaceful method of the ballot box. The Obregon government in getting a foothold may have been no different than the rest, but it is the government that exists. It is the government that has done the most in behalf of pacification in Mexico for years. It has been an administration that has turned the country from warfare to the reestablishment of industry and business, that has agreed to safeguard the rights of subjects of other countries and through a period of probation has so conducted itself as to gain the recognition of the United States, which insures similar action by other countries. It is a government that has encouraged confidence by its action, accomplishments and promises.

Under such circumstances it is not surprising that we should be ready to give it such assistance as would come from the selling to it of supplies which it needs for its protection. We are cognizant of the fact that failure to do so means giving just so much indirect comfort if not actual aid to the revolutionists. The course which has been adopted by this government concerning the supplies is to stand on that which displays the most certainty rather than lending any influence to the unknown.

The aim of this government is to do whatever it can in behalf of stabilization in the country to the south of the Rio Grande. It isn't encouraging war or domestic strife. It seeks to have peace restored as soon as possible and casts its influence against the Mexican habit of rushing into revolutions.

CITY EXPENDITURES.

According to figures which are given out by the census bureau, the cities of the country generally are not living within their income. That would indicate that the habit is contagious and that there is real serious need of getting down to a businesslike manner of conducting municipal governments.

The idea of spending regardless of what the income might be is not a new one. Congress has been a glowing example of it for years, and even now that it is working on a budget and getting the benefit of better methods of doing business, there are those who are chafing under the restraint and pressing for a return to the old arrangement where no one knew whether the books would balance and by the time it was found out it was too late to cut the expenditures.

When 161 cities each having a population of 30,000 or more show a total indebtedness incurred in the fiscal year 1923 amounting to $5.58 for each resident, the tendency is by no means restricted to one locality. It is true that there are exceptions but it is unfortunate that the situation isn't reversed.

Is there less interest being taken in the government of our cities? Are they rushing to meet demands without giving careful consideration as to whether they are needed, or whether the expenditure is wise?

Whatever the scope of the government there should be serious concern manifested for wise administration. Living beyond the income cannot go on indefinitely for cities any more than for individuals and the day of reform should come before it is forced.

THE DEPLORABLE FIRE LOSS.

Do the statistics that are kept concerning fires accomplish anything? Do they cause people to give greater thought and effort to prevention? From the number and the loss involved one might suspect that they do not, and yet there is no telling what destruction and loss of life would be caused if no steps should be taken to avoid them.

The Nation's Business has just reported the fire loss to life and property during the year 1922, the last year for which there are complete figures, and it shows that there were 15,000 deaths and damage of $500,000,000 to property during those twelve months, and then it added the very important statement that nine-tenths of the fires could have been prevented.

That is a crushing indictment for carelessness, criminal and otherwise. It makes it clear that while much preventive work may be done there is need for doing ten times as much. There is need of giving better personal protection to all kinds of property and thereby putting greater safeguards about human lives.

When we stop to realize that there is an average of 41 persons burned to death and 47 seriously injured every 24 hours, that property loss is suffered at the rate of $16 a second from fire in this country, we need to do a bit of careful thinking and acting. It is folly to admit that property losses and the taking of human lives should go on steadily increasing just because there are greater risks and property values have risen in keeping with living costs. Economic changes have taken place, but along with them there was the opportunity to decrease fire hazards. The chance to prevent has not decreased, except that our backs have been turned upon it.

It is because preventive measures are ignored that five schoolhouses burn every day and there are fires in 15 hotels every 24 hours. It is because of lack of prevention, that can be supplied where there's the will in nine-tenths of the cases, that a farm building goes up in smoke every seven minutes, that a dwelling is consumed every four minutes, and that one hospital and five churches burn every day. It is certainly a deplorable record, but one that ought to create greater preventive action by the many and not solely the few.

THE LEVIATHAN'S TROUBLES.

Trouble is nothing new for the Leviathan. It has been running into that almost from the day it was built, and certainly from the time it came into the hands of this government. The grounding of the vessel in New York harbor has probably not seriously damaged the ship. Just what the cost of that accident will be will depend upon whether any damage has been done to the new sewer system which is being constructed for New Jersey cities, against the outlet of which the Leviathan may have struck. It will be heavy enough in any case, but if the sewer pipes have been ripped up it may cost a quarter of a million to replace them.

In connection with the question of liability it is pointed out that the federal government had authorized the location and laying of the sewer outlet, so that the pilot should have been on the guard against getting into that locality for that reason as well as keeping off the reef, but in this instance the effort to take the big ship through the channel under foggy conditions may have been affected by unusual currents and that due consideration should have been given to that feature when the pipes were laid, inasmuch as vessels would be expected to go where conditions forced them.

The grounding of the Leviathan has also brought up the question as to the responsibility under the conditions that existed. As is the custom Captain Hartley has assumed that as commander of the ship. It was, however, under the guidance of a pilot who was taken on for the purpose of specially guiding the vessel that it might avoid shoals, and reefs and escape the effects of the currents. A pilot is supposed to be a specialist in the navigation of such waters who gives the orders for the guidance of the ship. It was under him that it landed on the mudbank, and it seems like stretching it a good deal to put the responsibility on the captain when it was actually a licensed pilot who was guiding the ship and who was taken aboard in order to do just what he didn't.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Don't forget to write it 1924.

Being leap year, speak early and avoid the rush.

May it be a real happy and prosperous New Year is the wish of The Bulletin for all its readers.

The man on the corner says: Don't spoil the new year by imagining a lot of calamities that never occur.

It is well to remember that a New Year like a new resolution is very much what you make it.

A dozen more deaths from poison liquor will only make the rum runner feel that he is more necessary than ever.

If 1924 picks up all the good things started by 1923 and keeps away from all the bad things it will have the makings of a great year.

The democrats must realize that the blame for not putting tax reduction through cannot be placed on their shoulders if they are recorded in favor of it.

Hiram Johnson was painfully bruised when Henry Ford declared for President Coolidge. He will be mortally injured politically if the report is true that two wealthy backers are about to desert him.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—The Christmas season here was marked with many unusual occurrences—foremost among them was a cracking thunder storm with hail and all the fixin's, that precede the dawning of Christmas day.

The community tree was on the white house grounds and a chorus of thousands of voices, led by a great vested choir from one of the churches marked another innovation — Mrs. Coolidge set a new pace for first ladies of the land by sending flowers to working girls who had made her white house gowns—who had waited on her during the rush of Christmas shopping and then she and the president and their two sons, after attending church and having the customary celebration at home, went out to the soldiers' hospital and took part in the exercises there, watching the motion picture, Abraham Lincoln, with the wounded soldiers and chatting with them after the show was over. But there was another thing that occurred worthy of mention. At noon, after the church service was over Mrs. Coolidge went down to the Salvation Army headquarters and helped distribute the dinner to those unfortunate enough to need help from the army. 'Twas no fake help that Mrs. Coolidge gave—she did not merely pose, but with her own fair hands gave out baskets of food, with the same personal charm and cordiality that marks her greeting to persons in her own social circle.

But it was at the foreign embassies that the most novel Christmas happening occurred. Each nation celebrated according to the customs of its own country. An embassy or a legation is regarded as foreign soil and belongs to the country to which the diplomatic representative is credited. And most of those embassies and legations have lots of children under their roofs. There is no race suicide among them. And little children who speak the language of our late allies or enemies spent the day according to customs of their home country. 'Twas roast goose at their dinners, instead of the traditional American turkey.

The Polish legation celebrated by a solemn feast at Christmas eve. A great fish was the principal dish served, accompanied with other sea food; that is according to Polish traditions. The Czechoslovakian legation was conducted in practically the same way, with the entire staff attending. The Austrians had a boar's head for their main dish, and it was brought whole to the table, and carved with great ceremony. As a rule the Latin-American nations conformed to American custom and served turkey; those who could do so had great baskets of native fruit on the table—by that it is meant fruit from their own countries. The dean of the diplomatic corps, M. Jusserand, served a typical French dinner to his guests and according to the traditions of those Catholic countries the feast was celebrated as a holy day and not entirely as a holiday.

The Italian embassy wanted fine fat eels, which is according to its home custom, but in its place served as fine fish as could be found. The Italians celebrate January 6th as their feast day, but to conform to American customs served a truly Christmas dinner also.

Even the non-Christian envoys, like the Japanese and Chinese and other far east representatives conformed to the customs of the season and made merry with additional feasts at Christmas eve. The Persian and the Siamese ministers were exceptions and served a regulation American dinner.

And in all were Christmas trees, little children and many gifts.

In several instances the departure from American customs was interesting. At the Polish legation the great table for the feast was laid in the hall. There was on the walls the emblems of Poland. A great flag formed the center piece—and at Christmas eve the little son of the Polish minister followed the old time custom of watching for the star. The lights of the room were turned low—all curtains drawn close except at one window where the little boy peeped out with eyes fixed to see the first star light up the heavens—then the feast is begun lights blaze from every window and from the great tree which is alight with candles and sparkling gifts.

In some of the foreign homes there is a mixture of races—American and Danish is an example. Here there is a struggle for native customs, so both forms are celebrated and the children of the household have a doubly good time. As Germany and England are among the countries where Christmas festivals take the highest rank, so here during the holidays those embassies are in the foreground of celebrations.

Out at the National Soldiers home, where a big herd of Holsteins is kept, the event of the past week was the milking contest between Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Senator Magnus Johnson, with Gen. Tasker H. Bliss acting as referee. Wallace won by a pint—so it was declared, but the first farmer senator says it's because he hasn't had time lately to keep in practice, and Mrs. Johnson has done most of the milking. So he has issued a challenge to the secretary of agriculture to make a milking test with "Mrs. Johnson at the cow." Whether the secretary will accept the challenge isn't yet announced.

The recent census finds the colored population is rapidly migrating north and the center is now north-northeast of its former position. It is said that in 100 years it moved 443 miles south but now the tide has turned and it's moving northeast instead of southwest.

New England is credited with being the magnet that draws the Negro north and it is said authoritatively to be due to the influx of Negroes into Massachusetts, Connecticut and certain eastern coast states that the change in this decade is due.

Lobbyists from the national woman's party have dress rehearsals every morning on the steps of the capitol before the score or more of young women start out on the day's work of interviewing and trying to influence legislators on the pending equality for women constitutional amendment. Having received last instructions from their leader, Miss Maud Younger, the young women commence a campaign of buttonholing the senators and congressmen as they approach the capitol and later following them up in their offices. Men who went through the trial of the pre-suffrage lobbying heave mighty sighs as they foresee what is coming to them now.

Practically all of the New England congressional delegation went home for the holidays. News spreaders are digging for bait, but the catch is small.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Antonio Scotti, whose 25th year on the American operatic stage is to be made the occasion for a celebration tonight at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, has long been recognized as one of the world's leading baritones. The singer was born in Naples in 1867 and was 23 years old when he quit a church career for the opera stage, making his first appearance in Malta. He steadily won the favor of the public and, following up-

TRAINING HIM

"What's this?" demanded the very new husband, who was trying to surround a ten-minute breakfast in about forty seconds in order to catch his train, as his little wife laid some things on the table beside him and ran her fingers through his nicely brushed hair, utterly ruining the effect.

"Oh," said his little wife, tenderly "these are the samples of the cretonne for the bedroom windows and the velvet I want for the chaise-longue cushions. I thought if you'd just run in and get eight and a half yards——"

"Twittering tunafish!" roared the very new husband, shoving back his chair "What do you think I do downtown all day? I expect you have an idea I stroll down Michigan boulevard twirling a cane during the hours when I am not lounging at the club. I'd have you know that from 8.30 to 5 o'clock a Pacific typhoon has nothing on me so far as rapid action is concerned. I have just about as much chance of going shopping as I have of joining an excursion down the Milky Way! I'm being paid for my time and the old man is there to see that he gets his money's worth."

"Anyhow, I've got a bass voice and that settles it," continued the very new husband. "A man with a gentle tenor voice might edge in and ask for two spools of thread and charge them please, but with a deep bass voice it simply can't be done. Why don't you go yourself?"

"M-mother said you'd reveal your true nature just as soon as you had me tied down!" sobbed the pretty little wife. "It's all the thanks I get for trying to save you money! You might just as well sw-wear at me, roaring so! If you did the shopping don't you see I'd save all that carfare and the wear on my shoes and everything?"

"That's terribly thoughtful of you, dearie," apologized the very new husband glancing at his watch, "but I simply haven't a minute to waste and I never could remember all that, anyhow! I'm absent-minded and if you expected eleven yards of velvet and six of cretonne I'd be absolutely certain to come home with a bolt of cotton flannel and a remnant of chiffon. I'll buy you some new shoes when yours wear——"

"It isn't shoes," wept the bride, casting herself down upon the divan and burying her head in the pillows. "It's just that you don't love me enough to be willing to do something to please me!"

"Huh!" snorted the very new husband, halfway to the door. "I know all about that! 'Oh, yes!' the intelligent Celady would say as she patted her marcel and scorned the velvet sample, 'yes, we had plenty of that color last week, but we are all out now.'"

"I'd like to know for whom you have been shopping to know so much about it!" sniffed the pretty little wife, darkening up for another storm. "I am glad there is somebody you care enough about to endure the ordeal! I expect she is much prettier than I am, and just as soon as I can pack up I will——"

"Hesperia!" cried the very new husband distractedly, glancing at his watch and registering horror, "what are you talking about? When I have-n't a second to spare!"

"Oh, go along!"—the little bride said distantly. "Don't mind me! I am only your wife! I'm not so important as catching trains and sitting at an old desk all day! You don't love me——"

"Why, you know I love you!" stammered the very new husband more distractedly. "But can't you see whatever am I to do, Hesperia? Give me the darned samples and I'll get the stuff if it kills me—golly, I'm missing my train!"

"It's all your fault for arguing so long!" declared the little bride stuffing the samples into his pockets. "Run!"

She watched him from the window till he turned the corner and then picked up the telephone. "Hello, Margery!" she called sweetly. "It's all right, I can come over this afternoon and play mah jongg! You never heard anything like the time I had with Edgar making him do some perfectly easy shopping for me! No, I didn't stop to explain that it would interfere with something important! I wanted to do this afternoon! Men argue so! Aren't they funny!"—Chicago News.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

"What was your income for the year 1923?"

The bureau of internal revenue today is addressing this question to every citizen and resident of the United States. Endeavor correctly to answer this and other questions relating to income and income tax will be made by the vast majority of persons who annually are required to file an individual income-tax return. However, as evidenced by the files of the bureau of internal revenue, thousands of taxpayers are without exact knowledge of the requirements of the revenue act in relation to such obligations.

The result is the filing of an incorrect return, frequently to the detriment of the taxpayer who fails to take advantage of allowable exemptions and deductions.

As an aid in the preparation of individual income- tax returns for the year 1923, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has prepared a series of articles based on the latest rulings and decisions governing the administration of the revenue act. The salaried man, wage earner, professional and business man, farmer, in fact every class of taxpayer, will be informed fully of the requirements and privileges. Taxpayers are advised to preserve these articles as a guide, in the making of their returns.

Every single person whose net income for 1923 was $1,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more must file a return. Divorcees or persons separated by mutual consent are classed as single persons. Married perons, living together, are required to file a return if the aggregate net income was $2,000 or more, or if the aggregate gross income was $5,000 or more. Husband and wife may include the income of each in a single joint return, or may file separate returns showing the income of each.

Forms for filing individual returns of income for the year 1923 are available at offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices. Copies have been sent to persons who filed returns for the year 1922. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time.

Persons whose net income for 1923 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should use Form 1040 A. Heretofore used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less from whatever source derived, Form 1040 A has been revised in the interests of the largest class of taxpayers. Reduced from six pages, it consists of a single sheet, in which space is provided for answers to only three questions in relation to income: salaries, wages, commissions, etc; interest on bank deposits, notes, mortgages and corporation bonds; and "other income." On the reverse side are instructions for making out the return.

Persons, any part of whose income is derived from business, farming or profession, sale of property or rent, though the amount is $5,000 or less, should use the larger form 1040. The use of the 1040 form also is required in all cases where the net income is in excess of $5,000, regardless of whether from salary, business, profession or other taxable sources.

The return, sworn to by a notary or other person authorized to administer an oath, must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business. The filing period is from January 1 to midnight of March 15, 1924. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15. Heavy penalties are provided for failure or "willful refusal" to file the return and pay the tax on time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lynchings During 1923.

Mr. Editor: I send you the following concerning lunchings for the past year as compiled by Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, Monroe N. Work in charge. I find that there were 28 persons lynched in 1923. This is 39 less than the number 57 for the year 1923. Thirteen of hte persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law 7 from jail and 6 from officers of the law outside of jails.

We also find that there were 46 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Four women—3 white and 1 colored—were among those thus saved. Six of these preventions of lynchings were in northern states and 40 in southern states. In 37 of the cases the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 9 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. In 6 instances during the year persons charged with being connected with lynching mobs were brought to trial. Of the 52 persons thus before the courts, only 3 were sent to the penitentiary.

Of the 28 persons lynched 15 1923, 26 were negroes and 2 were whites; 3 of the former were women; 7 or one-fourth of those put to death were charged with rape or attempted rape; one of the victims was burned to death; one was put to death and then the body was burned. The charge against the one burned to death was murder.

The offenses charged against the whites were: Participation in strike depredations 1, being taken as a negro 1. The offenses charged against the negroes were: Murder 2, murder-ous assault 2, rape 4, attempted rape 1, killing officer of the law 2, wounding officer of the law 2, no charge reported 2, assisting man charged with rape to escape 1, resisting posse searching for man charged with rape 1, cattle stealing 1, "trying to act like white man and not knowing his place" 1, insulting woman 1, peeping in window 1, striking man in altercation 1.

The nine states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Arkansas 2, Florida 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, Oklahoma 1, Texas 2, Virginia 1.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON,
Principal.

Stories That Recall Others

A Ladylike Operator.

Harry, age five, was left in the care of the maid one afternoon recently. Late in the afternoon he got permission to call his father on the telephone. He was certain he knew the number and needed no prompting. He gave what he thought to be the number. The operator asked for it again as there is no such number as he gave. He repeated it.

All was silent for a minute and then central asked: "Little boy, is your mother home?"

"No-o," the child replied.

"You ba-ad boy," and with a sputter she plugged him out.

Very slowly Harry hung up the receiver and, abashed, stole into the kitchen. Noticing something was wrong, the maid asked what she said.

"Oh, she gave me the awfulest bawling out—and I think she cussed a little!"

The Wrong Retort.

Mrs. A. was reading the newspaper. "Listen, John," she began excitedly. "Here is a story that begins 'Young soldier finds wife he lost in war.'"

"Yes," Mr. A. replied, "it does seem that those soldier fellows never will stop having bad luck."

Now there are strained relations in that family.

Radio messages broadcast from Los Angeles, Salt Lake City and Chicago, were recently received daily by engineers of the United States geological survey while traveling in the bottom of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Among the Arabs

After a long voyage, the magic boat landed Little Jack Rabbit in a land where every boy is taught two things; the grace of hospitality and to understand and rule his horse. It was the land of Arabia, where the wandering Arabs live in tents and cross the sandy wastes on camels.

As the bunny boy hopped up to a large tent in the midst of a grove of palm trees where a tiny stream bubbled up from the ground, an Arab woman handed him a basket of dates. Her little boy smiled at him from the tent for he had never seen a bunny boy. And while the little rabbit sat down to eat the dates, the Arab boy told how brave their women were; how once his own mother, on her black-painted war camel, singing the battle song to encourage the Arab warriors, had led them to battle.

And he went on to tell that he belonged to the "tent dwellers," that his country was the sandy desert, his house, a tent woven of coarse black hair by the women of the tribe. That his father with other men of the tribe made long journeys to India to bring back clothes for which they traded gums and ivories, dyewoods and ostrich feathers. And the little Arab boy told the bunny boy many other things, and by and by, his mother brought out an ostrich egg for the little rabbit.

And as they sat beneath the palm trees, a wandering minstrel came along and began to sing, for all Arabs are fond of music.

"The sands of the desert, the rushing winds fling.
The little bird covers its head with its wing.
The camel turns tail to the sand burdened gale,
And the sun in the heavens grow misty and pale.
But sleep, little one, on mother's white breast,

By and by, a caravan came by; camels loaded with goods and spices, and beautiful Arabian horses carrying bold warriors. One of the men invited the bunny boy to ride on his camel and travel to a far city. So bidding the Arab woman and her little boy goodbye, Little Jack Rabbit seated himself on the camel's back and rode away. After a long journey, they came to a city, where the houses were of brick, and the gardens filled with great date trees and vines laden with luscious grapes.

All of a sudden, the bunny boy remembered that he was far away from the seashore where his magic boat lay. He began to worry for fear he could not go back and without it he must travel on foot a long long way before reaching the Dear Old Grumble Patch. Just then, his camel said in a low voice:

"Listen master, I know your thoughts. I am often called the 'Ship of the Desert' and I will 'sail your magic boat. Fear not, it will come to you on wings!' And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Will be sold for Strictly CASH on Delivery.

After more than ten years' experience in our business with a credit system and its necessary expensive bookkeeping and collecting accompaniments, we have decided to discontinue it and adopt a strictly cash system beginning January first, 1924.

We believe this will be mutually beneficial to ourselves and all our patrons, who pay their bills, as this will eliminate all uncollectable accounts and enable us to sell for less and to do better work.

We desire to thank all our patrons for the many favors shown us in the past and trust they will see the proper meaning in this change of system.

WE WILL CONTINUE TO SELL NEW AND USED CARS ON THE DEFERRED PAYMENT PLAN.

NO COMMUNICABLE DISEASES REPORTED FROM NORWICH

No communicable diseases were reported from Norwich for the week ending Dec. 22d, according to the morbidity report for that week issued by the state department of health. The report which includes as cases reported before 11 a. m. Monday, Dec. 24th, shows the following communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut:

Measles—Griswold 4, Jewett City 5, Stonington 9, Somers 11, Stafford Springs 2, Brooklyn 1, Canterbury 3, Danielson 1, Plainfield 4.

In regard to preventing diphtheria in Connecticut the health report says:

Immunizing against diphtheria is no longer an experiment. It is an established fact. Its value has been proven by work with hundreds of thousands of children in New York City and hundreds of thousands more in other parts of the country. In preparation for an active campaign against diphtheria, the State Department of Health has mailed to physicians in the state a pamphlet on immunizing people against diphtheria. It describes in detail the method of making the Schick test and contains colored plates showing the skin reactions. Its distribution to physicians is the first step of a state-wide campaign to wipe out diphtheria.

Already immunization against diphtheria is being carried on in many places in Connecticut. Nurses in hospitals and inmates of institutions have been immunized routinely and in a number of places, school children are being immunized by the local authorities.

In New Haven, New Britain and other places the health departments are actively engaged in immunizing school children. The general plan is for the health officer or meet the teachers in a selected school to explain the importance of immunizing against diphtheria and to give a few of them the Schick test. The teachers then present the matter to the pupils and distribute consent slips to be signed by the parents who want their children protected. Nurses visit the homes and obtain parents' request for immunizing children under school age. The physician who gives the Schick test and the nurses who assist him then visit the school at an appointed time and give the test to all children whose parents have asked for it. A week later the first of the three weekly doses of toxin-antitoxin is given to those who are found to be susceptible to diphtheria as shown by the Schick test.

COLONIAL CLUB ENTERTAINS WEST SIDE CLUB

Light refreshments were served after the evening's play.

STATE POLICE ARREST MAN ON SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 31.—Harold E. Brand of Oswegatchie was arrested tonight at Groton by State Policeman T. J. Henry charged with seduction and Mary A. Kelsey, aged 16 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kelsey of Waterford who was found living with him, was taken into custody, charged with being incorrigible. Brand is locked up at the Groton police station pending a hearing tomorrow morning and the girl is in the custody of the state police awaiting a hearing at the same time.

Brand is a son of the late Captain Dudley A. Brand, for many years master of the steam yacht [illegible]. He is married and has four children. His wife has instituted proceedings for a divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and non-support. She was formerly Miss Annabel Fox of [illegible] London where she was well known.

ROTARY SNOW SWEEPER FOR TROLLEY COMPANY

The Norwich branch of the Connecticut company has received a new double truck rotary snow sweeper, and the new sweeper was put to work Monday morning clearing the company lines. The sweeper is about 40 feet long and has two large brooms which run diagonally across the tracks. The brooms are nine feet, six inches long and are made to rotate across the track, independent to the running of the car. The brooms will do away with the old style plow that piled the snow high on either side of the track. The sweeper was built in Waterbury and was brought over the company's lines to this city. It is expected that by using this style of sweeper all local lines can be kept open during heavy snow storms.

LOCAL POLICE MADE 107 ARRESTS DURING PAST MONTH

During the month of December the local police made a total of 107 arrests. The holiday season this year was comparatively light as compared with the number of arrests made in past years the last week in December. Of the 107 arrests 48 of the prisoners were charged with intoxication and 18 with breach of the peace. The charges placed against prisoners' names on the blotter were as follows for the month:

Intoxication, 49; breach of the peace, 19; non support, 2; deserting 1; accessory after the fact, 1; refusing to obey an officer, 8; theft, 4; keeping a gambling house, 3; violation of the liquor law, 7; driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, 3; violation of the motor vehicle law, 11; common drunkard, 2; injury to public property, 1; reckless driving 1; violating city ordinance 1; allowing minors to loiter in a pool room 1; embezzlement 1; assault with a dangerous weapon.

NO TIME EXTENSION FOR AUTO DRIVERS

Local and state police officials throughout the state have been requested by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel to enforce the law regarding automobile markers. Chief of Police George Linton received the following telegram Monday from Commissioner Stoeckel:

Hartford, Conn.
Dec. 31, 1923.

Chief of Police, Norwich, Conn.,

Please enforce law on new markers.

Robbins B. Stoeckel,
Commissioner Motor Vehicles

This telegram indicates that there will be no extension of time for automobile owners who failed to secure their 1924 number plates up to Monday. All drivers using 1923 number plates on and after today (Tuesday) are liable to arrest and prosecution in accordance with the provisions of the motor vehicle law.

From the number of telephone calls received at the police station Monday and Monday night it is evident that many Norwich people failed to make application for their new registrations in time for the new year. Several local people claimed they mailed in their applications with fees but had not received their new numbers up to Monday night. The delay is attributed to the last minute rush for registrations.

Regarding the last minute rush for registrations an Associated Press despatch under a Hartford date line said:

Approximately $130,000 in receipts; 3,000 applicants for registrations handled; 1,500 people standing in line at one time; and 300 turned away at six o'clock when officials saw that the situation was hopeless. That was the last day of 1923 in the state motor vehicle department; the worst December 31 on record. The figures do not include the three branch offices.

Despite the fact that license plates have been on hand ready for distribution since October 20 and all holders of licenses have been notified since that date, something like 3,500 last minute registrants jammed their way into the capitol today and stood in line about five hours each in an effort to get licenses before the old year died.

Absolutely no extension of time will be made by Commissioner Stoeckel. Anyone found Tuesday driving a motor vehicle bearing 1923 markers will be liable to arrest, and police departments all over the state have been notified to enforce the law.

When the state police cut the line at the designated point and told those behind that point they would have to leave and return Wednesday, one man stood on the steps and began a speech about the "right of the people and the arrogance of public servants." He tried to get a committee to visit Commissioner Stoeckel and arrange an extension of time. For a few minutes the situation needed only a spark to develop some real trouble. Exceptionally intelligent and tactful work on the part of the state police kept the situation well in hand, however, and the disappointed 300 were ushered out of the building.

WATCH NIGHT SERVICE AT CENTRAL CHURCH

The Young People's committee of the Central Baptist church were in charge of the watch night service held at that church Monday night. The young people of the church had as their guests for the evening the young people of the First Baptist church and the Third Baptist church and many young people home from college or school attended.

Beginning at 9 o'clock there was a social time after which refreshments were served by the entertainment committee. The watch night service began at 11 o'clock in charge of Miss Edith Ellis young people's leader. The address was delivered by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, after which the young people home for the holidays spoke briefly.

Just before midnight there was a moment of silent meditation as the old year passed out and the new year came in with all that it has in store for this earth.

NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY AT ELKS HOME

Norwich lodge of Elks welcomed the New Year with merry making Tuesday night at a ladies' night, New Year's eve party in the hall at the Elks home where tables were set around the hall in cabaret style and seasonable decorations in red and green were attractively arranged. Stanley's orchestra played for dancing and an excellent vaudeville programme was given by Marie Ducy, Esther Kleidel, Dorothy Golden and James Walch. Supper was served at 11 o'clock and the dancing and vaudeville was continued till an early hour of the new year's first morning.

Arrangements for the event were successfully carried out by the committee comprising P. E. R. James, J. Harrington, chairman; Felix P. Callahan, Charles W. Cassidy, Louis L. Gotthelf and A. W. Silverberg.

CHARGE SALEM MAN WITH EVADING RESPONSIBILITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 31.—State Policeman Fred Caron this morning ordered G. H. Morgan of Salem to appear in the police court Wednesday morning and answer a charge of evasion of responsibility. Morgan was the operator of an automobile Saturday night that knocked down Joseph Caracausa on Bank street. Caracausa sustained bruises and scratches. Morgan did not stop to ascertain the extent of Caracausa's inuries, but the man noted the markers on the car, which is owned by J. H. Harrington of Salem.

UNCAS PAPER WHISTLE WELCOMES NEW YEAR

The blowing of the whistle at the plant of the Uncas Paper company sounded the greeting of Norwich to the arrival of the year 1924. The whistle was blown at 11.55 and continued at intervals until 12.05. Many people heard the whistle and knew that 1923 had passed forever.

Sent Body to Wallingford

The body of Frank Koengeber, 67, who died in this city Sunday was taken in charge by Hourigan Bros., and on Monday afternoon was sent to Wallingford where burial will take place.

NEW YEAR'S SOCIAL AT MOOSE HOME

Following a class initiation at the Moose home, Monday evening, Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., celebrated the arrival of the new year by holding a social gathering and entertainment programme, followed by a buffet luncheon. About 8 o'clock a special meeting of the lodge was called to order and a class of ten candidates initiated.

Immediately after the class initiation there were several exhibition bouts. The boxing programme included a bout between Miniature Harry Wells and Miniature Jack Dempsey who went three rounds. Baltimore Joe Gans and Tony Bruso gave a two-round exhibition after which Baltimore Joe Gans met Irish Billy Glen and Frankie Busch, each bout going two rounds.

A special vaudeville entertainment followed. The numbers were as follows: Songs and jokes by the Jewell Sisters of Waterbury; A Little Bit of Old New Haven, by Arthur Wells, of New Haven; dancing and singing skit by the Tidd Sisters of New Haven; comedian act by Charles Roxie of Hartford, Miss Finkle of New York in Oriental dancing, concluded the programme.

A buffet lunch was served about midnight. The evening's programme was arranged by the "On to New York Committee," comprising W. R. Hastedt, chairman, Seymour DeRusha and Bernard Wunderlick.

The committee is planning to hold another class initiation in February.

AUTO RUNS DOWN TWO WAITING FOR TROLLEY CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 31.—Harold Peck, of 261 Huntington street, was arrested tonight by Patrolman Walter Rehn, charged with reckless driving and operating an automobile without being in possession of an operator's license. He was released on a bond of $500 for his appearance in police court tomorrow morning, his mother, Mrs. Pauline Peck, becoming surety on the bond.

Peck was operating a seven-passenger touring car in a northerly direction on Montauk avenue. As the automobile approached Gardner avenue it overtook the trolley car, and an automobile headed in the same direction. Awaiting the arrival of the trolley car, were seven men and women standing in the highway at the corner of Gardner avenue. As the trolley car slowed down to take on the passengers Peck operated his machine from behind the automobile that was ahead of him and passed it.

In doing so Peck's automobile ran down Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham Creighton of 58 Chapel street. Mr. and Mrs. Creighton were hurled to the highway sustaining lacerations of the face and hands, bruises and contusions of the body and were taken to the Home Memorial hospital where their wounds were dressed after which they returned to their home.

ROCKVILLE MEN HELD— AIDED ALIENS OVER BORDER

Oliver Morin and John Bonan of Rockville, Conn., with Joseph Bonan, Guisseppe Pellin and Angelio Dectari of Feltre, Italy, were arrested at Malone, N. Y., late Friday night by U. S. Immigration Inspector Ryan, the first two charged with conspiracy to bring the other men across the border and the others with illegally entering the United States. The Rockville men are held in bonds of $3,000 each for a hearing before U. S. commissioner at Albany on February 15. The bonds were furnished Saturday by John E. Fisk and John B. Thomas, Rockville lawyers.

John Bonan received a telegram at his home in Rockville Christmas day announcing the arrival of his brother, Joseph Bonan in Montreal, December 22. With Morin, he left at once for Canada and met his brother and his companions. The Rockville men are said to have piloted the aliens to Cornwall, Ontario, across the St. Lawrence river, from the United States and the last Canadian station on the railroad whose first stop in the United States is at Malone.

Joseph Bonan is 23 years old and it is said that he had not seen his brother John for nearly twenty years.

HAS ACCEPTED POSITION WITH BOSTON CONCERN

Harold W. Carpenter of this city, who has been employed by the Connecticut Power company for the past six years, has resigned to accept a position as salesman for Weitmore-Savage Co., of Boston. He left Sunday for Springfield where he will remain for three weeks studying at the meter factories after which he will take up his work in Boston.

Mr. Carpenter received his education in the local schools and graduated from the Norwich Free academy. He later entered the electrical engineering department of the Connecticut Power Co., and has advanced rapidly. The company he is now with is one of the leading electrical houses in the country.

ASSAULT SUSPECT HELD UNDER $1,000 BONDS

In the city court Monday morning a man from Franklin paid $3 for failure to obey local traffic rules. Oliver O. Young of Fitchville, charged with failure to have his license with him while operating his machine, settled his case by paying $13.90.

The case of State vs. Andrew Shutkowski was called up and the matter went over for one week, bonds being fixed at $1,000. He is held on suspicion of having knowledge of the suspected assault case at the Thamesville plant of the American Woolen mills Saturday afternoon, as a result of which, Michael Shugrue of 280 West Thames street, watchman at the plant, is a patient at the Backus hospital, suffering a fractured skull.

NEW YEAR'S GIFT FOR MISS JANE DEARING

Miss Jane Dearing, bookkeeper in the office of the street department of the City of Norwich, was pleasantly surprised Monday morning when employes of that department gathered in the office and presented her a purse of gold as a New Year's gift. Tree Warden Henry E. Davis made the presentation and Miss Dearing responded with a few words of thanks.

Miss Dearing has been in the street department office for several years and is popular among the workers of the city.

EXHORTS EVERY CITIZEN TO SERVE COMMUNITY —MAYOR WATERS

The city government of Norwich extends to all its citizens best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year. The city's prosperity and success are the reward of every citizen's interest and participation in the city government. With that result in mind, criticism can be constructive and helpful. Let us try to be of real service to our community so that in twelve months we can point to 1924 as a year of harmony, prosperity and progress.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of Norwich.

FUNERALS.

Frederick B. Senser.

Relatives and friends attended the funeral services for Frederick B. Senser, held Monday afternoon from the parlors of Hourigan Brothers. There were delegations present from the Polishers Union and the Norwich Aerie Eagles No. 367, of which the deceased was a member. The services were conducted by Rev. Richard R. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where a committal service was held. The bearers were H. P. Arthur, R. Bozzo and Peter Deimond of Northampton, Mass., Louis Hurst, Albert Woodmansee and Urgil Lapree of Norwich.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, sent by relatives and friends.

Jonathan Morris.

Funeral services for Jonathan Morris of New York city, who died here Saturday were held Monday afternoon, at 1.30 from the Central Baptist church, relatives and friends attending. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The service was in charge of Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., and during the service Mrs. Helena M. T. Church sang Abide With Me and The Christian's Good Night.

Burial was in the family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Dr. Pitt conducted a committal service. The bearers were Edwin W. Higgins, James L. Case, Frederick W. Lester and Frederick H. Cranston. The funeral arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Mrs. Moses R. Portelance

A final tribute to a loved one was paid by relatives and friends from New York city, Worcester, Bridgeport, Hartford, Westerly and Willimantic, Monday morning when funeral services for Mrs. Moses R. Portelance were held from her late home at 108 Central avenue. There was a wealth of beautiful floral pieces surrounding the casket.

The solemn high mass in St. Mary's Memorial church was celebrated by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor, assisted by Rev. P. J. McCormick, D. D., of Washington, as deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan as subdeacon.

Henry LaFontaine was at the organ and at the offertory Miss Josette LaVallee sang Pie Jesu, and at the close of the mass, Jesus, Lover of My Soul. As the body was taken from the edifice Miss LaVallee and Mr. Fontaine rendered Nearer, My God To Thee.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Keefe read a committal service at the grave. The bearers were James R. McNulty, Arthur Portelance Joseph R. Portelance, Jr., Oliver Portelance of Westerly, Joseph R. Portelance of Worcester and Thomas Lawlor of New York city. The funeral arrangements were by Hourigan Bros.

Mrs. Portelance died Saturday morning at 5.30 o'clock at her home at 108 Central avenue, after a long illness. She was born in Canada and was the daughter of James and Mary Boucher McNulty, but the greater part of her life had been spent in Greeneville. Surviving is her mother, Mrs. Mary McNulty of Norwich, and five children, Joseph R. Portelance, Mrs. Michael J. Murphy and Frederick R. Portelance of Norwich, Louis R. Portelance of Bridgeport, and Edmund R. Portelance of Willimantic. There are also two sisters, Mrs. Nelson LaVallee and Mrs. M. Gilmartin of Norwich. Ten grandchildren survive her.

Mrs. Portelance was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church and was interested in the work of the parish. She loved her home and her family was her chief joy in life.

Joseph Pothier.

The death of Joseph Pothier, a resident of Taftville for the past 48 years and engaged in the real estate business, occurred Monday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at his home on Merchants avenue after an illness of a week.

Mr. Pothier was born in Canada July 13, 1861, the son of Joseph and Philomine Gober Pothier and received his early education in the public schools of that place. About 40 years ago he was married to Zephirine Leduc in the Sacred Heart church, Taftville, by Rev. Fr. Thomason.

Besides his wife he is survived by four sons, Eli, Arthur, Joseph and Alfred Pothier, all of Taftville, and five daughters, Eda Plante, Vigila Desmarais, Stefanie LaBlanc, Miss Agnes Pothier, of Taftville, and Alexina Jodoin of Norwich. He also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Magnene of New Bedford, Mrs. Fleuie Boris of New Bedford and Mrs. Helzina Allard of Baltic and one brother, Edward Pothier of Los Angeles, Calif.

Mr. Pothier was a devoted member of the Sacred Heart church and was always interested in the affairs of the church.

Mrs. Albert Hill

Funeral services for Mary E. Church, wife of Albert Hill were held Monday afternoon from the funeral parlors of Church & Allen, relatives and friends attending, some from out of town. The service was in charge of Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace Episcopal church of Yantic. Burial was in the family plot in the Poquetanuck cemetery where Rev. Mr. Day read the committal service. The bearers were John McNally, Frank Phelps, Alfred Whitmarsh, Henry and Peter Duffile and John White.

Alfred W. Davis

Relatives and friend from Providence, Hartford, Danielson, Sterling, New London, Westerly, Pawtucket, and other places gathered in final tribute to Alfred W. Davis, when funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the home of his son, Frank D. Davis of West Main street, East Great Plain. The many floral tributes bore silent testimony to the esteem in which Mr. Davis had been held by his many friends. The service was in charge of Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, who spoke of the worth of Mr. Davis to the church, the community and to his family.

Burial was in Maplewood cemetery where Rev. Mr. Dunbar conducted a committal service. The bearers were the following relatives, Frank D. Davis and Alfred S. Davis, sons; H. D. Pendleton, son-in-law; George L. Risley, Robert T. Collins and George L. Risley, Jr., nephews.

Church and Allen were in charge.

Lose Your Fat, Keep Your Health

Superfluous flesh is not healthy, neither is it healthy to diet or exercise too much for its removal, or to apply greases and salves to the skin. The simplest method known for reducing the overfat body easily and steadily is the Marmola Method, tried and endorsed by thousands. Marmola Prescription Tablets contain an exact dose of the famous Marmola Prescription, and are sold by druggists the world over at one dollar for a case. They are harmless and leave no wrinkles or flabbiness. They are popular because effective and convenient. Ask your druggist for them or send price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., and procure a case.

LIQUOR BOAT ASHORE AT FISHER'S ISLAND

With a load of 800 cases of whiskey the 60 foot power boat Columbia manned by Joseph Jensen, 25, John Jensen, 27, and Mr. Sarvarnse, 35 went ashore early Monday morning at Barley Field Point, Fishers Island during the storm. Captain Clarence E. Peckham of the Fishers Island coast guard station took the men in charge and held them to await the action of federal officials.

SALVATION ARMY USHERS IN THE NEW YEAR

Two New Year's eve meetings were held at the Salvation Army hall on Cliff street. The first meeting opened about 8 o'clock and continued until 10 o'clock. Following this meeting the Salvation Army held an open air meeting at Franklin square.

At 11.30 o'clock a watch night service was opened in the army hall and continued until the arrival of midnight and the new year.

BIG RUSH FOR 1924 AUTO MARKERS

A number of Norwich people who waited until Monday to make application for their automobile registration numbers at the New London branch office of the motor vehicle department were disappointed. The rush was too great for the clerks in the office and during the afternoon it was found necessary to turn away a number of late arrivals.

Visitors from Mystic

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Smith and son [illegible] Smith, of Mystic, formerly of Norwich, were Christmas guests of relatives here. Mrs. Smith who spent a few days last week in Jewett City visiting friends, returned to Norwich Sunday evening and is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burke of Lafayette street. Mr. Smith and son expected to spend today (New Year's) at Mrs. Smith's former home.

OBITUARY.

Saul B. Shabecoff.

After an illness of about one month Saul B. Shabecoff died Monday at his home at 23 Pearl street. Mr. Shabecoff was one of the pioneer Jewish citizens of Norwich, coming here nearly fifty years ago. He was well known in charitable circles and was always willing to do his share to help others.

Mr. Shabecoff was born in Russia about 70 years ago and came to America when a young man. Nearly fifty years ago he came to Norwich and in this city forty years ago was united in marriage with Bessie Isaacs. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ida Sakowitz, and the Misses Rose and Lena Shabecoff; two sons, William and Sidney Shabecoff, and seven grandchildren, all of Norwich. He was the last of his immediate family.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the late home at 23 Pearl street, with Samuel Jacobson officiating. Burial in the Hebrew Beth Jacob cemetery at Brewster's Neck. [illegible] a committal service was held. The funeral arrangements were by Hourigan Bros.

MULDOON ENDS REIGN AS BOXING COMMISSIONER

New York, Dec. 31.—William Muldoon today ended a stormy two-year reign as chairman of the New York state athletic commission, boxing control organization. No formal announcement that he had relinquished his post was forthcoming but John E. Vanderbosch of Schenectady, who resigned as deputy commissioner, declared today's meeting was Muldoon's last, while a brief address to the commission by the veteran chairman, whose term expires with the new year, was interpreted as a farewell message.

The future organization of the commission, however, is unsettled. Taking Muldoon's retirement for granted, those associated with the game have suggested several candidates for the chairmanship, but Governor Smith is not expected to make known his course for several days. Frank Brower of Brooklyn, a commissioner; William McCormack, chairman of the license committee; and Edward Curry, close friend of Governor Smith and former boxer, have been mentioned as possible successors to Muldoon.

FAST BASKETBALL GAME EXPECTED THIS AFTERNOON AT PARISH HALL

Without doubt the best basketball attraction yet seen in the county will take place this afternoon at Parish hall, Taftville, when the undefeated Army and Navy Club Five clashes with the Providence Professionals. The Providence team comes to Taftville with a long string of victories and is rated as one of the best teams in that state and possible contenders for the New England chalked court title.

The local team will be even stronger than when they defeated the Hartford Kaceys, one of the strongest Connecticut teams, on Christmas day. Joe Belair is to play with the Plainfield team which he is coaching and will be unable to play his usual position at forward. However, Manager Murphy has secured Lou Mitchell of the famous Boston Whirlwinds, challengers for the world's title now held by the Original Celtics of Brooklyn. Mitchell is rated as one of the fastest forwards playing basketball in the country today and he will positively be in today's game. With this added strength the local team will be on a par with the Providence team and a fast game may be expected. Cardie will play the other forward position, Mills will be at center and the Coleman brothers will be in the guard positions. Molleur and Lemieux will be ready at a minute's notice to fill in at any position.

The "True" lineup will consist of Nolan, McGrath and Smith of the famous Newport Five; "Sharkey" Marks, of the famous Marks brothers, formerly of the Crescent A. A. of this city and one of the best centers in New England; Thibeot of South Kingston, Peloquin of Providence college and Jack Fifer of Brown university, which will make up the strongest basketball team ever seen in the local hall.

WOULD CHANGE METHOD OF CHOOSING OLYMPIC ATHLETES

Washington, Dec. 31.—A resolution favoring removal of all foreign control in the selection of athletes to represent the United States in Olympic games and the placing of full powers of selection in the hands of the American federation today at its annual convention here.

The federation also went on record as favoring selection of athletes by the contending institutions for all international contests other than the Olympian games without the necessity of outside certification.

The resolution was precipitated by discussion of the case of Charles Paddock, star sprinter of the University of Southern California, whose recent suspension by the Amateur Athletic union has caused much comment.

At present the selection of athletes for the Olympian games is in charge of the A. A. U. and the American Olympic association, the A. A. U. being the American representative of the International Athletic federation.

The arrangement favored would enable the American Olympic association to make selections on its own initiative as well as to sanction recommendations made to it. Under present rules, the association has no power of initiative.

The federation voted to increase its executive council to twenty-one members, the nine new members to be women.

A resolution which would prohibit the federation from holding an athletic contest without the approval of the member organization directly in charge of that branch of athletics, was left in the hands of the executive committee for further consideration.

Four organizations admitted to membership were the National Association of Directors of Girls' Camps, western Washington district, Amateur Athletic Federation, Southern California district Amateur Athletic federation. Articles of affiliation with the Philippine Amateur Athletic federation also were approved.

Henry C. Breckenridge, former assistant secretary of war, was re-elected president. The three vice presidents elected were General Palmer E. Pierce, president National Collegiate Athletic association; Dwight L. Davis, assistant secretary of war, and Ellwood Brown.

The latter's election as third vice-president carries with it the functions of executive officer of the federation.

The federation also passed a resolution urging congress to appropriate not less than $1,500,000 and provide the necessary land for the erection of a memorial stadium in Washington to American soldiers, sailors and marines killed in the world war.

RECOMMENDS CHANGES IN POLE VAULT AND HIGH JUMP

New York, Dec. 31.—What amounts to the elimination of qualifying rounds in the intercollegiate high jump and pole vault, has been recommended to the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. by the Association of College Track Coaches of America.

Under the existing scheme, qualifying rounds in these events are conducted on the first day of the annual eastern college track and field championships, and the final rounds on the second day. The coaches would confine high jump and pole vault competition to a single day.

"Two-day competition is rather severe on the frail competitor, as competition in the trials is as strenuous as the finals. A jumper or vaulter loses his spring in the two-day competition, and it is our recommendation that the competition in these events be confined to the last day of the meet, and started two hours earlier than has been the custom."

It was pointed out that qualifying competition in the two events differs from that in all other field events. In the high jump and pole vault the qualifying marks do not hold good for the finals whereas in the broad jump, shot put, hammer throw and other field events, the individual marks made in the qualifying rounds stand to the credit of the contestant until and unless he surpasses them in final round competition.

WILLIMANTIC MERMEN TO PERFORM HERE

The Willimantic Y. M. C. A. swimming team is scheduled to meet the local "Y's" in the Norwich pool Wednesday night of this week. The locals have been training for the contest for some time, and expect to give the visitors some lively competition. Among those who will represent the Norwich "Y" are F. Williams, Oscar Mosessian, T. Kundig, E. Grover, J. Hinrichs, J. Fellows, W. Geer. The meet will start promptly at 7.30 p. m. and will be open to all young men and boys of the city. The locals will continue their swimming activities all winter and are booking other meets.

COLLINS IS RANKING AMATEUR BILLIARD PLAYER

New York, Dec. 31.—Percy N. Collins of the Illinois A. C., heads the class A balkline billiard players in the annual ranking announced today by Julian Rice, chairman of the ranking committee of the national association of amateur billiard players. Charles P. Mathews of New York, heads the class B list, and Frank Gray of Brooklyn, the class C group.

The ranking committee chairman explained that players who have competed in more than one class are ranked in the division in which they last competed. This system affects Dr. Richard M. Roscow of Baltimore, Md., who won the class B national title but thereafter competed in the class A division.

The class A ranking follows:

1—Percy N. Collins, Chicago.
2—Francis S. Appleby, New York.
3—John A. Clinton, Jr., Pittsburgh.
4—Edgar Appleby, New York.
5—T. Henry Clarkson, New York.
6—Emil A. Reuner, Youngstown, O.
7—Dr. Richard M. Roscow, Baltimore.
8—Edward W. Gardner, Montclair, N. J.
9—Jacob Klinger, New York.
10—Robert M. Lord, Chicago.
11—Julian Rice, New York.
12—Dr. L. L. Mial, Morristown, N. J.

DARTMOUTH AND McGILL LEAD IN WINTER SPORTS

Lake Placid, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Dartmouth and McGill were leading a field on nine colleges in contest for the President Harding winter sports trophy here today, under auspices of the Snowbird winter sports club. Rain this afternoon forced postponement of the efficiency ski race. Dartmouth, which twice has captured the trophy, and McGill finished well up in the skating and snow-shoe events today. If weather conditions permit the ski race will be run off tomorrow.

The summaries:

Quarter mile, skating race; won by Martin Brewster, Williams, James Hennessey, Dartmouth, second; Kenneth Stuart, McGill, third. No time announced.

One mile skating race; won by Hennessey, Dartmouth; Brewster Williams, second; Stuart, McGill, third. Time 3:46 3-5.

Seven mile cross country ski race, won by Edward Condon, Ottawa University; Tom Brown, McGill, second; Tom Barrel, Dartmouth, third. Time 1:34:35.

Three mile snow shoe race, won by Blake, Dartmouth, Doe, Dartmouth, second; George Brisson, McGill, third. Time 30 minutes 45 seconds.

RICKARD IS SURPRISED AT SPALLA'S ACTIONS

New York, Dec. 31.—Cable dispatches telling of the departure of Ermino Spalla, European heavyweight champion, for Buenos Aires, where he expects to fight Luis Firpo, came as a surprise tonight to Tex Rickard and upset the promoter's plans for a match between Spalla and Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, which had been announced for February 1 at Madison Square Garden.

"I have an agreement with Spalla's American managers, binding the Italian heavyweight champion to an engagement with Tunney on February 1," declared Rickard. "Spalla's managers showed me a signed contract with Spalla, and considered them his official representatives.

"Of course, if Spalla goes through with a bout with Firpo in Buenos Aires, it is not likely he will be in a position to meet Tunney as early as February 1. If, by any chance, Firpo should defeat him, Spalla would no longer be a real card here.

"I must wait until I have full information on the subject, however, before taking any definite action."

MANY FISTIC ATTRACTIONS IN NEW YORK TODAY

New York, Dec. 31.—The New Year in metropolitan fistic circles will be ushered in tomorrow with an unusual array of attractions, headed by a 12-round match at Newark, in which Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy will battle Dave Rosenberg, Brooklyn middleweight.

The other promising fight cards are on the holiday program. Kid Williams of Baltimore, former bantamweight champion, who is attempting a come-back, will battle Midget Smith at a local club, while on another card, Eddie Brady of Brooklyn, is matched with Bobby Garcia of the army, in a featherweight tussle while Bud Taylor, Chicago bantamweight, is pitted against Sammy Noblejn of New York.

AUSTRIAN FOOTBALL TEAM WINS IN FRANCE

Paris, Dec. 31.—For the first time since the war an association football team representing a former enemy country was seen in action in Paris today, and was victorious. The eleven, composed of Austrians and sporting the title "First Vienna," defeated a Dutch team, five goals to nothing. The French team, the 'Red Star," defeated another French team, the "Stade Francaise," two to one. The attendance was very large.

EAST AND WEST ARE PREPARED FOR TODAY'S BATTLE

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 31.—The football teams of the Naval Academy and the University of Washington which will attempt to settle their gridiron agreement here tomorrow, went into their final workout late today, each, figuratively speaking, with one eye on the ball and the other on the sky. Clouds hung over the sun and the Seattle heavyweights opined that a little rain would not do them any harm, while it might slow up the nimble feet of the hornpipers from Annapolis.

Wills Matched With Madden.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 31.—Harry Wills, negro heavyweight champion and challenger of Jack Dempsey, has been matched for a 12-round bout with Bartley Madden, at First Regiment armory, on Jan. 28, it was announced today.

Cup Offered in Volleyball.

One of the feature gym activities for the senior members of the Y. M. C. A. for the winter season will be the second annual volleyball tournament. The "Y's" volleyball men will be organized into teams and a schedule of Wednesday night games will be played through the months of January, February and March. A fine trophy cup has been contributed by Dr. L. C. Chamberlain to be awarded to the winning team. Last season's tournament proved to be one of the best activities of the physical department, and indications are that the 1924 tourney will be a lively one.

ITALIAN HEAVYWEIGHT SAILS FOR SOUTH AMERICA

Milan, Italy, Dec. 31. — Ernidio Spalla, Italian heavyweight champion, is sailing for Buenos Aires, having signed an agreement to meet the South American champion, Luis Firpo.

Spalla left last Thursday. The heavyweight had one or two engagements for fights in Italy, but cancelled them. The chief bout arranged for him was for January 12 in Rome with the Belgian heavyweight, Humbeck.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVENS IN FINE SHAPE FOR GAME

Portland, Oregon, Dec. 31. — The coaches of both the Scott high school eleven of Toledo, Ohio, and the team of Columbia university, a Portland Preparatory school, today pronounced their teams to be in fine shape "Doc" Berrin, Scott Trainer, announced that the long trip had no bad effects and that his men are prepared for a hard game tomorrow.

Ohio State Beats Yale.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 31.—In one of the fastest basketball games seen here in years, Ohio State tonight defeated Yale 43 to 30. Taking the lead soon after the game started the Buckeyes were headed but once late in the first half when the score stood 16 to 15. The score at the end of the half was 21 to 16 in favor of Ohio State. Center Cunningham of Ohio State was the high scorer, counting 15 points. Forward Pite of Yale scored 14 points.

Traeger Signed by White Sox.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Otto Traeger, a member of the Cincinnati Fire Department has been signed by the Chicago White Sox on recommendations of Heinie Kroh, New York third baseman. The recruit who aspires to Deloss Willie Kamm, the $100,000 third baseman with the Sox, never had experience in organized baseball.

Kinsey Bros. Lose Exhibition.

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles, and Walter Wesbrook of Detroit, defeated Bob and Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, holders of the Pacific coast title in an exhibition tennis match here today, 8-6, 6-3. In an additional set the San Francisco brothers won 6-3.

Saints Challenge.

The recently organized baseball team of the St. Patrick's Scouts challenges any 118 pound team in Norwich or vicinity for games. Answer through this paper.

SPORT NOTES

Fears that Loren Murchison, national sprint champion, might be eliminated as a candidate for the American Olympic team and forced out of competition indefinitely as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident several weeks ago were dispelled Saturday when the Newark Athletic club flier announced his fitness to race again.

During the eastern track season, recently completed for the year, Earl Sande, king of American jockey, rode 410 mounts. Out of this number he has won 114 races, finished second in 84, third in 79, and was unplaced in 132 races.

Johnny Dundee's first battle in defense of the junior lightweight championship, which he regained recently from Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, may be against Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill.

Battling Siki cannot fight in Michigan. Louis Piles, state boxing commissioner, announced that he had ordered Grand Rapids promoters to cancel the scheduled 10-round bout between the Senegalese and Joe Lohman, Toledo heavyweight, which was to have been held New Year's day afternoon.

Stuffy McInnis, of the immortal Athletic infield, still shines about as brightly as ever after fifteen seasons of toil and wear and tear. Playing for Boston this year, the rotund first baseman led the league batsmen in sacrifice hits, a most useful line of en-

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Marion D[illegible] [illegible] and New York at the Strand

Marion Davies' [illegible] the Broadway theatre, where her new cosmopolitan picture "Little Old New York," is now being shown that her entry into the ranks of the silent screen stars of the day, through her work in "When Knighthood Was in Flower" was [illegible] but the [illegible] of an unusual opportunity [illegible] to give the best of herself to the screen public, and of her ability to work hard.

In "Little Old New York," adapted from Rida Johnson Young's successful play by Luther Reed, Miss Davies acts the role of Patricia O'Day, masquerading as her dead brother Pat in order to inherit a fortune left by an uncle in New York. She brings to the part a wistfulness, charm and naturalness which former screen roles had given no inkling that she possessed. Her "Pat" O'Day proves beyond doubt that she is a screen star to be reckoned with in any list of the foremost players of the day.

The supporting cast is one of exceptional brilliancy. Harrison Ford appears opposite the star, and there are fine characterization by Mahlon Hamilton, J. M. Kerrigan Courtenay Foote Norval Keedwell, George Barraud Sam Hardy, Andrew Dillon Charles Kennedy, Riley Hatch, Spencer Charters Harry Watson, Louis Wolheim, Charles Judels, Gypsy O'Brien and a number of others. The settings by the famous artist, Joseph Urban, recreate the charm of old New York and add materially to the effectiveness and popular appeal of the production. Mingled with the charm and comedy of the story is a compelling strain of drama and several spectacular episodes which make "Little Old New York" ideal screen entertainment. It is a production which will bear seeing many times—a thing that can be said of but few motion pictures.

A special musical program is rendered every evening by an enlarged orchestra and other pictures on the bill include Pathe news, scenic and comedy.

At the Palace.

With every act coming direct from the largest vaudeville houses in New York, the bill at the Palace theatre for the first half of the week is one of the best that has played at this popular house this season. Every act on the program is one that is the equal of any that has ever played [illegible] which and while some of the acts may not appeal to certain tastes they none the less excellent.

The act billed as the headliner Orville Stamm and His Beauties, an act that looks as if it had stepped out of one of the pages of a beauty magazine. This act is a unique comedian [illegible] tion of music, mirth, dancing and physical beauty and when beauty is used it means beauty in the fullest sense of the word.

Another attractive and in fact remarkable act is the juvenile number by two little misses, Lillian and Anna Steele. These little girls are clever impersonators and their act is one that has been brought here from the larger circuits. The large audiences of Monday received this act very heartily.

McCormack and Irving offer a comedy patter act with some good clean and wholesome humor. This act is on a par with the usual high standard act that has played at the Palace.

For real singing Anthony and Cooper, the MacCormack and Galli Curci of vaudeville, are the best that have played here outside the concert stage. Miss Cooper possesses an unusually good voice with remarkable range, even wider than the famed Galli Curci. Mr. Anthony has an excellent tenor voice.

The Three Jeanettes present a comedy act with a number of trained animals. This act is one of the best of its kind and found instant favor with the large audiences at Monday's performances.

Given the most beautiful star on the screen, an unusual love story, beautiful settings and a strong cast of players, B. P. Schulberg has produced one of Katherine MacDonald's greatest pictures in The Scarlet Lily, her latest First National attraction, which is the feature picture.

Appropriately enough, Fred Sittenham has written a story in which Miss MacDonald is seen in the surroundings in which she once hoped to shine—an art decorator's studio. From there the plot carries you to a beautiful apartment where, caring for a sick sister, the heroine is unexpectedly involved in a domestic scandal through her blind devotion to her charge. There is a quick series of complications, a touch of political intrigue, and a love affair that finally brings about the unravelling of the affair.

The cast also includes that [illegible] band of screen [illegible] Stuart Holmes, [illegible] with Edith [illegible] Arline Pretty [illegible] Gordon Russell Grace Morse [illegible] son, and [illegible] [illegible] twelve [illegible] ski jumps [illegible] curling.

The little town of Watrous [illegible] provided the winners of [illegible] championships, and Last Chance [illegible] winner of one, in the national indoor Junior and Boys' Tennis tournament which ended Saturday on the courts of Seventh Regiment armory.

With a season's aggregate of over 3,000 runs and an equal record of thirteen three-figure innings to his credit, Patsy Hendren is England's champion cricket batsman of the year.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The year 1923 saw a marked increase in the building in Norwich and the final quarter of the year showed only slight decline from the three preceding quarters. It has been an exceptionally good year and much work has been accomplished, even more than in previous years owing to the extremely mild weather during November and December. During the final week in December 12 permits were granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. Included in these permits were three for new dwelling houses, one for a new frame barn and the remainder for garages, additions and alterations to present buildings. The permits issued were as follows:

To Henry Pukallus to erect a frame garage on Slater Avenue for Mary Chimielewski. The garage will be 13 x19 feet.

To Henry Pukallus to build a two-apartment house on Smith Avenue for himself. The house will be 28 by 48 feet with front and rear porches. The exterior finish with be in shingles and the interior will be finished in hard wood and plaster.

To Henry Pukallus to erect a frame garage on Boswell avenue for William H. Whitehead. The garage will be 20x20 feet and will have cement foundation and floor.

To George E. Pitcher to build a frame house on Fowler Avenue for Mary E. Green. The house will be of bungalow type, 27x30 feet.

To Christian Meyer for a two-family house on Mt Pleasant street. The house will be of frame construction 28x40 feet. The exterior finish will be of composition shingles and the interior in hardwood and plaster.

To George Boucher to build a frame veranda on the present house of Frank Obuchoski at 47½ North Main street. The veranda will be 6x34 feet.

To Charles J. Baldwin to add to the present garage of George H. Anderson on Corning Road. The addition will be 20x30 feet.

To George Dufner to build a garage at 38 Platt avenue. The garage will be of frame construction 12x14 feet.

To Samuel Goldstein to erect a frame barn on Mechanic street. The barn will be 20x24 feet. Williams Bros., have the contract.

To Charles J. Baldwin to erect a frame addition to the house of C. A. Rathbun on Crane Avenue. The addition will be 12x10 feet.

To George Boucher to build a frame ... for George W. Jackson at 32 Palmer street. The garage will be 13 ...

To Nellie L. Rush to build an addition to the present frame garage on Brown Street. The addition will be 20x30 feet.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 6 sales of real estate as compared to 8 sales for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $32,695 and $23,400.

There were 11 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 6 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $36,750 and $18,500.

Plans for the development of Calkins Park are taking definite shape. A portion of the park will be flooded to provide skating during the winter months, and a section of the former isolation ward has been removed to the park and will be fitted up for the convenience of the skat... Toilet facilities will probably be installed and other improvements made. The further development of the park as planned by the city engineering department, will provide for all out-of-doors sports.

Applications for Building Permits

Aaron Bartalate, dwelling, Henry St., $4,500.

Silas Maxon, Jr., dwelling and garage, Montauk avenue $6,000.

Daniel Button, garage, William St. $350.

P. M. Barber, garage, Twelfth St. $150.

Number of permits issued for the week 5; estimated cost of buildings, $10,100.

State Building Situation

Statistics of building operations in the third week of the month according to the Commercial Record show that the record for last year would have had a decidedly sickly appearance if it had not been for a total in New Haven of over a million dollars, due to a big building project there. As it was the total for the year amounted to $1,193,073, for 80 permits, while in the week just ended there were 303 permits, for a total for new buildings of $698,676. In the corresponding week of the year 1921 there were 99 permits, for buildings costing $363,003.

More than half the men in Newfoundland are engaged in the fishing industry.

RESOLVED

To work hard and intelligently. To perform my duties better than ever before. To be cheerful. To be fair. To develop greater courage and self-reliance. To exercise initiative and resourcefulness. To seek quality and value rather than mere price in the purchases I make. In justice to myself to take a demonstration in a new Studebaker before buying an automobile. In everything I undertake, to think of the future and not only of today. To guard my health by spending as much time as possible in the open air and by paying proper attention to diet. These things I will do in 1924.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL WANTS PUBLIC TO HEAR JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PLANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 31.—The ocean-going tug Guardsman owned by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking Co. was badly damaged by fire this morning and not until the craft went to the bottom of the Thames river was the blaze entirely subdued. How the fire originated it is not known, but it is believed it started in the boiler room. The extent of the damage sustained by the craft has not been determined, nor will it be until such time as the tug is floated and hauled out on marine railways for repairs. Work on floating the craft will be started within a few days and before the week is over it is believed that the tug will be undergoing repairs in order that the craft may be again put into service.

None of the crew, they were all aboard the tug when the fire was discovered, suffered injury, but several of them were affected by the inhalation of smoke.

The Guardsman arrived in port, shortly after midnight from Martha's Vineyard, bring light and en route westward. Because of the storm it was decided to put into port for the night and once inside the harbor the tug was headed for the company's pier where she was quickly tied up for the remainder of the night. A short time afterwards the crew went to the hotel. About 2:15 o'clock members of the crew were aroused by inhaling smoke and an investigation revealed that the boiler room and interior of the craft all was ablaze. The fire was so hot that it was recognized that the fighting facilities at hand were insufficient, so at 2:30 an alarm was rung in from box 53 corner of Pequot avenue and Thames street and directly in front of the office of the company. At 2:37 the first of the city's fire fighting apparatus arrived and this one was followed by a half dozen others. Lines of hose were stretched to the burning craft which by that time was a mass of flames. After two hours' work fighting the fire and when it was practically subdued, the tug went to the bottom.

There were several other tugs of the company moored at the pier at the time, but neither of them caught fire, nor was the big dock damaged.

The funeral of Edward Clayton Bangs, former employe of the Cortichelli Silk company, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at his residence, 11 Cottage avenue and was attended only by relatives and intimate acquaintances. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were Samuel Roadomanski, Clarence Cunnman, Harry L. Searle, Edward Prentis, Jr., and Alfred H. Pollock, former associates of Mr. Bangs in the employ of the Cortichelli Silk company and Cecil P. Caulkins. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

John J. Anderson of New London, formerly of Norwich, was arrested at Marlborough Saturday by State Policeman Lavan charged with reckless driving. He was presented in the town court at East Hampton and is held in bonds of $5,000 for trial at a date to be determined. William J. Turner of New London became surety on Anderson's bond.

Anderson was operating an automobile in which were two companions from New London to Hartford. In passing through Marlborough two children, Irving Bliss and Fred Hewlitt, aged 6 and 9, respectively, appeared in the highway and directly in front of Anderson's car. Anderson attempted to guide his machine around the children, but was unsuccessful, the car hitting both, knocking them down. The car then plunged across the highway and crashed against a telephone pole wrecking the machine, which was the property of the Disabled Veterans of Foreign Wars and was soon to be disposed of. The children were removed to Middlesex hospital, East Hampton, where the extent of their injuries has not fully been determined. Anderson was formerly employed by the Central Vermont railroad as special agent.

Antone Enos, 65, of 106 Whittlesey street, died Sunday at the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane at Fort Point, in which institution he had been under treatment but about a week. He was a mason by occupation. Mr. Enos is survived by his wife and several children.

Robert R. Mills, of 45 Franklin street, died Sunday, following a lingering illness. He was of advanced years, and besides his wife, is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Roy Palmer of New London and by two sons who reside in Perryville, R. I.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary L. Reitemeier, widow of Frank Reitemeier, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlager. The bearers were Christopher Collins, Florence Sullivan, James Fitzgerald and Jeremiah Sullivan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Edward C. Tinker were held this afternoon at two o'clock at his home, Willetta avenue extension, Rev. Mr. Strouse, pastor of the Jordan Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Judge Prince, in the police court to-day adjourned the three cases that were to have been heard, till Wednesday because of the enforced absence of Prosecutor Cronin. Mary Lawski was to have appeared for trial for selling liquor and for keeping a place where it was reputed liquor was sold. She was on hand to defend the case, but was not called on. The Lawski place was at one time a saloon, but it went the way of all cafes. If there was any of the old-time whiskey in the place or other liquor that was of the vintage of prewar times it is undoubted the only stuff of the sort in the city. Men who use the sort of liquor that is now sold declare that it is little better than kerosene and they say they would hesitate to waft their breath against flame and take the consequences.

Charles H. Stetson, a barber who has a police court record will answer a complaint Wednesday of maintaining a gambling device namely a punchboard by means of which candy was distributed.

He put up a bond of $150 to insure his appearance Wednesday.

Officer Caleb Green of the railroad police force and as shrewd as ever Caleb West of the stage was supposed to be, arrested a fellow at the union station Sunday for intoxication and today failed to appear against the inebriated man. So Judge Prince turned the straggler loose and told him to make a new year's resolution that would keep him from indulgence in intoxicating liquor hereafter. The fellow said he had "had his last this year." And that was probably a true statement.

This town tonight had various watch night festivities. At the club house of the Elks there was a very large party the latter being made up of members of the order, their wives, sisters and young women friends. Vaudeville stars from Boston gave an entertainment declared to have surpassed anything the stage has produced for this city. Dancing begun at 9 o'clock and continued with intermission for the acts and specialties, till midnight when the party hailed the advent of the new year. Then dancing was resumed and continued a couple of hours. At the Mohican hotel there was a very large number of celebrants, the reservations numbering some 300 including parties from all the towns hereabouts. There was dancing there and favors were distributed by the management.

The Connecticut company made use of its snow plow for the first time on the second last day of the old year. There was not need of it but the management decided to be on the side of safety and have clear tracks for the cars today.

Mrs. Alice Hunt formally concluded her duties as policewoman in New London tonight, as her resignation became effective at midnight, but at the request of City Manager William A. Holt, Mrs. Hunt will continue her duties for a few days or until an appointment of police matron is made in conformity with the statute. Mrs. Hunt has held the position of policewoman since last June at a salary of $1,800 per year and with an automobile at her disposal. The statute prescribes the duties of the police matron giving her the same powers as a patrolman, but making it compulsory that she be subject to the orders of the captain of police. Heretofore the policewoman has not had supervision over her, although she has rendered monthly reports to the city manager.

At a meeting of Olde Harbour Camp, Workmen of the World, Sunday evening, the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: Consul-general, Arthur E. James; adv. Lieut., Michael Gilligan; banker, Emerson H. White; camp clerk, Wallace R. Johnson; escort, Daniel W. Platt; sentry, Timothy M. Sullivan; board of managers, H. A. Turner, Joseph Barnes and Patrick Melady.

The body of Reginald Long, formerly a resident of Groton, whose sudden death occurred at Providence last week, was buried in Union cemetery, Niantic, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The committal service was conducted by Rev. Frederick Hulst, pastor of the Bishop Seabury Memorial church, Groton.

Among patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today were Mr. and Mrs. Judson Paige of Brooklyn, N. Y., who sustained fractured ribs several weeks ago when the automobile in which they were riding overturned near Stonington. Other patients discharged were John Turano of Westerly, Mrs. Lawrence McGrath and infant son, Williams street; Mrs Charles Carlin and infant daughter, Walden avenue; Mrs. Martin Summach, Lincoln avenue; Master Raymond Green, Truman street; Samuel Chiradio, Westerly; Mrs. William Stearns, Bayonet street; Mrs. Jannie Humphries, Montauk avenue; Mrs George Damon, Groton; Guido Benvenuti, Chelsea street and Charles Holliday.

The residence at 489 Williams street, owned by B. H. Hillier and occupied by John Whitelaw and family, was threatened with damage by fire early this morning and after the blaze had been extinguished by firemen in response to a still alarm, the fire broke out anew and another still alarm summoned the firemen a second time. The damage was about $300.

The fire was discovered by Whitelaw when he was awakened by the room being filled with smoke. The fire was discovered in the kitchen, where no fire was in the stove. The Thomas Hose company responded to a still alarm and after the firemen had supposedly subdued the flames, the fire broke out again, causing the Uncas Hose company to be summoned. After the second fight of the firemen a guard was placed at the house to watch for any further outbreak of the flames. The fire is said to have originated from defective wiring.

Patrolman James McKenna is absent from his beat on State street, having been called to New York by the death of a relative.

Samuel E. Bittner, employed by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, has resigned and will shortly go to Waterbury, where he has obtained employment with the Clarke Construction company.

The commission of motor vehicles this afternoon requested Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney to enforce the law of violators of the automobile law who insist in operating cars not supplied with 1923 markers.

Among those granted a pension by the bureau of pensions at Washington is William F. Guy, New London, who is granted $18 per month.

Frederick E. Maynard, of New London, son of Mrs. Lucy Maynard, and Miss Rose Parnell of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married Saturday at the rectory of St. Ephraim's church by Rev. R. A. Kennedy. Mr. and Mrs. Maynard will make their home at Bay Ridge.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Pattee are entertaining their niece, Miss Helen Robinson of Milton, Vt.

Mrs. John Shaw and Mrs. Samuel M. Davidson are visiting Mrs. Shaw's aunt, Mrs. Carl Pahl, of Essex.

Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Frank Philopena tonight received instructions from Captain Charles A. Pinney to discontinue their activities in pursuing bootleggers. Sergeant Hick, beginning tomorrow will assume the duties of desk sergeant from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight. His duties heretofore as sergeant have been confined to street duty. Patrolman Philopena will be assigned to one of the regular beats. Sergeant Frank Howard, who has been assigned to desk duty since the creation of the office seven years ago, will act as plain clothes officer, replacing Patrolman Edward Daniels.

SHORT STORIES
OF · LOVE · AND · ADVENTURE · S

A Clay-Pipe Dream

By Margaret Taylor

NOW who would have thought it! Of all persons—Maggie Ross! I dare say Maggie had had her dreams, probably beautiful ones in her time, like the average girl who goes romance traveling in fancy, whether reality comes with food dreams or not. Of course, Maggie had her dreams. We all do, but we may not have such romances as did this plain little soul who came from that southern state where rough people say the inhabitants are snake hunters and clay eaters.

Maggie's father lived on a farm, not a prosperous farm, they say, but one which produced excellent broom corn which the old gentleman was able to sell at a good profit to the penitentiary close by where brooms were manufactured by the unhappy inmates. Not pleasant environment, but all that Maggie knew until she grew to be an old lady.

Well, despite her dreams and fond hopes, the lover did not come. She remained a spinster. Whether it was a great disappointment, no person knew, for she was uncommunicative to well as non-committal, and all one could do was surmise that, like countless women before, she bore her chagrin with Christian resignation and put her hopes in something better.

We never can tell.

When her father died, leaving her in the big stone house, like some old fools who never seem to appreciate the ones who remain home and do everything for the old home and serve a lifetime under the paternal roof, Theodore Ross did the unexpected, he actually willed his farm to a brother in Cincinnati, with the understanding that this brother, almost as old as Theodore, was to give Maggie a home in it as long as she needed it, after which, meaning her demise, the place was to be divided share and share alike among the niece and nephews in Cincinnati.

Of course, Maggie had the chance to put in a powerful claim to cover everything and get possession of the house; for it is a poor shyster of a lawyer who overlooks a nurse's claim, but Maggie overlooked it herself.

After a while she seemed to manage affairs very nicely until labor grew scarce, then she rented the land to Abner Gallam who was a good truck gardener and grew onions right up to the front door. Maggie used to go out and watch Abner at his work, and once in a while she made a suggestion which Abner found practical. They were both fairly well up in years and of the same age, which was one reason why many persons thought that probably Maggie would marry Abner. She did nothing of the sort. But he held her secret deep in his heart and long, long after he gave up the farm and went to the city to do landscape gardening, he would stop in his work at times, take his pipe out of his mouth and dream, too, while the smoke ascended the glass dome of the fine old green-house. Then he would chuckle. One day there was a party of fine young ladies scampering around the lawn, and after a while Abner looked up, saw something that made his eyes stick out like loose buttons on an old overcoat. Then he chuckled again and laughed.

"That reminds me of—" and he said no more, fearing that even the flowers might hear what he was mumbling. He liked Maggie. It was not his fault that she had not married him, for one day he asked her, and she never looked so prim nor independent in all her life as she curtly refused him in true calico dignity, spurning to sit on the log an instant longer. He did not know it of course that, even in old age, romance likes something elusive as well as pursuing and had Abner dropped the old hoe which he had been holding to like dear life while proposing, and held Maggie's hand with the same bull dog tenacity, the chances are, she might have remained to listen at any rate. But she walked right back to her house, then woman-like, peeped down at him from between the dining room curtains, hoping, I suppose, that he would come to the house and propose in the proper manner.

Well, Abner, seemingly, was a one-chapter man. The beginning was the end of most everything he did, so when next he saw her, he talked of potatoes, lime fences and replanting hollyhocks. He did share that secret with her, and she enjoyed it immensely. That was a tie of comradeship which no person knew, and Maggie sometimes felt like going back to the house to offer up prayer for enjoying in secret a bit of stolen sweet which she hoped Abner would never tell. Long after he moved she had to enjoy it all by herself, one reason, perhaps, why she missed both when she went to the city to visit her nieces and nephews.

Never was a mortal soul so lonely as Maggie was in that big beautiful home. Once in a while there was something detected under that roof which made her think of the greatest pleasure she had ever known. It was only during the evening, as a rule, but it made her very, very lonely.

To her great amusement she learned that Abner was the gardener next door. She horrified her niece by going to see him. He was, in our language, tickled to death to see her. But he saw that Maggie was not well. While her face was still smooth and free of wrinkles, there was an expression of suppressed longing and dissatisfaction. She was not happy. She told Abner she was unhappy. After talking a long while, he sat down beside her on one of the benches in the workroom of his greenhouse. He filled his pipe, struck a match on a flower crock and lighted his pipe. He puffed a while and Maggie whispered a bit coyly, "Oh Abner, that smells so good."

"Where is your pipe?" he asked.

"Gave it up because you did not want your nieces and nephews to know you always did smoke? You must be crazy. Here, smoke mine. Why every blooming one of them smoke up there, girls as well as boys. I have seen them. Say, look here, Maggie," with an arm closing around her," you just can't go on living like this any longer. I need you and you need me. Say 'yes' and I'll go right out and get you a clay pipe, like you are used to smoking."

"Yes!" murmured Maggie in desperation, "and, oh, Abner, do go to a cigar store and see if you can get me a paper of old Wigwam or some dog leg. I don't like the smell of that fancy stuff at the house."

Measurements.

A two-foot rule was given to a laborer in a Clyde boatyard to measure an iron plate. The laborer, not being well up in the use of the rule, after spending considerable time returned.

"Now, Mick," asked the plater, "what size is the plate?"

"Well," replied Mick, with a grin of satisfaction, "It's the length of your rule and two thumbs over, with this piece of brick and the breadth of my hand and my arm from here to there, bar a finger."

A Messenger Arrives

By Claire Wesson

"A FAGOT party!" exclaimed Cynthia Oberne. "What is that?"

"We start a little blaze," explained Dick Larew, who was entertaining guests at his lodge in the mountains, "and each one carries a fagot. Then we build a fire with our fagots, each one telling a story while his fagot burns."

"Suppose we try it," suggested Mabel Turner, who was always restless and anxious to attempt something new.

Cynthia Oberne leaned forward, her daring crimson sweater cap showing vividly against the yellow and brown leaves of autumn that swirled into heaps at every gust of wind.

"I think that it would be fun to tell the stories of our greatest love affairs to date. Make them as thrillingly romantic as possible," she insisted.

Dick Larew, who was plainly in love with Cynthia, readily agreed, but several of the others regarded the suggestion dubiously, knowing that Cynthia loved Mac O'Neill and that she was seizing upon an available opportunity to find out why he had failed to declare himself.

Most of the stories were cleverly related with an apparent hope to amuse the crowd, but when Cynthia told Mac O'Neill that it was his turn, the situation became intense.

"Tell us a true story, Mac!" urged Cynthia, somewhat nervously. "Your most interesting love affair! The woman; now, what about her?"

Mac O'Neill had just enough Irish in him to give color to his laughing blue eyes and the black hair that curled away from his high white forehead. He was unmistakably good-looking.

He tossed his fagot on the smouldering fire, and for a minute pulled meditatively in the richly-colored meerschaum pipe that was as amber as sun-dry champagne.

"Most of you know," he began in his deep full voice, "That I have been in love with Anne Barton for a long, long time, ever since I wore knee pants and she wore dresses that just managed to cover her little ribbon garters.

Dick was smiling in his innocent way at Cynthia, but Cynthia was staring as if fascinated at Mac O'Neill. She had hoped against, yet half expected, this story, which she had demanded.

"Anne, you know," went on the pleasant voice of the Irishman, "Anne is a dream now, spiced with the romance of my youth preserved with time. I daresay she is happily married somewhere and is probably at this particular hour rocking a child to sleep after hearing his halting prayer." He pulled at his pipe again, exhaled a cloud of curling white smoke, then resumed his story. "Men are supposed to be fickle, but I think that they love more deeply than women. Anne and I were engaged to be married, the day was set, yet she persisted in showing her favors to every new man she met. I was jealous and I told her so. She always met my protests with the same arguments. I want to play while I can, Mac," she would say lightly, "After we are married I will be, oh so virtuously true that I will exhibit a fine example of the clinging vine to the sturdy oak."

"The night before our engagement was to be made public, we went to a dance at the Country Club. Some of you know Anne, know all of her artful little tricks to attract a man. She evidently felt that the dance was her last occasion of perfect freedom. She almost ignored me and flirted openly with every eligible man in the room. If I had known women then as I know them now," said Mac O'Neill wearily, "I would have played her game her own way and she would have come to me gladly for—Anne loved me then, I am quite sure of that. On the way home, I insisted that she abused me, treated my name and honor lightly. As a result, she broke her engagement abruptly. All at once I was willing to endure anything just to have her near, to touch her hand, to kiss her sweet, soft lips—"

A twig in Cynthia's hand broke crisply and Mac O'Neill lifted dreamy eyes to look at her. He smiled comfortingly, almost parentally at this pretty young girl who could be hurt and disillusioned as he had once been made to suffer.

"Go on!" said Cynthia sharply. "finish the story!"

"There is little more to tell, unless I am allowed to supplement this story with a happier one. Anne returned my ring and I have never seen her since that night. She would not listen to my protestations, to my urgent pleas. I was willing to take her on any terms. The last thing I ever said to her was, 'If you should ever change your mind, send me a line and I will come across the world to you.' That was five years ago, and Anne has never called."

"The happier story!" questioned Cynthia.

"Men can love deeply, as I did, but time cures or at least heals all hurts. I have wanted to tell this story of my past to a little girl for a long time—because I am going to ask her to marry me, to help me pick up the threads of my life and weave them into a pattern of contentment, after all." Mac O'Neill's eyes were on Cynthia's startled brown ones. "Most men love many times, but they lie to the woman who marries them, telling her she is the only woman of their desire. I want to be quite honest about this thing. I want to know about Anne because there will come times when I will think of her as long as I live. Am I asking too much of a girl, Cynthia?

It was a dramatic moment. Dick Larew for the first time, seemed to sense the crisis in his own love affair. He was young. Cynthia was young. Mac O'Neill was all of forty. What did it mean?

As the party broke up a motor cycle flashed on its noisy way up the road. Dick, attaching himself with bulldog tenacity to Cynthia, led the way back to the lodge. As yet Cynthia had not answered Mac O'Neill's vital question. When they reached the steps, a messenger was there with a telegram for Mac O'Neill. He opened the yellow slip and read the message thoughtfully. When he looked up, his eyes were bright with the dreams of eternal youth.

"Anne has sent for me and I must go," he said to the crowd, but he looked only at Cynthia. "I want to catch the seven:twenty. Think I can manage, Dick?" he questioned eagerly. "Anne has sent for me."

A young man arrived at a party, and made his way to the hostess, greeting her and apologizing for his lateness.

"Awfully glad to see you, Mr. B—," said the hostess. "So good of you to come. But where is your brother?"

"He was unable to come. You see, we are so busy just now that it was impossible for both of us to get away, and so we tossed up to see which of us should come."

"How nice! And you won?"

"No," replied the young man, absently; "I lost!"

The "Regular Swell"

By Hazel Courtney

IT was time for the jitney to start, but the driver lingered. Few of the passengers would have had it otherwise, anxious as they were to get home, for far down the street they could see old Mrs. Perkins coming as fast as her rheumatic legs could take her. It meant an hour's wait if she missed the bus.

The woman beside Tommie McKies, however, showed plainly that she did not approve of the delay. Tommie had never seen her on the bus before. She was elegantly dressed and yet—he wondered if she was a regular swell." When she spoke he knew she wasn't.

"For heaven sake," she demanded, "when is this boat gonna start?"

"Now," promised Tommie, for old Mrs. Perkins was painfully hoisting herself aboard, "an' the driver'll make up for lost time. Wait till we git underway! It's some road we travel and the Sunset Heights' hill is like the side of the house."

"Do you live up there? What kind of a dump is it?" inquired the woman.

"Grand." Tommie's eyes sparkled. "Jest grand! Way off from the city, like in the real country. Right even with the sunset with the river across and the ocean. Grand!"

"Huh!" was her response, but she said nothing more until with a great grumbling and groaning the bus finally toppled over the crest of a hill, as Tommie had said, "like the side of a house."

"Where's 10, 5th avenue?" she demanded. "Do you know?"

"That's where I'm goin', But nobody lives there, you know."

"Then who do you expect to see?" she asked.

"Timmie. He's a dog that belonged to the lady what owned the house. She died last Fall an' I took him home to look out for him 'till Madeline—that's her daughter—comes. But Madaline's a long time gettin' here an' Timmie keeps runnin' back home. I don't blame him. Pineapple Alley where I live ain't fit fer anybuddy what's used to Sunset Heights. You see, I got acquainted with Mrs. Beantly (that was the lady's name what owned No. 10), last Summer when I used to come up here blueberrying."

"She told you about er—Madaline, did she?"

"She was always talkin' about her and lookin' fer her to send her a letter. But I don't think she ever did. The very last time I see Mrs. Beantly, she says to me, 'Tommie, if you ever see Madaline tell her for me I left her my love. Tell her I never thought of once in all these years without wishin' her the best.' She kept flowers in front of her pitcher all all the time and she told me what a pretty little girl she was and how everybody used to turn 'round on the street to look at her. Oh, she liked that Madaline, all right. Here's No. 10. Careful here. Miss, the mud's deep. You oughter wore rubbers."

"Rubbers! I oughter brought a ferryboat with me," retorted the woman, in disgust.

At that moment there appeared upon the scene a wiry, little dog who, with happy barks, danced merrily and promiscuously about in the mud puddles surrounding them.

"Don't you darst let him jump on me," cried she. "If he does I'll kick him. He's ruining my wrap!"

"Down, Timmie, down!" commanded Tommie.

The woman opened the gate that led to a little brown house.

"It's the best place on the Heights," commented Tommie, following her. "Look across and see the sunset and the river. Ain't it grand?"

The woman looked and gave a terrified shriek. "Oh, my Lawdy," she burst forth; Oh ain't it awful? Look!"

"What?" demanded Tommie.

"Where?"

"A graveyard. And they're burying somebuddy."

"I wouldn't live here if you give me the whole hill, not with that cemetery starin' me in the eyes."

She took a key from her pocket and unlocked the door. But she did not enter. Tommie stared at her. Where did she get the key? Then he understood.

"You're—you're Madaline!" he cried.

"Yes, I'm Madaline."

The two looked at each other. Tommie's gaze was steady and calculating. The woman's was shifting and uneasy.

"What time does the 'bus start back?" she asked.

"In 15 minutes. I'll make a fire for you, if you want me to. I know where ole Mrs Beantly kept her wood. An' miss, you'll be good to Timmie, won't you? He ain't a dog what's been kicked round, you know. He'll be an awful lot of company for you, if you'll pet him a little."

"I don't want no fire," she burst out angrily; "I don't want no Timmie, nor no sunsets, nor no graveyards. I'm goin' back in the 'bus myself. I'll tell my agent to let the place. I've lived 15 years without it an' I guess I kin manage 15 more. Now I'm goin'. Don't you let that nasty little cur chase me, or I'll kick him sure."

She turned down the steps. Tommie ran after her.

"Are you really going to rent it?" he inquired. "'Cause if you are, why not let it to me? I'll give you five a week, an' here's the money in advance. I jest got paid off."

He held out a five dollar bill entreatingly.

The woman took the money hastily. "All right," she sad. "Here's my address and you kin mail the rent weekly. See you don't slip up, now. Five dollars will jest keep me in silk stockings. There is one thing I'd like you to give me outen the house—the only thing I want. A pitcher of ole Mrs. Beantly. If you find one, you know."

"She had one. A pitcher man took it last Summer. I'll send it to yer."

"So long," she turned away again. "You mind that pup don't foller me."

Tommie watched her until she was out of sight. "Ain't she a dumb-bell, Timmie?" he asked. "How did she git that way? I 'spect she took it from her pa. Her ma warn't never like that, I know. The idea of not wantin' to live on Sunset Heights! An' callin' you a bad name! But we've got the house an' now you won't have to go back to Pineapple Alley. You stay right here and guard the place while I go fetch pa and ma back. We ain't gonna sleep another night in the city."

Jones had just bought a piano, and his neighbor, seeing it arrive, called out: "By Jove, old man, you are swanking! But I'll bet you don't keep it long."

A few days later he saw Jones with his new piano on a handcart, going down the street.

"Ha, ha!" he chuckled; "I knew you wouldn't have it long."

"Get away, you idiot," cried Jones; "I'm just going for my first music lesson."

Natural Climax.

"Jim Bilkins is dead."

"How come?"

"He stuck his head into the Red Dog saloon and hollered fire."

"Well?"

"They did."

Officer, Read This!

"Oh, please, ma'am," gasped the nursemaid, "I've lost little Nora!"

"Gracious, girl! Why didn't you speak to a policeman?"

"I was speaking to one at the time, ma'am!"

Love is blind, but jealousy more than makes up for it.

The Modern Working Girl

By Monte Darrell

IT wasn't as if genii lurked in the goblets or witches in the depths of the stained glass windows at Margot's which was merely a very good French restaurant, where every course tasted better than the one before. Stripping the occasion of magic, Horatio Turner suggested, by way of explanation, that the thing had just happened that way. So far as Horatio or any of the people concerned were aware, there is nothing that really explains the subtle force behind what we are wont to call coincidence.

The misunderstanding between Horatio Turner, millionaire clubman and genial gentleman, and his nephew, Ben, had grown until a breach in the fortifications of blood and tradition threatened to destroy them, widening steadily while Spring advanced. His uncle had insisted that Ben accept with him the invitation of the Hathaways when they opened their shore place. He had pointed out the advantages of an alliance with that family, the charms of the daughter Alice, the desirability of a closer relationship for business reasons, ignoring Ben's very apparent lack of interest.

It became evident that Ben classed girls as desirable or to be desired. The family of the desirable girl usually had yards of pull and several houses dotted around the map, and nothing else to recommend them on her, while the family of the girl most to be desired never entered into the matter at all, and she usually worked to make up for any deficiency.

Horatio Turner was shocked to learn that Ben was the victim of an infatuation. He could not separate the personality of a working girl from puffs and pompadours and an overdose of makeup. Angry and worried, the uncle hinted that Ben could not expect to be his heir unless he met his wishes. Ben replied that his uncle's attitude, his own present position, and the condition of society generally, was certainly not commendable, and at this juncture they parted.

That was the reason that Horatio Turner dined at Margret's instead of his club one evening in mid-May. In spite of the indisputable clean-cut black figures which footed into a golden harvest, in spite of friends, tradition—everything, Horatio Turner was a very lonely man that night. As he left his home to catch a car, the fog and general devastation served to blacken his spirits still more, and sent him hurrying to where there would be lights and music, where Ben said he preferred to dine with Edna.

At Boylston street two young women entered and took seats opposite him. He classed them at once as belonging to the desirable element. They spoke in low, cultivated tones; their costumes were the perfection of inconspicuous good taste. So used had Horatio Turner become of late to sudden shocks, that the announcement of one young woman to her friend that she had worked too late at the office to have time to change her costume for a dinner engagement scarcely disturbed him. He heard the friend remark that she had completed two days' work in one in order that she might spend the week-end at Ranesville.

He remembered that delightful Cape town very pleasantly. Studying them, he noticed the quaint gold chain that one girl wore, with pendant small gold nugget, studded with turquoise matrix. Probably that was an heirloom from a 49-er grandfather, and just as probably he, Horatio Turner, had been a narrow, stiff-necked, churlish fool. He swept class distinction out of his dictionary from that moment onward.

The man who shared his corner table at Margrot's attracted him at once; meeting his curious glances with engaging frankness. The red-brown of his tanned face, the dark blue, loosely knotted tie against the soft flannel of his shirt, a muscular leanness of bearing, proclaimed him the denizen of another world. From time to time the man made quick, flickering gestures across the cloth, and when his soup appeared, he gazed into it raptly. He ate with relish, but always after a careful, prolonged look at the food brought him. Horatio Turner stared openly. The other man, catching the look, smiled broadly.

"Flies!" he said. "It seems queer to you, of course, but it's a habit you get out there, looking for 'em in everything, them and snakes and spiders. But pardon me for spoiling your dinner. They do have good things here, don't they?"

Horatio Turner assured him that he was enjoying everything to the limit, and invited further confidences. They talked about Arizona mines.

"I'm so glad to get back that I'm silly," the other man said. "Why, man, I saw a row of narcissus plants all in bloom in the window of a wholesale coal office this afternoon—that's the way you do things here. Out there it's either a hole black as midnight, or a dazzle of yellow that makes your brain reel. I'm back to stay, I tell you! That is, if—" and he stopped abruptly with a sudden look of utter dismay.

Horatio Turner had never been so intrigued in his life. "If what?" he asked. The Westerner took a picture from his pocket, passed it across the table, and Horatio Turner, too amazed to speak, looked up at the tense face across the table.

"If I can find her and win her," came the answer, and the air vibrated with unseen forces. "Most things I've wanted I've had to give up, but I won't mind

Horatio Turner sought the head waiter, did the necessary, and was directed to Ben's table, to meet Edna.

On the Alert.

The division was having maneuvers for the benefit of visitors' day, and everything was being let loose at once. A pretty girl was eagerly watching the performance, when a rifle volley crashed out. With a surprised scream she fell back into the arms of a young corporal who was standing just behind her.

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" she gasped, blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles."

"Quite all right," replied the corporal. Then he added, hopefully: "Lets go over and watch the heavy artillery for a while."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, Dec. 31.—The final stock market session of 1923 was characterized by higher prices for both railroad and industrial shares. Crossing of par by United States Steel common for the first time since last May was the outstanding individual feature, the stock touching 100? but slipping back later to 99⅞, where it was up ⅞ on the day.

Publication of optimistic business forecasts for 1924 by business and banking leaders was reported to have influenced buying by small investors, while operators on the bond side were said to be heavy buyers of stocks for psychological as well as business reasons, a rising market on the closing day of the year being widely regarded as a good omen.

Considerable taxation selling took place during the day, particularly in the low priced issues. In order that such losses might be included in 1923 income statements, this was done on a cash basis as ordinarily stocks purchased or sold today would not be cleared until Wednesday.

The averages of 20 leading industrial and 20 leading railroad stocks closed the year about mid-way between the high and low records, industrials reached their high mark in the latter part of March while the railroad shares established their peak in the first part of that month. The low point in the railroad averages was established in August while industrials did not reach their bottom figure until middle of October.

Heavy buying of railroad shares to replace holdings recently disposed of for tax purposes was reported during the day. Gains of 1 to nearly 2½ points were recorded by Chesapeake & Ohio, Rock Island, common and preferred issues, Great Northern preferred, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific preferred, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, Southern Railway, St. Louis & San Francisco and Western Maryland second preferred.

Further upward revision of some of the eastern crude oil prices contributed to the strength of the oil shares. Producers & Refiners was one of the strong spots of this group, touching 43¼ and closing at 41⅝ for a net gain of 3⅝. Standard Oil of New Jersey closed nearly 2 points higher at 41⅞.

Sharp advances were shown in a number of specialties including Corn products, DuPont, Marine preferred, Advance Rumely preferred, Brooklyn Union Gas, General American Tank Car and Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred, the gains ranging from 1⅝ to 4½ points. Davison Chemical was an outstanding heavy spot, dropping nearly 5 points.

Call money opened at 6 per cent. but declined to 5½ before the close. The average call mony renewal rate this year was 4.85 per cent. as compared with 4.25 per cent. in 1922, 5.97 per cent in 1921 and 7.75 per cent. in 1920. The time money and commercial paper business was quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary. Demand sterling dropped 1¼ cents to $4.32 3-16 and French francs sold around 5.09½ cents off 3½ points. Nominal recessions took place in the other principal rates.

All securities and commodities markets here will be closed all day tomorrow.

BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 31.—Although sandwiched between two holidays, today's bond market was unusually active and broad. Generally the tone was strong and unlike the stock market there were few cash transactions for the purpose of recording income tax losses. While there were individual recessions, like the slight reaction of the recently strong St. Paul bonds, almost the entire list of secondary and high grade investament railroad mortgages moved forward on good buying. The Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5's were pushed up more than two points due to the favorable sentiment on steps to make operative the plans of reorganization.

Active bidding for a wide assortment of domestic industrial liens and public utility bonds advanced the averages of those two groups by a fair margin, packing company bonds being conspicuously strong.

Information that all of the funds required for resumption of interest payments on the Mexican external debt has been deposited, influenced buying of the Mexican 5's which moved up 2¼ points.

January 1 dividend payments were estimated at $450,000000 and investment houses expressed optimism over the January demand for high grade securities.

CURB MARKET

New York, Dec. 31.—Announcement of a 1 cent advance in certain grades of eastern crude oil stimulated buying of the oil shares in today's curb market, gains ranging from a point to 14 points, the latter advance being recorded by Prairie Oil & Gas.

Standard Oil jumped 9 points to 317, after touching at one time 320, and Solar refining was up ten points. Gains of 2 more than 4 points were registered by Buckeye Pipe, Cumberland, Galena Signal, Imperial Oil of Canada, New York Transit Ohio Oil, Prairie Pipe and Standard of Nebraska.

Industrial stocks also were given good support, but advances were not so great as those recorded in the oil group. More than 3,000 shares of Stutz Motors changed hands, the closing price being a net advance of ⅝ a point. Corn Products new stock when issued also was unusually active and fractionally higher at 31⅜.

Several active stocks, such as Reading Coal Rights, Glen Alden Coal and Park & Tilford, closed unchanged after relatively large turnovers within a narrow market.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Wheat values averaged slightly higher with a moderate trade, the feature being the action of December delivery in the closing minutes of the session, when covering by shorts who desired to even up before the new year, resulted in nearly two cents advance. At the finish wheat was unchanged to 1⅞c higher, with May $1.07⅞ to 1.07⅞ a 1.08 and July 1.06⅝ to 1.06⅝; corn was off ⅛ to 2⅛; oats 1@c lower to a shade higher and provisions ranged from 27c decline to 10c advance.

Although the wheat market displayed considerable strength at the outset, on predictions of cold weather strength in Liverpool, it failed to hold its early gain, prices dipping below the previous close under profit taking. Trade was light. Traders are watching the small movement to terminal markets and weather conditions. There is a belief that primary receipts are misleading, as it is asserted that wheat moving from farmers' hands is being stored in country elevators instead of being shipped to terminal points.

Corn showed strength at the start, but dropped back below previous resting spots. Unfavorable weather and smallness of receipts stimulated fair commission house buying and there also was a demand from the east. Profit taking sales, however, were encountered on the way up and this with the weakness of wheat forced the market down.

Oats averaged higher at the start, buying by a prominent house taking the surplus off the pit, but later December developed weakness and prices were shaded all around.

Provisions were rather dull with December lard averaging lower, offerings finding demand rather slow at times.

JEWETT CITY

The fate of the Ford that figured in the flying fight; told about in the Danielson column of Monday's Bulletin, was read with much interest in Jewett City. Judging from stories that reached here Monday, the "sad soliloquy of the Danielson machine must have been transmitted in some mysterious fashion to the abandoned Ford near Butts' bridge, a few miles above the town. Sad and alone, backed up into the bushes at the foot of Barrows' hill, an evidently perfectly good Ford has been abandoned for three weeks.

Passers on the country road first looked with wonder, then with a sort of fearful interest, to the extent that the state police and local officials were notified, now it is with mingled feelings of pity and sympathy that passing traffic halts for a moment, at the foot of the long incline. Its registration numbers have been investigated, and the derelict is found to be the property of Bert Tracy, who when its feeble rattlings became fainter and then ceased, left it cold and alone. The sad part is told, when a belated traveler, passing in the storm of Sunday night, believes he heard a last cold shiver as the white blanket of snow, slowly covered the conqueror of many hills. Yet, came the whisper, "I died with my tires on."

A few feet after leaving the west end of the bridge something happened, so that the car became unmanageable, and went through E. F. Burleson's fence, down the bank into the lot, Mr. O'Connor, who was not hurt, says he struck something like a hump. About 20 feet of fence was carried away.

The postoffice will be closed today, New Year's from 8 a. m. until 6.30 p. m. The lobby will be open for the 10.44 mail.

Rev. Charles Stephenson, a brother of Rev. Howard Stephenson, figured in quickwitted action in a holdup of thieves near Simpsonville, Kentucky, last week. While driving in the evening with his family in his automobile, the car was struck by a truck, and thrown off the road. The truck did not stop, but the minister got his car back onto the highway and put chase after it. As he came up to it, one man jumped off and ran away. With a pair of shiny pliers, the minister pointed at the driver, and told him he would have to go with him to Simpsonville and settle for damages. The driver was fooled good and plenty by the supposed revolver and drove ahead of the minister. When near the town his truck went off the road, probably intentionally, and the driver jumped off and disappeared. Mr. Stephenson reported to a deputy sheriff, who found the truck carried 10,000 cigarettes. This furnished a clew to the systematic robbery of Southern Railway freight cars, which has been in operation for some time. It was reported that a gang of the robbers were on their way to protest, whereupon the deputy sheriff got together citizens, other deputies and police guards, and the thieves were evidently scared away again, for they did not appear.

The annual New Year's gathering of the Congregational church is to be held this (Tuesday) evening. It is a social time to which all the parish members have been invited. Rev. and Mrs. Stephenson have charge of the programme.

NEW EGG LAWS GO INTO EFFECT TODAY

The new specifications for Connecticut laid eggs adopted recently by state board of agriculture, go into effect today (Tuesday). From now on shoppers in the state may tell at a glance just how fresh eggs are and from whose farm they came.

The following specifications have been published by Leonard H. Healy, secretary of the board, and all prices quoted after the first of the year will be based on these standards.

Connecticut Newlaid Fancy Eggs laid in Connecticut, strictly fresh, not less than seven (7) days old.; Weight not less than twenty-four (24) ounces to the dozen. Clean, uniform in size, shape and color, and with sound shells. These eggs must be candled and packed by the producer or producers' organization in sealed cartons bearing the name, and address and registry number furnished upon request by the secretary of the state board of agriculture.

Connecticut Gathered—Eggs laid in Connecticut, strictly fresh, not more than seven (7) days old. Weight not less than twenty-four (24) ounces to the dozen. Clean, reasonably uniform in size, shape and color and with sound shells.

In commenting on the new requirements of the state board, "The Weekly Market Bulletin," published by the New Hampshire state board of agriculture, calls Connecticut "a leader among the states having the courage of its convictions," and says:

"Our aggressive states are making real progress in their campaigns for more careful egg grading. Such a policy on the part of any state or group of poultrymen tends to create more satisfied customers, the immediate goal of all salesmanship. The more satisfied customers, the more eggs sold; the more eggs sold, the higher the resultant price, which in turn means more satisfied poultrymen."

A woman is seldom in a position to command until she has given her promise to obey.

STILL RETAINS AUTO REGISTRATION NUMBER ONE

An automobile owned by Judge James P. Woodruff of Litchfield will bear the 1924 passenger automobile registration number 1. This coveted number has been held by Judge Woodruff since 1903 when the state of Connecticut first issued motor vehicle registrations. An old, one-cylinder machine owned by him was the first automobile registered in the state, and Judge Woodruff has secured the same number each succeeding year under the privilege to retain old numbers which is extended to owners who make application for registration within a fixed period. No. 1 in the commercial car list is held by the state of Connecticut for the Capitol mail truck.

Registrations were issued by the secretary of the state's office up to 1917 when the state motor vehicle department was created by the general assembly.

Under the new system of letter prefixes to be used on all but 99,999 of the number plates for passenger cars next year, twelve other passenger cars in the state will bear the registration number 1 prefixed by a letter. These numbers and other small-figure numbers of this letter series have been allotted by the department by a drawing in which applicatipns received prior to December 1 competed, in cases where letter series numbers or lower plain numbers than those held in 1923, were asked for.

A-1 went to Edward A. Judge, No. 494 Ellsworth avenue, New Haven; L-1 to James D. Copp, No. 11 Pond Hill place, New London; N-1 to William H. Bowker, No. 40 Pacific street, New London; F-1 to Thomas M. Hollan, Newtown; S-1 to A. P. Van Schaik, Westway road, Southport, and Z-1 to Charles H. Beebe, No. 104 Lewiston avenue, Willimantic. The names of the six others to whom No. 1 in the letter series is being allotted remain to be announced within a few days.

The P series is confined to Hartford county. Four numbers in the first hundred of this series were relinquished by the persons who drew them.

HOW GERMAN CAPITAL HAS MIGRATED FROM GERMANY

New York, Dec. 31—(By the A. P.)—Leading Wall street bankers today expressed the opinion the amount of German capital exported abroad since the armistice which is to be the subject of an investigation by an international committee appointed by the reparations commission, will never be accurately ascertained. Estimates of this sum, which range all the way from $100,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 are generally regarded as mere guesses.

A rigid investigation by the German government under penalty is considered as the most effective way of getting the information which is desired primarily by the French government.

German capital has migrated from Germany in various ways including:

1.—The transfer of gold. Holdings of the German Reichsbank declined from 1,005,000,000 gold marks on Jan. 1 to 487,000,000 on Nov. 30, the decrease representing amounts pledged or sold either to meet foreign obligations or to purchase foreign currency. At least 143,000,000 gold marks equivalent to about $35,000,000, are reported to have been sold to New York.

2.—Purchase of American securities while no accurate compilation of such foreign purchases is obtainable it has been estimated that stocks and bonds bought through foreign sources this year totalled about $250,000,000.

3.—Retention of German credits in this country through the sale here of commodities and securities. It is known that Germany has been a heavy buyer of cotton, wheat, copper and food in this country. The record of trade between the United States and Germany, as shown by the statistics of the treasury department does not, however, bear out either the theory that German exports have been greatly stimulated by the depreciated exchange or that German capitalists have been accumulating large balance abroad.

Considerable capital of German origin is known to be hidden in this and other countries under various guises.

END OF CONTROVERSY IN BUREAU OF ENGRAVING

Washington, Dec. 31—An end to the two-year-old controversy originating in the discharge by President Harding of James L. Wilmeth, director and thirty subordinate officials of the bureau of engraving, appeared in sight tonight.

Louis A. Hill, the director named to succeed Mr. Wilmeth and about whom the storm has more or less centered, has tendered his resignation to Secretary Mellon. It has not been accepted but officials close to the treasury secretary said it would be accepted as soon as a suitable man could be selected for the place.

NORWICH TOWN

Ebenezer, was the theme of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon, at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church. The text referred to was I Samuel 7:12. Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying, hitherto hath the Lord helped us.

At this service G. Avery Ray, tenor, and his daughter, Miss Ruth Ray, soprano, of Springfield, Mass., assisted in the choir. Miss Ray, who is also a fine violinist, played at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6.30, in the chapel, had for its leader, Miss Margaret L. Chapin. The topic was, Wishes for the New Year. Phil. 3:12-16.

The annual meeting of the Sunday school of the First Congregational church was held during the Sunday school session at noon Sunday. The meeting opened with prayer, by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, followed by the report of acting secretary and treasurer Frank E. Sterry; report of the librarian, Frank S. Avery, and the report of the home department, by Miss J. G. Bonney.

Those who reported for the organized classes of the Sunday school were: One Aim, Miss Susan Hyde, teacher; True Blue, Miss Rose K. Durr, teacher; W. I. T.'s, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, teacher; Drop-in class, Miss Fennie L. Congdon, teacher; Men's Forum, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, leader.

The choice of officers resulted in the re-election of Dwight W. Avery, superintendent; Henry T. Frazier, first assistant; Clyde M. Beebe, second assistant, Frank E. Sterry was elected secretary and treasurer, to succeed the late Miss Mary E. Wattles, who for many years filled these offices with loyalty and fidelity. Miss Gertrude S. Avery was elected assistant secretary and treasurer; Frank S. Avery librarian; Miss J. G. Bonney, assistant librarian, also superintendent of the home department; Herbert L. Yerrington, organist; Miss Bessie M. Grant, chorister. The library committee comprises Miss Jennie Case, chairman; Mrs. C. [illegible] Learned, Miss Jennie L. Congdon.

The following are appointed a committee to recommend a budget for the ensuing year: Herbert L. Yerrington, Dwight W. Avery, and Clyde M. Beebe, said committee to report at the next session of the Sunday school, January 6th.

The annual festivities of the church usually held on New Year's day, will take place today (Tuesday.) At 3 o'clock there will be a meeting for the church members, at the conclusion of which following a short intermission, the 43rd annual organ recital, by Herbert L. Yerrington will be held in the church auditorium, at 4 o'clock. The parish New Year's supper will take place at 6 o'clock in the chapel.

Elmer Brown, a sophomore at Brown university, who is spending the Christmas vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Browning, was received into full membership of the First Congregational church, on confession of faith in Christ, during the Sunday morning worship, by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, who also baptized Mr. Browning.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from II, Corinthians 5:17, Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, the leader was Mrs. Richard Carter, chairman of the Lookout committee. This was followed by a preaching service by Rev Mr. Aldrich, his subject being New Year's Resolutions.

When the Congregational parish united with the Methodist parish in a watch night service, Monday evening, the address was by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey pastor of the visiting church who spoke concerning the closing of the year. The service was held at 9.15.

Today (New Year's) is a holy day of obligation, masses will take place at the Sacred Heart church, this morning at 5 and 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. William [illegible] gue with their son, George Ta[illegible] spent the week end Christmas at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tague of Westfield, Mass., returning that night, stopping en route in Springfield to call on another son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tague. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mrs. William Tague and Mrs. Philema Noland, of Norwich Town, and Mrs. Gurdon Bailey of Preston, were among the member of the Woman's Relief corps, who attended patriotic services at the Mohegan church, when a flag was presented the church.

TO ISSUE AUTO REGISTRATIONS FOR YEAR 1925 IN NORWICH NEXT FALL

Norwich automobile owners who have stood in line for hours at the New London branch office of the state motor vehicle department to secure automobile registrations will be interested in the announcement made by President Herbert M. Lerou of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce that next year automobile numbers will be distributed from an office in this city. President Lerou made the announcement at a meeting of the chamber directors Monday noon. The plan to issue automobile numbers in this city next fall is the result of a conference with Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel. President Lerou's announcement means that this is probably the last time that the people of Norwich will have to go to New London or Hartford for their automobile registrations.

Four new members, J. C. Henderson, Max Fern, Elkin Smith and Jacob R. Slosberg, were voted into membership.

Arrangements have been completed for the January membership meeting which will be held in the Wauregan hotel Monday, January 21st. The speaker will be Byron R. Newton, formerly assistant secretary of the United States treasury and former collector of the Port of New York. Mr. Newton will give a general presentation of all phases of the coal industry with particular reference to the problems and difficulties of the anthracite coal industry. An opportunity will be given to members and friends to ask questions at the close of his address. The question of anthracite coal for the New England consumers is one that vitally affects the country and especially the anthracite users of coal which is so general in New England homes. These meetings of the chamber are open to any who care to attend them.

A communication was received from the state park and forest commissioners regarding the petition submitted by the local chamber for a state reservation near Norwich. The commissioners will make an investigation of the project and ascertain the possibilities of establishing such a park in this section of the state.

The question of locating an office for the Norwich deputy collector of internal revenue, George H. Charbonneau was discussed and the United States treasury department will be urged to retain Mr. Charbonneau's office in the post office building. The treasury department, under the economic system laid down by Mr. Dawes who inaugurated the national budget system has no appropriation for office rent or telephone service for the deputy internal revenue collectors throughout the country; therefore it has been solely through the courtesy of the post office department that telephone calls for Mr. Charbonneau have been answered. In view of the fact of the lack of a sufficient number of post office clerks in the local office today and the work of this department, especially at the holiday season, the use of the telephone for Mr. Charbonneau cannot be continued. The Norwich deputy collector is at his desk in the post office building every morning at 9 o'clock and because of the territory under his jurisdiction which includes Plainfield, Jewett City, Danielson, Central Village, as well as Norwich, Mr. Charbonneau cannot maintain regular office hours, but those wishing to see Mr. Charbonneau personally can meet him at 9 o'clock every morning in the post office building.

The directors voted to urge the interstate commerce commission to grant through rail coal rates from the coal mines in West Virginia to New England points. It is believed that through rail rates of coal from the West Virginia fields will greatly benefit the people of New England.

INJURED MAN AWARDED EXPENSE OF OPERATION

In a finding filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city, by Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue, U. S. Council, 40 Pearl street, New London, employed by the New London Ship & Engine Co., is awarded payment of medical, surgical and hospital bills incident to an operation which he is to undergo for hernia. At the hearing held in the commissioner's office in this city it was found that, while engaged in lifting moving some material at the plant of the respondent on June 5th, the claimant testified that he received an injury to his right side. His condition did not become apparent to the claimant, according to his testimony, until about September 12th, at which time he reported the matter to the nurse at the plant. He was advised to consult a physician, which he did, and was told he had a hernia.

He suffered no disability and his claim was for an operation. He was awarded medical, surgical and hospital bills in connection with the operation, and compensation at $5.65 a week for a reasonable period for disability incident to the operation. The compensation award is only one-half of the amount he would have been allowed if prompt notice of injury had been made by him as requested by the act as the respondent was found to have been prejudiced 50 per cent by lack of notice.

MEN TRIED TO GAIN ENTRANCE TO HOUSE

Dr. [illegible] of Main street, reported at police headquarters shortly after 9.15 o'clock that two unidentified men tried to gain entrance to his residence about 9 o'clock. According to the doctor's story the two men went to his front door and one of the men said the doctor had sent them for a suit of clothes. They did not get into the house and left.

About 15 minutes later the maid who had answered the front door, heard the men at the back door and saw them trying keys. On seeing the maid appear in the kitchen they left. The police started an investigation of the matter immediately.

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF AUTOMOBILE LAW

Robert K. Dean was arrested by Officer Smith Monday afternoon and booked at police headquarters on a charge of intoxication and violation of the motor vehicle law. He will be presented in court this (Tuesday) morning.

JUDGE BROWN ADDRESSES SUNDAY Y. M. C. A. MEETING

A large audience attended the special picture meeting at the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 30, when an interesting moving picture was shown in the gymnasium. The picture showed the strenuous life lived by Theodore Roosevelt in his various activities, both as governor of New York and as president of the United States and even his active college life. The pictures from beginning to end held the deep interest of the audience and several times were applauded. Hugh Kinder pleased the audience with vocal solos.

Between the reels, Judge Allyn L. Brown delivered an enlightening address on The Great American, which was impressively delivered. Among other things Judge Brown said, "Theodore Roosevelt was so vivid a personality that even without the movies we can well remember him, with his stocky build, broad shoulders, sturdy neck, head a little set forward, strong alert face, quick and certain movements, yet poise and dignity withal. He was what could truly be termed an all around man. Physically as a youth he was below par, but he went West determined to build up his body which he did to a most wonderful degree. He was fond of horseback riding, hunting, walking, tennis and boxing. He determined to fit himself for a strenuous life and we all know how well he did this very thing. Mentally, Mr. Roosevelt had a keen mind from his youth. He was a great reader and absorbed in a remarkable way the things he read, and remembered them. He developed the power to judge quickly and correctly. He was very systematic; he had a rule when president to always clear his desk before he left his office at the close of day.

When police commissioner of New York, when governor and when president, he conceived effective methods, which proved of great value to all concerned. As to his character, in his family life he was a devoted husband and father. He reserved for his wife the hours from 3 to 5 in the afternoon while president and kept this appointment with regularity. He often put his children to bed when they were young. He took time to play with his children, and more than once he finished his play with them even though men were waiting to see him on important business. He took unusual interest in his children, and when they were away at school he wrote them regularly. He kept in close touch with them.

I have said he was an all around man. He taught his boys three important things: First, obedience; second, manliness and third, honesty. He despised a liar. He would do almost anything he could for a man who told the truth, but he could not stand a liar. He had great sympathy for old friends when they had trouble. Theodore Roosevelt was enthusiastic patriotic, loyal and he was religious. He was a regular church goer and supported religious activities. He believed in Jesus Christ. When someone asked him what he would do if he were president when the German ambassador warned Americans not to sail on the Lusitania, as she was to be torpedoed, his answer was as follows: I would summon the ambassador to my office and give him his passport and demand that he sail on the Lusitania, with instructions that a watch be kept that he remain on board for the whole trip. Many people believe if this had been done the boat would not have been sunk, and that the war would have been shortened, by many months, if not a year or two. Mr. Roosevelt when asked if he would help the laboring man, said that he would do anything he could for them that was right and have the same answer to the employer. His motto in practice was, "Choose the right and stick to it."

God used such lives; his life was an open book; he chose the right and threw himself on the right side with all his might. His wonderful life is and will continue to be a great inspiration.

who will return to patrol duty. Supernumerary Policemen Jeremiah Murphy and Thomas Lyden, who have been on patrol duty several months, were ordered out of service indefinitely, as it was contended there was no need at present for the extra officers.

The members of New London police force are to be given pistol practise. The old police station in the rear of the present station house, is being equipped with a 45-foot range and as soon as it is completed the practice will be a part of the daily routine of the officers.

The city council this evening declined to grant a petition of the Atlantic Refining company for permission to erect a gasoline filling station at the corner of Bank and Tilley streets, on what is now the Edward Keefe estate property. The city manager and the building inspector recommended the granting of the petition, but Councilor Gragan objected and said the city should own the property and that if it now passed to other hands the city would some day have to pay dearly for its neglect in not securing the property. Councilor Fox inquired as to what rights the city had in the matter. He said the petition was in regular form, that it had been approved by the building inspector and the city manager and that they had recommended granting the petition. Councilor Whiton pointed out that the council should go slow, and that by withholding the permission sought, the city could secure what was desired. He wanted the city manager to ascertain just what would be done by the purchasers before the petition was granted. Councilor Gragan said that as a business proposition the council should not allow a gasoline station to be established there. He said he was not objecting to the petition, but declared that the city should have the property The petition was referred back to the city manager, for investigation and report.

The council voted to notify the owners of the so-called Patterson building on State street, damaged by fire Christmas morning to remove the stone [illegible] as it was more than 50 per cent damaged by the fire.

Meyer Hollandersky asked to have the so-called Keiser property line extended toward the street to the street line and to conform with the building line of the property next south [illegible] Referred to the planning board [illegible] part.

City Manager Holt asked the council members to meet the members of the board of school visitors next Friday evening to consider the matter of a junior high school building, but that met with opposition, Councilor Murray, stating that the time for such a meeting was next Monday evening, after the council's regular meeting. This brought Councilor Fox out with the statement that the school board members should meet the council two weeks hence and that the meeting should be in the open and that everyone who wanted to do so might be present and hear what was said. He said there were phases of the matter that should be brought to public attention, and pointed out that there were fewer pupils registered in the schools now by 242 than were registered a year ago. He said the junior high school project should not go through as it is headed now. He said that information was being sought as to the matter last week when a meeting was arranged and that it could not be obtained then and cannot be obtained now. The council voted to have the matter aired in public that the people who are at all interested might be heard and hear all that was to be said.

POETRY

New Year's Morning.

Only a night from old to new,
Only a night and so much wrought;
The Old Year's heart all weary grew,
But said: "The New Year rest has brought."
The Old Year's heart its hopes laid down,
As in a grave; but, trusting, said:
"The blossoms of the New Year's crown
Bloom from the ashes of the dead."
The Old Year's heart was full of greed;
With selfishness it longed and ached,
And cried: "I have not half I need,
My thirst is bitter and unslaked."
But to the New Year's generous hand
All gifts in plenty shall return;
True loving it shall understand;
By all my failures it shall learn.
I have been reckless; it shall be Quiet and calm and pure of life.
I was a slave; it shall go free,

—Helen Hunt Jackson, in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Old Year and the New.

The clocks were on the stroke of twelve;
The moon was bright and high.
A footstep broke the frozen crust,
A shadow passed me by.
I saw a veteran, lame and old,
Whose march was almost done.
The battered knapsack on his back
Was empty, like his gun.

The silver chimes began to ring;
I heard a bugle blow.
A dashing soldier, young and fair,
Came riding o'er the snow.
The frost was on his cloak of blue
And on his yellow plume,
And on his sword, he bore a rose—
A red, red rose—in bloom.

He halted where the aged man
Had fallen in the snows.
And icy winds had made for him
A bed of white repose.
He set the bugle to his lips,
The notes of "taps" he blew,
And then I knew that I beheld
The old year and the new.

—Minna Irving in Leslie's Weekly.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Betty (sentimental)—I suppose you've read "To a Wood Violet."

Mr. Bohnhedd—Never. What do you read to 'em?"

Blake—I've bought a book on etiquette. I'm pretty well up on it now.

Drake—Then I'd like to ask you a question. Is it polite for women to smoke when men are present?—Sunday Times.

"You used to say you thought heaven sent me to you," said the young wife tearfully, during their first spat.

"And I say so still—"

"Really?" she exclaimed, delighted.

"Yes," he added, "as a punishment."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Black—I wonder why so many people put their valuables under their pillow before going to sleep?"

Mr. Black—I don't know; perhaps they like to have a little money to fall back on!—Exchange.

"What I want above all things," said the ambitious fellow, "is to make money."

"That's right," agreed the practical business man. "I had a friend once who was anxious just as you are, and made money. He was living in a story house; now he's living in a [illegible] mansion with 1,768 other fellows."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

"My [illegible] prof," complained the flapper, "[illegible] about the meanest man in [illegible]."

"How's that?" asked her father.

"He borrowed my nice pearl-handled penknife I got for Christmas so he can sharpen his [illegible] to give me low marks."—American Legion Weekly.

Many persons have wondered about the so-called waves of ether which, we are told, transmit sound by the wireless telephone. Mountains do not obstruct them, but how it is when the distance is such that a straight line between two stations would pass below the surface of the earth. An authority in such matters declares that the path of the ether waves is not a straight line, but follows the earth's curvature. Ordinary obstructions do not interfere with wireless waves.

The popular impression that the full moon has the power to clear away clouds disappears slowly, notwithstanding the almost unanimous pronouncement of scientists against it. That may be largely due to the fact that so great an authority in his day as Sir John Herschel regarded the idea as probably correct. After a study of the Greenwich observations it was suggested that the impression may be due to the fact that a change from the cloudy to the clear state is much more likely to attract attention when there is a full moon in the sky, and many meterologists agree with this.

Nearly a century ago, Lord Lonsdale, owner of coal mining property along the northwest coast of England near Whitehaven, asked the government for a concession to mine coal under the sea for a distance of ten miles from the shore and for an extent of twenty miles along the coast. For this he offered to pay the sum of 50,000 pounds. The thing seemed so impractical to the British government that they acceded at once to the proposition, feeling that they had sold the noble lord something resembling a gold brick. But science kept on developing the mining industry, and now the coal mines at Whitehaven extend four and a half miles out to sea and 1,500 feet beneath the bottom. The lessees pay to the heirs of Lord Lonsdale more royalty every year than the original price of the concession.

Eastern Connecticut Had Good Business Year In 1923

RECORD TOTAL OF $1,240,673,998 IN BANKING, BUILDING, MANUFACTURING

Good Business Period Reported For New London and Windham Counties

EXCEEDED 1922 BY $88,787,654

New London County Business Transactions Showed Total of $895,569,426 — Windham County $345,104,572 — Banking Figures Went Way Ahead of Preceding Year—Manufacturers Kept Big Industrial Plants in Two Counties Generally Busy—Much New Building Construction In This Section.

For the twelve months of 1923 business conditions in New London and Windham counties were maintained at a volume that showed a substantial increase over the year before, and made the period one that can be set down as a time of generally satisfactory experiences for the counties of Eastern Connecticut. High prices for raw material have been temporary checks for woolen mills, cotton mills, and silk mills. These reached the woolen industry in the early part of the year and to the two other lines in the latter months of 1923, and were more especially felt in Windham county, but there has been comparatively little unemployment.

For 1923 in New London and Windham counties the grand business total in manufacturing, banking, building and jobbing lines was $1,240,673,998, which was a gain of $88,787,654 over the figures of $1,151,886,344 for 1922 even exceeded the peak figure of $1,214,327,353 in 1920, the highest recorded for Eastern Connecticut.

New London county brought $895,569,426 to the business total for 1923 in comparison with $807,648,707 in 1922, and Windham county's figures were $345,104,572 for 1923, where they had been $344,237,637 in 1922.

Total wage disbursements from the New London county manufacturing plants in 1923 were $20,843,412 in comparison with $18,431,653 in 1922, while in Windham county the wage figures for 1923 were $10,180,967, having increased from $8,593,000 in 1922. Total [illegible] thus increased from $27,024,653 in 1922 to $31,024,379 in 1923.

Total banking for 1923 in the two countries was $1,000,422,528 of which $743,226,292 was in New London county and $257,156,236 in Windham county. In 1922 the total banking figure was $923,961,160, comprising $672,879,960 in New London county and $51,081,200 in Windham county.

Total building operations in 1923 reached the figure of $3,741,847, made up of $2,416,847 in New London county and $1,325,000 in Windham county. These compared with the 1922 figures which showed a total of $3,655,275, to which New London county contributed $2,855,275, and Windham county gave $800,000.

Prosperous Year Shown in Norwich Industries

Fortunate in the diversity of its manufacturing industries, Norwich maintained in 1923 the general good level of activity. Periods of depression in some lines were not enough to prevent the wage distribution from largely exceeding the figures of 1922.

Total wages paid out in the year were $9,948,523 which exceeded the figure of $8,409,067 for 1922. At the same time more employes were kept at work, 8,661 in 1923, and 8,274 in the year preceding. Value of manufactured product went to $38,849,997, which was a good gain over the $31,260,550 in 1922.

In the cotton manufacturing lines although they ran into slack times in the latter part of the year, the wage distribution was $2,462,750 and product value $7,613,800 as compared with $2,660,000 and $7,987,000 respectively in 1922, and 2,636 workers were employed as against 2,688. The woolen mills showed greater volume of business, employing 1,810, with wages of $2,149,932 and product value of $8,597,487 in 1923 as against 1,740 workers, $1,500,000 in wages and $4,875,000 in product value in 1922.

A third important textile line, silks and velvets, recorded larger business figures than a year ago, employing 1,258 in 1923, with wages of $1,432,143 and value of manufactured product at $9,417,309, where there were 1,200 employes, $1,261,716 in wages and $7,720,000 in product value in 1922.

A great increase in the paper mill figures for 1923 is shown, largely through the revived activity of one of the large mills and there are good gain for all the paper and belting manufacturers. In 1923 they gave employment to 407 with wages of $553,831 and product value of $3,482,050 as against 335 employed in 1922 at wages of $325,214 and value in manufactured product of $2,383,103.

Foundry and iron work indicated substantial gains in 1923 over 1922, employing 279 with wages of $437,000 and product value of $988,000. In 1922 these lines showed wages of $290,000 with 225 workers and product value of $921,180.

Manufacturers of metal goods gave employment to 197 with wages of $196,000 and turned out product of $613,000 in value in 1923 where in 1922 they employed 201, had wages of $180,381 and product of $556,267. Firearms and cutlery manufacturers did a greater business in 1923 than in 1922, showing 441 men employed in these lines, $601,304 paid in wages and $1,180,525 in manufactured product as compared with 432 employes, $488,000 in wages and $955,000 in product in 1922.

In industries grouped under miscellaneous classification, there were larger figures in 1923 than in 1922. Their wages were $2,115,563, employes 1,633 and product value of $6,957,826, as contrasted with 1,453 employes, $1,803,756 in wages and $5,863,000 in product in 1922.

Willimantic Mills Kept At Steady Stride

Willimantic's manufacturing industries kept a generally busy pace during the past year which resulted in giving them larger figures in wage distribution. In 1923 their total wages were $3,601,467 with product value of $12,527,869 as against wages of $3,530,290 and manufactured product of $13,432,187 in 1922, with about 3,340 employed in 1923 as against 3,321 in the year before.

Among the cotton mills the wage total for 1923 was at $341,243 and value of product at $981,318 which the year before had been $318,801 and $1,098,045 respectively. Silk and velvet mills had $405,00 in wages and $2,400,000 in product value in 1922 which went to $451,159 in wages and $2,450,000 in product in 1923. Machinery and foundry work showed $225,750 in wages and $619,551 in manufactured product in 1923, where these figures had been $171,313 in wages and $347,139 in product in 1922. Through the miscellaneous industries there was a total of $2,583,324 in wages and $8,577,000 in product in 1923, which compared with the 1922 figures of $2,686,176 in wages and $8,587,000 in product value.

Manufacturing Lines Gain in New London

Manufacturing lines generally in New London recorded better business in 1923 than in 1922, employing 246 more hands, distributing more in wages and turning out a greater product value. The busy New London manufacturing industries disbursed $5,371,731 in wages, employing 4,747, with product value of $16,719,703 in 1923, where they had 4,501 employes, wages of $5,072,072 and product value of $15,281,142 in 1922.

In firms engaged in the boiler and iron work there were 77 workers, $76,520 in wages and $175,000 in value of product in 1923, as compared with 70 employes, wages of $75,500 and product value of $160,500 in the preceding year. Machinery and marine work recorded a much greater business, showing 1,925 employes, $2,659,000 in wages, and $5,150,000 in product in 1923 as against 1,585 employes, $2,468,446 in wages and $4,150,000 in product in 1922.

Manufacturers of metal goods and iron products, which in 1922 had 565 employes, $537,000 in wages and $2,236,000 in product dropped to 390 employes, $445,000 in wages and $1,329,812 in product in 1923.

Textile lines, including manufacturers of silk goods and comfortables, recorded business gains, when wages were $1,445,000, employes 1,595 and value of product $7,764,000 in 1923 as compared with 1,475 employes, $1,220,000 in wages and $6,319,000 in product in 1922.

Woolen mills had wages of $75,000 with 75 employes, and $400,000 in product. In miscellaneous lines there were 685 employed with wages of $670,811 and product value of $1,900,811 in 1923. For the preceding year in these industries there had been 750 employes, $709,126 in wages and $2,052,642 in product value.

Putnam Manufacturing At Lesser Volume

Putnam's mill industries fell off in 1923 from the good volume of business that they had shown in the preceding year. Total wages disbursed through these industries in 1923 were approximately $595,000 with product value of $7,274,000 where they had been $847,000 in wages and $14,663,000 product value in 1922.

In cotton manufacturing lines the wages for 1923 were $74,000 with manufactured product of $3,300,000 as against $150,000 in wages and $8,055,000 in product value in 1922. Silk mills which had shown wages of $128,000 and product value of $1,000,000 in 1922 were at $112,000 in wages and $850,000 in product value in 1923. Other industries shared the general decline, showing $175,000 in wages, and $1,509,000 in value of manufactured product as compared with $285,000 in wages and $4,493,000 in product value in 1922.

PROSPEROUS PERIOD IN PAST YEAR VIEWED BY CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

Eastern Connecticut Cities and Towns in 1923 Experienced Good Twelve Months in Business Lines—Cities Accomplishing Advances in Civic, Social and Economic Conditions—See Good Prospects for 1924.

Favorable progress in many lines in the past year and a feeling of optimism about the coming twelve months are reported by ticut cities. Accomplishments for the improvement of community life have been placed on record during the year that has just closed, and it can be said that the cities and towns of New London and Windham counties have continued to show the progressive spirit that has even been one of their characteristics.

The Chambers of Commerce have grasped many opportunities to serve for the common welfare and their officers invite the cultivation of that helpful, hopeful cooperative spirit which will be an asset upon which large results can be realized in 1924.

Norwich Moving Forward To Continuing Prosperity

Norwich faces the year 1924 with feelings of optimism for good business. This is no mere idle statement but a fact. Mercantile stocks throughout the country are low, due to the caution displayed by business men everywhere. In the natural course of events these stocks must be replenished. This necessity for mercantile stocks cannot but presage a good business year for our industries. And Norwich is proud of the great diversity of her industry.

During the past year some of our industries were compelled to curtail operations; others continued operations in a normal manner. The people of Norwich can look at the past year in our local industrial history with a general feeling of satisfaction in comparison with what has happened in other communities throughout the country caused by unemployment with its consequent business depression.

From a civic standpoint, Norwich has progressed most favorably during the past year. The first step in the deepening of the channel of the Thames River from Allyn's Point to Norwich has been secured through the detailed survey to determine the cost of this project by the federal

THE MAGNITUDE OF THEIR BUSINESS INTERESTS CLEARLY SHOWN

In securing the figures herewith The Bulletin is indebted to the custodians of the accounts, and thanks them for their prompt and obliging responses. Except in a few instances there was a ready response from those approached for information, but where estimates had to be made, they were carefully figured.

The greater part of the figures were based upon amounts actually taken from the books of the business houses. The promise to disclose no business secrets will explain why in a number of instances it has been necessary to assemble several lines into one sum. The immense figures reached must be a surprise to all as it is to The Bulletin, and the residents of the cities and towns of the two counties can well feel a pardonable pride in the magnitude of their business interests as here shown.

BANKS OF TWO COUNTIES REPORT BIG BUSINESS YEAR FOR 1923

National Banks of New London and Windham Counties Exceeded Transactions of Preceding Year—Thrifty People of County Communities Continue to Add to Savings Bank Deposits.

What a busy and generally prosperous year was experienced in 1923, in the Eastern Connecticut territory is indicated by the figures for banking transactions which went far above the showing for 1922.

Banks in New London and Windham counties recorded total transactions of $1,000,422,528, which was a significant gain over the transactions of $923,961,160 in the year before.

Savings banks showed a steady increase in deposits made through the habit of New England thrift. Total deposits in New London county savings banks were shown at $62,607,574 and Windham County savings banks had $13,851,918, making a total of $76,459,492. The total for 1922 was $70,797,266, of which $59,846,424 was in New London county and $10,950,842 in the savings banks of Windham county.

Good Business Year For Strong Norwich Banks

Norwich banks, both national and savings, had a good year in 1923, in which savings deposits were increased and there was great activity in real estate loans made by the savings banks, while the total transactions of national banks went ahead of the year preceding.

In 1922, the total national bank transactions were $322,246,300 which was raised to $360,374,674 in 1923. Total savings deposits at the end of 1923 were $38,723,024, showing a gain from $34,765,200 at the end of 1922.

At the beginning of the year, according to banking authorities, the expectation was for a very good year, and this was largely realized in spite of some checks in the manufacturing industries whose financial dealings play so important a part in the transaction of the national banks. The woolen industry experienced a check in the first six months, while in the latter half of the year the blow fell upon cotton manufacturing, because of the high price of cotton, and silk manufacturing has suffered a severe check since the Japanese earthquake, because of the high price put upon the raw material by the Japanese.

The year marked the loss by the Thames National bank of its president, Arthur H. Brewer, who had held that office from 1915 up to the time of his death, June 19, 1923. Oliver L. Johnson, vice-president, a man of wide experience in financial affairs, was elected to the presidency and William B. Young was elected vice-president, while Frank B. Rieket was elected to take Mr. Brewer's place on the board of directors.

Mr. Brewer had also been president of the Norwich Savings Society since 1913, and the vacancy in the presidency here was filled by the election of Charles R. Butts, who had long filled the office of assistant secretary and treasurer with conspicuous ability. At the same time Guy B. Dolbeare and William I. Cook were elected assistant treasurers and Harold P. Hill chief clerk.

All the savings banks report great activity in real estate loans, indicative of the busy year in building that has been the record of Norwich, particularly in the line of new residences. The most favorable consideration has been given to home owners and home builders by the Norwich savings banks in granting loans and every worthy applicant has found that the Norwich banks would be behind him in his effort to establish a home.

A substantial increase in the number of depositors is reported by the Norwich Savings Society, with a gain in deposits from $19,956,981.05 at the end of 1922, to $20,553,342.07 at the end of 1923. Lessons of thrift in the children have been inculated by the automatic teller system carried out through the schools in which the school children have participated with a lively interest.

The Dime Savings bank has gained over 400 depositors in the year and the savings deposits have increased from $3,903,237.81 to $4,019,275.55.

At the Chelsea Savings bank the deposits have grown from $10,741,882.00 to $11,436,467.56. The Chelsea bank's Christmas club enlisted more members than ever before and distributed about $40,000 to the members who had saved money in this convenient way. Incentives to saving money have also been supplied by thrift clubs in many industrial plants and by school clubs in 20 schools in the surrounding territory.

The Bankers Trust Co. reached the end of its second year on December 14, with a record of continual increase of business which has built up a total of $975,000 in total resources and given the bank over 1,900 depositors in its savings department.

New London Banks Gained in Past Year

The industrial curve for the past year in New London reached its peak in May and although there has not been a serious drop in the curve line several of the industries of New London have not been as active recently as they were earlier in the year. The month of December was made most interesting to the merchants by the distribution of nearly $200,000, accumulated through the Christmas clubs of New London. Only three banks operate these clubs: The New London City National Bank (which was the first in the field), the Mariners Savings Bank, and the Savings Bank of New London. The indications are that an even larger number have become members of the Christmas club for 1924. This interesting psychological banking development has had a tremendous growth throughout the country and New London is a good illustration of the success of the plan. It is estimated that about 80 per cent. of this money is deposited on regular savings accounts.

There has been little change in the banking personel during the year. The recent death of Capt. William E. Wilcox leaves a vacancy in the board of directors of the New London City National Bank. The increase in the number of bank employees has been commensurate with the growth of the banks and it is surprising to one who has been familiar with New London banks for the past twenty-five years or more to note the changed atmosphere due to the large number of young women now carrying on an important part of the bank routine work.

The Union Bank & Trust Company is about to occupy its sorely needed addition and the New London National Bank is completing the addition to the rear of its banking room.

The youngest bank in the city, The Winthrop Trust Company, has made a surprising growth in its less than two years of existence. Its assets now are over $1,000,000, and its commercial deposits are upward of $800,000. A year ago at this time this bank had deposits of about $375,000. There has been little change in the amount of deposits in any of the other commercial banks, but both the savings banks show a large increase in deposits during the past year, the Savings Bank of New London having gained nearly $1,000,000, and the Mariners Savings Bank showing a proportionately great gain of $350,000.

The Winthrop Trust Company was again the highest bidder for the city deposit with the Union Bank & Trust Company the second highest bidder. The competition among the banks for this deposit has netted a good return to the city.

Within the last month the mysterious corporation with a high sounding name which advertised its main office as at New London, Conn., has gone into the hands of a receiver. This company, known as the Bankers' Union for Foreign and Domestic Commerce, is said to be one of the H. V. Greene enterprises. From the many inquiries received by New London bankers concerning this company it is believed there are many who have invested in its stock. It was never offered locally but was sold in other parts of the country.

The New London Morris Plan Company has paid back to its stockholders one hundred cents on the dollar and is being liquidated as rapidly as possible. The Beneficial Loan Society so-called, has opened an office in New London for the benefit of small borrowers. It has a special charter from the state and charges the modest rate of 3 1-2 per cent. a month on its loans, making a total of 42 per cent. per annum. A number of New London men have loaned their names to the new enterprise which is evidently a large corporation doing business in a great many places.

The Morris Plan Company could charge less than half as much for money as the Beneficial Loan Association yet with a sufficient volume of business should have operated profitably. The small borrower without collateral very properly has to pay a higher price for money than the borrower with good collateral but 42 per cent. seems to be a heavy load for the small borrower to carry.

The prospects of 1924 are not as rosy businesswise as one might hope for, but if New London's diversified industries can be 70 per cent. operated through the year it will not be a bad year from the viewpoint of a banker.

Danielson Banks Grow In Financial Stability

Maintaining the remarkable records they have been making for several years past, the banks of Danielson have continued to forge ahead into higher and stronger positions of financial stability during 1923.

It was a great year for all the local banking institutions. The two that transact a commercial business have had a wonderfully prosperous year and are in a position to carry substantial sums to surplus and reserve accounts in addition to paying the regular dividends and extra dividends.

In the savings departments the increase in deposits has been well in excess of $1,000,000, an evidence that patrons of the banks have been profitably employed and have earned enough to set aside this impressive amount of money against time of need or misfortune.

The Brooklyn Savings bank reports an increase in excess of $300,000 in its deposits during 1923, these deposits now being approximately $4,200,000. During 1923 $33,000 was added to the surplus account. This is evidence of a remarkable year of business and of the confidence of the public in this institution, which has enjoyed surprising growth since its removal to Danielson from Brooklyn, where it was established in 1872. With the growth there has been no deviation from the careful and conservative banking policies that always have been characteristic of this bank and have contributed so largely to its upbuilding and deservedly winning the confidence of the public. The bank attracts depositors from all this section of eastern Connecticut and from more distant points.

The Windham County National bank—oldest of the financial institutions in this corner of the state and now in the second century of its existence—not only kept the amazing pace of business maintained during the past decade, but even surpassing it a bit during 1923, one of the best years in the long history of this bank.

It is recalled as an evidence of the success with which it has operated during the past year that its dividend due depositors in its savings department on December 1 was earned and set aside last July. The savings department of this bank was established only a few years ago, but the deposits have grown by leaps and bounds and at the end of 1923 amounted to $1,770,000. Of this amount the gain during the year just closed was $375,000, one of the best years in the department's history.

The commercial business of the bank has flourished every week of 1923, and at the year's close $25,000 was added to the surplus fund, making the surplus $75,000, and there remains $27,500 in undivided profits. This bank has been paying 8 per cent. on its stock, none of which is for sale, by the way.

At the Danielson Trust company, youngest of Danielson's banking institutions, there is the some story of prosperity for 1923 as applies to the other banking institutions here. This bank opened a savings department two years ago and in the brief period has piled up deposits of over $600,000, practically half of that representing gains made during 1923.

Commercially, too, the bank has experienced a great year. It has shown growth and accumulated additional strength. This is evidenced by the action of a recent meeting of the directors in which $25,000 was carried to the surplus account and a large sum placed in the undivided profits account. This bank handles the accounts of many of the manufacturing concerns in the territory and the volume of its commercial business is surprising.

The public of Danielson and of the towns that do business with Danielson's banks have much to thank them for. Every courtesy is shown depositors or inquirers of the institutions. Every modern banking facility is provided.

Many little services and accomodations are performed for patrons, usually without charge. The banks maintain Christmas savings clubs at no little bother for themselves, and through these organizations make possible the paying out of thousands of dollars to holiday shoppers in the early days of December each year. This year the total released by Danielson banks was about $50,000.

Always progressive, all of Danielson's banks have helped make the business section brighter and more attractive by buying large and ornamental electric signs during the past year.

It is the borough's best contribution so far to a little white way. Two of the big signs are now in place and the third will be early this year.

Danielson is proud of its banking institutions—proud because of their strength, their steady growth and the high place they hold in the esteem of all who do business with them or know about them. They are a great asset to the borough and have made it a much more important financial center than anyone here would dare predict even such a short time as a decade ago.

Splendid Business Year Among Putnam Banks

The year 1923 stands forth in the long history of Putnam's banks as the one in which one occupied its newly completed banking home and the other saw rising to its full proportions a new home that it will occupy during the spring of this year.

The First National bank expended upwards of $100,000 in remodeling and extending and refitting its home, formerly shared with it by the Putnam Savings bank. During the remodeling operations, which were begun nearly a year ago and not completed until early the past fall, the two banks occupied temporary quarters in what is known as the old Thompson bank in Union street. The Putnam Savings bank continues to do business there while its new home is in course of construction.

What Putnam's banks have done during the past year and are continuing to do to place themselves in new and modernly equipped homes is an evidence of their prosperity and of the reserve strength that has made their heavy expenditures possible. They have enjoyed a year of splendid business, notwithstanding that Putnam industrially has had an off year, with several of its manufacturing plants closed or operating on reduced schedules of working hours.

The new home of the First National bank is one of the show structures of the city, its white walls gleaming as a landmark in the business. The structure has every appointment conceived to aid in conducting a banking business under modern methods and is a delight to the patrons as well as to the bank's force of officials and employes.

Close by the new home of the Putnam Savings bank is under construction. Its walls only recently have been completed and the building closed in. It is a two-story structure of tapestry brick, with ornamental cornice. Its appointments will be in keeping with the best ideas for fitting bank houses. The savings bank's new home is expected to be a great asset to it in continuing to attract new patrons and in the further growth and expansion of the bank, which serves many communities in this part of the state and is favorably known everywhere.

FOLEY PILLS BRING RELIEF

"Foley Pills are the best I have tried. My kidneys work a lot better since I received your generous offer," writes John W. Brogan, Adams, Mass. Foley Pills are a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys and while being taken close attention should be paid to the diet. Avoid sweets, pastry, starchy foods, alcoholic drinks, tea and coffee. Drink plenty of good fresh water, and keep the body warmly clothed. Refuse substitutes. Lee & Osgood Co.

government. There is still serious work to be done to complete this project, but the existing situation is indeed hopeful.

The people of Norwich have shown their desire to have a modern lighted business section and when this is installed, our new street lighting method will place Norwich in the ranks of other progressive cities.

A firm foundation for an equitable real estate assessment is being made in securing a tax map. This is the second year of this important project and it has received the full support of our people.

Transportation service for our business interests, manufacturing and mercantile, has been improved. Our railroads are giving exceptionally good service from all the important freight gateways serving this community. The boat service is dependable, efficient, and is gaining the good-will and support of our shippers.

The first year of our organized playgrounds, which gave pleasure and profit for an attendance of over 30,000 children during the summer vacation, without a single fatality for children being reported during this period of time, tells the story of the success of the playground movement in Norwich.

The opening of the Norwich-Colchester state road and the proposed new state highway from Norwich to Hadlyme, passing Gardner's Lake and the Devil's Hop Yard, provides and will give our people additional good roads to and from Norwich; always an important factor for any community's welfare.

The number of new dwellings erected in our city and town during the past year indicates a growing community and augurs well for the future of Norwich. Our fire losses have been small, and our water supply has proven adequate even under the stress of the depleted rainfall of last summer.

Norwich has more than held her own during the past year; she has progressed and prospered as it is indicated by the increased savings deposits in our local banks for 1923.

The great success of the drive for funds for our hospital which was so generally supported indicates that Backus hospital has proven its great humanitarian value to Norwich.

The necessity for enlarging the Norwich Free Academy in order that the increasing number of pupils could be accomodated shows that the fathers and mothers of our children are keenly alive to the needs of providing a good education for the future citizens of our city and nation.

This brief review of conditions and the number of new developments that have been advanced or secured for the welfare of our community during the past year must convince the most skeptical that Norwich is steadily advancing, and that she faces 1924 with every reason to hope and expect that our home city will continue her forward march to prosperity and growth.

Rotarians of Willimantic Enlisted For Service

The old year dies, the new is emerging into life with all its hopes, all its aspirations, attuned to meet the conditions of the days we are facing. In retrospect let us look back over the year just closed, and take stock of our contribution to the welfare of humankind; let us turn the searchlight of accomplishment on our endeavor to see if we have been useful in our community, if we have shed some lustre on the trail of "Service which leads to the land of contentment and well being. And if we have not contributed in as large a measure as we are able to the sum of human happiness, to resolve that during the year before us we will bend our energies to improve our community, to place our business on a higher plane than ever before and to do our full share in proving that, after all, we are our "brother's keeper."

JAMES P. MUSTARD.
President Rotary Club of Willimantic.

Faith For The Future Is Willimantic Spirit

In general, the year 1923 has been a disappointing one, in its failure to live up to the bright promise of a year ago. In some lines, business has been fairly good, but this occurred only in spurts; it was not a sustained, steady activity.

The young year faces us now and, as is usual with youth, hope and unbounded confidence pervade its spirit; hope that business will settle down to a stable basis, so that new enterprises may feel encouraged to take a mortgage on the future and with confidence in our institutions, march on to greater development of our industrial and business life.

The recovery of the world from the unhappy conditions left by the war is necessarily slow and business must feel the weight of these conditions for some time to come, but each year shows some improvement, some little advance, some objective nearer the concepts of pre-war days. Patience is required, and faith also, patience with those who employ and patience with those who work, so that mutual understanding may result and give increased respect for the rights of each, so that business may be assured of long and uninterrupted periods of activity, which will greatly stabilize endeavor and give it a unity of purpose; faith in the ultimate good sense of the human race; faith that we shall find a way out of the present chaos in the world and that we shall face the future years with distrust of our neighbors in other lands gone from our hearts. Faith is the flesh and blood of good-will and good-will is the bone and sinew of business, so let us have faith in human nature and the future will take care of itself.

VALENTINE L. MURPHY.
President
Willimantic Chamber of Commerce.

Norwich Rotary Supports Every Civic Betterment

Many thousands of expressions of love and good will are sent and received by people of Norwich at this time of year, and there is no doubt but that these expressions are symbolic of the feelings of all the people of the earth—a desire for universal and lasting peace.

The proper starting point for this desired end is with the boy and girl of today, for they are the leaders of tomorrow. There should be cultivated in their mind the need of a feeling of international good will.

Rotary is squarely behind any movement and will work with any organization whose legitimate object is to instruct Young America as to their coming responsibilities.

Rotary is working for a world-wide brotherhood and from the expressions of thankfulness which have come to Rotary in America from Rotary in other lands for what has been done for them when they have been sorely distressed it shows this feeling of world-wide brotherhood is growing.

Rotary is behind every movement in this city which is for the best interest of her citizens, and the work done by individual members and Rotary as an organization during 1923 shows their willingness to do their part.

May I at this time, as president of the Rotary club of Norwich, extend to all of your readers our best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

New London Experienced Splendid Business Year

The City of New London through its civic organization is sincerely pleased in the opportunity to extend to our sister city of Norwich our gratitude for a splendid co-operative spirit obtaining in the past and to wish you and yours a most prosperous, progressive and purposeful New Year. In the words of our old friend Rip Van Winkle, "May you live long and prosper." Your success is our success and our joint efforts for the common good will result in a better and bigger and happier commonwealth in which all citizens of Connecticut are profoundly interested.

Maritime activities show increased volume in the port of New London. There have been recently established, in addition to various shipment operating at the Conecticut State Pier, a new line of west coast lumber freighters that are scheduled to bring from fifteen to twenty millions of feet of Douglas Fir and other Oregon timbers into our harbor the next few months where there have been established a new organization for the shipment, storage sale and distribution of lumber, whose ramifications will be extensive and far-reaching. English vessels from Canadian ports continue to come into our Big pier and load with various lines of automobiles and machinery for foreign ports.

Industrially, New London, is in a splendid condition. Our various machine shops, silk mills and other manufacturing concerns are all apparently rupning along in normal manner and there is sufficient work for all.

The New London Chamber of Commerce has assisted in the location of new industries in neighboring centers, all of which will be contributory to our industrial life.

Commercially, the hundreds of tradesmen of the City have enjoyed a very splendid and prosperous year. The neighboring shore resorts were filled to capacity during the past summer and together with an increasing automobile tourist trade and a goodly number of yachting and boating activities, as well as a measurably governmental personnel, all contributed toward increased volume of business enjoyed by the local stores. As an evidence of the faith, which faith is well founded on fact, held by a goodly number of progressive business men of New London, there are now under course of construction and extensive alteration, more than a score of splendid new stores and office buildings, totalling more than a million dollars. We have builded two new public schools this past year, of a splendid modern type, and it is expected in the immediate future to begin the erection of additional new school buildings which will include a very large and up-to--date junior high school.

Again, may we make urgent appeal for sympathetic support, concert of service and unity of action on the part of the entire citizenry of Eastern Connecticut in the promotion of policies and projects of purpose for the people.

Some Work of the Year.

Here follows a partial list of beneficial community and state activities, sponsored by the New London Chamber of Commerce over the past period which reflects, in part, endeavor and effort on the part of this busy organization.

At a state-wide meeting held in the Hotel Bond, February last attended by some five hundred, representatives of civic, commercial and industrial groups, addressed by his Excellency Governor Templeton, New London secured recognition and passage of resolution for elimination of toll on the bridges of the state and to initiate a movement, state-wide, to boost Connecticut.

The Chamber, through petition of Chamber members, initiated a movement for bettering the conditions at the Ocean Beach pier, so-called, which interest and pressure resulted in the construction of a larger and safer pier for the comfort and recreation of the New Londoner and the thousands of visiting tourists.

The Chamber, through committee conference with the Board of Relief, acquired equitable assessment concerning what was believed to be a vitally

FARM BUREAU LEADERSHIP IS GIVEN IN NEW LONDON COUNTY

32 Pure Bred Bulls Were Placed Here in Past Year—Potato Raising Demonstrations on Large Scale—Help Given in Other Lines on the Farms of the County—Extensive Programme for 1924 Outlined.

The New London County Farm and Home Bureau continued in 1923 the varied line of helpful service to the men and women of the farming communities which is comprised in its annual programme. Cooperation on the part of the leaders in the different communities has been an important part in the results that have been achieved.

County Agent Walter T. Clark came here the first of May, taking up the work that had been initiated by County Agent Harold F. Johnson, who had gone to another field, and the women's work had been carried forward under the direction of Miss Gladys Stratton, home demonstration agent, who has directed many projects that touch the home and family life. In field work and in home and family work the assistance that the farm bureau gives is eagerly sought and gladly received and each year there is a growing desire to extend the service that can be given.

Program of Work

The program of work for next year will be somewhat the same as the past year, with some slight put on the pure bred bull campaign and lime and lime and a curtailing of the dairy done on some of the other projects. These seem to be the most important at the present time, because the dairy business and forage and hay crop represents the greatest agricultural values in the county and we have the most data by which to work on. Much of the crop work will include cooperating with the exchanges in getting good seed and more lime used. This work will also be done in towns without exchanges.

Project Activities and Results

Two field tours were organized and put through this year. The first tour held on August 15th could be classed more as a dairy tour or field day, as it pertained almost wholly to the dairy business and was another source of advertising for the pure bred bull campaign. Three farms were visited, the first one being in the southern part of the county and the place of the Farm Bureau president, who is an outstanding dairyman of the county. Talks were given by the owner and by the Livestock Specialist of the college. The second stop was made at a farm where pure bred Ayrshires are making splendid records and also are showing type improvement from one generation to another. This farm was in the central part of the county. The third stop was made at a place in the northern part of the county where a young man is forging ahead rapidly with Holsteins. Three generations were shown with marked improvement as to type and production. He weighs his milk every day and adds his his milk sheets and could back up his statements. This man started in with two pure bred cows and a bull and has a herd of twenty-five females, practically all pure breds that have either been raised or bought. At the present time he owns one of the best bred young bulls in Connecticut.

The second tour took in general farms, poultry, vegetable and fruit, also household improvements, in which all farm people are interested. The first stop was made at one of our best demonstration orchards which two years ago was hardly worth bothering with, but after careful spraying and fertilizing has been made into a very valuable line of business for this general farm.

The next farm visited was one which has been in the poultry business only a short time but is getting fine results. Ten Storrs type brooder houses are in use on this farm.

A potato demonstration was visited where six strains of northern grown certified seed were being tried out. Practically no difference could be seen in the strains at that time. The interesting thing brought out here was the up-to-date way in which the potatoes were being grown and the size of the area growing potatoes. The piece was thirty acres in size, there being some seventy-five acres grown in that particular locality.

Soil Improvement Project

The soil program of work has been mostly top dressing and lime application. A number of the top dressing demonstrations were plowed up this spring and planted to corn and in some cases will be used in the future as rotation demonstrations.

Fertility Demonstration

A fertility demonstration was run on a farm in Waterford. There were seven plots with various applications of manure and commercial fertilizer, with and without lime at seeding time last year. The results follow:

H. R. Whitman's Fertility Demonstration.

Plot No.	Treatment	Yield Per Plot	Yield Per Acre
1.	Manure, 1 load Acid Phosphate, 40 lbs. Hydrated lime, 5000 lbs.	105	3657 15
2.	Acid Phosphate, 50 lbs. Sulphate Ammonia, 7½ lbs. Potash 7 1-2 lbs. Hydrated Lime, 3000 lbs.	65	2263 95
3.	No Lime Hydrated lime, 3000 lbs.	63	2194 29
4.	Same as Plot 1, but no lime	87	3030 21
5.	Same as Plot 3, but no lime	45	1567 35
6.	Same as Plot 3, but no lime	40	1393 20
7.	Very heavy manure application	110	3831 30

This could also be called a liming demonstration as it shows the results with and without lime.

Lime Demonstration

	Plot	Per Acre
Unlimed	95	3306 lb.
Limed	180	6264 lb.

Difference in favor of lime 2956 lb.

The result in lime work cannot altogether be judged by the increase in weight, for there is also a marked increase in quality due to the increase of clover which can be measured only by chemical analysis.

Four farmers have been advised in the better storage of manure. This is an important factor as there are a great many farmers in the county who store manure in the open, exposed to all weather, losing quantities of plant food and then buy commercial fertilizer by the ton to replace it.

Three farmers have sown rye for a cover crop and green manure this year, on the advice of the County Agent. These farmers have not done so before.

POTATO DIGGER AT SHEDD & DAWLEY'S, PRESTON PLAINS.

Farm Crops

One seed corn demonstration was held in Stonington. This was comparing the seed of the same variety which had been selected from the test plots of the New Haven Experiment Station with the seed selected by the breeder. This farmer has a particularly fine strain of Rhode Island White Flint which should make a good silage variety for northern New England. The Experiment Station is cooperating in getting it as near disease free as possible and in getting a uniform ear and stock.

Silage Corn

Seven silage corn demonstrations were held in the county this year. These demonstrations were simple this year, using one or both of the varieties recommended and bought by the seed pool compared with the variety commonly grown by the demonstrator. These varieties were West Branch Sweepstakes from the West Branch Seed Association of Williamsburg, Pennsylvania, and Ohio Improved Leaming from Xenia, Ohio. These seeds were purchased through the seed pool formed last winter. Ninety bushels of this corn was brought into the county and planted by farmers. The corn as a whole was a success and will be planted to more extent next spring, as several farmers have declared that they wish to plant all Sweepstakes or Ohio Leaming.

It is hard to get any good comparative result of the value of the corn by weighing, as in most cases the corn was planted along with Eureka for the demonstrations, and the Eureka would outyield the Sweepstakes and Leaming in tons per acre. However in some cases the Sweepstakes would equal the Eureka. The most important factor in favor of the Sweepstakes and Leaming over the Eureka was the amount of good ears that they produced which improved the quality to some extent, as there is vast room for improvement in the quality of corn silage grown.

Improvements in obtaining the seed will be mentioned under Cooperative Marketing Project.

Alfalfa

Three alfalfa demonstrations were started this year. The demonstrators each put in about an acre apiece following directions given them by the County Agricultural Agent, and Crop Specialist. The seed was secured direct from the Grange League Federation at Syracuse, and is of known source. Due to the continued dry weather through the late summer, not such a good growth was obtained as was wished for.

Clover

The work on legume hay in this county has been for the most part in encouraging the growing of clover. This has been handicapped and will be in the future, if good seed is not used. It is not possible to get northern grown clover seed through local dealers as much of it is mixed with foreign seed which is not adapted to our winters To supply the need for good seed 1,949 pounds of red clover and 572 pounds of alsike were brought into the county through the seed pool.

Ten clover seed demonstrations were held about the county, five being carried over from last year and five being started this year, either seeding in oats or corn. The demonstrators sowed three small plots of clover as follows: one to French imported seed, one to Italian imported seed, and one to northern grown American seed of known source. Without exception the American seed furnished the thickest and best growth of clover, with the French a ball second place. A high percentage of other grasses came in where clover did not come up in the French and Italian plats. Two of

HELPS FOR HOME AND FAMILY THROUGH EXTENSION SERVICE

Women's Branch of County Farm Bureau Active in Many Lines of Endeavor—With Programmes in 32 Communities and 36 Local Leaders Assisting in Work Directed by Home Demonstration Agent.

Work in a variety of helpful lines has been accomplished in the past year under the direction of Miss Gladys Stratton, home demonstration agent of New London county farm bureau. Miss Stratton showed the wide extent of this work in her annual report, which is in part as follows:

The county board of directors act as chairmen of committees in their respective towns, there being one man and one woman director for each town in the county. There are also seven directors-at-large, usually appointed from the larger towns.

The executive committee composed of the officers and four members elected from the board of directors meets eight times a year alone and four times with the board of directors. This past year an effort was made to have members of the executive committee for County Extension work as county project leaders according to the following schedule:

	Project
Pres., H. R. Whitman, Organization.
Vice-pres., E. L. Waterman, Livestock.
2nd Vice-pres., Mrs. H. G. Dart,	Clothing
Sec., Mrs. B. T. Avery, Household Management.
Treas., Andrew M. Avery, Farm Management.
Director from Preston, Mrs. Appleton Main,	Health.
Norwich, A. W. Lillibridge,	Soils and crops.
Preston, W. W. Service,	Cooperative buying and seling.
Lebanon, Mrs. E. L. Waterman,	Nutrition.

As yet the plan for county wide project leaders is not working as far as the women are concerned. Each of the above women have acted in advisory capacity on the project, but really have not the knowledge or time, in most cases, to represent the county in this way.

An effort has been made to cooperate with existing community organizations, with Parent-Teachers' Associations, School Supervisors and Nurses, Granges and Fair Comittees.

Program of Work

Projects adopted were—Organization, Clothing, Health, Nutrition, Millinery, Household Management, Junior Clubs, and Miscellaneous.

Goals and Results

At the annual conference of County and Home Demonstration Agents held at the State College with State leaders and Specialists in October 1922, goals were set for work we hoped to accomplish during the year in each county. Following is the chart giving goals in home economics project for New London County and work accomplished:

	Goal	Accomplished
Clothing	0	6
Renovations	5 groups	4
Patterns	4	3
Children's Clothing	3	7
Garment Construction	5	9
Underwear	6	4
Textiles	14	14

We have 32 communities with programs of work and 36 local leaders assisting in organization of groups and in carrying out project work in their communities.

Field Tours

Two field tours were made in August and both men and women were interested in the many labor saving devices shown. More and more washers are being installed each year and attention is being given to setting those up in such a way that the water may be let into the washer direct from the faucet or carried in by hose attachment and carried away in the same manner.

Pipeless furnaces were shown and discussed. The ease of installation, satisfactory heating results, and the fact that wood can be used as well as coal were spoken of by those using them.

One woman showed and told about a bath tub they had put in eighteen years ago. The convenience and comfort this has meant, cannot be told. Tub cost $6.00 and the necessary plumbing cost $4.00, making the total cost $10.00. It was set up in the kitchen as being near the water supply and in a room which at that time was always warm in winter. It has a wooden cover hinged to lift when in use. When closed this with its oil-cloth top makes an extra working surface in the kitchen.

Another good suggestion for extra working surfaces was a top which when not in use tilts against the wall and forms the back for a bench in the back for a bench in the kitchen. Made many years ago when board was obtained 12 to 14 inches wide and two would do for such a top. Here the housewife does her canning, preparing of meals and the men cut meat in the winter. When not in use it is out of the way and makes an extra seat.

Clothing Project

The clothing project continues to be one of the most popular projects and one which takes a large amount of time. It is only recently that any sewing was taught in the elementary schools of Connecticut, therefore we find that there is need of this project in most communities, and the following chart gives a little idea of how this project was carried on:

	Number Groups	Attendance	Articles Made	Value
Renovation	2	253	191	$ 573.00
Patterns	4	53	57	14.25
Childrens' Clothing	2	15	19	75.00
Garment Construction	10	273	685	5480.00
Dyeing	2	37	17	15.00
Corset Demonstrations	2	48	33 fitted
Dress Forms	6	86	79	158.00
Millinery	14	344	536	4967.00
	48	1108	1617	$11.282.25

This chart gives a complete report of work done in classes attended by Home Demonstration Agent or Specialist and an incomplete report of farther work done along the same lines after we leave the community, as only a small percentage fill out and return report cards.

Patterns and garment construction were parts of the clothing project given in Gales Ferry, Poquetanuck, Wequetequock, Fitchville, Bozrah, Franklin, Salem, No. Plains, No. Stonington, Lebanon, Baltic and Stonington. Twelve women acted as leaders in arranging for groups and meetings.

Finishes and Trimmings

Information on finishing and decoration have been given in a few instances this year and several groups still have it on their programs. Results of time spent on this project are evident in almost every community into which I go. About eighty-five women have had work on this project during the past nine months.

Children's Clothing—This work has been in very small groups or individual. It seems difficult to get young mothers to meetings, but usually much can be done individually if you can spend the time to work that way.

Individual help on problems pertaining to childrens' clothing was given fourteen women over the country.

Dyeing—Individual help was given four women in correcting mistakes in dyeing. It is a common mistake to try to dye over color with another color which could not possibly be used on that color with good results. A simple explanation of use of colors and why certain colors can not be dyed with some of the other colors, and which colors could be used with good results and why, has solved some problems.

Corset Demonstration — Stonington and North Plain: Miss Cora Leiby, educational secretary of the H. W. Gossard company, attended two all-day meetings in the county this year for the purpose of discussing The Corset in Relation to Health and demonstrating the proper fitting of corsets to different types of figures. At these meetings no orders were taken for corsets, nor were any sold, but Miss Leiby did give each one fitted the style number and size of corset which best suited her type of figure This makes it possible for each to order the type corset which suits her figure. From eight to fifteen women were fitted each day and there were two or three times as many observers.

Dress Forms—Two groups in New London, one in Norwich, Leffingwell, Hamburg and Bozrah, have had dress forms made. Six women acted as local leaders for this project and 79 forms were made. The dress form is used in nearly every community in the county and has in every case paid for itself many times over. There are still four communities on the list to have forms made.

Millinery—This project has been given in Groton, Lebanon, North Stonington, North Plains, Franklin, Norwich Town, Poquetanuck, Uncasville, Leffingwell, Wequetequock, Goshen, Oakdale, Gales Ferry and Hamburg.

In one month last spring millinery work was done with seven groups and the report for that month shows enough saving to make it evident that the project has a real value to the groups met The work is shown as follows:

Groton—Number in group 13, number hats 25, cost $46.23, value $205, saving $158.77.

Westerly Institute — Number in group 20, number hats 20, cost $45.41, value $200, saving $154.59.

North Stonington—Number in group 33, number hats 35, cost $96.38, value $330, saving $231.62.

North Plains—Number in group 20, number hats 23, cost $55.54, value $205, saving $149.46.

Norwich Town—Number in group 11, number hats 11, cost $30.30, value $110, saving $79.70.

Goshen—Number in group 12, number hats 16, cost $47.45, value $150, saving $102.55.

Totals—Number in groups 120, number hats 141, cost $353.73, value $1,309, saving $955.27.

We have such reports as this one received from a woman in the county:

"I have not had a new hat for nine years. Through this class I have made two which are the best looking I have ever had and both of them cost me together less than five dollars, and I earned that money myself."

She went on to say that the extension work had meant everything to her, because she did not have things to wear and could not do very well for herself, she had taken to staying at home. In the last two years she had attended every meeting in her community held through the farm bureau. She was able through fitted patterns, a dress form and demonstrations on renovation and garment making, as well as the millinery, to do for herself, and feel that she looked well enough to go wherever she wished. It has also meant social contact of which she did not speak.

Health Project.

The health project as given this past year included care of patient and sick room, preventive measures, first aid and bandaging, temperature, respiration and pulse, home medicine chest, prenatal care.

Each of these talks or demonstrations were given in Franklin and Fitchville. The information on first aid and bandaging has been frequently used. A great many have appreciated knowing how to make and apply a four-tailed bandage, especially where there are children concerned. The information on how to take care of minor cuts and burns is used constantly.

There have not been any large number who have purchased medicine chests but many have arranged a shelf in a closet to be used for medical supplies only. A medicine chest was exhibited at the local fair, arranged and supplied as suggested in this course. It received much attention and many questions were answered about it as well as material given to be used in making changes in home chests.

Programs have been arranged in the following communities for work on the health project this fall:

North Plains—Demonstrations, hot and cold application, hot and cold packs, care of eyes and ears, mustard paper, flaxseed poultice.

Foods and Nutrition

The children have been weighed and measured at Goshen Hill, Waterman District school, 10th District school in the town of Lebanon and grades 1 to 8 in the Central school in Voluntown. The Lebanon girls and boys are all in club work, the Waterman and 10 District children being in two health clubs. For a fuller report of this group see health clubs under Junior Club project.

The weighing in Voluntown was requested by the school supervisor. The parents of the children are mill operatives and the children nearly all look undernourished. They go to school just long enough to get working papers, then to the mill. There seems to be little ambition for high school education among the parents or children.

The results of the weighing show the need of health and nutrition work among both parents and children. The parents do not seem interested though and the children cannot do all that is necessary without cooperation at home. The teachers are willing and anxious to do all possible for the children.

	Voluntown Central School	Weighed Underweight	Over 7 per cent Underweight
Grades 1 & 2	27	18	1
Grades 3-4-5	33	19	1
Grades 6-7-8	25	14	1
Totals	85	51	23

This shows a very large proportion underweight and the proportion 7 per cent. or more underweight is nearly half of all those subnormal—11 per cent to 16 per cent underweight was not uncommon. As a result of the weighing in Voluntown a health or normal height club was organized among the older children. A nutrition class was organized for the younger children. Two meetings were held with the health club and all underweight children of the 7th and 8th grades were present. The food and health habit score cards were explained and the children are going to see what they can do toward getting to normal weight.

This group was weighed a second time just before close of school this spring and a few of them had gained. None had arrived at normal weight. The younger children who were in the nutrition class were told stories illustrating the need of cereals in the body. Both of these groups will have further assistance this fall.

Food Selection and Preparation

Communities	Meetings	Attendance
No. Stonington	3	46
Salem	3	30
No. Plain	2	27
Hamburg	3	65
Total	11	168

The group which attended the meetings in Salem was small. All our work in this community is to a very limited number, yet perhaps the food selection project has done more good here than in any other place in the county. With one of the women came a girl, of twelve to fourteen years of age, her niece. This girl has been fighting tubercular trouble for three years. The doctor had advised living out of doors as much as possible, avoiding colds and not over-exerting. Diet suggestions may have been given but were not followed particularly. Through interest in Mrs. Dakin's talks the child took diet suggestions and has followed them quite faithfully. This fall she has been examined by the doctor and pronounced better than ever before. She looks better, face is fuller and more color, eyes brighter. She is taking more interest in doing things and really looks as though she was on the road to permanent recovery. Through the work this child is doing another child in much the same condition has been encouraged to follow the diet of which a copy was passed on by a neighbor, knowing about this case. Another result due to the work with this child is improved food habits of the other two members of the family.

Constipation Diets

Several of each group having nutrional work have taken the diet sheets on constipation to follow. The reports returned on this part of the project frequently said after following directions awhile they did not need farther help. Some said after they were able to have more fresh fruit and vegetables this spring it was not necessary to continue the constipation suggestions, showing that lack of these two foods in the diet is one of the chief causes of so much constipation.

Canning Budgets.

One hundred and five were sent out to be used this summer but it is too early yet to make report of this part of the project.

Further plans for this project were made with groups in Franklin, Ledyard, Gales Ferry, Occum, Stonington, Hanover and Goshen.

Household Management.

While most groups did not seem to be interested in this project two years ago, it is gradually growing into one of the major pieces of work.

The goals set at the conference last fall along household management lines are as follows:

	Goal	Accomplishment
Household decoration	5 groups	4 groups
Reseating chairs	15	13
Rug weaving	11	5 given 74
Small equipment	25 indiv.	22 indiv.
Rearrangement of kitchen	1	1

COUNTY FARM BUREAU PROGRAMME FOR 1924.

Crops.

Five silage corn seed comparisons, using strains of Leamington and Sweepstakes or both besides varieties commonly grown.

One grain corn seed source, an early maturing variety that could be used by northern New England dairymen for silage. There is a good field for selling seed corn of the above description.

Twenty lime and clover demonstrations using lime as prescribed by the Extension Agronomist and clover seed of known source compared with seed of unknown source.

Dairy

Seventy-five pure bred bulls, at least, placed on farms now using scrub and grades. A continuation of the campaign to clean up the county from scrubs and grades.

Twelve independent junior records. Boys keeping records on three or more cows for the year, including weighing milk at least three times a month and amount of grain and roughage consumed.

Farm Management

Three farm account schools, an all day or afternoon session, where the groups get together and talk farm inventory and open up accounts, with a meeting at the end of the year to summarize records.

One farm management school. Meeting where men get together and figure receipts and expenses for coming year and plan work for that year.

Thirty account books, independent of any group, where inventory is taken on farm or in the Farm Bureau Office.

One Young Farmers Club. A group from 17 to 25 years of age, who have an interest in a farm or own a farm Accounts are opened up, meetings are held at intervals during the year, when a farm management subject is discussed with the Farm Management Specialist present; a field trip in the summer and a summary meeting in the fall

Fruit

Fifteen nitrate demonstrations, using nitrate of soda under trees, leaving some trees without nitrate.

Marketing

Two egg marketing lectures by the Marketing Specialist explaining egg marketing problems of this section.

Encouraging cooperative buying and selling.

Poultry

One adult poultry club meeting every two months and keeping record of production, feed and sales.

One Junior club, similar to the adult club.

Twenty-five poultry calendars for home egg laying contest.

Vegetable Gardening

One Irish Cobbler demonstration, with a market gardener growing that crop, comparing several strains of cobblers with uncertified northern seed and home grown seed.

One adult vegetable gardening club with meeting each month with a regular program of lectures for the year given by the Vegetable Specialist.

Two asparagus demonstrations, comparison of at least two strains of asparagus.

SPENT $558,713.88 ON HIGHWAYS IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT IN 1923

Work in Three Counties Was in Improving 24.08 Miles of Read—Included Construction of New Steel Truss Bridge at Occum—Several Important Improvements Remain to Be Completed This Season.

Highway construction work under the state highway department in New London Windham and Tolland Counties was at a considerable lesser figure in mileage and expenditures in the last year than it was in the year preceding, when the New London-Hartford concrete highway, calling for $2,000,000, was under construction, but this section of the state has benefitted materially by what has been done in modernizing the highways.

Division Engineer John Smith, who succeeded A. W. Bushnell after the latter's transfer to another division early in the year, has been in charge of the work which has covered 24.08 miles at an expenditure of $558,713.88, where it was over 74 miles of roads in 1922, at an expenditure of $2,796,728,-.50.

In New London county a construction mileage of 14.26 miles covered several important pieces of work, including short stretches of concrete between Norwich and Willimantic, and on Fox Hill, Norwich, with a beginning made at Mystic, on the road to New London, where a concrete highway is to be laid and Baptist Hill is to be cut down. A steel truss bridge at Occum was put in to replace the old wooden bridge that had one span broken down when a heavily laden truck crashed into it. The total work in the county called for $384,777.55 in expenditures.

The Windham county work covered 5.5 miles at an expenditure of $86,500, including the partially completed laying of a concrete highway on the Putnam to Norwich road, that will fill in a link on this important trunk line route.

In Tolland county the work represented an expenditure of $87,436.33 over 4.38 miles of road, all of bituminous macadam construction, in the towns of Columbia, Hebron and Mansfield.

Several uncompleted projects will be pushed ahead in the spring as soon as the road work season opens up, these including the Mystic road at Baptist Hill, the Mansfield Depot to Phoenixville road, the Putnam to Norwich concrete highway, and the Hampton to Willimantic road of native stone macadam.

these demonstrations were weighed but the weights did not show anything in favor of the American clover because of such a heavy growth of other grasses. Because of this it was decided by the Crop Specialist and County Agent that the only way to get increased interest in better clover was to visit the demonstrations on field tours and by publicity, advertising the demonstrations. It is planned to do more with clover work this next year in conjunction with the dairy program. The seed pool is a very good start towards having better clover grown, in that good seed is used to start with.

Potatoes

Potato work in this county has been pretty well established for three reasons as follows: (1) the publishing of results comparing northern certified seed with home grown from demonstrations in this and other counties in Connecticut and from the Storrs Experiment Station, (2) the potato pool for the past two or three years has been bringing in nothing but certified northern grown seed, (3) local dealers are seeing the value of certified seed and therefore are trying to meet the demand in many cases. However, this does not mean that some demonstrations work should not be done along these lines for another year. There is still room for improved yields by using certified seed stock.

In the demonstrations the seed used was from three general sources.

1. Seed purchased by the pool.
2. Seed secured from local dealers.
3. Home grown seed.

A peck of seed for each strain was planted and cared for as nearly alike as possible. In the fall a like distance on each row was manured off, dug and weighed and graded. The rows were planted for each demonstration on soil of the same texture as far as possible. Following are the results:

	Wgt. of Tats.	Wgt. of Culls and culls.	Bu. per acre Tats.	Bu. per acre Culls and culls.

In this demonstration the Hoyt strain from Maine was secured from a local dealer who was selling them as certified seed. They were tagged as such but upon close examination it was noted that they were certified for being sprayed with a trade spray preparation the year they were grown. This dealer was selling these potatoes as certified seed to farmers who had heard of certified seed but did not understand what the tag should stand for. Following is an example of certified, uncertified and home grown from the farm of N. S. Strong at North Plains.

30 Acres in Potato Field

A very successful potato field day was held at the farm of Sidney and Dawley of Preston Plains. These two men grew about thirty acres of potatoes this year and the good practices that they are using are influencing growers around them to follow likewise. On Preston Plains there are about seventy-five acres grown, and this year every acre was grown under the most up-to-date methods.

On this farm the most interesting potato demonstration in the county was dug. About eighty farmers from different parts of the county and state were present. There were six strains planted in six different rows, two hundred feet was measured off and dug by a power digger which was a novelty to many. They were then picked up and graded with their power digger. Much interest was shown in the way the potatoes were handled on a large scale.

Following are the yields of the various strains tried out:

Horticulture

Eleven orchard demonstrations have been going this year, eight of which went through the season following instructions very carefully. Nitrate was applied on all of them and all were pruned according to the instruction of the fruit specialist from the College.

Most of these orchards are in spray rings so that it was comparatively easy to have the spray applied at the right time. One man claimed that the sale of the apples from four fall varieties trees brought him in enough to pay for all the spraying and fertilizing for an orchard of fifty trees. Two years ago this orchard netted him practically nothing, only a pasture for about a dozen hogs. It has been noted that several men besides those in the demonstrations have been using nitrate of manure in getting growth and fruit on their trees. All of the results on these demonstration orchards are not complete as yet, as a number are still holding their fruit for future sale.

The two small fruit demonstrations, one a raspberry variety test, very unsuccessful because the demonstrator was too pushed in work to follow out the directions. It is hoped that these can be carried through successfully the coming year.

Two meetings were held at demonstration orchards with the fruit specialist present besides visiting two orchards on the field tour. One was a spraying demonstration, where several makes of nozzles and rods were tried out and the other a meeting in the fall where varieties and marketing were discussed.

There were no new spray rings started but the four old ones were followed up to some extent, to see if they were going by the spray schedule which they were advised to follow. Next year it is hoped that more members in the spray ring will fertilize with nitrate of soda and more sprays will be applied. As a number of men in the spray rings have only put on two or three sprays. It is believed that if more attention was given to the late summer sprays that the quality of their fruit would be greatly improved.

Pasture

Ten pasture demonstrations were carried over and one new one started. Plans have already been made for three more to be treated in the spring when the materials are received. A portion of one demonstration was fenced off so that the cows could not eat it and the results noted. Due to dry weather only a small amount of growth was made, but the plot treated with acid phosphate, potash and lime showed an improvement over other combinations.

Animal Husbandry

The animal husbandry work has been only pertaining to sheep raising and that has been left entirely with the sheep specialist. There have been three docking and dipping demonstrations in the county the past year with a total attendance of twenty-two.

Dairy Work

There has been one dairy club in the county this year, that being in Franklin and not a great success. The men weighed their milk three times a month, but did not seem to keep up their record books well. Only two doing it. It is considered that this will be a combination junior and adult club this next year, as the boys seem to be more interested in keeping the records than do the men.

The County Dairy Club for boys has twelve members all keeping records which include weighing the milk and feed three times a month. These boys all own one or more cows, and in some cases are on a profit sharing basis with their fathers. The members of this club all took the judging training given by the Extension Service during the summer and eight went to Storrs for the Junior Short Course in August. The twelve boys entered the judging contest at the Norwich Fair where the six highest ones were picked to judge at the State Fair at Hartford. At this fair the State team representing Connecticut was picked to judge at the National Dairy Show. One of the Club boys, Austin Lathrop, was chosen as alternate on the State team.

Through the generosity of the New London Agricultural Society, Norwich Chamber of Commerce and New London County Farm Bureau, it was possible for the three high boys of the county to attend the National Dairy Show at Syracuse, along with other county teams of the state. The boys received a great deal out of this trip in the way of new ideas and instruction, and making acquaintances with boys from other states in the union.

Pure Bred Bulls

The most important work in the Dairy program this year has been the pure bred bull work, which was brought about by the dairy survey run last winter, which proved that the only salvation for the dairy business in this county was better stock and to get better stock the most plausible way was to use more pure bred bulls. The dairy survey showed that on 240 farms reporting that there were 373 pure bred females, 2242 grade females, and 5833 scrub or common females. The next step was to organize a pure bred bull campaign. To check up on the number of bulls of the three classes a list of dairymen producing milk in this county was obtained from the office of the Dairy and Food Commissioner in Hartford and cards were sent to each man. There were 488 of these returned and classes as follows, 168 registered, 136 grades and 184 common We had the name and address of each owner by towns. The next step was to organize committees to work in the campaign.

Circular letters were sent to breeders in this county and in the state for a list of available bulls for sale, so that we would have something for the farmer to think about buying. The towns of Franklin and Lebanon were canvassed with the local committeemen and as a result thirty-two bulls have been placed since June not all in the above towns, however. Due to newspaper stories about successful New London County dairymen which were written up by the College editor and which are attached to this report, our campaign was pretty well advertised through the press. In this way several farmers decided to "beat us to it" by getting their pure bred bulls before their town was canvassed in the campaign.

An essay writing contest was also employed which is described in the first part of this report.

The Norwich Market Gardeners' Association has met each month. One meeting was held in Groton to organize an association there. They are to have their first meeting in December. This is organized after the fashion of the rest of the Market Gardners' Associations of the state.

Vegetables

Most of the vegetable work done in this county has been by the vegetable specialist. The type of work done in most cases has been seed strain, testing as to being true to type, asparagus variety demonstrations and vegetable management. The latter has resulted in the increase of greenhouse space of one grower and the use of hot beds by several. No result on the asparagus demostrations are available as yet.

Poultry Project

There have been two poultry clubs in the county which have held regular meetings. One in Stonington and one in Norwich, which was a combination of the Jewett City and Norwich clubs. The number of records completed, however, has been small and it is the opinion of the poultry specialist and County Agent that the clubs should continue as groups, meeting three or four times a year to discuss some important poultry subject. It seems to be hard to get complete records which is quite necessary for a poultry club, for it furnishes a means of studying their own business.

Two culling demonstrations have been held in the county with very good attendance, one with the Poultry Specialist present and the other without. One killing and picking demonstration was held at the June meeting of the Stonington Poultry club.

Junior Work

What little junior poultry work that was done has been handled entirely by the state club leader, Mr. Brundage. It is hoped that more attention can be paid this next year.

Plans for four 20x30 poultry laying houses have been sent out to men who have already made use of them. Two 12x12 brooder house plans have also been sent out. Aid has been given to two men in arranging their homes after they had started building. These were not of the Storrs type.

Rural Engineering

This project has been drainage and water system work to a great extent. Three drainage systems have been laid out and one installed this fall. This is an expensive project but is quite important. Two water systems have been laid out and one sewage disposal system installed. Some phases of this project are in cooperation with the Home Demonstration Agent and Agricultural Engineer.

One of the stops on the field trip was at a field of twenty acres that had been drained which could hardly be cultivated previous to installing the drain. There is over a mile of drain tile in this field that now is used for vegetable gardening purposes.

Agricultural Economics

Farm Management—There has been little done on this project since May 1st, except to place four account books this past November. It has been the wrong time of year to start farm account work, however it is very important and will receive considerable attention this winter.

A mileage filling cost survey was made in cooperation with the Farm Management Department and no doubt will bring forth some very interesting data on the cost of filling silos in the county.

Marketing

At a meeting of the eight exchange managers, it was voted to have a county manager for a county pool the same as last year. The same manager was elected and it is hoped that this will go bigger than ever. The pools last year ordered and delivered 750 tons of fertilizer, both raw materials and mixed goods, about 2,400 bushels of certified seed potatoes. It is very important, however, that orders should be placed at an early date so that the buyer can go into the market and place his orders to insure early delivery.

The seed pool was on a whole very satisfactory, but a few complained because their seed was received too late for planting. However, this was due in most cases, to the individual's who ordered the seed. The orders were placed too late. There should be a time limit set, such as February 1st or March 1st, and this date strictly adhered to, and then there will be assurance of getting seed on time. The managers are instructed to get seed from sources approved by the Crop Specialist and County Agent. The seed last year was purchased from the Grange League Federation and proved very satisfactory and there is no doubt but what more will be purchased this year.

It is important that such pools should be run, for in the first place it gives the farmer a better price and secondly he is sure of the quality of seed bought. If we run demonstrations and show what should be done or go into a community and make recommendations and have no means of correcting this, such as a pool for good seed, the things we wish to teach have failed. Too often has this been done and we wonder where the results of Extension work are.

Egg Marketing Association

The Egg Marketing Association was started and underway before I came here, but some time has been spent acquainting myself with this very important project. The extent of this has been in looking up new members, which have been referred to me by the Secretary.

Summary

I believe that the most important work done since May 1st has been the placing of 32 pure bred bulls on the farms of New London County. Perhaps this does not show immediate results as some other line of work does, such as poultry culling, but it is believed that in five years time the quality of stock on these farms will be greatly improved. The campaign was started in Lebanon and Franklin, but bulls have been placed in other towns in the county also.

A Junior Dairy Club of twelve members have been keeping records and four members attended the National Dairy Show at Syracuse.

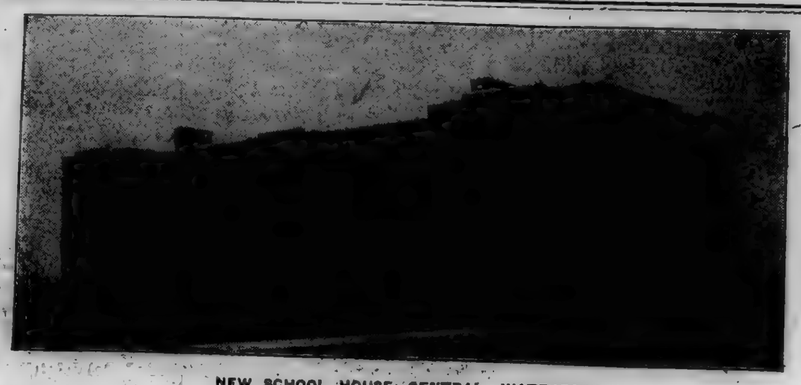
The Agronomy work has been for the most part, seed potato, corn, clover and fertility demonstrations. The potato demonstrations were testing strains of northern grown certified Green Mountains. The clover demonstrations compared American seed of known source with French and Italian seed. The American seed showing much the best results in surviving the winter.

Corn demonstration work compared a good strain of Sweepstakes and Ohio Leaming with what the demonstrator normally grew. The result being that a number of farmers will plant nothing but these two improved varieties.

Fruit work was accomplished through the demonstration orchards, eight of which came through the following instructions. Work was also accomplished through the spray rings in getting nitrate seed.

The work in marketing thus far has been the organization of the county fertilizer, potato, and seed pool, which will buy for the county the coming year. The managers have been approached by the exchange managers.

It is hoped that the exchanges through the pool will tie up more closely with the Farm Bureau Organization. This does not mean that the County Agent will do the actual business but that the Farm Bureau should have the opportunity to work through the exchanges in securing beter seed and fertilizer, the use of which we are trying to bring out in our demonstration work.



NEW SCHOOL HOUSE, CENTRAL WATERFORD.

WATERFORD BUILT $70,000 COHANZIE SCHOOL IN PAST YEAR

Serves for Central Part of Town — Fine Modern Building With Eight Class Rooms—Adapted for Enlargement to Provide for Growth of Future Years.

The town of Waterford erected a new modern $70,000 school building in the Cohanzie section during the past year, which will take care of the educational needs of the central part of the town, rendering obsolete the time-honored "Little red school houses" of the Lake Pond, East Lakes Pond, Gilhead and Cohanzie districts. It was completed in time for the formal dedication exercises on November 22, 1923.

The school building is 124 feet long by 57 feet wide fireproof throughout, of simple yet impressive design, located upon an eminence overlooking a spacious tract, and commanding a splendid view of the countryside. In addition to the main entrance at the corner of the building, there are entrances at each end, both of them leading by metallic stairways to the main floor above or to the basement below.

A long corridor runs lengthwise of the building with class rooms on either side. The appointments in the various rooms are up-to-date in every particular, with careful avoidance of extravagance. The building is supplied with fine quality water pumped from an artesian well by an electrically driven pump. There are modern wash rooms and lavatories, all supplied with running water, foot-warmers in the corridors, metallic wardrobe equipment and every facility to be found in the best city schools.

The structure is of brick, with tapestry brick exterior, and stands upon a native stone foundation. Its design permits of expansion into a 12-room building without detracting from its symmetry and at a minimum of expense. That provision was deemed advisable owing to the rapidly growing section from which the school draws its pupils.

Each of the eight classrooms has been laid out in accordance with state department of education standards, being 22 feet by 30 feet, and having accommodations for 35 pupils. Two adjoining rooms on the west side can be thrown into a single auditorium for assemblage purposes, making a convenient and very desirable arrangement for special school exercises or community gatherings.

In addition to the two classrooms in the basement provided to take care of overflow pupils, there is the tank and pump room in the center, directly under the front vestibule, while the boiler room is centrally located to the rear. Large bins are provided for the coal supply and were filled during the past summer. The remainder of the basement, which has a smooth cement floor is given over to a broad stormy-weather play space for boys and girls, the aggregate area of which is greater by a good margin than those at either Jordan or Quaker Hill schools.

The site of the building is on a part of the four and one-half acre plot sold to the town for school purposes at an extremely moderate figure by Harry Reardon, owner of the adjoining farm. Play spaces are available north and south of the building for boys and girls respectively, while to the westward, below the hill, is a level stretch which will be transformed into a baseball diamond. It is far enough away so that the youngsters are beyond range of windows, while to the south of it is a meadow which can be flooded to a shallow depth for skating or other winter sports.

The building was constructed under the direction of a joint board of selectmen and school committeemen, which was headed by former First Selectman George A. Forsyth, as chairman, and included Selectmen Thomas B. Wodworth and John C. Eccleston, Dr. G. Maynard Minor, Mrs. Earl H. Beebe, William W. Wright, Ezra J. Hempstead, and Mrs. Evelyn L. Wilson of the same committee.

individual work has been done besides that with the groups.

Household Decoration.

Many of the problems along this line are individual. There have been several requests for information concerning calcimo and muresco. One woman reported doing over five rooms, tinting the walls right over the paper with either calcimo or muresco (she used both) and painting the woodwork. The maximum cost per room was $1.50 for tint and paint. She also varnished chamber and bathroom floors, painted the woodwork in bath and kitchen, waxed the living and dining room floors. In all the interior work the cost was less than $15. A note at the bottom of this report stated that a painter made a contract for painting the exterior of the house and it was to cost them between $200 and $250. She and her husband decided to do it themselves and the materials cost them $35.

In Lyme a request came from the chairman of the Ladies Aid for assistance in redecorating the church. Miss Mason met with the committee and discussed possibilities and tentative plans were made for wall and floor decorations, also for recovering the cushions in the pews. Further suggestions and samples of materials were sent to the group. The funds available limited the amount of work finally accomplished.

Reseating Chairs.

Many of our Connecticut homes have old furniture, such as the colonial calls antiques. The project on reseating chairs has brought to light many a nice old slat and fiddle back which had been stored in the attic because the seat had given out. Most of these chairs take a splint or rush seat. Many of the women are scraping off the various coats of paint and putting these chairs into good condition as far as paint and varnish goes, as well as to seats. It cost less than a dollar to put the rush woven seat into a chair and not much more than sixty cents to put a splint seat in depending on the size of the seat.

New London, Stonington, Westerly, Franklin, Gales Ferry, North Plain, Hamburg, Baltic and North Stonington have had this project. The groups have included 113 persons, who seated 271 chairs, costing $177.16, valuation $893.75 and saving $516.59.

In Norwich, Old Lyme and North Stonington there were 174 chairs seated at a cost of $100.55, valuation $451.50 and saving $350.95.

Rug Weaving.

The rug weaving as a means of using up rags which accumulate in most homes and as an economical way of obtaining new rugs has appealed to many communities. Five groups have had the use of the college looms. This is loaned usually for two weeks to a community. The women are taught to warp and to weave. With the small amount of time spent on this project the women do remarkably well. More time should be given to the subject of color and design, as some of the rugs would be very difficult for anyone with even a moderate sense of color combinations to live with.

Gales Ferry—The community since having the loan of our loom has purchased and put in order two old looms. These are set up in the community house and are in quite constant use. Rugs, bags, pillow tops and portieres have been made by the group.

Stonington—In two weeks the 11 women at the Wequetequock community using the loom wove 46 rugs nearly all two yards each. The day I went to get the loom to move it on to the next group, the women spread the strips of rugs which had not yet been cut apart on the chapel floor. The entire floor was covered and rugs left over. It gave the group an opportunity to see the rugs as a whole and to criticize their own work. The usual criticism was in color combinations and in proportion of border to body of rug. One women in this group washed grain bags which had accumulated on their farm, dyed them dark brown or green and cut and wove them into very good looking rugs. Two women in this group have made looms for themselves on which they are weaving scarfs and runners.

Waterford—The group using the loom here was small but twenty-two rugs were made in the two weeks. The women were so interested in the weaving that they have since purchased a loom which they keep in a school house, which is not being used for children just now. This group has woven rugs for fair sales and will weave up rags for individual at a small fee per yard. The looms have been purchased in most communities through each member paying a small proportion of the cost depending on how many go into it in each community. Then each one pays for the warp she uses in weaving.

North Stonington—Twenty women in this community paid toward the purchase of a loom and with this number to weave it keeps the loom going most of the time. Over eighty-five rugs have been woven since the loom arrived. One woman in this group started making what we call the fluff rugs. They are made from an old ingrain carpeting. This is cut in 1 3-4 strips and each edge ravelled back three threads, leaving about three threads in the center. These are woven like all other rags and the ravelled edges stand up on both sides, giving body to the rug and making a very good looking one. The group wove the old ingrain carpet for the Congregational church into stripe for use in the aisles in this manner.

Franklin—Twenty-six rugs were woven by the Franklin group. Strips of cretonne cut from blankets at a nearby mill and purchased at a few cents a pound were used in some of the rugs made to good advantage.

New London—At the school for mentally deficient children the teacher had a rug loom for use but did not know how to warp it or weave. So assistance was given three or four times in showing the teachers and starting the children. Flute and a cord made for weaving purposes were used in place of rags and the rugs were very good looking. The children managed the loom very well indeed, learning quickly and without any apparent difficulty.

Small and Large Equipment.

Under this heading comes such equipment as home made fireless cookers, commercial cookers, pressure cookers, auto vacuum freezers, kitchen utensils, canners, delvers, vacuum cleaners, power washing machines, sinks, looms and many other articles which save time and labor for the housewife. They included the following:

Power washers 7, fireless cookers 4, pressure cookers 3, vacuum cleaners 6, canners 11, auto vacuum freezers 7, delvers 2, wheel tray 4, dustless mops 4, sinks 3, total 51.

Junior Clubs

Adults are becoming more interested in junior work in the county. This has been shown by committees asking for work for children and by more willingness to assist in making junior work go. Clubs were continued in Wequetequock, Lebanon and Baltic reorganized in Goshen and new ones started in Lebanon, Voluntown and Baltic.

Lebanon, health 2, clothing 1; Baltic clothing 2; Voluntown, cooking 1, health 1, nutrition 1; Wequetequock, clothing 1; totals, clothing 1 health 3, clothing 4, nutrition 1.

Lebanon—One health club is continuing in one school as a result of the weighing in 1921. Another club was started because of this club. Both groups are composed mainly of Polish and Jewish children, a few Americans. All need better food and health habits but get very little help and no encouragement at home.

The teachers and local leader are doing what they can in the way of encouragement at school. The school lunch has been continued throughout the year in the Waterman School which was started last year in the club work. These clubs will continue through this year, with what help the specialists can give. Most of the children work too hard to gain.

Voluntown—Both health and nutrition clubs were started in the Central school on account of the large percentage of underweight children. Only two meetings had been held before the close of school but these will be continued this fall.

Voluntown and Goshen—A cooking club of 10 girls organized with Mrs John Peckham as leader in Voluntown. These girls are following the regular club program and learning to cook foods good for them and also learning to like them. The Goshen group is composed of three boys and three girls. These boys and girls are learning to both cook and sew. The boys beat the girls on making bread. The cakes I saw at an exhibit held to show their work and earn money for junior short course, were fine, worthy of older and more experienced cooks. They earned over twenty dollars towards their expenses at short course by the articles they had made.

One Baltic clothing club which started last year discontinued work in April because the leader was unable to meet with them longer.

At the Baltic Academy twenty girls are taking the first year course in clothing under the leadership of Sister Xaverina. This is a splendid club and is to continue this fall.

Junior Short Course.

New London County was represented at the Junior short course at the college by twenty boys and girls who certainly held their own with other counties of the state. The entire New London county delegation came through without getting a single demerit. This certainly speaks pretty well for these boys and girls. Besides this they furnished some of the leading officers in the student council and leaders in the various projects. All who went declared that they had a glorious time and learned a great deal about things in which they were interested, many expressed the wish to go again next year.

Those attending were: Club leaders, Miss Lucy Crowley of Stonington and Miss Lydia Hartig of Lebanon; Sprague, Charlotte Babbitt, Sylvester Wade; Stonington, Ruth Henson, Mary LaFountaine; Waterford, George Woods; Norwich, Eliot Graham, Charlotte Fellows; Lebanon, Arnold Manning, Roland Manning, Stephen Gorski, Sophie Gorski, Huntington Robinson, Charles Hinckley; Montville, Austin Lathrop; Franklin Austin Miller, John Kahn, James Kahn.

Miscellaneous.

Bee Club—The Bee club started last year in Griswold with the help of the bee specialist and has continued this year without work, through this office.

Small Fruits—Four requests came in from individuals in the county for assistance on this project. Arrangements were made with the fruit specialist from the college for a day's work visiting these homes.

Hanover—With Mrs. Webster Standish plans were discussed for growing small fruits, strawberries, red raspberries, blackberries, etc. Mrs. Standish has put in a small bed of strawberries which had been ordered in the middle west, came pretty well dried out, were not set deep enough or near enough together. The raspberries and blackberries were set too near. For

New London County Showed $2,416,847 and Windham County $1,325,000—Many New Dwellings Erected In Norwich—Willimantic Had Record Figures—Putnam Erects Bank, Schools and Business Property—New School Buildings In New London.

For the past year in building in Eastern Connecticut a somewhat larger figure is shown than in 1922, when the total stood at $3,655,275. In 1923 the building work total was $3,741,847.

In New London county, the city of Norwich showed lesser figures than a year ago but New London gained some and the county total was $2,416,847 as compared with the 1922 figure of $2,855,275. Outside the cities there was work estimated at $500,000 as contrasted with $565,000 in the preceding year.

For Windham county the 1923 total was $1,325,000 in 1923 where it was $700,000 in 1922. In Willimantic building was at the record volume with a total of $600,000 for 1923, as against $325,000 in 1922, and in Putnam the yearly figures were $550,000 in 1923, and $250,000 in 1922. In other parts of the county the building total for 1923 was $175,000 as compared with $225,000 for 1922.

$989,622 In Building Activities In Norwich

The year 1923 marked the high record for the issue of building permits through the office of Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton, when 283 permits for new buildings, alterations and additions were issued, which exceeded the year before when 234 made the highest record up to that time, but the values represented in building construction were not as large in 1923 as in 1922.

Estimated expenditures on the work in the city ran to a total of $639,622 which is increased by $350,000 for new dwellings constructed in the town outside of the fire marshall's jurisdiction. The whole brings the Norwich building total to $989,622, as compared with $1,263,100 in 1922, which was the record mark for building in Norwich.

Construction work has covered a varied line of enterprises and has added over 250 new buildings in the city and town limits. These have included 43 new dwelling houses in the city and 75 more outside the city lines, 109 new garages.

Additions to Factories

The American Woolen Co. has erected at its Thamesville plant a concrete and steel addition, 106x125, three stories high, with a one story wing, 69x126. The United Metal Mfg. Co. has added a concrete foundry at Thamesville, and five small frame factory buildings have been erected in different parts of the city.

Addition to Academy

The Norwich Free Academy increased the equipment of its manual training department by erecting a $40,000 brick addition, 52x61, two stories and basement, and at the same time readjusted a large class room in the main school building so as to provide greater accommodations for pupils.

Business Property

A new brick business block has been erected by Alex Pasnik at 15-23 West Main street, three stories, 50x50, containing four stores on the main floor, and apartments above. There have been a number of changes in remodeling business property, including the operation of the old Main street fire engine house into store property by A. Adelman, who purchased the old engine house from the city.

The following shows the quarterly issue of permits in the city by the fire marshal and a summary of the building work for town or city:

Two New Public Schools Built in New London

New London put approximately $100,000 more into building operations in 1923 than in the year before, showing a total for 1923 of $927,225, as compared with $827,175 in 1922, and the total of 332 building permits issued through the office of the building inspector was 19 more than in 1922.

Important in the new construction was the erection of two new public school buildings of the most approved type and the educational facilities for the city and town are to be still further increased by the erection of a junior high school building during the present year.

In industrial and commercial buildings there were fewer in number but a higher valuation in 1923 than in 1922, as permits for 49 buildings at a valuation of $360,100 were issued as compared with 61 at $319,350 in 1922. Not so many new dwellings were erected in 1923 when the permits issued were for 68 at $408,150 in value as against 85 for $370,000 in 1922. The ever increasing use of the automobile was indicated in the building of new garages, which numbered 124 at a valuation of $89,000, while in 1922 there were 101 new garages at $47,075. Additions and alterations were considerable in the amount expended showing $69,975 for 91 permits, whereas in 1922 the permits numbered 66 for a valuation of $90,750.

Quiet Building Year Experienced in Danielson

Aside from the construction of a number of dwelling houses, building activity slumped in Danielson during 1923 from some of the remarkable records of growth made during the war years and the years just after the war. The manufacturing concerns that were largely responsible for much of the growth between 1918 and 1921, did not contribute directly or indirectly to any great amount of building during the past year.

New homes have been put up here and there about the borough, but this represents individual development and was chiefly due to the pressure for more and suitable homes in Danielson. The housing shortage, which became acute as long as 10 years ago, has never been adequately met and contributions toward that end were limited during 1923 on acount of all the high costs incident to building operations during the period.

On the West Side during 1923 the Quinebaug company made various improvements in the tenement properties that make up its mill village. Electric lights were installed in about 200 tenements, an innovation that was greatly appreciated by the families occupying them. The mill company also has in the same area during 1923 constructed numbers of sheds and carried on other improvement operations.

In the business section the breaking up of the Johnson properties into holdings that were promptly taken by buyers led to numerous changes and improvements in some of the structures, notably the two and one-half story frame building taken by Harry Dvergates, which building has been remodeled and makes a material improvement. Likewise improvements were were made by S. Diamond to a property of the Johnson estate which he acquired. Pierre Jodoin, who took over the Bodo properties in Main street also has improved his property, in this case a new store being added by a certain amount of construction work.

As the year closed the Starkweather building, near the railroad station, was being extensively remodeled that provision may be made for a sports and recreation arena that will provide seating space for upwards of 1,100 people. This work, it is expected, will be completed during January.

Not a major building operation was undertaken in Danielson during 1923, however. There are some projects awaiting more favorable conditions.

MANUAL TRAINING BUILDING, NORWICH FREE ACADEMY

two-story frame Donohue block on Washington's birthday, 1923, opened the way for the building of these fine new business buildings. Mr. Donohue decided not to rebuild and sold the site of his block to the Stoumbelis Brothers. The site was cleared, stood idle for months and then building operations were undertaken late in the year.

His business wiped out in the fire that destroyed the Donohue block, where he had occupied a store for years, Charles Seder some time after the fire acquired the Hopkins property adjoining. In November frame buildings that had been in use for years as dwellings and small business places were cleared from the site and the work of erecting the new Seder block commenced.

As the year closed the walls of the Stoumbelis block and the Putnam Savings bank were up the full height and the walls of the Seder block approaching the top of the second story level.

All of these new buildings are two-story brick structures. The bank and the Seder building are of tapestry brick, the Stoumbelis of tan shade, smooth finished brick.

The Putnam Savings bank building will provide banking quarters for the institution, one store and a series of offices on the second floor. The Stoumbelis block and the Seder block will be wholly occupied with stores on the street floor and by offices on the second floor.

Work on the three buildings is expected to proceed uninterruptedly during the winter and it is hoped to have all of them ready for occupancy about April 1.

A building completed during the year, but started in 1922, was the fine new parochial school of St. Mary's parish. This structure on the St. Mary's church property, cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. It has accomodations for more than 900 pupils and is a modern and finely fitted school in every respect. It is of red brick with limestone ornamental trimmings in elaborate design.

Also completed during the year 1923 was a $50,000 addition to the Israel Putnam school on School street. This addition with brick and in keeping with the design of the original structure was built to relieve the congestion that had developed here. An interesting feature of the addition is the devoting of one of the smaller rooms within to a dental clinic, where all the pupils of the schol may have their teeth cared for by an experienced dentist in the employ of the town of Putnam.

As 1923 came to an end good progress was being made on the construction of a memorial chapel at Grove street cemetery. This structure will be of beautiful design and will cost about $40,000, including the money to be spent on the approaches and in beautifying the surroundings. This building was made possible by a gift from the late Harriet Tourtelotte, formerly of North Grosvenordale and Minneapolis.

Also projected in 1923 was a large adition to the plant of the Putnam Foundry and Machine company.

Industrially, Putnam received a boost during 1923 through the activities of the Adams Manufacturing company, recently transferred here from North Scituate, R. I., this concern erecting a large brick addition to a mill obtained by purchase on Main, near Providence street, from the Nightingale-Morse company, which has ceased to do business and by the remodelling of the mill acquired. The Adams company is getting its operations organized and insures Putnam a splendid industry. The concern manufactures screen cloth, cloth used in covering shade-grown tobacco fields, buckram, etc.

These represent the major building operations in Putnam during 1923. A number of dwellings have been erected, others remodeled and some changes made in business properties, so 1923 rates as a year of unusual building activity in Putnam.

PASNIK BLOCK, WEST MAIN ST., NORWICH

Important New Buildings Erected in Putnam

Putnam has been in the throes of a building boom during 1923—especially since early fall. As the year closed three fine buildings that will represent an investment in excess of $250,000 when completed were being subjected to rush work that they might be closed in before real cold weather set in. These were the Putnam Savings Bank's new building and business blocks respectively for Stoumbelis Brothers and Charles Seder. All are on Main Street, the Stoumbelis and Seder blocks being side by side nearly oposite the Congregational church.

A fire that completely wiped out the machinery and equipment of the most modern type. It is located fronting the river and is back of the annex of the main mill, being connected to the annex by aerial bridges on the second floor. An elevator and chutes are provided by which stock can be transferred from floor to floor. At the present time the building is finished but the complete installation of equipment will probably not be accomplished until spring.

The past year has been the greatest since the war for the mill at Thamesville, employing 800, and running nights for long periods that gave it a 130 per cent. machinery record, while the mill of the company at Yantic has employed within a few of 400 at its peak figure.

New Wards and Nurses' Home at State Hospital

Neither at the Norwich state hospital, the Norwich Tuberculosis sanatorium, nor the Seaside sanatorium at Niantic, the three state institutions in New London county, was there any new building work in 1923, but both the State Hospital and the Seaside have appropriations for new buildings in 1924.

At the Norwich state hospital bids are already out and are to be in January 11 for the erection of two new ward buildings and a nurses' home. For the wards, one of which will be for men, and the other for women of the acute class of patients, the appropriation is $425,000, and for the nurses' home, $145,000. This will accomodate from 50 to 60 nurses, and is to be placed on land across the road from the superintendent's residence. All construction is to be of the brick, fire resisting type, and the work will be started in the spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

Provision that will take care of the steam supply for the hospital for many years to come has been made by the recent installation of a 380 horse power water tube boiler to make a battery of two for the steam supply. It was placed in the boiler house where an old one was removed. Aditional provision for electricity has also been made by the istallation of a 125 k. w. direct current generator. There has been added a cost of $10,000, an addition to the refrigerator plant, that doubles the capacity, and a freezing room where temperatures of zero can be obtained for storage of meats and fish.

At the Seaside

The Seaside sanatorium has available an appropriation of $100,00 for a fire-proof infirmary to accomodate from 100 to 150 patients, which will about double the capacity of the institution to do its wonderful work for children afflicted with bone tuberculosis. The new infirmary will take the place of the old building now in use, formerly a hotel, in which there are 58 patients. A big waiting list insures that the accommodations of the new infirmary will be taken up as soon as it can be built and opened.

Construction of the infirmary, however, is delayed until the desired McCook land can be acquired for which there is an apropriation of $25,000.

Early in the year the new nurses' home which was begun in the fall of 1921, was completed and occupied.

American Woolen Built Picker and Dye House

In line with the prosperous year that the American Woolen Co. experienced at it Norwich mill at Thamesville, a fine new concrete building for the picking and dyeing departments was added during the past year, the largest piece of new industrial building construction in the city.

The new building is 106x125, three stories, with a one story wing 69x125 which contains the dyeing department. The first floor of the larger building, which is all in one large room, is occupied by the picking department, the second floor for storage and the third floor for the mending room. The building is of the most modern construction splendidly lighted, and all

Building Industry Booming In Willimantic In 1923

1923 was a record year in Willimantic as regards the number of building permits issued by Fire Chief James J. Tighe who is also the building inspector for the city. The grand total of 146 permits issued by far eclipsed any number made out in previous years and is nearly double the number issued in 1922. The building operations for the past year represent an approximate outlay of $600,000 as compared with $350,000 for 1922. The number of permits for 1923 is six times greater than in 1920, and over ten times greater than the number in 1919, showing clearly that the building industry here is booming to an amazing extent.

The new eight room addition to the Natchaug Grammar school represents the largest outlay of money and will go far toward relieving the congestion now existing in that school. The new addition will be utilized with the opening of the next fall term and will accomodate the increase in registration although it has been pointed out that unless some other solution is arrived at another school building will become a necessity within the next five years. The Salvation Army Citadel is another attractive structure which was built during the past year. A permit was issued to the Capitol Theatre Corporation for the building of a handsome block on Main street but with the laying of the foundation, the work has been temporarily halted. Alterations and improvements were carried on to a large extent during the year not only in several business blocks but in private residences, many of which were beautified by the building of verandas. Comparatively few tenement blocks were erected, the call for more housing capacity being met mainly through the building of bungalows and cottages. Forty-two new houses were erected during the year making an approximate housing capacity of sixty families.

The remarkable influx of automobiles into the city accounts for the building of thirty-seven private garages of varied capacities and the extension of others. Permits were also issued for the building of two public garages. The building of mercantile houses was carried on, at quite an extensive scale, fifteen permits being issued for such structures.

In 1922 the month of May led other months for permits issued by a substantial majority with a total of 14 permits, while in April 1923, April led with 28 permits and May was a close second with 23 permits. January and February were tied for last place with 3 permits each.

Real Estate Transactions

The real estate transfers in Willimantic increased to $980,000 during the year 1923 after declining since 1919 when a million dollar mark was set but which decreased to nearly a million in 1921 and dropped to $700,000 in 1922. Practically all of the transfers made during the year were between local residents and several were of wide interest in the city. The largest sum of money to be involved in one transaction was in the sale of the new Strand Theater building, a two-story brick structure on Broad street by Ike Rosen to Alfred Oden and Herbert A. Gillette.

Another important transaction was the sale of an extensive tract of building lots on Jackson street by Cora A. Terry of Windham and Mary F. and Edward E. Johnson of St. Paul, Minnesota, to Arthur J. Dubreuil and Aline D. Dubreuil of this city. The transfer of the large hostelry on Main street

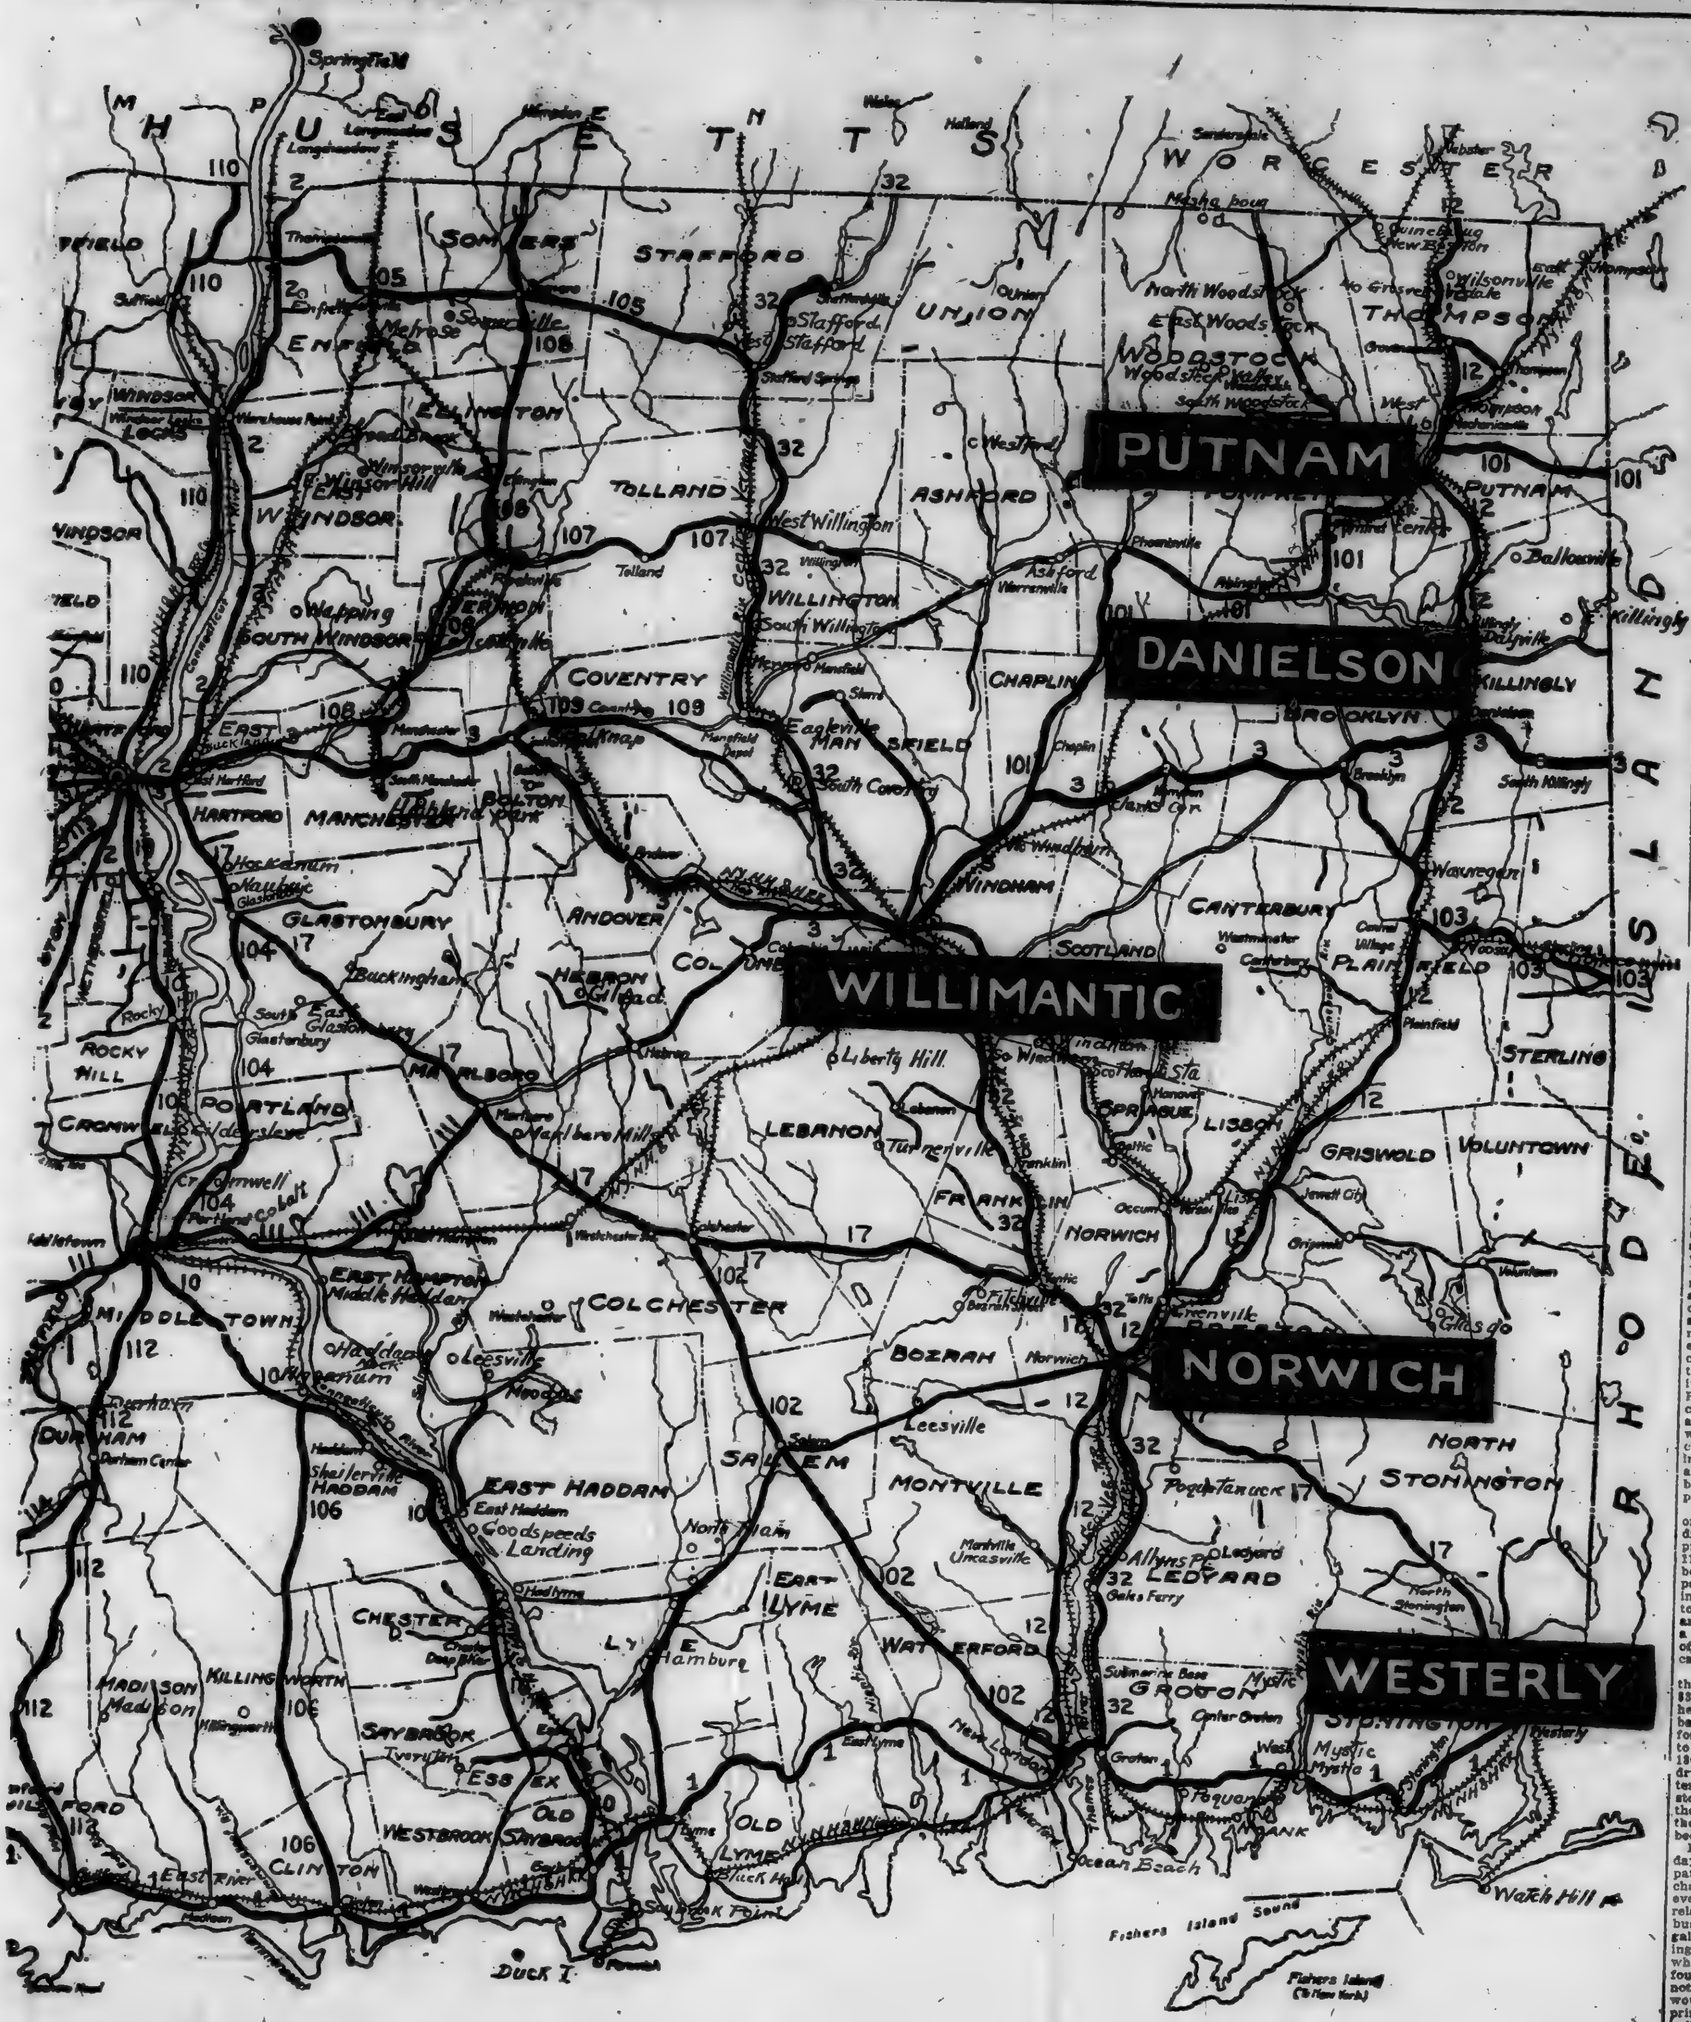
STATE IMPROVED HIGHWAYS IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT



IMPROVED HIGHWAY SYSTEM IS EXTENDING IN THIS SECTION

Connecticut's programme for an improved highway system has been carried out extensively in the eastern counties of the state for the last few years and has resulted in the development of an extensive mileage of well built and well kept roads connecting the important towns and cities and linking them to traffic to all points north, east and west.

The accompanying map shows the extent of this work with the route numbers placed on poles for directing traffic and makes a ready guide for those who would travel in this part of the state. The improved roads, or trunk lines, are marked in heavy black solid lines on the map, the improved secondary roads in lighter solid lines and the unimproved roads in light double lines. By picking out the route numbers any traveler may easily see the direction he should follow from city to city. The familiar yellow bands on poles, enclosing the number of the route, make guides for tourists.

Norwich is reached by at least five trunk lines from different directions with secondary roads feeding into them, making it a central point for trade and residence that is unequalled in this section of the state. This advantageous situation has played its part in building up a progressive, active business community with latent possibilities that are bound to be unfolded in new development and growth in the future.

HELPS FOR FAMILIES BY EXTENSION SERVICE

both plots the ground had not been well plowed nor harrowed at all, was sod ground just turned over. Dr. Darrow told Mrs. Standish that unless she could get help which could do the work properly she had better not try to grow fruits for market, as she would not be able to make anything.

Gales Ferry—At the home of Mrs. Walter Buckingham Mr. Darrow gave information about care of young fruit trees, about setting cuttings of currants, care and cultivation of a blackberry bed and suggested varieties of red raspberries to be set.

At the home of Mr. Noyes he suggested good location for various fruits, varieties of strawberries, grapes and raspberries and apple trees.

Lyme—At the home of Mrs. F. L. Leeds, Dr. Darrow pruned apple and pear trees, set this spring, suggested varieties of grapes, raspberries and strawberries and locations adapted to each.

Improvement Home Grounds.

Mrs. Josephine Ellis, landscape specialist, gave three illustrated talks on Practical Improvement of Small Home Grounds in Gales Ferry, Wequetequock and North Stonington this past winter. As many of the groups have plans made by Mrs. Ellis for improving their own home grounds, they were in a position to get a good deal of help and useful information from these lectures.

Plans for Individual Homes—Thirty of these individual plans have been made in different communities in the county and practically all the owners have made some start in working out their plans.

In Stonington, Mrs. Eugene Woods managed to do all Mrs. Ellis suggested except for setting in one shrub, which when she finally found where it could be obtained was too late to transplant this spring. She will have to replace some of the cedars which they obtained from their woods probably.

In Ledyard Mrs. B. T. Avery transplanted over fifty native shrubs from thir woods, doing the work herself, and not one has died. The stepping stone path has been laid here and work is being done on the drive along the edge of which shrubs are to be set later.

BULLETIN CALENDAR PRESENTS FRANKLIN SQUARE LANDMARK

Young's Block in 1867—Built on the Northeast Corner of Franklin Square by Dr. William P. Eaton, About 1850

For as long as memory serves any living resident of Norwich, Franklin square has known the building that the Bulletin presents in its New Year's calendar, a view of "Young's Block" on the corner of Franklin and Main streets, taken from a picture by a Providence photographer in the summer of 1867.

For its day, when it was built between 1845 and 1850, it must have been the most notable and substantial building addition on Franklin square in a long time, and it was a demonstration of the enterprise, energy and public spirit of its owner and builder, Dr. William P. Eaton, who conducted a drug store at this corner until 1856. Time has wrought changes and improvements in the property, but it still stands substantially as it was erected, a three story brick building, fronting 75 feet on Franklin street, and 45 feet on Main street. Dr. Eaton erected this building several years before the Wauregan house was built, as the erection of that hotel was begun in April, 1853, and it was opened in February, 1855.

At the death of Dr. Eaton at his home, 4 Broadway, at the age of 71, on January 5, 1867, The Bulletin sketched his career as an influential Norwich citizen since about 1826, the time he came to this city from his native town of Plainfield. He followed his practice in Norwich for nearly 20 years, but gave it up to enter the coal and lumber business on Central Wharf. After four or five years in this line he took up real estate ownership and development, building and selling a number of houses on the Little Plain, and buying much property in the Franklin square neighborhood, including the land that is now Franklin square proper, which he presented to the city as a gift. He opened a drug store in the Strand building in 1847, removing it later to the brick building (Young's Block) which he erected on the northeast corner of the square. He was interested in educational matters and was chairman of the committee that built Broadway school, in which a large portrait of him was hung in the senior room.

It would take no great turning back of the leaves for many of those still living to visualize Young's corner about 60 years ago, the spreading trees, encased in wooden boxes to keep off the teeth of nibbling horses, the old lamp post with its oil lamp that shed a feeble light at night on the uneven dirt street, the building with its roof sign of "City Hotel" and over the doorway of the saloon and hotel entrance on the Main street side the sign "Deutsches Gast Haus" that bespoke the national extraction of the worthy German couple Charles Young and his wife Phillipina, who presided over and prospered in the hotel and saloon business conducted in the building.

In the calendar picture are to be seen several persons whose names are familiar to Norwich citizens. Standing on the Main street sidewalk the first figure on the right of the picture is John Benson, a member of the Norwich police force of those days. At his right is Fred Klein, a well-known barber, who then had a shop in the Wauregan house in partnership with Andrew Engler. The man leaning against the building is not known but next to him and behind the lamp-post is Charles Young, the owner of the building and proprietor of the hotel and saloon, while by his side stands little 3-year old Josie Foerstner, his wife's niece. Over by the side of the tree-box on Franklin street stands Mrs. Young, with William Huber a well-known painter and fresco decorator, at the next tree-box, while the man in the doorway under the cigar store sign is Henry Vogel, a cigar maker in the employ of George Lang, proprietor of the store. Next to the cigar store was a meat market run by Andrew Lotter.

In a window of the second story on the Main street side, when the picture was taken, were Mrs. Mary Foerstner and her daughter, Emma, the latter still living, the widow of Emil Welte, at 24 East Town street, Norwich Town.

On the Franklin street side in 1867, Young's Block carried the street numbers 1-3-5-7-9-11-13-15, the same as today, but on the Main street side the numbers were 51-53-55-57, running east to west. Since then Main street has been renumbered running from west to east and the present store numbers on Main street are from 240 to 244.

Adjoining the Young Block to the east on Main street in '67 was a small two story frame building, also owned by Mr. Young and occupied by the candy store, and factory of John Perkins. Next east of this was another small building where Robert Herirck ran a grocery store, which was the headquarters for charcoal venders from the Voluntown district to stop and buy oats for their horses, tieing their teams up to a rail and hitching posts nearby.

How Charles Young and his wife Phillipina acquired the property and upon it laid the foundations of the family fortune presents an interesting story of the rewards of their industry and economy. They came to Norwich in 1848 from Bavaria, when Mr. Young was compelled to flee from his native country, when the Bavarian army, in which he was an officer, was defeated by the Prussians. In their adopted home, Mr. Young learned the molders' trade while his wife worked early and late as a seamstress, becoming a popular dressmaker. At that time the corner store in this building was the drug store of Dr. William P. Eaton, one of the most substantial citizens of the town, a man described as of elephantine build with a great white beard flowing down over his chest. He was a power in town meetings, where he shared with John Breed, another stalwart citizen of massive build, the discussions of matter of public welfare.

In 1859 Mr. Young opened a saloon on Franklin street next to Dr. Eaton's drug store, in the location now occupied by Jerome F. Conant's cigar store, 11 Franklin street. The good German beer that he sold drew him a large patronage, and he did a thriving business. After a time Dr. Eaton offered to sell the building to his thrifty tenant, who, he learned, had accumulated a hoard of gold by Mrs. Young's habit of saving up every gold piece that came into the till.

Gold was at a premium, and when the doctor learned that the Youngs had $3,000 in the yellow metal saved up, he induced them to take it to the bank where they were given $11,000 for it and the doctor sold the building to them at that figure on August 29, 1864. In 1866, Dr. Eaton sold out his drug stock to Mr. Young and the latter moved his saloon into the corner store at the same time conducting the City Hotel in the upper floors of the building. From then on the place became known as Young's Block.

Beer was the popular drink in those days, and all classes of citizens were patrons of the place, bankers, merchants, artisans and laborers, for everybody liked Charlie Young. It is related by men still in the printing business in Norwich that many a gallon of beer intended for one of the ingredients in the composition from which rolls for the presses were made found its way into the printers and not into the composition when a man would be sent across from the Bulletin printing shop, then in the Franklin hall building on Franklin square, to get the beer that was supposed to go into making the rolls.

There were entrances on both the Main street and the Franklin street sides, while in a rear alcove on the Main street side was a lunch counter. Later on the saloon added what was a wonderful novelty at that time, an orchestrion, an automatic self-playing organ of German manufacture, which was installed by Emil Welte, son of the manufacturer, who subsequently married Emma Foerstner, the niece of Mrs. Young, and made his home in Norwich, where he resided at 24 East Town street until his death, October 25, 1923.

For eighteen years Mr. Young conducted the hotel business profitably, retiring in the spring of 1873. By that time he had purchased and was making his home in the Governor Huntington colonial mansion at 35 East Town street, Norwich Town, where he built greenhouses and operated the property as a fruit and flower farm. His death at the age of 75, occurred May 27, 1897, and Mrs. Young died in her 91st year, on September 13, 1916. She was a remarkable business woman, and the Young fortune which she aided her husband to accumulate, was largely increased during her seventeen years of widowhood.

The Young's Block property has now descended to Mrs. Emma Foerstner Welte; widow of Emil Welte, the niece of Mrs. Young. It is occupied in the corner store, 240 Main street, by the meat market of Rumford & Co., the barber shop of Joseph Furman, at 244 Main street, the cigar store of Jerome F. Conant, at 11 Franklin street, and the O'Neil Electric Co., 13-15 Franklin street. The upper flors are now occupied by offices and a rooming house.

GREAT ELECTRIC POWER CENTER GROWING ON BANKS OF THAMES

Eastern Connecticut Power Company Adds Two New Steam Turbines — Doubles Size of Power Station — Gives 29,000 H. P. Primary Capacity—Business Growth Indicates Further Enlargement—In Line to Link in With Possible Super-power Development of the Future.

One of the most notable happenings in connection with the evidence of the continued development and prosperity of the Quinnebaug and Thames valleys is the increase in capacity of the steam plant of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company on the Thames, in the town of Montville. The demand for service from the company and its subsidiaries, The Lyme Electric Power Company, The Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric Company, and The Putnam Light and Power Company, by the other public utilities in eastern Connecticut, manufacturing plants, stores, and residences of the territory, with such that early in the year it became necessary to make plans for increasing the productive capacity, and, early in the spring, work was commenced on an addition to the structure at Montville, which just doubles the size of the building and makes room for three additional units, two of which, with their auxiliary equipment, have been installed, increasing the primary capacity of the plant over 125 per cent.

The original installation, completed late in 1919, provided for 26,000 horsepower, or 13,000 of protected primary capacity. The present installation gives the company more than 29,000 H. P. primary capacity, and the output from this plant, for the year 1922, during which period it has not been possible to use the new generating facilities, except to a very limited extent, will represent, approximately 84,000,000 horse power hours, and the added demands, coming from existing contracts, with every indication of still further calls for added contracts with various industries of the territory, would indicate a very large increase in output for the year 1924, and the management feels that there is every reason to believe that another unit will have to be added to this plant within a year.

To the original equipment of two horizontal steam turbine units of 10,000 kilowatt continuous capacity, with four water tube boilers, there has been added one 10,000 and one 2,500 kilowatt unit, with auxiliary equipment, and two additional boilers, besides another stack. This has meant doubling the size of the boiler room, 86x80, the turbine room, 53x91, and the electrical bay, 20x91. At the same time a complete new electrically controlled coal handling system has been put in and the plant is now carrying on hand 2,500 tons of coal.

The economic advantage that results from concentration of the power loads of eastern Connecticut on a large generating station of this character can only be appreciated when it is known that the consumption of coal per horse power of energy produced, in a station of the capacity of this one at Montville, is not over 50 per cent. of that consumed in the most skillfully operated small station, and, approximately, 33 1-3 per cent. of the coal consumed in a small plant under average operating conditions. The great saving in the fuel supply of the country which results from concentration of the power load upon these so-called superpower developments is the prime reason for the interest whic the Federal Government has taken in the power survey of the eastern states, from Washington to Maine, with the purpose of encouraging the development of still greater superpower generating plants and high pressure transmission lines, the use of which, it is estimated would result in annual savings to the industries of these states of some $500,000,000 a year, but it should be recognized that this saving is dependent upon the shutting down of all the small and inefficient steam power generating stations and the concentration of the entire load upon existing central stations, that would, in turn, become the customers of the great generating and transmission companies. The detail of just how these facilities would be utilized has not yet been determined.

The constantly growing demands upon the existing light and power companies indicate that the users of power have decided that it is more advantageous and more economical to buy power from power specialists than to produce it themselves. The rapid growth of The Eastern Connecticut Power Company not only confirms this impression, but gives the best possible evidence of the prosperity of eastern Connecticut.

Prosperous Year Seen By Chambers of Commerce

necessary public institution, namely, the Mohican Hotel The Chamber Committee, co-operating further with the Board, received the appreciative gratitude from that body for the Chamber's helpfulness.

The Chamber, initiated, financed and managed local Home Garden movement, securing through gift and rental, some four hundred garden plots, cleared, plowed, harrowed and presented at less than cost to a great number of the city's industrial workers who benefited thereby.

Three outstanding activities to which the Chamber addressed itself, and in which it was eminently successful, namely, the elimination of toll from bridges, equitable assessment and preservation of the charter which was a child of the Chamber.

The Chamber assumed responsibility and leadership as in the past in the promotion of the daylight saving movement.

The Chamber, through personal solicitation and publicity, managed and financed eminently successful Dollar Day and Suburban Trading events, participated in by over two hundred merchants of the community, a majority of whom are Chamber members and who generously benefited through these "Trade-at-home" events promoted by the Chamber.

The Chamber initiated a clean-up campaign, city-wide, which was attended by representatives of the City Fire Department, the Street Department, the Police Department, Schools, Boy Scouts and others. Eight thousand circulars were printed and distributed to the homes, schools were addressed and circularized, all of which resulted in the immediate removal of many additional truck loads of rubbish, lessening the fire hazard, clearing vacant lots and littered yards, increasing healthful conditions and elements of beautification and securing beneficial publicity to the community through New England.

The Chamber initiated a movement that, through co-operation with the trustees of the Home Memorial Hospital, resulted in strengthening, rebuilding and conditioning the old New York Yacht Club dock, written notification to many yachting organizations of the newly established facilities resulting in securing to New London unusual large number of yachting activities which benefited local supply houses and secured the city splendid publicity.

The Chamber directly co-operated and assisted in securing and financing a number of state conventions, giving valued clerical and publicity assistance —Connecticut Spanish War Veterans, Connecticut Laundry Owners Association, Connecticut Fishermen's Association and others.

Through service and work of the Chamber of Commerce Sign Committee, following a survey, large substantial printed signs warning motorists of dangerous intersecting streets were placed at various stragetic points in the city.

Through membership and public meetings called by the Chamber public opinion was stimulated and crystalized, resulting in action upon the part of the city officials to secure an audit of the ferry manager's accounts and enlisting the co-operation of Groton in placing that public utility on a definite and business-like basis.

Through direct interest and action on the part of the Chamber amicable and satisfactory agreement was reached by and between the city and the Edward Bloom Company, resulting in the completion of the Edward Bloom Company additions, and encouraging future developments of that industry, attracted solely through the efforts of the Chamber.

Under the direction of the Chamber, on several occasions, large delegations of New London citizens were assembled in Hartford where spirited and successful efforts were registered before various committee hearings securing to the community and the state, abolition of toll and preservation of the charter.

We have gone on record in a great many resolutions and through national and state referendum as opposed to the bonus, as in favor of immediate and adequate help to the disabled veterans; we have favored legislation proposed for the protection of parks and reforestration; we have favored and successfully worked for the retention of New London Submarine Base when two or three naval stations were to be discontinued as between Norfolk, New London and Newport. We have registered before our Connecticut Congressional delegation our approval of the so-called Mellon plan of taxation.

In addition to the daily office hours with their constant routine of office detail, there has been secured through the Chamber considerable advantageous publicity in press and magazine and a goodly number of industrial prospects shown at various times about our community.

Ten thousand copies of a pictorial and descriptive pamphlet epitomizing the city's industrial, commercial, historic, scenic, municipal and governmental activities and advantages have been prepared, printed and are being distributed to our out-of-town inquirers

The Chamber has acted as impartial intermediary and clearing house for various groups, both opposed to and in favor of closing hours for mercantile establishments. This program covering a period of months and still active in certain quarters, required tact, patience, and no small amount of adroitness upon the part of the Chamber, to render a maximum of service to its commercial membership, which found itself divided in this movement.

The Chamber has served, since the retirement of Americanization Director Ellis several months ago, as a medium in securing citizenship papers and passports for a great number, as well as acting in the capacity of an employment bureau aiding both the employer and the unemployed.

A busy, useful week was registered in the promotion of the "House Beautiful" campaign which stimulated considerable local interest in this growing and important movement.

The above itemized activities reflect, in part, the varied field of endeavor for the public good upon the part of the Chamber, and in no sense represents the sum total of its labor, nor yet the greater and fuller measure of labor of which it is capable and which can be consummated only upon the active and aggressive participation of all concerned. It is believed advisable to concentrate unitedly all our efforts upon the successful prosecution of some one big, outstanding, community benefit, not lessening in the least our interest in the accomplishment of detail which, in the ensemble, is obviously essential to the consummation of the whole.

The Chamber does not claim the responsibility and sole success of some of the activities enumerated above but does believe, which belief is borne out through truth and fact, that it has been an important factor in their realization.

OLD NORWICH GATE-BRIDGE WAS UNIQUE IN RAILROAD OPERATIONS

In Service Over 50 Years Ago—Bridged Tracks to Old Covered Wooden Bridge Across the Shetucket River — Used by Allyn's Point Trains of Norwich and Worcester Line.

An item republished in The Bulletin from its files of fifty years ago, Dec. 8, 1873, stirred the recollection of a Norwich citizen, Charles E. Chandler, the well known civil engineer, to recall a unique railroading expedient that was in use in this city at that time and was probably the only structure of its kind in this country. A granite abutment and a granite pier alongside the railroad tracks on the banks of the Shetucket river, just north of the New Haven road freight house, are all that remain to show where this novel structure was in use. The item referred to is the following, under date of Dec. 8, 1873: "Workmen were employed all day yesterday in putting up the new gate at the Shetucket railroad bridge on the Norwich and Worcester railroad."

Perhaps "gate bridge" would have been a better name for it, Mr. Chandler suggests, but as probably there was no other structure of its kind in this country, it is not strange that no name would give any idea of its character.

It partook of the character of a bridge because it did duty in bridging the track leading to the Norwich and Worcester railroad freight station just below the Laurel Hill avenue bridge and it had the character of a gate because it was on hinges and could be swung sidewise out of the way when trains were to approach or leave the freight station. Over the "gate bridge" trains passed onto a covered wooden bridge to the Laurel Hill side on their way to Allyn's Point.

The Norwich and Worcester railroad began to be used in 1840. The railroad terminated near the present freight house and the track at the point in question occupied practically the same position it now occupies. In 1848 the track was extended to Allyn's Point, passing over a new-covered wooden bridge, a short distance northerly from the freight station.

In order to make the sharp turn onto the bridge over the river it was necessary to have two tracks. The track to the freight station was put as near the river as possible and the track that was to cross the bridge as far from the river as possible, running up an incline so that at the point where it turned onto the bridge it was five or six feet above the level of the freight house track. This arrangement made a moveable bridge necessary to support the Allyn's Point train while it crossed the freight station track. This moveable "gate bridge" was hinged to an abutment at the end farthest from the river, while at the other end it was supported by small wheels running on a circular curved rail, by which the "gate bridge" was swung off to the side, clear of the freight house track.

This arrangement continued until shortly after 1877 when the Laurel Hill tunnel and railroad bridge were built by the Norwich and Worcester road and the old wooden railroad bridge was torn down. But the granite abutment to which the "gate bridge" was hinged and the pier between the river bridge and the "gate bridge" are still standing in plain sight from the Laurel Hill avenue bridge.

NORWICH POST OFFICE RECEIPTS OVER $115,000 IN PAST YEAR

Increase of 7½ Per Cent. in 1923— C. O. D. Business and Parcel Post Show Great Growth—One Clerk and Two Carriers Added During the Year—Three Carriers With Three Large Trucks Are Kept Busy With Parcel Post Service.

CASPER K. BAILEY, Acting Postmaster

The business of the Norwich post office for the past year has shown a marked increase. As compared with the year 1922 there has been an increase of 7 1-2 per cent. in actual receipts, and the average yearly increase for the past ten years was a trifle over 7 per cent. The amount of postal receipts for the year 1923 will exceed $115,000.

The record of pieces of first class mail run through the cancelling machine shows a small increase over the number of cards and stamps sold. This can be accounted for as numbers of stamps are sold elsewhere and the letters mailed at this office.

One of the many burdens of all offices in the last few years, are the insured and C. O. D. parcels received to deliver, also to dispatch to other offices. It is estimated that of all parcels sent 80 per cent. are insured, and the new rule which was effective Dec. 1, requires that all insured parcels shall be receipted for. This entails a large amount of extra work for the delivering carriers, as receipts must be made out and upon the delivery of the parcel the carrier must wait and obtain a receipt. The C. O. D. business has increased to such an extent, that several hundred dollars in money orders are dispatched each day to cover this business.

The office has been allowed one additional regular clerk during the year. The recommendation as sent in was for two clerks, and for the amount of work performed, this office was entitled to the two, but a small amount is allowed for auxiliary assistance. Had the two additional clerks been allowed, the hours and work could have been better apportioned. Two additional carriers were appointed Nov. 1, which is a great help, as none had been allowed since 1916.

The delivery of parcel post has increased to such an extent that one of the additional carriers was added to that division. When parcel post was inaugurated in 1913 it required but one horse drawn vehicle and one carrier to cover all the city; at the present time three carriers with three large trucks can but just keep up with the quantity received. Another large increase is in the number of special delivery service. The number received warrants the use of two motorcycles, and covers from 7 a. m. till 10 p. m.

In November Casper K. Bailey took office as postmaster, having been given the appointment to succeed John P. Murphy, and is serving as acting postmaster until his appointment can be confirmed by the senate.

On December 1st the office commenced the sale of the new treasury-savings certificates. These are one of the best investments for patrons wishing to save. They come in three denominations—$25, $100 and $1000—to mature in five years at 4 1-2 per cent, the present cost being $20, $80 and $800. During the month of December many thousand dollars worth were sold. The department recommends the exchange of the 1919 war-savings stamps, which mature January 1st, 1924, for these treasury-savings certificates.

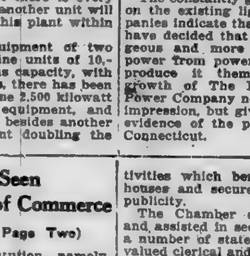
known as the Hooker house, also attracted much attention. According to the records the mortgage on the property was transferred to Emma Mohr of Buffalo, New York, by Dorothy Pillsbury Bartlett and Richard Bartlett and the business was taken over by Frank J. Watson of Chicago, Ill.

Other sales which were consummated and which represented large investments were: The Scenic Temple building on Bank street to the Congregation Sons of Israel by the First Society of Spiritualists of Willimantic; a three-story wooden block on the north side of Main street to Isadore J. and Sarah Heller by Harriet L. and Mary J. Tryon; residential property on Windham street to Roland B. Jordan by Albert L. French; a three-story brick block on Church street by James Johnson to Harold C. Lincoln and Russell W. Potter; buildings and land on the south side of Main street on the former Sayles estate by Laura C. Goettlick of Waterbury to Parmelia La Belle; a stretch of land on the formerly Sayles property on Main street to the Gulf Refining company by William H. Lincoln; three building lots fronting on Main street on the former Sayles property to Abe Davidson of Norwich by Hyman Israel, Abraham Reinstein and Joseph Giracca and the transfer of this property to the Capitol Theatre Corporation of Willimantic; the Hosmer Mountain Bottling Works, including buildings, machinery and land to Abraham L. Beiler of New York City by William E. Clark; a tract of land in North Windham to L. M. Hartson company of that place by Edwin H. Hall; a large wooden block at the corner of Jackson and Union streets by the administrators of the Charles A. Capen estate to Pasnuty Juszczak; tenement house on Maple avenue to Conrad Dubeau and Arsene Bacon of this city by John Clarke, administrator of the Thomas A. Lyman estate.

The Scenic Temple building on Bank street which was purchased by the Sons of Israel has been completely renovated and is now one of the handsomest synagogues in eastern Connecticut. The Strand Theatre building on Broad street includes a theatre and two stores on the ground floor and tenements on the upper story. The new owners, Mr. Oden and Mr. Gillette, do not contemplate making any immediate changes in the structure.

The fact that Willimantic is steadily growing to cover more of the territory within its limits becomes evident by the large number of sales of building lots in the outlying residential sections where new streets are constantly being built.



Best wishes for a Happy New Year ~

BULKELEY, WINDHAM AND WESTERLY LEAD IN HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

STATE BASEBALL TITLE TO BULKELEY; WESTERLY SCHOLASTIC CHAMPIONS

Windham High Eleven is Best Football Team in Eastern Conn — Academy Makes Poor Showing in Year's Sports.

In reviewing the athletic activities of the high schools of eastern Connecticut for 1923 it is a question which school stands out as the leader. With the teams playing all together different schedules it is a difficult task to pick out the real leader in both the major sports, baseball and football.

Westerly E. C. League Champs

Westerly high had a banner year in sports, winning both the baseball and football championships in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league, which, besides Westerly High includes Norwich Free Academy, Stonington High and Chapman Tech. However, Bulkeley and Windham High lay claim to the championships in both these sports although neither is a member of the league. Bulkeley claims the high school baseball title and Windham claims the football title for Eastern Connecticut.

Bulkeley Claims Baseball Title.

Bulkeley claims the title through the fact that the Central High school athletic board in New Haven proclaims the Bulkeley team as state high school champions in baseball. Westerly High however disputes the claim because the Westerly team twice defeated Bulkeley on the diamond although Bulkeley won from larger schools throughout the state. In football Bulkeley played a very much stiffer schedule than any team in the eastern part of the state, Norwich Academy and Westerly being the only two eastern teams that met the Orange and Black on the gridiron, the former being defeated 33 to 0. The game with Westerly was a much disputed affair, Westerly claiming a tie game and Bulkeley claiming the game by a 7 to 0 score.

Windham Gets Grid Crown

Windham, without doubt, stands out as the leading football team of the eastern high schools having gone through the season without a defeat, Westerly High made the best showing against Windham, playing to a 6 to 6 tie. Outside of this game Windham had everything its own way and it is doubtful that Westerly would have played to a tie had the game been played later in the season rather than at the very start. Windham did not meet Bulkeley on the gridiron this season although a game was sought.

Basketball and Track

Windham stands out as the leader in basketball with Killingly and Chapman Tech close seconds. In the track and field sports Westerly is given the choice as both Norwich Academy and Chapman Tech were easily outclassed. Chapman Tech, however was a close second. The records of the high schools follow:

BULKELEY HIGH

Baseball.

Bulkeley's baseball season was one of the most successful in recent years and out of a schedule of 16 games the Orange and Black won 13 and lost 3. Two of these games were lost to the Westerly High team, Interscholastic League champs, and the other to Collegiate Prep. The schedule was a hard one, Bulkeley playing a number of the larger high schools in the state. The Central Athletic Board in New Haven after comparing Bulkeley's record with other high school records in the state proclaimed the Bulkeley team state high school baseball champions, an honor that has not been held in eastern Connecticut in a number of years. The season's record follows:

Bulkeley		Opponents
12	Norwich Free Academy	0
8	Westerly	9
9	Plainfield	4
17	Stonington	5
4	Collegiate Prep.	5

9	Stamford	6
8	*Crosby (Waterbury)	0

11	Norwich Free Academy	3
25	Morgan High	1
6	Corticelli Silk Co.	1
4	Stonington	1
9	South Manchester	5
122	Totals	56

*—Crosby forfeited game to Bulkeley.

Football.

Although the record for the season shows that Bulkeley won only three games out of nine played it does not show the true strength of the team. Bulkeley had one of the strongest high school aggregations in the eastern part of the state but went out of its class in making up the schedule. With the exception of the Norwich Academy and Westerly teams, Bulkeley played the heavier teams from the larger high schools in the state and also played Springfield Tech, one of the best teams in the Bay State. Bulkeley established a good record and was sought by a number of other Massachusetts teams. The final game of the season with Westerly was an affair that caused no little comment throughout interscholastic circles and was entirely an unsatisfactory ending for a good season. The season's record follows:

Bulkeley		Opponents
0	New Britain High	6
6	Naugatuck High	19
0	Crosby High, Waterbury	6
0	Ansonia High	14
0	Stamford High	19

Interclass Athletics.

The Bulkeley Seniors won the inter-class struggle with a total of 44 points to 28 gardened by the class of 1925. The class of 1924 had third place with 11 points and last of all came the freshmen with 3. The individual scoring gave George Shefiott first place with 20 points. Charles Kerridge with 15 points was next.

In the 35-yard dash, Kerridge finished 1st, Fowler 2nd, and Shefiott 3rd. Time 4 2-5 seconds.

Lubchansky won the high jump with 5 feet, Harwood 2nd with 4 feet 11, Shefiott 3rd with 4 feet 10.

Lubchansky won the 1-2-mile run, Muscarella 2nd, LeBlanc 3rd. Time, 11 min. 46 sec.

In the 320-yard run, Shefiott was first, Parisi 2nd, Paton 3rd. Time—22 4-5 sec.

In the 1-mile run Barry was first, Knox second, Mallon third. Time 4 min. 10. 1

In the pole vault O'Connor topped the bar at 8 feet for 1st place, Ruddy 2nd, Shefiott third.

In the quarter-mile Kerridge was first, Barry second, and MacNamara third. Time—1 min.

In the inter-class relay the senior class was first, class of 1924 2nd, class of 1926 3rd. Time 1 min. 30 4-5 sec.

In the running broad jump Shefiott was first with a jump of 18 feet, 10 1-2 inches. Harwood second with 18 feet 1. St. Germaine third with 17 feet, 2 in.

WESTERLY HIGH

Baseball.

In addition to winning the pennant in the Eastern Connecticut Scholastic league over the other three league members, Chapman, Norwich and Stonington, the Westerly team also twice defeated Bulkeley, claimants of the championship of Connecticut.

The scores of the individual games follow:

Westerly High School 2, La Salle Academy 3.
W. H. S. 9, Bulkeley 8.
W. H. S. 9, South Kingstown H. S. 0.
W. H. S. 12, Norwich F. A. 0.

W. H. S. 15, Norwich F. A. 2.
W. H. S. 14, Stonington H. S. 3.
W. H. S. 3, Chapman Tech 2.

For the season this record shows 8 games won and three lost.

Track.

In the Eastern Connecticut Scholastic track meet held at Norwich last June, the Westerly team easily outclassed the other three schools in the league and won the championship with many points to spare. Chapman Tech was the nearest competitor, with Stonington third and Norwich last.

The Westerly team also finished second at the Rhode Island State College Scholastic meet, held at Kingston in May.

Football.

In the football season just past, the Westerly team won its first championship in the Eastern Connecticut Scholastic league, winning five games and losing one. During the entire season, the Westerly team played eleven games, winning seven, tying two and losing two.

The scores of the games follow:
W. H. S. 6, Windham High school 6.
W. H. S. 0, New Haven High school 12.
W. H. S. 6, Wheeler High school 0.

WINDHAM HIGH

FOOTBALL

What Windham lacked in baseball it amply made up on the gridiron and finished the season with a clean slate, Westerly being the only team that gave them much opposition Windham being forced to accept a tie score 6 to 6. Windham developed a wonderful aerial game that was bewildering to every team they played and was the main point of attack. To Windham goes the state record of piling up the highest score among high schools, they scoring 309 points to their opponents 25. The last game o fthe season went only three quarters and the Windham team had then scored 102 points when the game was called off. The team was the greatest in the history of Windham and full credit is due Coach Gallaghan. The season's record follows:

Windham		Opponents
14	Chapman Tech	0
20	Killingly	0
31	Middletown	0
31	Killingly	19
25	Plainfield	0
25	Bristol	0
54	Norwich	6
102	Putnam	0

The lineup consisted of: Prater, right end; Israel, right tackle; Hernberg, right guard; Capt. Simonds, center; Sawicki, left guard; Burton, left tackle; Storrs, left end; Burr, quarterback; Nichols, right halfback; Meikle, left halfback; Heller, fullback.

Baseball.

Windham had a difficult problem with its baseball team and had to build a team around two veteran players, Burr and DeMarchi. The team while not as good as some teams of previous years made an excellent showing, winning three games, losing four and tying one, which was called in the sixth inning. Coach Sullivan instilled a vast amount of baseball into practically green material. The record of the baseball team follows:

Windham.		Opponents.
6	Killingly	1
4	Middletown	1
4	Pomfret	3
8	Clerics	5
8	Norwich	4
3	Middletown	17
1	Norwich	6
3	Killingly	3
31		50

Basketball.

In basketball Coach Sullivan had another tough proposition when he developed a good quintet out of raw material on the squad. With this material he molded a team that won five out of eleven games, a record that was very gratifying coinsidering the inexperience of the team. The record follows:

Windham.		Opponents.
15	South Manchester High	25
15	Rockville	38
29	Middletown	17
25	South Manchester Trade	37
20	Killingly	24
18	Rockville	11
43	Stafford	16
33	South Manchester High	26
14	Alumni	28
25	Killingly	19
247		241

The Windham lineup consisted of: Burr rg, Heller rf, Mandell lf, Potter c, Storrs g, Israel lg, Simonds c.

Girls' Basketball.

The girls' basketball team led by Miss Rose Welch had a successful season, winning 4 games and losing 4. Miss Welch was the mainstay of the team and the leading scorer. Miss Johnson was a close second. The record of the season follows:

Windham.	Opponents.
7 South Manchester	9
16 Woodstock	9
15 Stafford	14
21 Alumni	9
14 Stafford	18
13 South Manchester	19
29 Woodstock	14
115	92

The lineup of the team was: Rose Welch lf, Ruth Belanger, rf, Doris Remington rf, Mildred Johnson c, Alberta Wallen c, Alma Liberty rg, Celia Cohen lg, Helen VanHaverbeke lg.

CHAPMAN TECH.

The Chapman Technical High school's baseball season was successful, although missing the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league championship by a matter of a single run in two games. Still these two games, with Stonington and with Westerly, were the only defeats suffered during a schedule of fourteen, making twelve victories, and many of them by large margins, (Scoring 115 runs to their opponents 43, the Tech team found its greatest strength in the battery, consisting of Johnnie Dwyer in the box and Wilson behind the plate. Dwyer is now reporting with the Fordham squad, and reports are already out that he is slated to be in a position to win greater fame on the diamond in collegiate circles. In an early season practice, Captain Brewer broke his thumb, which left a weakness at the short stop position, but the infield was by no means weak with Hewitt of dependable reach at first, and the Rangy Crouch at second and with Brown at third. The outfielders, King, Farnham and Cruise, were especially hard hitters, and accounted for many of the scores. The season's results:

Chapman Tech 8; Saybrook H. S. 6.
Chapman Tech 15; Pratt H. S. Essex 0.
Chapman 2; Plainfield 0.
*Chapman Tech 3; Stonington 4.
*Chapman Tech 11; Norwich 3.
*Chapman Tech 6; Westerday 4.
Chapman Tech 8; Saybrook 7.
*Chapman Tech 9; Norwich 4.
*Chapman Tech 6; Stonington 1.
Chapman Tech 10; Pratt 4.
Chapman Tech 10; Lyman Memorial 4.
Chapman Tech 1; Middletown (forfeit) 0.
*Chapman Tech 3; Westerly 8.
Chapman Tech 21; Lyman 2.
Total—Tech 115; Opponents 43.
*—League game.

Football.

Tech's football season was marked with an even outcome, since the team scored 110 points to its opponents 55, winning three games, losing three and tying one in a slate of seven. The greatest handicap to the squad was the lack of quarterback material, and to fill this vacancy, Captain Pearson was called from his regular position at center to give the signals. The work of Turello at guard, and of Brown and Kannanberg in the backfield deserves special notice. The center of the line was continually defended by Martin and Turello as guards without the use of the center, Beckwith, who was thus able to play a roving position. The broken field running of Brown was perhaps as spectacular as has been seen in the league this year, and Kannanberg's run for a goal from a kick-off in the Stonington game gives him a place of note as a fitting climax to his consistent gains through the line. Hewitt called from tackle to play halfback, gave a good account of himself, and the line itself with King and Maxson tackles, Caruso and Cruise ends, was about as strong as was produced this year in the league. The season:

Chapman Tech 0; Windham 13.
Chapman Tech 19; Stonington 0.
Chapman Tech 16; Norwich 12.
Chapman Tech 0; Westerly 12.
Chapman Tech 63; Stonington 3.
Chapman Tech 0; Westerly 3.
Chapman Tech 12; Norwich 12.

Athletic director and coach, E. S. Taylor.
Coach, E. C. Weaver.
Captain, Howard Pearson, '24.
Manager, John DeGange, '24.
Assistant manager, Howland Vibber, '25.

The closeness of the last Westerly game which resulted in a 3-0 victory for Westerly on their home field will vie in the memory of the squad for a place to be remembered with the mud of the 13-13 tie on the Academy campus in the rain.

Track and Field

In track the Red and Black started a season which looked auspicious by defeating Norwich at New London by a decisive score, 75-6, but in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic at Norwich Tech, finished second with 28 points. Captain Farnham was the star performer on the cinders, but since his main event, the hurdles, was not run at Norwich he had to be content with placing in the high jump. Manager Everts along with Eelise Dunn and Courbois placed first in the league relay.

Tennis

In tennis, Tech was represented by Wilson and Farnham, and as an introduction match on the courts against Norwich went down to defeat. Since the local school now has now two well appointed courts it is hoped that this sport will be extended to include a more prominent place in league athletics.

Basketball

Basketball at Chapman Tech is now occupying a most prominent part in the school's athletic program, with a squad of about 50 reporting and fourt coaches alternating and working together for the development of a strong 'varsity combination and for more interest in the class league which is now under way. The following results have been netted so far, all victories for Tech:

New London Y. M. C. A. 15; Tech 33.
Chapman Tech 37; Red Club of New London 18.
Chapman Tech 30; Saybrook H. S. 24.
Chapman Tech 25; Bacon Academy of Colchester 24.

The veterans on the squad this year are Captain Cruise at guard and Hewitt at center. Andrews and Linkletter have developed into a speedy pair of forwards and Beckwith has shown up well as the fifth member, with King working hard for his place. Zaparaniok, Hicks and Martin are all excellent material, and frequently appear on the floor.

PLAINFIELD HIGH

Basketball 1922-23

Since Plainfield High has not suitable hall in the school in which basketball can be played, the Auditorium of the Plainfield Community House was obtained for the games and practice started under the supervision of Coach Brigham the last of November. Plainfield joined the Quinebaug Valley league, but, owing to a controversy over the laws of the league, Plainfield withdrew in the middle of the season. Plainfield's schedule was one of the hardest ever arranged for a Plainfield High school team, some of the fastest teams in eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island being played. All things considered, Plainfield made a remarkable showing during the season. Some of the men had never played basketball, and it was the first season that the rest had played together. In February, Captain Sunn became ineligible, and Ralph West was elected temporary captain in his place.

Following is a summary of the Plainfield games:

P. H. S.		Opponents
46	WestWarick	14
14	East Greenwich	40
42	Tourtelotte	24
22	Conn. Aggies	45

Baseball 1923

As soon as the ground was dry enough to allow, baseball practice was started, with a large number of recruits turning out. As soon as the team was in shape, it started to play off its difficult schedule. The results were as follows:

P. H. S.		Opponents
3	West Warwick	0
5	Putnam	9
19	N. F. A.	5
8	Bulkeley	5
0	Chapman Tech	2
6	Bartlett	9
5	Stonington	4
8	Putnam	9
7	Killingly	4
7	Killingly	6

Football 1923

As soon as school opened in September, football practice was started, 17 candidates reporting. This number was augmented for the first few weeks, by a number of fellows who came to offer opposition to the first team. Coach Sullivan, and Assistant Coach Johnson took the boys in hand, and commenced to trim them into shape, four afternoons a week the fellows were kept busy tackling the dummy, falling on the ball, catching forwards, and running through signals. Several new plays were learned, perfectde and used successfully throughout the season. Plainfield went through a very hard, but successful season. Only once was she beaten by a margin of more than seven points, and then by the fastest team of this section of the state, Windham. Plainfield played many teams that outweighed her greatly, but the new fighting spirit which Coach Sullivan injected into the boys showed itself all the time and they did their utmost. Following are the results of their work:

P. H. S.		Opponent
26	Putnam	0
18	Bartlett	7
13	N. F. A.	6
0	Warwick	6

NORWICH ACADEMY

BASEBALL.

The baseball season at the Norwich Free Academy was one of the most disappointing in the history of the school, the local institution winning but two games played with high schools in Eastern Connecticut. Coach Edward G. McKay did the best that he could with the material at hand, but try as he did the results were very far from gratifying. The team lacked the school spirit and a willingness to learn the rudiments of the game, with the result that they were beaten by teams that ordinarily would have been classed as inferior teams. The record of the games won and lost speaks for itself, the Academy winning two high school games and one against a local alumni team. The season's record follows:

FOOTBALL

The football season was on a par with the baseball season there still being that lack of school spirit and willingness to apply themselves to the simple fundamentals of the game. The season started off very encouragingly the Academy winning from Killingly and Stonington and then there came a halt. The team was the heaviest of any of the high school teams in the state and the material was the best in years but there seemed to be something lacking to make a winning combination. Coach Brigham did the best he could to whip the team into shape, but it was of no use, the only game won after the first two, with the exception of the alumni game, was with Stonington, a team that was admittedly far under the usual standard of the Stonington school. The performance of the team was so decidedly bad that it aroused the feeling of the alumni to such an extent that Charles F. Noyes, a graduate of the Academy offered $5,000 for a new athletic building if the Academy would win from Bulkeley both in baseball and football next year. This was given as something for the Academy teams to work for another year. The best showing the Academy made was against Chapman Tech when they played a twelve to twelve tie. The season's record follows:

N. F. A.		Opponents

TRACK.

The Academy track team showed the most spirit of any of the athletic teams at the Academy and while not being able to win many laurels finished 4th in the interscholastic meet. The track team was handicapped by lack of material but those that did report did their best, which is more than can be said of some of the other teams.

SUBMARINE BASE HAS BEST FOOTBALL TEAM IN THE EASTERN PART OF STATE

The season at the start was not so encouraging, but the team at the time was playing under the great handicap of not having had at least three weeks of fundamental football before the first game.

The first real game was the fleet and powerful Holy Cross team. They were vanquished by a good score, but the team displayed a brand of fight in the second half of such a nature that not even the speedy Crowley, Glennon, Riopel and McMahon were able to advance the ball. Then they suffered another defeat by the Williams team of New Haven, but it can be said without shame that the Base was beaten by a better team.

The following Saturday they scored the first victory by defeating the much talked of Hilltop team from New Haven. The following Sunday they made history in Providence by holding the all-champion Steam Roller team to 0-0 score the first half and then being just nosed out of a victory by unfortunate penalties. However, the next Saturday saw the Base defending their title of Eastern Service champions for the first time in a tilt with the last year's Battleship champions—the Arkansas. It was a clean sweep from start to finish with a large score for the Base.

The next service game saw the Base contesting honors with the team of the Colorado led by Parr, All-American navy end, and Chaplain Witherspoon, All-American Washington and Jefferson tackle. It proved to be a hard fought game from start to finish, but at the final whistle the Submarines led with a decisive score.

The following week they handed out the Bushnell the same decisive defeat that had been given the Arkansas a couple weeks before. To appease local sporting men the Base was then enticed over to New London to settle once for all the local football championship, and it only required 60 minute sto convince the 5,000 spectators beyond the shadow of a doubt the overwhelming superiority of the Base over the Colonials at every angle of the game.

The following Thursday found the Subs engaging in their hardest and probably most disheartening game of the season, when it played a tie score game with the hard fighting and extremely good team from the Torpedo Station of Newport. The game was all won when the referee unfortunately allowed a forward pass that had been grounded. However, the Torpedo Station had a good team and was composed of the hard fighters yet seen on the Base gridiron and are to be congratulated on their wonderful showing. It is hoped to remove the tie score in a decisive fashion next year.

Thanksgiving day found the team bringing a long season to a close by taking on the Mohawk team at Meriden. Even the great Barnikow could not help the Mohawks sufficiently that day and the Base chalked up another victory after having played a flawless game of football. The forward passing that day on the muddy field was truly superb and the team came in for a lot of praise for the way it handled the ball.

The season is now over and they can point to a very successful one, having tallied seven victories against four defeats, and it only remains for them to better the record next year, as most of the gang will be with them again then.

Lieut Carlyle Craig and Lieut. Harley Cope ably coached the squad and had the confidence and support of the entire team.

This was Lieut. Craig's first appearance in the football world since 1916, when he left the Naval academy, where he generated that team against the Army. The backfield soon showed the results of Mr. Craig's work on both defense and offense. Much credit for the successful season is due to his coaching and playing. In a football suit he was surprisingly fast and elusive, making many long gains against the opposing teams.

Lieut. Cope deserves most of the credit for building up the strong line. His football record with service teams is enviable. He came here from the west coast, where he led the U. S. S. Birmingham to championship. Liked and respected by all for his sunny disposition, his hard work and his undying will, he was a veritable tower of strength on the gridiron. Few gains were made through his tackle by the opponents, but the backs found always an opening to plow through when the signal called for an off tackle play.

The Personnel of the Team.

Morse. On a team where everyone acts as a cog in a machine it is hard to pick individual stars, but Morse's work as skipper of the team and at left guard and tackle was most commendable and it is hoped that the team may be lucky enough to have him with them next season, when his cool-headedness, fairness and popularity will be just as much in demand.

Locke. "Papa" Locke is a real old "iron" man and has the famous pluck that makes our navy the mistress of the seas. A born football player, and full of the old "Don't give up the ship" spirit that will make him a valuable asset to any team, and we long again to hear him call from the wing defense position "Hold the line."

Bailey. It is an enviable record that old "Bill" has of never having been outplayed by an opposing center. Never missing a signal, always on the alert, a hard fighter, ability to diagnose a play and steady brain work, has put him in the All-American class for the last two years, and an effort will be made to have him with us in 1924.

Michaels. "Mike," an all around athlete, did not hit his stride until the Arkansas game, due to injuries in the Holy Cross game, but when he did he made the "Arkies" think that a couple of demons had been let loose in their midst. From then on until the end of the season "Mike" played a hard, fast, consistent game.

Moore. "Dinty" started right in at the beginning and convinced everyone that he could engage successfully in other sports beside baseball and his work on defense and offense throughout the season easily stamped him as one of the best backfield men.

Hart. "Bill" would make any good college center hustle for his position and his cheerful disposition and words have turned many an ugly situation into a laugh.

Kelly. The little fighting Irishman had a hard time getting his opponents to bend his nose into the shape he wanted it, but he was always on hand to call just the right play that would give them first downs and touchdowns. The team has perfect confidence in his judgment at all times.

Compton. This modest little chap came unheralded to the Base but his modesty did not prevent him from giving up most of his baseball leave and cinching the right end position. His playing during the entire season was fast, hard, snappy and consistent, and he is the sort of man old Dobie himself would reach out for.

Murphy. Here's another son of the old sod that has played a game that would make even our old Holy Cross friendly enemy, Mahoney, exert himself for honors. A long pass from Locke or Kelly to "Spud" was always a surety.

Johnson. Our hat is off to "Johnny" at every turn—old enough in years to have a navy of his own—young enough in spirit to be in high school—Johnson has given his best to the team at all times and his tireless energy and "never say die" spirit has been a brace for the team through many a rough spot.

May. A man who well deserved the reputation he brought with him from Pearl Harbor where the game is played in all its seriousness.

Coombs. A man who is always lazy until the ball is snapped—then try and get past or through him.

Anderson. What "Red" lacked in weight he made up for in fight and speed and to see him spill the opponents' interference like so many pins or to snag a forward pass out of the air was a sight that would thrill even one of our neighbors across the great pond.

Lowe. Has the old position of right tackle all sewed up for next season if he continues to play his hard clean, conscientious game.

Andreiot. Certainly proved a stumbling block for aspirants for the left tackle position and is to be praised for his excellent game and the old navy fight.

Hanal. As soon as he had worked himself down to his fighting trim, this hard little plugger from the S-3 went out for first position at guard, and by his consistent playing won the coveted billet before the season was over.

Moser. A young chap that takes to football as naturally as a sub takes a dive, and who bids fair to become one of the Base's best bets for next season.

Hess. It has always been believed that this big six-footer would be a terror to the enemy if he could just get into a game with intent to do as much harm as possible, and it has only been his too extremely good nature that has kept him off the big leagues.

High. The big marine has only been kept off the first string on account of injuries and due to the fact that he was big-hearted enough to help the team out in the backfield where help was needed most instead of holding down a regular position on the line. Will be a hard man to keep off the first string of backs next year.

Mathews. A man endowed with a small stature but a large heart to keep trying, and his ceaseless efforts made Kelly put forth his best to general the team.

Buskis. Buskis proved the old Salvation Army slogan when he arose from the hospital on several occasions to come out and show his worth on the gridiron, and he displayed the old stuff that heroes are made of.

Baker. "Jew" qualified as the best end—in the minstrel gang—but his willingness and spirit will make him a most valuable man to the squad next year.

Murdis. The "Doc" was not a player, but with his bag of bandages, liniment and first aid hooch he kept the team going through a season of hard knocks and bruises that will make the gang forever grateful to him.

A loss was felt at the middle of the season when they lost the services of two very valuable men—Bartacheck and Schaperow. None of us will ever forget old Bartacheck's long drive in his tin lizzie to play with them in New Haven when his assistance was most needed.

Norway will be represented by ninety-nine athletes and officials at the 1924 Olympics. They will include twenty marksmen, four fencers, ten track and field athletes, four tennis players, eleven boxers, twenty-three gymnasts, five polo players, nine cyclists, eight yachtsmen and four officials.

STONINGTON HIGH

Of the smaller high schools in Eastern Connecticut Stonington stood out above the others in sports. This high school with only a small amount of material to draw upon for athletic teams made an excellent showing both in football and baseball, to the Stonington football team goes the honor of being the only team in the Interscholastic league to beat Westerly, the league champions. This game meant more to the Stonington team than all the rest of the schedule put together and it was considered a successful year for the school.

KILLINGLY HIGH

Killingly's athletic accomplishments outside the basketball team were only of the mediocre type. Killingly's schedules both in baseball and football were not strenuous and although Killingly made a good showing the teams cannot be reckoned in as claimants for any high school titles. However, in basketball Killingly stood out among the leaders of the eastern part of the state. Killingly's quintet played a very hard schedule and finished the season with a very enviable record and it can be safely said they were the ranking team of the Quinebaug valley.

PUTNAM HIGH

Putnam high although it did not enter much into eastern Connecticut interscholastic sports is deserving of mention in any review of sports in this part of the state. Putnam has had some very creditable athletic teams and has always been a worthy foe of the teams further south. The past season has seen Putnam play some good games both on the diamond and on the gridiron and in all a most successful season has been the share of Putnam.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK IN 1924 IS BRIGHT FOR UNITED STATES

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, Declares World Situation in General Is Hopeful—Strength and Stability of Western Hemisphere With Promise of Adjustment of Franco-German Relations Create Hopeful Foundation for New Year.

(By Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce)

The important thing in formulating any judgment as to the economic future is an understanding of our present position and of the forces that are in motion for and against economic progress. The following summary is based on the annual review by the United States department of commerce representatives throughout the world.

The economic outlook for our own country for the next year is bright. In general the world situation is hopeful. The general spirit of prudence, the absence of speculation, complete employment, high production, and the great financial strength and stability of the important states in the Western Hemisphere, together with the promise of the early conference for systematic consideration of constructive solution of the world's greatest economic menace—Franco-German relations—all create a hopeful foundation on which the New Year may build.

Three Areas

An economic weather chart of the world would show three distinct areas.

First, the Western Hemisphere, Australia, and Africa, which have made distinct economic progress during the past year, achieving a high degree of economic recovery.

Second, Russia, the Baltic, the Balkan States, the Near East, Italy and Spain, which are still struggling with post-War political, social, currency, debt and budget problems but yet show undoubted progress in the restoration of commerce and industry.

Third, an area of economic depression resulting from the occupation of the Ruhr and the collapse in Germany. While most acute in that country it radiates its depressing influences strongly over Poland, Czecho Slovakia, Switzerland, Hungary, Scandinavia, Holland and Great Britain. France can well be placed in this group because the failure to secure reparations has contributed to an unbalanced budget and the resulting indirect inflation. This has concealed the true situation and has given an artificial and forced draught to the industrial activity. The other countries of the group are suffering from a distressing increase of unemployment.

The German collapse has in less degree affected every other part of the world. The decreased consuming power of Germany and of the states most affected has contributed to the low price levels of food products in the United States and other food exporting countries. The decrease in her steel and coal production at first gave some stimulus to the production of other countries, but this is now offset by decreased buying power of the depressed area for other commodities. One other effect of importance has been the undoubted substantial flight of capital from many of the states in this area of depression to the United States, resulting in further excessive accumulation of gold here. The economic world has not yet felt the full impact of the occupation of the Ruhr. Were it not for the hope inspired by the initiation of negotiations for settlement of the German problem the situation would be most unpromising for the future.

Trade Problems

Even with settlement accomplished there will arise considerable problems in readjustment of trade through reentry of German coal and steel into the markets and through the possible (and to be hoped) return of capital which has sought refuge in the United States from many parts of Europe. During the whole year passed the events of the depression area have at least served to inspire caution in the rest of the world and have contributed to the absence of speculation and, therefore, to their fundamental stability. If it be possible to reconstruct Germany's finances during the forthcoming year and to secure such assistance to France as will enable the stabilization of the franc, the world will have entered into a period of great hope and much promise of prosperity. Full consummation cannot, of course, be accomplished without a large measure of disarmament in Europe, for the armies today maintained by 170 million people there are upon a scale which if repeated in the Western Hemisphere, would mean 3,000,000 men under arms—a strain that would have made recuperation almost impossible on this side of the Atlantic even with the economic strength that this hemisphere possesses.

Russia is slowly making progress with the inch-by inch abandonment of communism and socialism. War has ceased in the Near East. Greece and Turkey are turned toward progress The eastern states of Europe are sensibly approaching sound projects for stabilization of budgets and currency. China is still disturbed politically but her commerce is maintained despite of it. The Japanese disaster has had less effect upon her economic stability than many anticipated and has furnished new proof of the great strength and courage of that country. Latin America is steadily increasing in productivity but currency conditions in some instances leave much to be desired. Except in Mexico there has been a steady increase in political and social stability.

Our own country has shown a more freedom from depressing European economic influences than most others. The explanation lied in the fact that although our exports are of profound importance less than six per cent. of our total productivity is exported and of this only about one half to Europe. The proportion of different products exported to Europe of course varies and European conditions are therefore, fluctuating upon different industries. As less than one per cent. of our manufactured products find their market in Europe the direct effect upon these industries is more negligible than upon certain agricultural products which are much more dependent upon European consumption, such as wheat and pork products, and we endure both economic and political reactions at home from this latter fact.

Highest Productivity Period

In 1923 the United States have witnessed the highest total productivity and movement of commodities since the war, with full employment, high real wages, greatly increased savings, large additions to home building, and the largest increase in railway equipment since the war. The whole has been accompanied by a remarkable absence of speculation, consequent over-accumulation of consumable goods, or dangerous expansion of credit. As we are not in a boom we can expect freedom from a slump. Some secondary interrogations can be raised as to the effect of the expansion of installment buying of consumable goods, the acute suffering in the Northwest agricultural areas, the increase on stocks of some commodities, and decrease on some advance orders. These items are small compared to the whole industrial fabric. Taking the country as a whole we never in history have enjoyed a higher standard of living and comfort, nor so great a degree of commercial and industrial efficiency as today or so wide an understanding of the forces which control the ebb and flow of business. As severe as the situation is in the worst of the agricultural states yet the disparity between agricultural prices as a whole and industrial commodities is gradually lessening and the economic balance is tending to right itself.

Foreign Trade Increased

A more detailed examination of our own situation based upon the first eleven months, and some later data, indicates that our foreign trade will show about $4,100,000,000 in exports and about $3,800,000,000 in imports—an increase of seven per cent. in the former and 20 per cent. in the latter over 1922. The merchandise balance will be about $300,000,000 in our favor. Net gold and silver imports will be about $1250,000,000 or on the face of these figures almost a full liquidation of the trade balance. On the other hand, our very large net expenditure upon tourists, emigrant remittances, and other ocurrent invisible items have been apparently liquidated by the very considerable flight of capital from Europe. Our publicly issued loans to foreign countries and enterprises have been about $300,000,000 net for the year, as compared to over $600,000,000 last year.

Our manufactured production taken together will show about ten per cent. higher than 1920 and fifteen per cent. higher than 1922. The 1923 production of coal and coke shows a great increase, but the strike in 1922 prevents any useful comparison with last year. Production for this year increased over 1922 by about forty per cent in iron and steel, about fifty per cent. in copper, about sixty per cent. in automobiles, about fifteen per cent. in rubber tires, about ten per cent. in lumber, about twenty per cent. in cement, about twenty per cent. in sanitary ware and about ten per cent. in leather. Textiles were about the same as the year before.

In the agricultural products cotton production increased about three per cent; the total bushels of cereals show an increase of about three per cent; pork products about twenty per cent., beef about five per cent.—with a slight increase in dairy produce.

Year of Home Building

In construction work the large additions to our railway equipment have enabled the railways to fully handle the traffic for the first time since the war, and marks a great achievement. In building there has been about the same floor space constructed but there has been a great shift from public construction to make way for private work, as indicated by the decline of over twenty per cent. in public building construction, and an increase of about fifteen per cent. in residential buildings compared to 1922. This shift from public to private construction is also indicated by the fact that concrete road contracts declined about sixteen per cent, while the output of cement, however, increased as above.

In transportation, car loadings were increased by about fifteen per cent. Cargo traffic through the Panama Canal doubled, it increased forty per cent. in through Sault Ste. Marie and thirty per cent. through the Erie canal. The overseas tonnage was about the same.

Consumption is indicated by the increase in sales of mail order houses by about thirty per cent., in chain stores eighteen per cent. and department stores about ten per cent. over 1922. Postal receipts were ten per cent. greater than 1922.

The stocks of goods generally at the end of this year are somewhat higher than at the beginning of the year and unfilled orders for steel are lower, as are orders for railway equipment But the large employment bids fair for large continued consumption of goods.

Price levels maintained comparative stability. Wholesale average prices of all commodities declined about three per cent. for the year and stand fifty-two per cent. above 1913. Average prices for ground crops increased fifteen per cent. while livestock declined about seven per cent. Retail food prices increased during the year about four per cent. and the Labor Department Cost of Living Index would show an increase of about four per cent.

National Debt Reduced

The national debt has been reduced about one billion dollars during the year; bank debits to individual accounts remained about the same in New York but increased about twelve per cent. in the rest of the country. The money in circulation apparently increased about six per cent. Member banks show an increase of about six per cent. in loans and discounts. The reserve ratio is about the same as a year ago, that is about seventy-six per cent. Savings increased about ten per cent. and life insurance sales about twenty-two per cent. The financial items, therefore, show a general parallel with increased production without inflation.

In summary, the world situation continues under the European cloud of the reparations dispute, unbalanced budgets, unstable currencies, and the political uncertainties of armies in the old allied states greater than pre war. Yet the realization of the necessity to constructive solution of reparations, the constructive aid to Austria and Hunsary, and the projects for budget reorganization in other countries, all give hope that we have at last taken a turning.

Our own country has exhibited extraordinary strength and progress. The basis of healthy business activity lies in balanced budgets, stable currency, high production accompanied by proportionate consumption and savings with an absence of speculation, extravagance, and inflation. These things we have in the United States. We have even more in the hope of decreasing taxes. The odds are favorable to 1924.

Urges Entry Into League of Nations.

Washington, Dec. 31—Renewing his offensive in favor of the entrance of the United States into the league of nations, Samuel Gompers president of the American federation of labor, has written an article for the forthcoming issue of the organization's official mazagine declaring that the alternative to such a step is the country's submission to "a league of international financial interests." The issue canno the neglected, Mr. Gompers declared, because public interest in the subject is growing, to the point that "Europe promises to be an overshadowing interest in 1924."

NEW LONDON COUNTY BOYS WIN BULLETIN PRIZES FOR ESSAYS

Austin D. Lathrop of Uncasville and Walter L. Thorp of North Stonington Point Out Value of a Purebred Bull in a Dairyman's Herd.

According to the announcement of the judges, Austin D. Lathrop, Raymond Hill, Uncasville, is the winner of the $3 first prize and Walter L. Thorp, North Stonington, winner of the $2 second prize offered by the Bulletin in the essay contest on The Value of A Purebred Bull in a Dairyman's Herd.

The contest was open to any boy or girl who had not passed the twentieth birthday on Dec. 1, 1923 and was conducted under the auspices of the New London County Farm and Home Bureau.

The following are the prize winning essays:

First Prize Essay.

I have been taught that the way to measure the value of anything is by the good that it does. The greatest thing that a purebred bull does is to improve the standard of production over that of the cows that were in the herd. By reading the published results of the tests made by western agricultural colleges it is found that purebred bulls have increased the production, to almost twice as much milk and once and three quarters the amount of milk produced by their dams, in the first cross. Similarly, improvement is shown in each cross afterwards, providing purebred bulls are used.

The purebred bull removes a great deal of the mystery involved in breeding cattle, because one is pretty sure what the outcome of breeding any cow to a purebred bull will be. Purebreds have been kept pure for so long that the progeny will all be of like description. So a cross to a bull of pedigree, which is the same as with record of breeding, will be certain of a calf similar to his stronger breed ancester, namely the bull.

Consequently much care should be taken to chcose the type of bull that is most to be desired to suit the type of work that is to be required of his get. Care should also be used to pick an animal from a strong line of breeding and of parentage with good records because the records of the future are read from the results of the past with gradual improvement.

In carrying out the statement that a purebred bull will increase the standard of milk production to two times that of their dams, take the average production of New London county which is about thirty six hundred pounds of milk and it will be seen that the first will bring the production up to seventy hundred pounds of milk more or less per cow in this county. When this is figured at ten cents per quart or five cents per pound it is seen that an additional sum of one hundred and seventy dollars is added to the milk check with only the extra expense of the difference in grain as practically no more roughage will be eaten by a cow producing the difference of milk. Neither will this good cow take any more stable or pasture room than would a poor one.

Illustrating the improvement upon future cattle of the herd it will be seen that the first cross gives an animal with one half pedigreed blood The result of the next cross will be an animal of three quarters pure blood and so on, the sixth cross giving an animal with sixty-three sixty fourths pure blood.

Practically a pure bred herd can be gained in fifteen years of constructive breeding. A purebred herd of cattle is far more pleasing to work with than a nondescript bunch of scrubs.

AUSTIN D. LATHROP.

Second Prize Essay.

Why did God place wild cows on earth, if he did not expect man to domesticate and improve them?

In the average dairy herd the cows are bred to scrub bulls just as though they were running wild, and had not been improved, either in quality or quantity of milk. Do you think this is making the best of the things God gives us?

There are very few farmers who are selling milk but could find a place to use a few more nickels.

Farmers like to be like others and have automobiles but would not think of improving their herd with this money. Some may think, "O well, that is a large price to pay for a bull." A well bred bull whose dam's records can be traced back from three to four generations can be purchased for $75. This seems an enormous sum, but figure what a scrub is costing for feed and then think of the fact that it is not improving the herd.

The bull is a very important individual in other respects, in that he transmits half the characteristics to his offspring. For this reason he should be a descendant of a high producing and nice appearing cow, as well as a nice sire.

If one watches the successful dairy farmer, he will find he is very hard to suit when it comes to the bull question. Never be satisfied with a bull if you have to try to find a better one. Man has shown his intelligence in invention. Why not show it in the breeding of cows?

People are increasing in number very rapidly and in a few years all the available land must be used for raising grain, and if ten cows produce 150 quarts of milk, why not have five cows produce that much? It costs no more to feed good cows than it does to keep scrubs. Neither do they take up more room in the stall.

If a bull costs more than you feel you can afford to pay, have your neighbors pay part and allow them the service of a good bull. This is carried on with marked success in a great many places. Why not here?

Let's go get one of them and be up-to-date as well as prosperous.

Yours for pure bred bulls and fine producing cows. Hoping this essay will bring success.

WINTER COUGHS AND COLDS

With the changeable weather which we have at this season of the year coughs and colds are very prevalent. Be prepared for them. Have a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound handy, and with the first sign of a cough or cold take a dose and prevent a serious ailment. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been the standard family cough remedy for over 35 years, bringing prompt relief, and when once used you will never be without it. Lee & Osgood Co.

SIX PERSONS BLOWN TO BITS: NINE FATALITIES IN FIRE

Nitroglycerine Explosion in an Oil Well Near Franklin, Pa., Killed Six Men in the Rig of the Well—One Man Who Had Just Left the Well Was Blown Into a Hole and Escaped Injury—Nine Persons Perished in a Farmhouse at Tylersburg, Pa.

Franklin, Pa., Jan. 1.—Six persons, one of them a woman, were killed today in a premature explosion of nitroglycerine at the "shooting" of an oil well on the farm of John A. Stone, five miles from here. Two other men near the scene escaped injury. The dead are:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stone, Herbert Whitman and John Whitman, brothers; Eugene H. Neil and Robert Kinnear.

Stone, who was a son of the owner of the oil lease, and his wife went to witness the "shooting" of the well. The others were assisting in the operation. All lived on nearby farms with the exception of Neil, whose home was in Franklin.

When Kinnear, who was to shoot the well, opened the can containing 16 quarts of nitro-glycerine he warned those present as spectators to move some distance away. J. D. Harvens took his advice but was only a few feet away when he was knocked to the ground by the force of the explosion. Lawrence Mawhinney, the other survivor, had gone to a nearby brook for a bucket of water and was also knocked to the ground. Neither was injured although portions of the wrecked derrick fell all about them.

Kinnear was pouring the explosive when it let go and his body was blown to bits. Only a few bones had been found tonight. The bodies of the other five victims were badly mangled but each was recognizable.

The force of the explosion rocked houses within a radius of a mile and shook windows here, five miles away.

A tomack, weighing 196 pounds, was hurled through a steel oil tank fifty feet away.

Stevens in a statement made here said Neil just before opening the explosive nitro-glycerine had declared it had been "easy" that he had shaved it out. Stevens said Kinnear had shaved the shell back a short distance. Mrs. Neil declined, replying that she wished to see it all, according to Stevens, who said he had a premonition that something was going to happen and moved away. He said he had only walked a short distance away when the explosion lifted him from his feet and hurled him into a gully.

NINE PERSONS INCINERATED IN FIRE IN A FARMHOUSE

Oil City, Pa., Jan. 1.—Nine persons were killed in a fire that destroyed a farmhouse at Tylersburg, near Chippenville, Clarion county, today.

The victims were James Mentzer and his eight grandchildren, seven of them being children of Claude Emminger at whose home the tragic fire occurred. The other victim was Michael McManigle, 14, who was visiting at the Emminger home.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Emminger, who had been ill and was sleeping on the first floor of the house. She was awakened by the fumes of smoke and groped her way to the stairway, summoning her husband.

Emminger succeeded in rescuing Mrs. Mentzer from the second floor and attempted several times to return for the children and their grandfather, but each time was driven back by the flames and smoke. He was badly burned about the face and hands.

Joseph G. MacMillan, of Shippenville, coroner of Clarion county, conducted an investigation late today and decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The high wind accompanying the cold wave was believed to have been the indirect cause of the fire. A soot fire in a defective flue was believed to have been fanned to such a heat that it set fire to the house.

The ruins were searched after the fire had burned itself out and the charred bones of the nine victims were placed in a small box and taken to the Tylersburg Methodist church where funeral services will be held tomorrow.

MUMMERS HAD ANNUAL PARADE IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—Parading for four miles despite cold weather, more than ten thousand New Year's "shooters" today upheld the traditions of the mummer's parade—a New Year celebration peculiar to Philadelphia.

Thousands of gorgeously garbed clowns togged at the flowing capes of their kings and princes, which, weighted down by masses of rich embroidery and costly materials, called for great exertion during the fitful gusts of wind. One club in the division astounded the spectators by appearing with its king clown in the center of a cape that required 50 attendants to carry it. Thirty-five feet in width, the great cloak stretched for half a square, and contained 1,908 yards of cloth, encrusted with massive designs in rainbow hues and tinsel.

Interspersed between the fancy clubs were individual entrants for prizes, luxuriously gowned as "ladies." One of these wore a sweeping gown of solid sequins, with a nine-foot train. A headdress of forty red ostrich feathers topped the costume.

The bands were frequently compelled by applause to halt for fifteen minutes or more while the crowds on the sidewalk sang or danced to their strains.

Prizes aggregating $20,000, donated by civic authorities, were distributed after the parade to the best organizations in each division. Separate prizes were awarded the individual marchers.

FIVE NEGRO LABORERS CRUSHED BY AN ENGINE

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 1.—Five negro laborers were killed and two white men and eight negroes were injured, some of them seriously, in a collision tonight between a shifting engine and a construction train on the seaboard air line railroad on the outskirts of the city. One of the injured negroes was expected to die.

The exact cause of the accident has not been determined but it was said the shifting engine backed off a siding and sideswiped the construction train as the latter was passing the switch.

SEAMY SIDE OF NEW YEAR'S DAY IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1.—Taking toll of the events that make the aftermath of every New Year's celebration, New York found today that four persons had lost their lives, eight had been wounded by pistol bullets fired by over-zealous celebrators, innumerable persons were made ill by bad liquor and those who became intoxicated enough to attract police attention numbered 53.

And yet the advent of 1924 was celebrated with fewer casualties than has been the case in the past. The revelers were gay but harmless for the most part, and most of those who were hurt were victims of accident rather than design.

Three deaths resulted from drinking bad liquor, bringing the total over the Christmas and New Year's holidays to 18. Bellevue hospital alone reported 82 sick from poison liquor.

One death by shooting came from a quarrel which terminated a New Year's party, and another person was wounded seriously in a similar quarrel. Eight persons were victims of stray bullets, one being seriously injured. Five celebrants were arrested for carrying weapons.

Besides those arrested for being intoxicated, among whom were many women, two persons were brought to court for disorderly conduct, and another for reckless driving while drunk, which resulted in an accident.

The fire department reported the busiest night in years, due, in part, to 37 false alarms. Ambulance calls totalled 35, and telephone calls kept the police busy, chiefly in response to complaints about sticks, stray bullets and even ash cans flying through windows.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS AGAINST McCOOK PROPERTY

Hartford, Jan. 1.—Attorney General Frank E. Healey, said today htat he expected to file papers in condemnation proceedings against the McCook property at Niantic, which he will institute for the state, sometime during the present month in the supreme court for New London county.

The condemnation proceedings will bring to a head a long fight between the state and the McCook family, represented by Executive Secretary Anson T. McCook, for a portion of the land owned by the family adjoining the Seaside State Tuberculosis Sanitorium, East Lyme.

Additional land is needed by the sanitorium for its work and additional beach space is very much desired, according to Senator Irwin C. Atchison, chairman of the committee which reported the condemnation bill.

WOMAN DROWNED WHEN COUPE RAN OFF DOCK

Elizabeth, N. J., Jan. 1.—Helen May Andrews, 19, of East Orange, was drowned in Staten Island Sound, shortly before fiver o'clock this morning when a small coupe driven by Calvin W. Huntoon, also of East Orange, ran off the city dock at the end of Bayway. The body was recovered late this afternoon. Huntoon is suffering from shock and the effects of the submersion and is held pending an investigation.

He told police that he lost his way in the fog while returning from a New Year's dance at Madison. In Elizabeth, he said, he was told to drive straight ahead and that he did so until his car ran off the dock.

SPRINGFIELD ELECTRICIANS HAVE GONE ON STRIKE

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 1—Failing to secure an increase from 85 cents to $1.12 1-2 an hour, 180 electricians went on strike here today. The previous agreement fixing a rate of 95 cents expired at midnight last night. Union officials said that five contractors who have agreed to meet the men's demands will be supplied with help.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Dr. Louisa H. Hart Honored

London, Jan. 1—The New Year's honors list includes the name of Miss Louisa Helena Hart, an American woman in charge of the Dr. Lott Lyles hospital Chittur, Madras, an institution connected with the Arcot missions of the Dutch Reformed Church of America. Miss Hart is given the Kisar-I-Hind medal of the first class. She received the medal of the second class in 1909. The medal is conferred for public service in India.

CLAIMS OF ADVANCE BY MEXICAN REBELS BASELESS

Mexico City, Dec. 31.—(By the A. P.)—A report that General Rodriques, supported by Generals Crisoforo Ocampo and Bartolo Basave, all leading officers in General Figueroa's army, had advanced into the state of Mexico, was branded as baseless here today. The reports had it that General Silvestre Castro with 500 men had occupied Jojutla and General Victoriano Barcenas had reached Puente De Ixtla in the state of Morelos with an equal number of men.

Federal officials asserted the reports of Figueroa's advance had been spread by De Huertasta adherents.

During the lull in the major military activities, reports have been flooding the Mexico City press from northern Vera Cruz centers that isolated parts of Quertaro, Chihuahua, Hidalgo, Durango, Michoacan, Oaxaco and Guanajuato, were overrun by by bands of marauders proclaiming allegiance to any faction suiting their fancies and dedicating themselves to looting ranches, small towns and robbing travelers.

Unofficial reports from Puhela have been received here to the effect that the lawless elements which the government previously has prevented from carrying out land seizures, have wreaked vengeance upon the Haciendas of Lewis Virginia Evans, a British subject. The reports also stated the marauders robbed properties belonging to O. R. Jenkins, former U. S. consular agent in Puebla, who figured in a kidnapping episode in 1919.

Tompico specials declare looting of oil company payrolls has been resumed, although the only organized revolutionary movement existing in that region consists in the revolt of 200 members of the Tuxpam garrison under Colonel Trinidad Diaz De Rio, who is operating in the vicinity of Potrero Del Plano.

The Chihuahua state government reports operations of two outlaw gangs, one under the former Villista general, Manuel Chao. Governor Jesus Agustin Castro of Durango reports that Eudardo and Jose Arrieta, old time outlaws, are again attempting to raid the country. Chiapas authorities state that small bands from Tabasco have crossed the state line.

Other states, however, according to reports received at the war department, are entirely quiet, aside from those from where the rebels are operating.

CIRCUS CLOWN PETE DIED IN NEW YORK AGED 82

New York, Jan. 1—Pete Conklin, dean of American circus clowns, whose colorful career dated back to the sixties, when he travelled with P. T. Barnum's tent show, took his final exit cue today, his last coherent speech being a recitation which he had spoken hundreds of times in white spangled tights and jester's cap.

It was the same speech, but the thousands who had laughed at the lines in the heydey of his success, had dwindled to a solitary nurse who sat by his bedside during his dying hours. And the sawdust ring's towering walls of laughing human faces had given place to a bare hospital ward.

The old jester's wish that he might die on the stage was denied him by a few days. He was playing a minor part in the drama "Queen Victoria" when he was stricke mand removed to the hospital. He will be granted another wish, however, and that was to be buried by his wife, who died six months ago.

Forty of Pete's 82 years were spent as a clown. When his career as a jester was finished because of his ed modern "knockabout clowns" he became a familiar figure at a Coney Island, where he was known for 30 years.

FATHER AND CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 1.—A father and his three children were burned to death early this morning in a fire that destroyed a negro shack in Conoverstown five miles from here. The father, John Cameron, 41, colored, and his 12 year old son, Ridley, lost their lives in a heroic attempt to rescue the other two children Mary 10, and John, Jr., 8, trapped in the shack by the flames.

Cameron with his wife left the house to attend a watch night service in the home of a neighbor. When he returned shortly after midnight the structure was a mass of flames. Camillia, a three months old baby, was rescued by her sister, Lena 14.

LIVES OF 100 NURSES WERE ENDANGERED AT BELLEVUE

New York, Jan. 1.—Lives of 100 Bellevue hospital nurses seemed in danger tonight when a fire swept the Eastern Chair Co. factory on 25th street, just back of Osborn hall, the graduate nurses' home. Twenty pieces of fire apparatus, however, quickly responded to three alarms and prevented the blaze from spreading.

So efficiently did the firemen work that occupants of an adjoining tenament, although aroused, were not forced to leave their homes.

AMERICAN DESTROYERS RETURNED TO HONG KONG

Hongkong, Jan. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Three American destroyers which have been at Canton since December 13 assisting the naval forces of the foreign pdwers in guarding the Chinese customs house against threatened seizure by Sun Yat-Sen, South China leader, returned to Hong Kong today. The departure of the deshroyers is believed to indicate that the tenseness of the Canton situation has lessened.

ONCE A FARM LABORER, NOW MAYOR OF TORONTO

Toronto, Jan. 1.—William Wesley Hilts, once a farm laborer, was elected mayor of Toronto by a majority of more than 10,000 over Thomas Church, who was defeated for the first time in his 24 years as a public office holder. Church is a member of parliament for North Toronto had been elected mayor seven times.

New Year's Reception At the White House

Washington, Jan. 1.—Evidence was furnished at the White House today that the days of big New Year's receptions at the executive mansion have passed because apparently the American people have come to a realization it is such affairs that wear out the chief executive.

Time was when the New Year's receptions brought eight to ten thousand people to the White House but when today's reception ended it was found that less than 4,000—a total of 3,891 to be exact—had shaken hands with President and Mrs. Coolidge. The last previous reception, that given by President and Mrs. Harding in 1923, was attended by more than 7,500 persons and in the days of the Cleveland, Roosevelt and Taft receptions, there scarcely ever were less than 8000 visitors to the executive mansion.

Today's reception, according to old White House attaches, was equal in color and brilliancy, however, to any of those of previous years. The famous first floor rooms of the mansion were decorated beautifully, yet simply with flowers and plants from the White House conservatories and the usual brilliance attended the receiving of foreign diplomats dressed in thier state uniforms and the high officers of the army, navy and marine corps.

President and Mrs. Coolidge descended the broad stairway from the upper apartments promptly at 11 o'clock, attended by military aides and to the accompaniment of "Hail to the Chief," from the full marine bands. The chief executive and the first lady took their places in the Blue Room in front of a lighted Christmas tree and until shortly before three o'clock, with the exception of an interval of 20 minutes for lunch, a steady stream passed by them. Mrs. Coolidge wore a gown of red chiffon, brocaded in a rose design in dark blue velvet with shoes to match. She wore no jewelry.

First to extend greetings were the member of the cabinet and their wives, and then came the officers of the diplomatic corps. Next the judiciary, then the higher offices of the army, navy and marine corps, officials of all the various bureaus and agencies of the government representatives of patriotic and civic organizations, and finally the general public, some of whom had taken up their stand in line as early as 9.30 o'clock, despite a chill wind.

This president smilingly acknowledged and Mrs. Coolidge graciously received the wishes for the New Year extended by everyone of those who passed. Both often paused to say a few words to children or some aged persons after the public began passing through about one o'clock. Arrangements had been made to expedite matters as much as possible and often as many as 40 to 45 persons were greeted in a minute.

The last of the generalic in line passed out of the mansion at exactly two o'clock, and Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge retired to the second floor while the marine band, two sections of which had played alternately throughout the reception, departed. Within a few minutes more than 400 late comers had gathered outside the White House and the President and Mrs. Coolidge noticing them came downstairs again and greeted them.

Mr. Coolidge, showing no effects of the strenuous task, soon was over at his office, and finding no work to do, went out for a walk around Lafayette square. Returning he told newspapermen that he felt fine.

ANNIVERSARY OF FAMOUS BARITONE, ANTONIO SCOTTI

New York, Jan. 1.—The final curtain at tonight's gala performance of "Tosca" with Antonio Scotti in his favorite role of Scarpia was redrawn to give Signor Scotti the center of the stage in a brilliant ceremony commemorating the baritone's 25th consecutive season at the Metropolitan Opera House, the city's hope of grand opera for four decades.

An audience, representing all walks of life in the Metropolis, gave the veteran singer an ovation as officials and persons high in the social and artistic life of the city handed him testimonial gifts. Later, at a dinner, in his honor under the auspices of the Italy-America society, he received from the hands of Prince Caetani, italian ambassador, the decoration of the Order of San Maurizioe Lazzaro.

Optimistic Words by President of France

Paris, Jan. 1.—"The world seems justified in hailing the dawn of reconciliation and final peace," said President Millerand today in replying to Monsignor Ceretti, the papal nuncio, spokesman for the diplomatic corps at the New Year's reception in the presidential palace.

The optimistic character of the president's words were in strong contrast with the material conditions under which the new year opened in Paris. The ceremonies took place during weather of the most forbidding sort and in the gloom of impending disaster from the overflowing rivers throughout France. And yet, despite the depressing outlook and the disappointment and difficulties of the year just ended, the outstanding note in the speeches exchanged was one of hope and confidence in the year to come.

Monsignor Ceretti and the French president both referred to the vicissitudes of 1923, the representative of the pontiff pointing out, however, that these might have been much worse.

"Human solidarity," he said, "has shown itself stronger than selfish actions. To ward off the dangers that were foreseen and to repair the evils that had surprised them, men of good will have rewelded the sacred union." That, he added, was what gave me the best reason for hope in the new year.

President Millerand, as usual, received all the leading public officials, beginning with the presidents of the senate and the chamber of deputies. All the marshals of France called to shake hands with the chief executive as did all the leading army officers in Paris. The members of the government, with Premier Poincare at their head, called at the palace and remained to luncheon, after which the functionaries of the city of Paris and the department of the Seine and the members of the diplomatic corps were received.

STUDENTS IN FAVOR OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 1.—An overwhelming expression in favor of the league of nations and the world court of international justice as the best means of preventing war was voiced today in the final sessions of the international convention of the student volunteer movement, in which more than 7,000 student delegates from 1,000 schools and colleges in the United States and Canada, formally approved a statement embodying the sentiment of the gathering.

"We believe that war is unchristian and that the league of nations is the best means of preventing it, but we would resort to war in case an unavoidable dispute had been referred to the league or world court without successful settlement," the approved expression declared.

TANNERS FEAR THE EXHAUSTION OF FORESTS

Washington, Jan. 1.—Within a decade or two, because of the exhaustion of forest resources within the United States, the tanning and leather industries of the country are likely to be dependent upon foreign sources for the supply of tanning extracts without which they must fail.

This conclusion has been reached by special investigators of the commerce department, after nearly a year of work in the inquiry into sources of supply of industrial raw materials authorized by the last congress, before which charges of foreign monopolization and price control of rubber and other commodities were aired.

MORE THAN 100 WARSHIPS ARE TO ENGAGE IN MANEUVERS

Washington, Jan. 1.—More than 100 warships, constituting the greatest armada ever to be gathered under the American flag, will leave their stations tomorrow for the winter manouvers at Panama.

A BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS AND LABOR

New Haven, Jan. 1—Seventy five per cent. of the 35,000 unemployed in this state will soon be at work, according to P. F. O'Meara's estimation, holds a bright outlook for general business and for labor.

"The costs of living are about the same as one year ago and it is not likely there will be much reduction in prices nor in wages for a long long time," he stated. "Wages are fairly good and there will be a good demand for labor at present rates. While living costs are high the people have a larger purchasing power."

GREATEST TRAFFIC IN 1923 YET KNOWN ON RAILROADS

Exclusive of December the Car Loadings Approximated 50,000,000 Cars on the Eastern Railroads,—Previous Record Was 45,000,000 Cars, in 1920—Year Was Marked by a Substantial Improvement in Earnings and in Relations With Labor and the Public—Outlook For the Coming Year is Encouraging.

New York, Jan. 1.—(By the A. P.) Railroads of the United States made more progress in 1923 than in any other year since the outbreak of the World War, according to a review made public today by the committee on public relations of the Eastern railroads, of which E. E. Loomis, President of the Lehigh Valley railroad, is chairman.

Summarizing its conclusions, the committee stated that the year was marked by the greatest traffic yet known; the highest degree of operating efficiency yet achieved; the greatest increase in new facilities for the past ten years; the beginning of substantial new construction after a lapse of almost eight years; improved co-operation with shippers; and by substantial improvement in earnings and in labor and public relations.

While figures for December were not available when the review was prepared, the committee estimated that car loadings for 1923 would amount to nearly 50,000,000 cars as compared with the previous record of 45,000,000 cars in 1920.

"In the course of the greatest traffic yet offered," it was stated, "the railroads succeeded in turning a car shortage into a car surplus. They also handled the country's peak load of traffic without delay."

The statement disclosed that up to December 1, 177,845 new freight cars and 3,704 new locomotives had been put into service and there were still on order 85,789 new freight cars and 739 new locomotives.

During the years 1922 and 1923, it was pointed out, the railroads committed themselves to the purchase of 300,984 freight cars and 5,822 locomotives at a cost of over one billion dollars. During 1923 the roads also projected additions and betterments to cost approximately $600,000,000.

"Despite the fact that there was no general rate reduction in 1923," the review stated, "there was a process of transition and gradual readjustment of individual rates, largely downward. These changes represented the voluntary effort of the railroads to remove the maladjustments caused by the application of horizontal rate increases during and immediately following federal control."

Earnings of the roads for the first ten months of the year approximately $821,000,000 or about 6½ per cent. on the Interstate Commerce Commission's tentative valuation, plus subsequent investment to the 1st of January, 1924, the committee stated. It was estimated that net operating income for the year probably would total around $870,000,000 or about 5 per cent. on the above base, which it was pointed out did not include compensation to new railroad capital invested during 1923.

The committee declared that while it felt these earnings were inadequate, in view of the fact that the railroads had practically no earning power in 1920, the progress made in restoring that earning power represented a substantial and hopeful achievement.

"Business prospects for the coming year," the committee stated, "are encouraging. We may not have high peaks of activity, but we look for a steady year with enough traffic to keep the railroads active.

"The treatment accorded the railroads by congress, regulating authorities, and the public, will largely determine not only railroad results during 1924, but the larger question of the economic activity and prosperity of the country. Unless the railroads as a whole are prosperous the people generally cannot be prosperous, as efficient transportation is the largest element of real prosperity in this country."

DETAINED FOR SEVERAL HOURS AS MURDER SUSPECT

New York, Jan. 1.—Bearing a striking resemblance to Major Norman Percival Bailey, English officer sought for the murder of his wife at Hove, England, on December 7, Carlyle McIntyre, of Thermal, California, was detained as a suspect for several hours upon his arrival in the Orca today.

After undergoing a severe grilling, he won his release by showing authorities his American passport, issued last year, and his certificate of graduation from a German university. He carried a library of philosophic books.

McIntyre's appearance corresponded almost exactly with the description of Major Bailey received by the ship's officers and New York police. Age, height, and color of hair nad eyes were the same. He had similar dental peculiarities and body scars.

McIntyre said his wife and his father, F. M. McIntyre, lived in Thermal, and that he himself was a resident of Des Moines before he went to Europe.

Reports that Major Bailey was traveling with an American girl, led officers to question Miss Helen Stedman, who stood by and reassured McIntyre during his ordeal. She said she had gone abroad with a group of college girls to study European conditions and was returning to Thermal, Cal.

BOSTON TEAMSTERS VOTE TO STRIKE NEXT MONDAY

Boston, Jan. 1.—The general executive board of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers has authorized a strike, voted by the members of the Boston Truck Drivers' and Market and Produce Teamsters' Union, Daniel J. Tobin, general president of the Brotherhood and treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, announced today. The strike is scheduled to go into effect next Monday.

The local unions voted last week to strike to enforce demands for a wage increase and a shorter working week. The present week is of 51 hours and the demand is for a 49 hour week. A flat, increase of $1 a day for all drivers and overtime rates of time and one-half before and double time after midnight were sought in place of the present overtime rates of 70 and 85 cents an hour.

INCREASE OF IMPORTS THROUGH NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1.—Imports of merchandise through the port of New York in 1923 increased $349,5%, $33 over 1922, says a statement made public tonight by officials of the customs district of New York. Domestic exports of merchandise were $358,733,110 greater than in the preceding year.

With the value of merchandise imports estimated for the last three months, the total for the year was $1,-333,874,636, as compared with $1,484,-322,747 in 1922. Domestic exports increased from $1,239,713,990 to $1,598,-445,500. Foreign exports declined from $36,716,979 to $32,289,856.

Total customs receipts for the year were $336,333,461, a gain of $66,673,-582 over 1922.

Gold and silver imports increased from $359,031,423 to $383,006,212. Domestic exports of gold and silver totaled $26,695,943, contrasted with $14,-497,673 in 1922.

S. O. S. CALL PICKED UP DEC. 29 IN MID-ATLANTIC

New York, Jan. 1.—An S. O. S. distress call flashed out of the Pacific ocean was picked up in mid-Atlantic by the Greek liner Byron, on December 30, Captain Vlahkis reported when the vessel docked today.

The wireless operators of the Byron picked up only a scrap of the disabled vessel's name, but its location, about 120 miles west of Puget sound was clearly heard.

CHILD TAGGED FROM ATHENS TO NEW BEDFORD

New York, Jan. 1.—Tagged through from a suburb of Athens, Greece, to New Bedford, Mass., nine year old Veneta Teloury arrived on the Greek liner Byron today.

The travelers' aid society took her to the Grand Central station and placed her on a train for New Bedford, where her parents live. She had been living with her grandmother the past two years in Greece.

OBITUARY

James Bronson Reynolds

New Haven, Jan. 1.—James Bronson Reynolds, president of the American Law and Criminology, died at his home in North Haven today of heart trouble.

Mr. Reynolds had been for many years an invalid and had been in the New Haven hospital for several days last week when an operation was considered inadvisable.

James Bronson Reynolds was the son of Rev. William T. and Sarah M. (Painter) Reynolds and was born in Kiantone, N. Y., March 17, 1861. He was graduated from Yale university where he attended as a divinity student, in 1888, taking up post graduate work in Paris and Berlin. In 1889-90 he visited the Universities of the United Kingdom and Europe, representing the College Y. M. C. A. of America and began the study of social reforms, which he made his life's work.

"Let's Join In" was the slogan of the merrymakers who saw the old year out and welcome the birth of 1924, at the annual Elks' Frolic held Monday evening until 3 o'clock New Year's morning at the Al-Pierre Tabarin, with over five hundred "Bills" and their young lady friends in attendance. The Elks again gave proof that when they undertake a social affair they put it over with a bang and a hurrah without overlooking the smallest detail which might tend to assist in the funmaking. The Tabarin was attractively decorated in keeping with the New-Year's season. The Peerless Orchestra, under the direction of violinist, Ralph Gibson provided delightful dance music which won many encores. The Troubours, a Boston quartet, were heartily applauded for several selections, including burlesques on well known classics. The members of the quartet are: Oscar D. Knight, first tenor, D. P. Wilson, second tenor, William A. Nickerson first base and James S. Whyte second base. LeRoy Fuller is accompanist. At the mystic hour, eleven, all lights were dimmed and the eleven strokes were sounded in solemnity and counted by Esquire James P. Mustard. Auld Lang Syne was then sung and was followed by the offering of the Elks' Toast by Exalted Ruler Charles W. Hill.

The merrymaking was then resumed with redoubled vigor. Before intermission during which a dainty luncheon was served in a temporary cafeteria on the lower floor, Miss Madeline Bolger of Hartford pleased in a toe dancing number which made a big hit and The Lucille Sisters, also of Hartford appeared in kiddie song numbers which were received with favor by the assemblage. Favors of fancy hats, fans, whistles, confetti and streamers were then distributed and the hall was soon a vision of beautiful colors. Midnight was then tolled and exchanges of hearty wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year were heard on all sides.

A great deal of the credit for the complete success of the Frolic is due to the committee which formulated the plans for the affair and which included: Eugene L. Hickey, chairman, Joseph Morrison, secretary; P. D. Donohue, chairman of decorations, William H. Nichols, Roland B. Jordan, George Peloquin, John D. Roy and Roy A. Downer, who was the efficient chairman of the refreshment committee.

Although, to the minds of most people, definitely voted upon and settled the question of reconstructing the municipal ice houses at the pumping station pond in Mansfield, bobs up once more, in the form of a request of an appropriation of $5,500 in addition to the $14,000 already voted upon to complete the work. After the destruction of the houses by fire late last summer, temporary sheds were erected to protect such ice as remained and when the construction of new houses began, considerable money was spent in removing these sheds and large quantities of destroyed material which had remained on the spot after the fire. The chief necessity of this additional money is to make up the deficiency incurred. Mayor Hormisdas Dion has called a special city meeting to be held at the town hall this (Wednesday) evening when a vote will be taken on the matter.

The New Year's edition of the Norwich Bulletin proved exceedingly popular in Willimantic, local dealers being sold out before 11 o'clock in the forenoon. Another bunch of Bulletins secured later also sold on sight.

Much interest was manifested in the summaries for Willimantic which showed such a prosperous year in 1923 with the prediction of even better rbusiness in 1924.

The opening day of 1924, and in Leap Year was quietly spent in this city. The weather was ideal and patches of snow remaining after Sunday night's snowstorm made the beginning of the new year seem more seasonable. Business was suspended during the day during which festivities were confined to homesteads at family gatherings. Young and old attended the New Year's Night dance at the Al-Pierre Tabarin in the evening.

The merchants of Willimantic report retail business good during the holiday season. Shoppers came to this city from Scotland, Columbia, Coventry, Andover, Mansfield, Ashford, Chaplin, Hampton, Phoenixville many coming from Hebron also from Willington and other outlying towns upon which the local merchants depend for over forty per cent. of their yearly business. These people in the main also do their banking at the three local banks and generally look upon Willimantic as their trading center. The population of the city is about 13,000 and in the Windhams 3,500 more, making a total of 14,500. The outlying towns measure up with at least one-third more, showing that the stores of Willimantic cater to at least 20,000 people about half of whom reside outside of the city limits.

Alex Sture was before Judge Frank H. Foss in the police court Tuesday morning to answer to a charge of unlawful possession of firearms, on the grounds that Sture is an alien. The man had a high calibre revolver and a powerful shotgun in his home on lower Main street when a warrant was served on him Monday afternoon by the police. Sture admitted his guilt stating that he was ignorant of the law in this respect. He was fined $1 and costs and the firearms were turned over to the state.

Elaborate ceremonies were carried out in St. Mary's Hall, New Year's Eve, at the annual installation of the Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique. Joseph F. LeFevre acted as installing officer and Joseph F. Gaudreau was master of ceremonies. Garde Sacred Heart, Captain Arthur Vertefeuille, commander, acted as guards of honor for the installation work, which was witnessed by about four hundred guests. A few games of whist were then played were followed by a luncheon served at the tables by a committee and a grand march at 11.30 o'clock with about two hundred and fifty in line. Dancing was then enjoyed and the New Year was ushered in with much cheering and the interchange of hearty good wishes. Excellent dance music was provided by an orchestra directed by William Caisse. For the dances Napoleon Gingras was prompter. As midnight struck the laughter ceased for one minute, while Alexis Caisse the president of the society wished all those present a Happy New Year. Brief addresses were made by Mayor Hormidas Dion, Rev. H. Belec and Rev. Edward A. Mathieu of St. Mary's parish.

The chairman of the committee of arrangements, Napoleon Gingras was highly complimented on the ability which he displayed in making the affair such a success. He was ably assisted by Joseph F. Gaudreau, Omer LaFontaine, Wilfred Pageau, Doria Sylvestre.

The officers installed were: Chaplin, Rev. J. J. Papillon, pastor of St. Mary's church; honorary president, Mayor Hormisdas Dion; president, Alexis Caisse; vice-president, Edmond Sylvestre; recording secretary, Louis C. Vegiard; assistant recording secretary, Arthur Cartier; financial secretary, Florimond Bergeron; assistant financial secretary, Doria Sylvester; corresponding secretary Armand Perreault; treasurer, Alphonse Chagnon. Ordination committee, Wilfred Pageau, Joseph Lariviere and Ovila Garceau. Directors, Exavier Caisse, Joseph Paulhus and Napoleon Gingras. Visiting committee, Edmond Sylvestre; Joseph Paulhus Pierre Lavigne, Wilfred Pageau, Florimond Bergeron; Arthur Cartier, Aldege Beaulieu.

As the returns of the school enumerators' figures are being made, it is found that Windham county gained a total of 181 children of school age during 1923. Windham, Hampton, Chaplin, and Scotland were some of the towns which registered gains. Thompson lost 79 and Putnam 26. Killingly's gain of 228 prevented the county from suffering a loss for the year. The total enumeration for the county was 13,095 as compared to 12,-914 in 1922. The town of Windham with 3,402 children enumerated was just 26 per cent. of the total in the entire county.

Tolland county showed a decrease of 26. Stafford saved the day for that county be a gain of 111, the town being one of the six which showed an increase, while six others showed losses and Union held its same figures. Comparative tables for 1923 and 1922 as recorded at the offices of the compensation office in the state capitol for Windham and Tolland counties follow:

Philadelphia, too, agrees with NORWICH

ALTHOUGH Philadelphia is known as the birthplace of American Liberty, it is also famous for its good cooking.

Nearly seven years ago, the housewives of Philadelphia submitted their best home-made loaves to show us what kind of bread they wanted us to bake for them. These Philadelphia housewives were part of the 43,040 throughout the country who jointly showed us how to make Bond Bread.

Local housewives who now buy Bond Bread daily at their grocers', agree that this loaf does come nearest to the best home-made bread of any they have ever tasted.

In preferring Bond Bread, local folks agree with the Philadelphians. For in Philadelphia, over a million loaves of Bond Bread are eaten every week.

The Bond on every wrapper is our pledge to you that we shall use forever only the pure ingredients that those 43,040 housewives specified when they showed us how to bake Bond Bread.

THIS BOND, printed on each wrapper, guarantees each ingredient and identifies the loaf as the product of the General Baking Company. From this Bond, and all that it implies, Bond Bread gets its name.

Housing, soldiers' bonus and home rule are among the important subjects expected to receive the attention of the 147th session of the New York legislature, which will be opened today.

Senator and representatives who returned to their homes for the Christmas holidays will flock back to Washington today in anticipation of the reassembling of congress tomorrow.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Little Old New York at the Bread

Marion Davies assumes the role of a comely young lad in her Cosmopolitan picture "Little Old New York" which is now playing at the Bread. She appears in the smart dress worn by the youths of a century ago when men were allowed more latitude in their style of dress. Embroidered waist coats and high silk hats made the men of 1820 able to vie with the women in becoming costumes.

All the quaint charm of New York as it was a century ago is revived in this super-picture in which Miss Davies plays the role of Patricia O'Day, a little Irish girl who comes to America and disguises herself as a boy. The fair young star had her hair cut in a short bob in order to look more boyish. She makes of young "Pat" a most interesting character. The climax when "Pat" is forced to give up the disguise and reveal herself as a forlorn and frightful little girl is one of the most unique and thrilling episodes yet seen on the screen.

Woven into the picture is a beautiful love story which is as sweet and appealing as the old-fashioned mignonette which the belles of that day planted in their gardens. "Little Old New York" was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young. Sidney Olcott directed and Joseph Urban designed the settings.

In the cast are more than a score of players well known on both stage and screen. Among them are Harrison Ford, who plays opposite Miss Davies, Mahlon Hamilton, Norval Keedwell, Louis Wolheim, Courtenay Foote, Sam Hardy, J. M. Kerrigan, Gypsy O'Brien, Mary Kennedy, Charles Judels, Spencer Chartera, Riley Hatch and others.

Other pictures on the bill include a news, scenic and comedy. An enlarged orchestra renders a special musical program at each evening performance. Two shows daily at 2.30 and 7.30 p. m.

At Slater Hall

There is perhaps no figure in the musical world today of more vital interest than Percy Grainger, the young Australian pianist and composer, who will be heard in Slater hall, Friday evening, Jan. 11.

His mother who was his inseparable companion, was a musician and it was she who gave him his first piano lessons.

As a child of ten Grainger gave concerts in his native country where he was known far and wide as a prodigy. These appearances earned the necessary funds to complete his education and Grainger sailed for Frankfort, Germany, where he studied for six years before establishing his home in London.

For the past five years Grainger has given some 150 piano recitals in Europe annually playing before wildly enthusiastic audiences.

Percy Grainger has reached far greater heights than even his most ambitious dreams might have fashioned. Fascinating as a pianist, compelling as a conductor and unquestionably powerful among the serious composers of the day, Percy Grainger's name has become a household word in America.

His appearance in Norwich is eagerly awaited.

Tickets for this recital are on sale at the Cranston Co., Broadway. Tickets $2, tax exempt.

Mail or phone orders will be given prompt attention.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

There was general obedience New Year's day to the rule that there should be no driving of motor vehicles under 1923 registration plates. Somehowever, took a chance of being apprehended and drove their machines to church or on short trips through residential streets where there was a little chance of an officers seeing the cars.

Cold weather, slippery driving over icy roads and lack of new plates made a combination that greatly reduced the motor traffic on the first of the year. Few machines were about than on any previous day for a long time.

Those who were observing passing cars noted machines bearing the new registration plates of the states of of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, whose borders are within a few miles of Danielson. The Massachusetts plates have a red background this year with white figures while Rhode Island plates have a black background with white numbers for pleasure cars.

Officers kept close watch on the traffic throughout the day for machines running under old numbers. In the forenoon some cars came in on homeward bound trips after having been on New Year's eve parties. Drivers of these were questioned, but not held.

No exceptions will be noted today. Some who had received their registration certificates but not their plates, found themselves in a peculiar position on the first day of the year, and were told by officers that, no authority exists for allowing the operation of their machines until they are properly equipped with the 1924 numbers.

Beginning this (Wednesday) morning a new arrangement as to the opening of some of the stores engaged in the garment trade and kindred lines will become effective in Danielson. Under this arrangements the interested stores will not open until 8 o'clock, something less than an hour later than has been the rule heretofore. It was stated Tuesday afternoon that it was not definitely known at that time just how many stores would enter into the new plan, but the opinion was voiced that if competing stores in the lines referred to would all agree, the plan would be generally adopted.

The coming of the ...le demand up to the coming of the ...n boom in the sale of ... chains, for which there has been little demand up to the coming of the storm that marked the final day of the year Practically all cars out on New Year's day were equipped with tire chains, for the freezeup that came in the early morning hours, close after the end of the storm, made them an essential to safe operation The manner in which cars were stalling Sunday night and Monday forced the purchase of many sets of tire chains.

New Year's morning at 2.40, Mrs. Ellen Doyle, 95, for long more than half a century a resident of Danielson, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Monohan in the Reverview section, where she had made her home for the past eight years. Mrs. Doyle was one of the oldest resident of the town of Killingly, having been born in Ireland 95 years ago. For a great many years she made her home in Goodyear, formerly Williamsville, remaining there until some time after the death of her husband, John Doyle, 14 years ago. Mrs. Doyle leaves no relatives nearer than a nephew, John Costello, of Webster. She was active and very energetic up to within a very few years.

State highway plows and plows on the trolley line came into action for the first time this season in clearing away about five inches of snow that started to come down late Sunday afternoon and was followed on Monday by more snow and rain. It so happens that the freeze of early Tuesday morning has left many highways with a thin coating of ice, but the going is not particularly bad, though a bit slippery.

There were large congregations at all the masses at St. James' church New Year's morning—the feast of the Circumcision, and a holy day of obligation in the church calendar. The masses were at 7, 8, 9 and 10.30 o'clock.

New Year's eve and New Year's day were periods of quiet in Danielson. There were no arrests on the eve and no disturbance of any kind. Such goings on as there were took place away from the center of things and were, generally speaking, family party or neighborhood affairs. On the holiday itself those seeking diversion found it at the theatre or at the basketball game.

Skates, sleds and skiis came into service New Year's day after one of the longest waits that has been enforced by any season for many years. Great numbers of young people found real enjoyment in coasting skiing and skating in the keen air. The fact that coasting is now in vogue again makes necessary the warning that there is extreme danger in sliding down hills in the borough that are parts of trunk line highways or that have intersecting streets carrying heavy motor traffic. Last winter there was much recklessness and inclination to serious accidents in sliding these hills, and the risk is no less this winter.

Listed for consideration at the January term of the Windham county superior court opening in Putnam Friday for the hearing of cases on the criminal list, are several of particular interest to this locality.

There are 62 prisoners at the county jail in Brooklyn, New Year's day, which was much the same at the institution as any Sunday there. There was no observance of the holiday. Of the prisoners held at the jail, 7 are bound over awaiting trial at the January term of the superior court.

As in other places, former service men are watching with the closest attention to discussions at Washington relative to the bonus or adjusted compensation measures. While no effort has been made here in a systematic way to ascertain the views of the former service men, it is known that there is a division of opinion among them, mad that some favor the bonus and some do not.

This week Saturday marks the limit of time for delinquents to pay their personal taxes to Personal Tax Collector George A. Williams. After Saturday the names of those who have not paid will be turned over to the prosecuting attorney.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward, who has been ill for more than a week, continues to be confined to his home.

There were various cancellations of plans for New Year's eve trips to Providence on account of the storm and the dangerous conditions for traveling.

The blessings of the pastor, Rev. John Roux, M. S., was given the congregations at the masses at St. James' church, New Year's.

Deposit your surplus earnings in the savings department of the Windham County National bank, a member of the Federal Reserve system.—adv.

Public and parochial schools through the town of Killingly will resume sessions this (Wednesday) morning, after the holiday recess.

John Heneault of New London spent New Year's with relatives in Danielson, his former home.

College students who have been at their homes here for the holidays will leave today to resume their studies.

Big billboards being put up on lower Dyer street will obscure a considerable section of what has been an unsightly dump in marshy land.

State officers from the local barracks kept careful watch New Year's day for automobiles bearing other than 1924 markers.

PUTNAM

Putnam was not exactly what one might term an exclusive place, New Year's day. This might be explained in various ways. Some of the explanations are obvious, in fact on second thought, most of them are. It was a holiday. In the true sense of the word. A storm chipped in to mess things up on the eve of the New Year and discouraged much going about. Traveling was too difficult. It was slushy and slippery under foot. Every icy killer in the land had been busy for weeks ahead in an effort to see that no one had any more than the tiniest bit of happiness on the holiday. The combination was more or less furtiveness about it. It was a bit clandestine. It was undercover. Not that those in many parties did not have a good time, but there was the modern secret news about it. The moderniste will have their day if they break a whole book full of laws in observing customs that endured for centuries without wrecking the world.

But on the outside there was, apparently, nothing doing. Putnam appeared to sleep as the old year slunk out and its successor came limping in and asked for a room for a patient with a headache—an amazing state of affairs for an infant of time.

There were no arrests on the eve of New Year's and none during the holiday. The police might well have been given a holiday and a chance to enjoy themselves—in decorous home life with their families or in forgetful sleep. But they were on the job, watchful for the possible iconoclast who might smash a modern idol. All the idols were reported O. K. at nightfall; though there was a complaint they had been winked at many times during the preceding 24 hours and that they were blushing furiously as the sun went down.

The average man who did not have 1924 registration plates to put on his automobile left the old bus in the garage—or wherever he keeps it—on New Year's day. There was very general recognition on the part of the public that running under 1923 registration plates would not be tolerated, and that local and other officers were intent on seeing that the edict of the motor vehicle department was obeyed.

There were not too many cars about the city Tuesday. Be it said that the public service operators were among those who took time by the forelock and had their numbers and certificates and were prepared to do business, of which they found considerable. In this they were ahead of the average citizen, who let the matter of re-registration go until too late.

Captain William Jarvis of the police said the holiday was one of the quietest in the history of the department. There was not a disturbing element in the passing of New Year's. All the officers had to do was cover their beats and say "Happy New Year" to their friends.

Ice-covered streets were not inviting in any case to motoring, so those who did not have their numbers did not feel any great sense of loss. The motor traffic was reduced to what may be regarded as a minimum for the year—unless a blizzard comes and ties up everything.

Theatrical attractions furnished the principal amusement for the diversion seekers on the holiday in Putnam, and there were dances and house parties and such things to while away the time. It was an old-fashioned New Year's, much after the style in this territory in the days before Columbus discovered America and when there were snow-clad forests where Putnamites now trod paved streets. But the impression should not be given that many people did not have a good time. They did. Or thought they did But today is another day.

What is to be done about the justice's courts in Windham county towns? There is a move on foot to introduce a bill in the next legislature that will abolish them and set up in their place district courts, embracing a number of towns with an honest to goodness attorney as judge.

The suggestion arises out of the allegation that present day justices—and grand jurors, who should not be excluded from the criticism—are too amenable to accepting suggestions as to what should be done with cases. The claim set up is that there would be more satisfaction all around if a district court were established, after the system in vogue in Massachusetts, for instance.

The inclination today is to appeal from decisions imposed in justice's courts. This may be explained in various ways, as, for instance, the quiz by a grand juror of a defendant recently in court as to what he was going to plead as to the charge against him, and the suggestion that he might get a minimum penalty if he pleaded guilty and a heavier one if he appealed.

This does not strike the average citizen as just in line with what Connecticut justice should be, and inspires the belief that members of the bar on the bench would do much to relieve this situation.

Appeals, as one understands them generally, are not usually made until after a penalty has been inflicted. A suggestion to the contrary arouses the ire of those who see all liberty slipping away and a demand for a different arrangement of things.

Numbers of minor accidents to motor cars resulted from traveling conditions created by the first snowstorm, in which a great many drivers were caught without having chains aboard their cars.

The committee of Putnam lodge of Elks in charge of the annual Charity ball are to meet at a smoker to be held in Danielson Thursday evening. The ball is to be held in Danielson this year, on a date during the present month.

There is a long list of cases for consideration at the January criminal term of the Windham county superior court that will open in this city Friday. A considerable number of the cases are continued ones.

Putnam's streets were left New Year's day with a coating of frozen snow and rain that was so badly cut up before the quick drop in temperature came as to making the going very rough for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Alpert entertained relatives from Providence and New Haven over the holiday period.

Miss Ruth White and Miss Flora White, teachers, who have been spending the holiday season at their home here, returned to their schools New Year's day, Miss Ruth to New York, Miss Flora to Wethersfield.

Robert Lyon, little son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Lyon—Mr. Lyon the manager here for the telephone company—had three stitches taken in his head, as the result of an accident that happened at the New Year period.

Putnam's schools will open the winter term this (Wednesday) morning following the holiday recess.

G. Aylward Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Thayer, is steadily gaining, after a severe illness of three weeks.

The New Year's eve party of Putnam lodge of Elks attracted members from all the jurisdiction of the lodge and was a very enjoyable occasion.

New cases of scarlet fever have developed in Putnam and vicinity during the past few days, as has been the rule for a number of weeks.

The postoffice was open only holiday hours on New Year's and the usual restrictions of service on holidays were in force.

Very large congregations attended the New Year's day masses at St. Mary's church.

Available hills in the city were being used to the utmost New Year's day by the young people who have been hungry for coasting during what has heretofore been a snowless season.

Attorneys Charles L. Torrey and Charles E. Searls of this city will be in Hartford this week, to appear as counsel in a case to be argued before the supreme court of errors.

TWO NEW LONDON GROCERS FINED
SOLD DRUGS, PATENT MEDICINES, ETC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 1.—Policeman William Graham was today making his rounds in search of grocers who have made a practice of selling drugs, patent medicines, etc., which they are not by law allowed to sell without a proper license from the state. Officer Graham visited many stores and scanned the stock of goods offered to the public. He was sent out after the conviction in court today of Benjamin Parker and Peter May, each the proprietor of a small store on the outskirts of the city, and both engaged in the sale of Sastoria, Iodine, White Pine cough syrup, and other drugs containing a percentage of alcohol prohibited under the Volstead law. Each of the men prosecuted today was fined $25. It is understood that Parker has been in business three years, in which time many persons have been tried for and convicted of selling drugs unlawfully. May had applied for a license, he said, but he wanted to save the cost of it between the time he began business, some two months ago, and the 1st of January. That seems to have been what led May into the mistake of thinking that all the time was to be suffer. He realized that January and not May had the call today.

Mrs. Joseph Graballe of Westerly and Miss Dorothy Daniels of South Lyme, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Miss Ellen Fesley returned to her home in Franklin, Mass., today, concluding a visit with her cousin, Mrs. Alfred W. Stoll.

The funeral of John Donohue was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rov. John J. McGrath. The bearers were Cornelius Moriarty, George Kelley, Austin Ruddy, Christopher Guerin, William Fogarty and W. J. Delmore. A firing squad from the local coast artillery company of which Mr. Donohue was a member accompanied the body to St. Mary's cemetery and fired a volley over the grave.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Arthur W. Weeks, 64 Colt street, to be suspended.

The body of George Comstock, a former resident of New London, whose death occurred at his home in New York a few days ago, the funeral services having been held Monday, was brought to New London this afternoon for burial in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Carl Downey, of 24 Hill street, was arrested this morning by Acting Detective Frank Howard, charged with breach of the peace by his wife, Mazie Williams Downey. The accused furnished a surety on his bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. According to his wife, Downey had been out all night celebrating the new year's arrival and when he returned home about 11 o'clock she endeavored to treat him cordially, although her husband had been drinking. Finally Mrs. Downey declares that she extended New Year's greetings to her husband, but Downey struck her a blow on the face and then kicked her about the legs. This treatment was more than she could stand so she lodged a complaint asking for her husband's arrest.

The medical profession of New London will not have office hours on the first Thursday of the month hereafter for the society has decided to hold its monthly meeting on that night and to do so the numerous physicians and surgeons have decided to refrain from seeing patients that night.

Although automobile markers have been obtainable since the early part of October, a number of machines observed in use today bore the 1923 markers, in spite of the fact that Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel had made it known that no extension of time would be granted for obtaining licenses, requesting Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney to cause the arrest of all offenders.

John Stewart of Willetts avenue, a painter employed by the New London Decorative company sustained a painful injury this morning when he fell, from a staging of the interior of the New London City National bank and has probably incurred a fractured hip. Stewart was engaged on a scaffolding, with a fellow workman, about 10 feet from the floor. In moving about the staging Stewart stumbled over an obstacle on the planking, causing him to lose his balance and be precipitated to the tile floor. Stewart was given medical attention and then removed to Lawrence hospital for further treatment.

Harold Peck, of 261 Huntington street, arrested last night charged with reckless driving and not being possessed of an operator's license, following the car he was driving running through a crowd of seven people who were about to board a trolley car, corner of Montauk and Gardner avenues, was not tried in the police court this morning, his case being continued to Saturday at the request of counsel, who was unable to be present. Peck furnished a surety on his bond of $500 for appearance at that time in his mother, Mrs. Pauline Beck. Mr. and Mrs. Gresham Creighton, who were hurled to the highway by the automobile as it plunged among the trolley car passengers, are still suffering from the numerous cuts and bruises they sustained.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Carroll and daughter, Mary, of Brookline, Mass., are spending a few days with Mrs. Carroll's mother, Mrs. James Connor.

Misses May and Marguerite Donohue, of the Harris building apartments, have returned, having visited relatives in Naugatuck for several days.

Mrs. Blanche Straight returned to her home in Boston today after visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Walker, of the Hotel Mohican.

Miss Gertrude Hodgdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeland Hodgdon, has returned to Groton, having recently undergone a minor operation at Home Memorial hospital.

Gerhard Hahman, 62, a weaver, residing in Old Mystic, died this morning at the private hospital, New London, in which institution he had been under treatment about two months. Mr. Hahman leaves no relatives.

A larger number of stores and business places in New London closed today than ever before on the first day of a new year.

Rev. George Deshon Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, plans to hold a banquet at the Mohican hotel Thursday evening, February 21, which will outshine all similar efforts given by the Fourth Degree. There will be prominent speakers as guests." The committee in charge of the banquet is William C. Fox, Cornelius C. Costello, F. J. Moriarty, John J. Gagnon, T. J. Sullivan, Paul Curtin, George King, Col. Henry S. Dorsey, and Michael L. O'Connell, headed by David A. Connors, chairman of the committee.

In appreciation of the services of the New London fire department Sunday night in battling the flames that damaged the ocean-going tug Guardsman, of the fleet of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, the owners of the big tug today forwarded a $200 check to the department. The money will be placed in a fund maintained by the department and as soon as it accumulates to an amount to warrant it the aggregate will be divided among the several companies for disbursement in paying for entertainments provided for members. Preliminary preparations were started today toward floating the tug which finally sunk at her pier and tomorrow it is anticipated that the work will be started pumping the water out of the craft, after which she will be brought to the surface of the river and then towed to the plant of the Thames Towboat company for rebuilding.

Attorney Frank Q. Cronin returned this evening after having spent New Year's Eve and today in New York.

Mrs. Pamelia Chapman Bennett, 81, wife of Charles H. Bennett, caretaker at the Hotel Griswold, died at her home at Eastern Point yesterday, from infirmities attending age. Mrs Bennett is survived by her husband.

Howard Beckwith, a resident of Howard street, reported a large depression on that street at a point near Hamilton street.

Patrolman George McCaskey discovered a live wire dangling on the ground on Church street near Huntington street, this evening. The wire was the property of the Connecticut Power company and the office of the company was notified, causing a repair gang to be sent to remedy the danger. The wire carried about 20,000 volts.

Otto Ziss, a soldier connected with the quartermasters' corps and stationed at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island, had an unpleasant experience this evening that nearly cost him his life. Ziss went to the government pier on Water street, where he met three comrades and during the conversation the quartet became involved in an argument. The three soldiers grabbed Ziss and rushing him to the edge of the pier, hurled him into the Thames river. The splash was heard by some of the crew of one of the government steamers tied up at the dock and a line was thrown to Ziss who was pulled upon the dock. Chilled to the bone, for the thermometer registered 20 degrees above zero, Ziss walked through John street to North Bank street and entered the police station where he related what had occurred. Ziss' clothing was removed and he was wrapped in blankets and then placed on a cot in the boiler room. City Physician Cheney was summoned and prescribed for Ziss, who declared he did not know the identity of the trio that gave him the impromptu bath.

There is no change in the condition of Edward Roach of Bank street, until recently captain of the force of New Haven railroad special agents in New London, who suffered an attack of insantly several weeks ago.

Get Rid of That Backache!

Is that dull, constant backache making you old and miserable? Do you get up lame and stiff; drag through the day feeling tired, nervous and depressed? Evening find you utterly worn out—fit only for bed? Then you should be looking to your kidneys. Winter's colds and chills make extra work for the kidneys. And too often the strain is more than the hard working kidneys can bear! The kidneys fall behind in keeping the bloodstream pure and there is slow poisoning of the whole system.

Daily backache results, with rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities. One feels lame, stiff and achy; nervous, irritable and dispirited. Don't wait! Delay may prove serious. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. Home folks recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Norwich Folks Found Relief:

E. S. BENNETT, Carpenter, 455 Main St., says: "My back has troubled me, aching a good deal. My work required considerable stooping and lifting. This seemed to aggravate the trouble, and pains caught me across my back. I saw Doan's Pills advertised and one box acted very quickly and relieved the trouble."

MRS. JAMES E. MORAN, 33 Second St., says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and weakened them. My back ached continually for some time and I could hardly get around to do my housework. My kidneys didn't act right at all. I had known of Doan's Pills helping another member of the family, so I used them and found relief. Lately I had another attack of kidney trouble but Doan's were just as sure in curing me again as they were the first time."

G. E. DISQUE, 20 Hodge Ave., says: "I have ... I have ... when ... I ... Doan's ...

DISTRIBUTING AUTO MARKERS.

Auto registrations in Connecticut run well up toward the 200,000 mark It will be reached in a very short time and while all of them are not made at the close of the year, a large part of them are, and it becomes apparent that those who have not taken advantage of the opportunity that has been offered during the month of December to get their new number plates, regardless of what the reason for it may be, must expect to experience such a delay as comes from the year-end rush.

Procrastination tells the story for the most part. There are those who have delayed getting their markers for no good reason. They could have done it all during the early days of December and had it out of the way without any delay whatever, and without interfering with those who make a practice of putting everything off until the last minute.

It is unfortunate for some who have changed their mind about taking out registration at this time and who need their cars to be obliged to stand in line for hours and then fail to get their markers because there were too many ahead of them and there was no effort on the part of the office force to stand on its head trying to do the impossible. When the owners come to recognize the need of registering early the same as voters have of voting early there will be less trouble.

Much benefit has been gained by the establishment of branch offices of the motor vehicle department about the state. It hasn't completely solved the problem, however, because of the steady growth in the number of machines. The days of depending upon a central office are past and it is with much satisfaction that the announcement is made by President Lerou of the chamber of commerce that Norwich will have a branch office before another year rolls around. Every move of this kind to overcome delays means better service. It should get the proper cooperation, however, and not be regarded as an additional reason for procrastination.

PREVENTING AN ASSASSINATION

Protests from the Mexican rebels as well as protests from certain sources in this country were to be expected in connection with the action of this government in agreeing to sell a limited supply of war material to the Obregon government in Mexico.

It is pointed out that it is a diversion from the Harding policy. It is possible to so regard it, but it is to be remembered that such a disposal is not for the purpose of starting "fresh warfare" as was the case when our arms were sought in Poland at the time when President Harding made his declaration. The war is already underway in Mexico and has been for weeks.

This government after a long period of probation has been convinced that Obregon has stabilized conditions in Mexico and has organized a responsible government. With the present revolution underway it is a case of this country taking sides. If it attempts to take the position of neutrality it contributes aid and encouragement to the revolutionists by giving them just as great an opportunity in their assault upon law and order in Mexico as it does the government that is defending it, and yet it is law and order that this government stands for and insists upon. Between standing for rebellion and standing for law and order there can be no doubt as to what should be done under the circumstances. We are not encouraging warfare but endeavoring to stand by law and order and to hasten the restoration of it.

It is simply a case of standing back of a government that has been weighed and found worthy against the efforts of those who insist upon control of the government even though they must get it by bloodshed.

There would be brooding over our position whatever we did. It is much more to our credit to stand back of an established and worthy government in Mexico than to give any help even though it be indirect, to those who are fighting a worthy government. The United States isn't willing to see a stabilized government in Mexico shot down by an assassin without endeavoring to prevent it.

HANDLING COAL PROBLEM.

When the governor of Pennsylvania brought the governors of eastern states together for a conference on coal, Governor Silzer of New Jersey had something to say in regard to the duty of Pennsylvania. He held the Keystone state responsible for conditions that gave encouragement to the high prices and unfavorable features of the coal situation and urged that it afford relief by taking suggested action. In that view he was supported by other governors.

Since then he has sought to get the score and a half states that use the Pennsylvania product to petition the legislature of that state to establish a commission to regulate the industry, to repeal the tax which is imposed upon all the coal mined and to repeal certain laws relative to the industry. He is also a strong advocate of action on the part of congress to authorize the interstate commerce commission to "eliminate fraudulent and extortionate practices and unfair competition and control."

Possibly Governor Silzer isn't right. It may be that such action as he recommends would not accomplish all that is expected. But whether it would or not, it is certain that there is need of relief and it is time that the necessary pressure should be brought to bear in order to obtain it. Governor Pinchot is known to be opposed to certain of the recommendations. Other state officials of Pennsylvania have expressed their approval of the removal of the state tax. Pennsylvania knows how some of the states feel but it is not going to cut itself loose from the millions it is extracting from the coal consuming states unless it is given to understand that the time is ripe for that action.

Much is expected from congress at the present session in the way of legislation with the coal situation. The president has recommended the carrying out of the coal commission's recommendations. Congress cannot be too strongly impressed with the need of dealing with this problem at this time. If united action on the part of 30 states will help it should be forthcoming.

A RED HERRING FOR BAIT.

When Candidate Cox of the democratic party launched his campaign for the presidency he conceived the idea of making wild and baseless assertions concerning republican expenditures, as the basis for swinging the vote of the country to him. He was of course talking through his hat and inasmuch as there was no foundation for what he broadcasted his assertions served as a boomerang. It was a most unwise procedure and he suffered from it.

But despite the lesson of that campaign there are those democratic leaders in congress who are following a similar course in regard to the Mellon plan for the reduction of federal taxes. They are putting forth the horrible revelation that Secretary Mellon is to profit by the plan to the extent of possibly three-quarters of a million and that they have been able to learn this because certain democrats who worked in the treasury department have revealed, in violation of the law, the income tax figures on Mr. Mellon's return.

Somehow they expect to justify such opposition as they may show to the tax reduction plan by this statement. They entirely disregard Secretary Mellon's claim that through the cutting of the surtaxes and the getting back into industrial activities of the millions in non taxable securities the men of large wealth will by 1926 be paying to the government larger revenue than they are now.

The country has given its verdict on tax reductions. It wants them and needs them and those in either party who disregard this fact and stand in the way of cutting the taxes will be inviting another Cox boomerang. Such is an attempt to draw a red herring across the trail.

THE RESIGNATION OF GEDDES.

In the resignation of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador to this country, there is regret though no surprise. It has been recognized that his physical condition and his eyesight were handicaps that indicated the action that has been taken.

Though he has not held the post for quite three years he has nevertheless made a most favorable impression, not only being the representative of an important country but a big man, well fitted for the duties, efficiency characterizing his work throughout.

Not only was he a man of big capacity but he had had experience in many directions, having been a doctor, a soldier, a university head, a member of parliament and a British cabinet member, in all of which his work was of a prominent nature. He was selected for his ability and this country has had many opportunities to appreciate it.

It will be recalled that it was during his period as ambassador that the refunding of the British war debt to this country was accomplished and in a similar manner did he handle other big problems. The only irritating feature that developed during his ambassadorship was the resentment that was occasioned by his report on Ellis Island.

Great Britain has done well in the early naming of his successor, inasmuch as he had been away from Washington for the past six months and there are a number of important matters under consideration including the treaty concerning the twelve-mile limit. It is a post that should not remain vacant long. Sir Esme Howard will not have a chance to make his record in Washington.

MANY CURTAINS

"The mental processes of women," began the Hyde Park man, clambering up on the bus next to his friend from Woodlawn, "remain an Egyptian tomb mystery to me! I told Imogene that I knew a man who would pay us $5,000 more for our house than we had been soaked, and she said certainly not, just after she had got all the curtains for the upstairs made and fitted! What did I think she wanted to do all that work for and then have to move some place where there would be nine windows instead of eight and three inches linger at that! Didn't I have any sense?"

"You should have tackled her before she made the curtains," the Woodlawn man told him. "Any man with sense knows that while a woman may be persuaded to move after the plumbing has all been changed and refitted, the plastering done over and three partitions altered, there is nothing yet discovered which will induce her to leave the house after she has got curtains adjusted to the window openings. She goes through so much making them shorter if they are new and letting them down if they have shrunk in the wash, widening them out with ruffles if too narrow and cutting 'em off if too generous in width, that she vows never again.

"Why, just after we had moved and settled in our present abode the firm wanted to send me to New York at an increase in salary and I had to turn it down because my wife refused to go. She explained that she never could be happy away from Chicago, but I overheard her telling some one about the perfectly foolish thing I had wanted her to do—move away when she had just the week before got all the window curtains finally made up and tied back and was nearly dead from the toil! The idea! And by that time they had sent another man.

"There really is something malign about window curtains. There never yet was one that fitted. When windows are being made three yards long found to measure two yards and a all curtains on the market will be half. And vice versa. When specialists are down being done up and the room company calls the curtains invariably looking like sin, my wife says. When you do get them up nobody comes near until they are once more showing grimy and draggled, obtruding themselves in defiance of all other furnishings, giving the other women leave to murmur things about what a wretched housekeeper you are. When curtains become old-fashioned they simply won't wear out and if you particularly like them they melt to pieces like April snow in the sunshine.

"I never could see any sense in window curtains anyhow. The only time I use them is when I want to rubber out of the window at my neighbors without their seeing me, and then I suppose they notice that somebody is breathing hard behind the curtain and jiggling it visibly, so it's no use after all.

"But women are devoted to them. The more curtains they can get at a window the better satisfied they are. They multiply their troubles and rejoice in them. If Mrs. Peache has just thin glass curtains Mrs. Pare goes her one better with glass curtains and long ones, too, and then Mrs. Prunes goes up in the attic, robs Aunt Amanda's trunk and puts up a velvet valance over her long curtains and her glass curtains and the minute Mrs. Grapes sees the valance she comes forth triumphantly with glass curtains, long curtains, valance and side drapes of double velvet and whenever any of the Grapes family wish to see out of doors they have just as much work to get to the outer layer as old Kin Tut would have had excavating his own tomb from the inside out!

"So you mustn't get too sore at Imogene for queering your sale on their account!"

"Oh, I can find something else to get mad at her about, I suppose," admitted the Hyde Park man. "Maybe the man was joking about buying it anyhow! But I had to blame it on somebody! I'm going to invent a window with permanent curtains painted right on it!"—Exchange.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

The income tax is imposed upon net income, which is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, contributions, etc., to be fully explained later. The normal tax rate is 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the exemptions and credits and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. Surtax rates, which apply only to net income in excess of $6,000, range from 1 per cent on the amount between $6,000 and $10,000 to 50 per cent on the amount by which the net income exceeds $200,000.

Single persons in calculating the normal tax may subtract from net income an exemption of $1,000. The exemptions for married persons and heads of families are $2,500 on incomes of $5,000 or less and $2,000 on incomes in excess of $5,000. Taxpayers are allowed also an additional credit of $400 for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer, if such dependent person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

In the case of married persons, a joint return reporting the income of both may be filed, or separate returns may be filed showing the income of each. If their combined net income is subject to the surtax, a married couple will pay a smaller tax by filing separate returns. For example, a husband's net income for 1923 was $7,000 and the wife's $8,000. If a joint return is filed, the income is subject to a surtax of 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $6,000 and $10,000, or $40. If separate returns are filed, the husband's surtax is 1 per cent on the amount of his net income between $6,000 and $7,000, or $10. The wife having a net income of less than $6,000 pays no surtax.

In filing separate returns either husband or wife, but not both, may claim the personal exemption, or it may be divided between them in such amounts as they desire.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They move force them to do so naturally.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—sluggish liver—constipation, you'll find quick, safe and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Stories That Recall Others

A Conscientious Voter.

At a recent election in a small town a woman, with the usual assurance, and proud of her recently acquired privilege, went to the polls to cast her vote. She remained in the booth a full half hour and when she came out, lacking the former assurance, she glumly dropped her ballot in the box. The men in the room curious as to why it took her so long questioned her.

"Well," she said, "I promised a friend of mine that I'd vote for a friend of hers and I've read that paper over and over and I can't find his name."

"And what was the man's name that you were looking for?"

"Why, it was Good Roads."

Gone But Not Forgotten

Most every imbiber of strong drink, if he still maintains a suggestion of self respect, is desirous of concealing the fact that he might have had one too many drinks when in the presence of friends.

This fellow walked into an office where several are employed shook hands with the head of the business and the several other persons with whom he was acquainted to the number of a half dozen and then started the handshaking a second time.

"Why you just shook hands with us," exclaimed the stenographer.

"I know," said the fellow, a gleam of wit flashing through his inebriated brain, "but I'm saying goodbye this time."

And out he went.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Professor John Adams, who is now visiting America, is president of the London Day Training School and one of England's most noted leaders in educational work. He was educated at the University of Glasgow, where he took first-class honors. Trained as a teacher, he became headmaster of a school in Port Glasgow, after which he was appointed rector in a grammar school Campbeltown. He became a lecturer at the Aberdeen F. C. LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Stop in Brittany.

You remember in the last story the camel told Little Jack Rabbit not to worry for the Magic Boat would come to him on wings. And no sooner had the camel finished speaking than down from the skies it came.

"Here is your Magic Boat, Hop in, little master. It will take you to other countries where you may learn many things."

Then, away flew the Magic Boat with the bunny boy, across the Mediterranean and over mountains, until it came to Brittany in the northwestern corner of France.

"Come and see my home," said the Little Breton Girl.

When it came down to the ground, out hopped the little rabbit, almost bumping into a girl, kneeling beside a wayside cross. After she had said her prayer, she stood up and put out her hand, and holding him by the paw, together they walked along the road until they came to a humble cottage in which she lived.

The bunny boy had never seen such a house before. It was very long and divided into eight rooms. And would you believe it, the animals of the farm lived in six of them, and Yvonne, with her mother and father and sisters and brothers lived in the other two.

In the largest room was a huge fireplace, next to which, riveted to the wall, a huge bed, made of oak and shut in with panels. It stood so high from the floor that to reach it, one had to first climb on a chest of carved oak at the foot.

And, would you believe it, in the two-shelved cupboard on the other side of the chimney, Yvonne's two brothers slept, just like sailor boys in their berths.

But perhaps the strangest thing of all was the big dining table. In its top were hollowed out a dozen little wells to hold the porridge instead of plates. Just above the table hung the bread basket and spoon rack.

"Come out and see my bees," said the little Breton girl. Little Jack Rabbit followed her into the garden and, on reaching the hives, she whistled softly and in a few minutes, hundreds of bees flew out and settled on her hat and shoulders. But they didn't sting her. Oh, my no! for she was always kind to them and they knew she wouldn't harm them.

"When my sister was married, we hung a red cloth over the hives," said Yvonne, with a laugh, "for then bees are happy when we are happy, and sad when we are sad." And she went on to tell the bunny boy how the Bretons believe that the bees are sent from Heaven, and for this reason they make the candles to light the altars in their churches from beeswax. And now, little reader, you must wait until the next story to hear what happened after that.

FIRST FREE PASSAGES OVER THAMES BRIDGE

While Melvin Douglass of Groton, headed west, was the last person to pay toll just before midnight Monday night as the state highway bridge over the Thames at New London became free, by coincidence his father, Dr. Edmund P. Douglass, was the first one bound east to cross the bridge free.

Roger Spicer of Groton was first in passing the toll house bound west after toll was lifted, but not the first to cross the bridge, for J. A. Morgan came up from the rear and reached the opposite end first. Loren A. Trask of Groton, driver of a wrecking car with tow attached, paid the last toll at the west end toll house.

The signal of free tolls came exactly at midnight when on each end of the bridge the electric "Pay Toll Here" signs were turned off. Melvin Douglass in his Maxwell touring car, his father in an Oakland coupe, Morgan in a Ford coupe, and Trask seated in a Pierce Arrow wrecker, to the rear of which was a Dodge car whose damaged front end was hanging in the air, all posed individually for flashlight pictures for the benefit of the state highway department.

Will be sold for Strictly CASH on Delivery.

After more than ten years' experience in our business with a credit system and its necessary expensive bookkeeping and collecting accompaniments, we have decided to discontinue it and adopt a strictly cash system beginning January first, 1924.

We believe this will be mutually beneficial to ourselves and all our patrons, who pay their bills, as this will eliminate all uncollectable accounts and enable us to sell for less and to do better work.

We desire to thank all our patrons for the many favors shown us in the past and trust they will see the proper meaning in this change of system.

WE WILL CONTINUE TO SELL NEW AND USED CARS ON THE DEFERRED PAYMENT PLAN.

LOCKS LIKE ASSAULT UPON WOOLEN MILL WATCHMAN AT THAMESVILLE

Michael Shugrue, night watchman at the American Woolen Co. mill at Thamesville, who was found unconscious last Saturday afternoon on the concrete floor of one of the small buildings of the mill property, has partially recovered consciousness but his mind has not cleared enough yet to bridge over the gap between the time he made his last round of the mill at 3 o'clock and the time he was found about an hour later.

He has a broken nose, two black eyes, a deep cut through the eyebrow to the bone, a knob raised on the side of his head near his ear. The injuries he received resulted in a severe concussion of the brain, from which he has partially recovered and it may be that when he has made a full recovery it will be accompanied by a complete return of memory which will enable him to tell just what happened to him up to the time that he was knocked out.

From all the police have been able to learn they incline to the belief that Shugrue received his injuries in a fight or in an assault upon him by another man with suspicion pointing towards Andrew Shutkowski, a fireman at the mill, who had been discharged the day before because of being drunk on his job. Shutkowski was arrested Saturday night and has since been released under bail.

The building in which Shugrue was found is the place from which he starts and to which he returns on his hourly rounds of the mill and the place where he stays between making his rounds. He was found by yardmaster Haskell who had come there to get some keys that he needed. As Mr. Haskell entered the building he thought he heard something stirring but was at first unable to locate anything in the dark. Then he heard a groan and saw the body of Shugrue stretched out on the floor.

Police investigation of the premises brought them to the conclusion, it is understood, that there had been some sort of a struggle going on in the place. Blood was found in three different places. Over in one corner were blood spots with small change and some trolley tokens. About 15 feet from there was the man's watch chain which had apparently been torn from his clothing and was lying near a pool of blood. A few feet from there was where Shugrue lay in another pool of blood.

The police investigation developed a possible motive why Shutkowski might have had a grudge against Shugrue as they learned that Shutkowski had been discharged on Friday and had been told to come and get his pay on Saturday because the watchman had reported him as drunk on his job and had had to go get another fireman to take Shutkowski's place. Shutkowski admitted according to the police, that he had been at the mill about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, but he denies having made any attack on the watchman, although there is some of his time that he cannot account for, it is understood. According to the police, it is understood that Shutkowski admits drinking Saturday afternoon and late in the afternoon he was very drunk.

UNIVERSALISTS ELECTED SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS

Sumner W. Armstrong was elected superintendent of the Sunday school of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, at a meeting held Monday night at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Foster, attended by officers, teachers and older members of the school.

The meeting was in charge of Edwin A. Tracy and the annual report of the secretary was read by Miss Jessie E. Hill, the treasurer's report being rendered by J. Harold Cobb.

EDWIN A. TRACY
30 Years Universalist Sunday School Superintendent, Declines Re-election.

The nominations for officers were read by Charles W. Parsons, and they were elected as follows: Superintendent, Sumner W. Armstrong; assistant superintendent, James W. Bussey; secretary, Miss Jessie E. Hill; treasurer, J. Harold Cobb; superintendent, Junior dep't Miss Villa Bussey; Superintendent Home department, Miss Hattie A. Harris; superintendent, Crandle Roll, Mrs. A. N. Foster; chorister, Miss Bertrice Green; chairman of social committee, Charles W. Parsons.

Mr. Tracy who had been superintendent of the Sunday school for the last 30 years refused re-election. He expressed his appreciation for the cooperation rendered him by members of the school during his long term of office and requested that the same loyal support be given the new officers. A vote of appreciation was passed recognizing the long and meritorious service of Edwin A. Tracy as superintendent for a length of time unusual in Sunday school work and quite unrivalled in the history of the Norwich Sunday school.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served. A number of the members remained at the Foster home to welcome the New Year and at midnight a toast was given and Auld Lang Syne was sung. By request Rev. Mr. Foster sang two solos during the evening which were greatly enjoyed.

35 NEW HAVEN ROAD FIREMEN LAID OFF

Thirty-five locomotive engineers on western district of New Haven road (west of New London) have been set back to the positions of firemen, and the same number of firemen were laid off indefinitely.

A similar move was also made on the eastern district so that 70 firemen on the systems are "awaiting orders."

This sweeping change has come about through the falling off of freights during the winter and will be remedied, if the expected January improvement comes. It gave immediate rise to the rumor that a sweeping cut of all classes help was to take effect all over the system on January 1, the order covering the clerks, as well as the track workers, who are now being laid off by dozens because there is no work for them.

NORWICH FISHERMEN TO ENTERTAIN STATE MEETING

HARTFORD MAN FINED IN NORWICH COURT

On a charge of attempting to drive his Ford sedan while under the influence of liquor, Robert K. Dean of Hartford, was fined and paid $100 and costs in the city court Tuesday morning. Dean was arrested Monday afternoon by Officer Charles Smith.

During the afternoon the driver of an automobile informed the police at police headquarters that he had passed a Ford sedan which had come to grief against a pole at Norwich Town and that the driver of the sedan was under the influence of liquor. Officer Smith, who was detailed to make an investigation, went to Norwich Town in the complainant's Ford. When he arrived at the scene of the accident the officer found the driver sitting in the sedan in a daze.

He took the intoxicated driver from the sedan and placed him in the other Ford to be taken to police headquarters, and the officer took charge of the sedan intending to follow the other machine to police headquarters.

When the complainant and the prisoner had gone some distance towards police headquarters, the driver of the sedan saw that Officer Smith was not following. Then the complainant started back to locate the officer. When the officer started to drive the sedan to the city it stalled several times. Investigation revealed the fact that there was no gasoline in the tank so the driver of the other machine had to make another trip to the city for a supply of gas. The sedan finally arrived at police headquarters and was put in a garage for the night.

Delaware Howard, charged with assault, whose case had been continued from a previous session of the court, was discharged, owing to insufficient evidence. Howard, it is alleged, got into trouble at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mabel Gurley, on the West Side, and John Holsey received a knife wound in his side. Howard was charged with inflicting the knife wound.

HUNDREDS OF AUTOMOBILES DIDN'T TURN A WHEEL

Hundreds of automobiles owned in Norwich didn't turn a wheel Tuesday because their owners had not secured their 1924 number plates or else the cars will hibernate for the next three months, as is the custom with many owners who do not care to drive through the winter and early spring season.

The inactivity of so many cars made a notable difference in the looks of the streets Tuesday, as, for example, in Franklin square there were only a dozen automobiles in sight at noon, where ordinarily every parking space along the curb lines is occupied.

Many operators of vehicles who had failed to secure the 1924 markers for their cars left their machines in garages as Commissioner Stoekel had issued a warning that no operator would be allowed to drive his machine with the 1923 number plates, but this did not completely drive the 1923 plates from the streets as a number of them were seen, but the police showed a wise consideration in such cases and no arrests were made here.

The office of the motor vehicle department at New London was closed all day New Years but will be open today, Wednesday, and it seems evident that many people will apply for the 1924 markers today.

RECITAL AND RECEPTION AT CENTRAL BAPTIST

The congregation of the Central Baptist church enjoyed a recital and New Year's reception Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock when Mrs. Charles W. Gale was the guest of honor and the event made an opportunity for many to express to her their appreciation of her gift to the church of the Gale memorial organ.

From 4 to 5 the recital programme was presented with several organ selections finely played by Gale Noyes, soprano solos by Mrs. W. Russell Baird, who was in excellent voice, violin solos by Henry Brynan, and a baritone solo with violin obligato by Walter McNeely.

From 5 to 6 there was a reception in Bushnell chapel at which the pastor, Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt, received with Mrs. Gale and refreshments were served.

POWDER PUFF CLERK STIRS AUTOIST'S WRATH

A Norwich automobile owner, who had been to New London to get his number plates and had waited in line until the office closed without getting them, returned here fuming with wrath over what he said was the delay, way the work was handled by the girl clerks, mentioning as an instance that one of the girls stopped to powder her nose, while another jollied a state policeman for fifteen minutes while the line waited.

STEPPED OFF PONTOON BRIDGE AT WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Jan. 1—Harold Rasmussen, 18, son of Rasmus Rasmussen, 44 Mope street, Pawcatuck, lost his life by drowning when he stepped off the open end of the pontoon drawbridge at the press works of the C. B. Cottrell & Son Co., into the Pawcatuck river channel about 11 o'clock tonight.

In company with a young lad by the name of Heath he had been on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Fred Young, Greenman Heights, on the Westerly side of the river. Returning to his home he attempted to cross the river by the pontoon drawbridge and was twenty feet ahead of the Heath boy when he stepped off into the six feet of water. He made no outcry but the Heath boy grabbed a piece of the railing and threw it at the drowning boy but he was not seen again.

Sergeant of Police Donald Ferguson and Patrolman George Champlin were called and in company with Fire Chief George Egger endeavored by the use of light to locate the body but without avail. The boy's father procured a rowboat and in company with his son James was unable to find any trace of the body. The police and the boy's father will attempt to locate the body today.

Apparently the pontoon bridge had been disconnected during the day to let a boat pass and due to negligence a warning signal had not been placed on the Rhode Island end of the bridge

MASSES AT 5, 7, AND 8 TUESDAY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Tuesday, New Year's day, the feast of the circumcision, commemorating Our Lord's submission to the law, His Name Day, also the octave of the nativity—that is, eight days after Christmas—large congregations attended services at St. Patrick's church. Low mass at 5 was read by Rev. Myles F. Galvin, a second low mass at 7 by Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero, while the high mass at 8 was sung by the rector, Rev. M. H. May. The introit at all the day's masses was Isaias 9, beginning "A Child is born to us and a Son is given to us," also Psalm 88, "O, sing unto the Lord a new song," etc. The epistle was Titus 2, 11-15 and the gospel Luke 2, 21, the latter the narration of the circumcision and naming of the Christ-child. During the mass Mr. Farrell directed the choir, the solos being finely given by Mrs. Farrell. The priest's offertory was Psalm 88, "The heavens are Thine, the earth also is Thine," etc.

The year-end confessions were very numerous Monday, so that in giving Holy Communion at the New Year masses Father May required the assistance of Father Guerriero at the high mass, while Father Galvin assisted Father Guerriero at 7 o'clock mass.

NORWICH MAN SAVES THREE COLCHESTER PEOPLE

John Kessler, his wife and his hired man, living about a mile west of Colchester, owe their lives to Harlow Bogue of this city who discovered that the Kessler house was on fire as he drove past there Tuesday night about 11.30 o'clock on his way home from Hartford. The house was totally destroyed but the barn was saved and the cattle and three horses taken out.

As Mr. Bogue passed the house he saw that the entire ell was ablaze. He got out of his machine and went onto the porch where he could see through a window a stove and a lantern in one of the rooms. His frantic kicks on the door failed to wake anyone and as he decided that the place must be deserted he drove on to Colchester to get help.

Arriving there he found the bus just arriving. Some of the men from the bus started ringing the fire bell and two men went back to the Kessler house with Mr. Bogue. By that time the ell of the house was a roaring furnace and the men broke in the windows, finally rousing the three occupants, who came out from the upper bedrooms. Shortly after this the Colchester fire department arrived in the bus and by the use of water from the well the men were able to save the barn and get the horses and cattle out.

COMPLETE DRAFT ON A NEW IMMIGRATION BILL

Washington, Jan. 1.—A draft of a new immigration bill providing for selection of immigrants abroad, for extension of the quota restriction to all countries in the western hemisphere, and for various modifications of the present entry requirements, was sent to the senate and house immigration committees today by Secretary Davis, under whose department the immigration bureau is administered.

Members of the two committees already have begun informal discussions regarding amendment of the present law and they are expected to use Mr. Davis' recommendations as a basis for consideration when actual work on the new legislation is begun in the near future.

Under the selective plan embodied in the secretary's bill every prospective immigrant would be required to secure from an American consular office abroad an immigration certificate based upon the results of an examination and showing clearly that the immigrant is admissible under the American law. These certificates would be issued to qualified immigrants of the following classes in the order of preference stated: "Husbands, wives and minor children of alien residents who have declared their intention to become American citizens; immigrants who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the World war; ministers of any religious denomination; professors of universities of recognized learned professions; skilled laborers; other laborers including domestic servants.

The secretary made no recommendation as to the figure that should be fixed as a quota limitation but in a letter to Chairman Colt, of the senate committee he earnestly advocated application of the quota arrangement to Canada, Mexico and South and Central America which are not included under the present quota law. He did not explain his reasons for making the request, merely saying it was his judgment that the restriction should "apply to all countries, thus marking a radical departure from existing laws or pending legislation."

MABEL NORMAND'S CHAUFFEUR CHARGED WITH SHOOTING

Los Angeles, Jan. 1—C. S. Dines, said to be an oil operator of Denver, Colo., was shot and probably fatally wounded in his apartment here tonight.

R. C. Greer, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, motion picture actress, did the shooting, according to the police, who also held Miss Normand and Edna Purviance, also of the screen, for questioning.

Greer gave himself up the police and explained the shooting, according to detectives as follows: "He and Miss Purviance's chauffeur were waiting outside the apartment house at their employers' automobiles. Miss Normand was to leave at a certain time to keep another appointment and when the time passed Greer went to the door of Dines' apartment, where she and Miss Purviance were chatting with the Denver man, to remind her of the hour. There he became involved in an altercation with Dines, in the course of which the latter was shot."

GROTON BUILT STEAMSHIP ASHORE AT WILHELMSHAVEN

The former American steamer Minnesota (but New York for Wilhelmshaven via the Azores is reported ashore on Minsener Sand, in Jade bay, off Wilhelmshaven, say a despatch to Lloyd's Shipping agency. A tug has been sent to her assistance.

The Minnesota, a vessel of 20,602 tons gross, formerly owned by the Atlantic Transport Co., and recently sold to the German merchant marine, sailed from New York Dec. 2 and called at Fayal, the Azores, Dec. 17.

WILL BE NO SUBWAY UNDER CENTRAL PARK

New York, Jan. 1—Central Park will not have the subway trains rumbling beneath its grass and trees, according to plans filed with the board of estimate by the transit commission today.

Originally it had been planned to run a section of the proposed Washington Heights line under Manhattan's playground, but objections from the park commission and other sources forced the commission to shift the route to Columbus avenue.

How to Stop Sour Stomach

Chronic Wits Many People—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Quick Comfort—Sweeten and Stop Acid, Sour Risings and Such Dyspeptic Distress.

When the fact is considered that even careful people, those who follow diet rules, get attacks of indigestion, no argument is needed to recommend the best means of relief. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by lawyers, doctors, teachers, by business men, high livers, society women, industrial workers, clerks, and the worst abused stomachs in the world, those of a host of travelers.

For thirty years people have learned that they may eat what they like or what is set before them, and no matter what the condition of the stomach, if due to dyspepsia, these wonderful tablets stop gassiness and sour risings, they give the stomach the alkaline effect which overcomes acidity and thus they either avoid distress after eating or else they quickly relieve it. Be fortified. Get a 60-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and arm yourself against indigestion.

NAVY AND WASHINGTON ELEVENS PLAY TO A BRILLIANT TIE SCORE

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1.—The United States Naval academy team and the University of Washington's ponderous gridiron machine fought on even terms here today in the annual New Year's east versus west contest. The final score was 14 to 14. The game, the most brilliant of the long series of intersectional clashes from the spectators' viewpoint, was witnessed by a crowd estimated at 48,000.

Coach Bob Folwell's midshipmen played a wide open style of football from the first kick-off and had not fate, in the form of a bad pass by Matthews in the final period intervened, it is probable that the east would have triumphed. The Navy proved superior in every department with the exception of punting, where honors were even.

The ability of the Huskies to tighten their defense at critical moments saved them from possible defeat. After the Navy had carried the ball to the 3-inch line in the first period the Huskies stopped three plunges at the line of scrimmage and took the ball.

The sixteen passes completed by the midshipmen, all of them in the first half, testified to the brilliance of their aerial attack. Only two of their passes were intercepted. The midshipmen accounted for their second touchdown with a variety of forward passes never before seen on a western gridiron. A pass, used several times with almost unfailing success by the Navy, was a sport under-hand toss screened by the lineman and backfield interference. In each instance it was thrown by Shapley and received by McKee behind the line of scrimmage. It was not until the final period that the Huskies found a means of coping with this play.

The Navy's first touchdown in the first play of the second period, resulted when McKee tossed the ball 17 yards to Cullen who ran five yards and crossed the goal line for a touchdown. A Shapley to McKee pass resulted in the second touchdown in the same period. McKee kicked the goal in both instances.

A 25-yard pass from Abel to Dubois and a spectacular 28-yard run by George Wilson accounted for the Huskies' first touchdown. The Huskies seized an opportunity to tie the score in the fourth period with the Navy on its own ten yard line. Matthews' wide pass to Barchet was recovered by Petrie. Three line bucks failed. Then Abel passed to Bryan who stood unguarded on the Navy three-yard line. He ran over for a touchdown and Sherman kicked the goal tying the score. The remainder of the game was played in Navy territory.

The accurate passing of McKee who also gained consistently on runs and bucks, and driving dashes of Shapley and Barchet featured the Navy offense. The defensive work of Captain Carney caused him to loom above the other forwards on the field.

Coach Enoch Bagshaw made a final effort to win the game in the closing minutes when he substituted Ziel for Abel for an attempted place kick, but Kiel's kick from the 33 yard line went far wide of the posts.

The lineup:

LEHAN WON SKI JUMPING CONTEST

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Leonard Lehan of McGill university, won the ski efficiency test and the ski jumping contest, concluding events in the President Harding memorial winter sports contest here today. Eligibility of Lehan, questioned in the judges' meeting at the conclusion of the contest, necessitated postponement of awarding the trophy. Dartmouth and McGill are leading representatives of nine colleges in points. The ski events today were held on an intermediate hill the senior jump being in progress.

The summaries:

Ski efficiency test—won by Leonard Lehan, McGill; T. D. Frost, Dartmouth, second; Arthur Gravel McGill, third.

Ski jump—Won by Lehan, McGill; D. A. Carmichael, Wisconsin, second; R. A. Wood, McGill, third. Distance not announced.

TAYLOR WINS EASILY FROM SAMMY NABLE

New York, Jan. 1.—Bud Taylor, Chicago bantamweight easily defeated Sammy Nable of New York, in a 12 round bout at the Pioneer Athletic club today. Taylor led throughout the entire bout. Nable was hanging on to avoid punishment in the latter part of the fight.

Following were the weights of the pugilists at the weighing-in: Taylor, 118 3-4 pounds; Nable, 119; Brady, 128, and Garcia 127 1-4.

BILLY MISKE, VETERAN BOXER, IS DEAD

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 1. — Billy Miske, St. Paul heavyweight pugilist, died late today at a hospital after a week's illness from an acute attack of Bright's disease. He was 29 years old.

Although Miske had suffered from a chronic condition of the disease for four years he did not become seriously ill until recently. He spent Christmas with his family in St. Paul but collapsed the next day and was brought to a hospital here. Saturday he became unconscious and remained so until his death.

Miske's ring career was full of action. He had engaged in 114 ring battles and had been knocked out only once. His illness had twice forced him to retire.

He began his career in 1913, engaging in a number of fights at Hudson, Wis., when Mike Collins, Minneapolis promoter, had the arena there. Among his opponents were Jack Dempsey, Tommy Gibbons, Fred Fulton, Battling Levinsky, Kid Norfolk, Billy Papke, Bill Brennan, Jack Dillon, Harry Greb, Gus Christie, Bob Moha, Gunboat Smith, Jim Flynn, Willie Meehan, Mike O'Dowd, Bob Roper and others.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, was the only man to put the St. Paul heavyweight down for the count. Dempsey turned the trick in three rounds at Benton Harbor in July, 1920. In 1915 Miske fought a ten-round draw with Dempsey in St. Paul and later lost a newspaper decision to the champion in six rounds at Philadelphia.

Miske and Tommy Gibbons met five times, the former winning on a foul in New York in October, 1922, and the latter taking three decisions. One bout in Minneapolis ended in a draw.

Early in 1920 Miske was informed by his physicians that he had Bright's disease and must retire from the ring. At the time Miske had just gone through bankruptcy after losing his entire savings—$45,000—in the automobile business.

"If I am going to die, it might as well happen in the ring as in bed," the St. Paul fighter replied. "Tell me what to do and I will beat this sickness."

A diet was prescribed and six months later he was boxing again, making enough to fill the family exchequer. His last fight was at Omaha two months ago when he knocked out Billy Brennan in four rounds. Punishment absorbed in the ring in the past three years is believed to have done much to aggravate his ailment.

Miske was always popular with fistic followers because of his courage and aggressiveness in the ring. A widow and three children survive.

FORSMAN WINS MIDDLE ATLANTIC SKATING TITLE

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Paul Forsman of the Iceland Skating club, New York, today was crowned middle Atlantic skating champion by virtue of two victories in the middle Atlantic contests on Gedney's pond, near here. Joe Moore, New York, former middle Atlantic champion, relinquished the crown to Forsman, being out of competition, but made a day of it by winning the two events for the American Olympic speed skating team. Miss Elsie Muller, New York, won handily the two middle Atlantic events for women.

Thin ice necessitated restricting the course to contestants and officials, and it was found necessary also to cancel two events for the Olympic team and the three mile Donoghue Memorial trophy race. In the memorial event sixty skaters starting away in rhythmic stroke caused the ice to sway and break up in spots, and the race immediately was stopped.

The point scores: Forsman, 60; Potter, 40; Goldberg, 30; Murphy, Potts, Stephenson and Pickering, 20 each; Boyd, Hearn and Searles 10 each.

LYNCH KNOCKS OUT MURPHY IN THIRD

Akron, Ohio., Jan. 1.—Joe Lynch, New York, champion bantamweight boxer of the world, today knocked out Jimmy Murphy of St. Louis in the third round of a twelve round bout here.

Lynch opened the first round with a bombardment of rights and lefts to the face and body that kept Murphy backing away. The champion jabbed at will and in the second round floored Murphy twice with right crosses to the chin. Another in the third sent him down for the count.

Had Murphy defeated Lynch, the title would not have changed hands as both boys weighed over the class limit of 118 pounds.

WILLIAMS WINS BY DECISION OVER SMITH

New York, Jan. 1—Kid Williams, of Baltimore, former bantamweight champion, won the judges' decision over Midget Smith, of New York, in a 12-round bout, in Brooklyn today. Williams' victory was another step forward in his efforts to make a comeback. A week ago he defeated Dannie Lee.

Both men were battered in the fight today. Smith began losing ground in the eighth round when he was struck a powerful blow over the heart and knocked to the floor. His claim of foul was disallowed.

Smith tipped the scales at 124 3-4 pounds and Williams 122 3-4.

STRIBLING OUTPOINTS ROSENBERG IN SLASHING BOUT

Newark, Jan. 1.—W. L. Stribling 19 year old Georgia high school aspirant for pugilist honors battered his way to decisive victory over Dave Rosenberg, rugged Brooklyn middleweight, this afternoon in a bristling 12 round bout before a New Year's crowd of more than 7,000 in the first regiment armory.

Dominating the fight from start to finish with an aggressive vigorous attack, Stribling's triumph was convincing to the first metropolitan audience that has seen him in action. No official decision, was rendered under the New Jersey boxing laws but newspaper critics at the ringside were unanimous in giving Stribling their verdict. A majority credited the southern youth with nine of the 12 rounds giving one to Rosenberg and classing two as even.

Stribling had Rosenberg in distress in at least three of the rounds, the sixth, third and twelfth, but though he pummeled the former New York state middleweight champion slashing hooks and uppercuts, the Georgian was unable to land a finishing blow.

Frequently the youth's inexperience and over-anxiety cost him opportunities while Rosenberg, an expert shock absorber, proved too resourceful for his opponent at other times.

There was plenty of rough and tumble battling at close quarters in which Rosenberg offset many of Stribling's swinging attacks with infighting. Stribling's chief weapons were a left uppercut to the jaw and a right cross, which often landed with damaging results. The southerner's speed, strength and agility were prominent factors in his favor but they were well matched in stamina and courage.

Stribling backed up his aggressiveness with a shifty defense but it was not good enough to entirely check Rosenberg's unceasing body attacks.

The bout, which was the concluding feature of a holiday card was something of a holiday affair. "Pa" Stribling directed his son's campaign, with Herbert Stribling, a younger brother, as bucket-handler, while "Ma" Stribling view the battle from a seat just in back of her son's corner. Freddy Welsh, former lightweight champion at whose farm Stribling finished his training, also assisted in handling the Georgian, and after the fight the group was the center of an enthusiastic ringside demonstration.

Stribling entered the ring with a five-pound advantage in weight, scaling 165 1-2 to 160 1-2 for Rosenberg. Henry Davis was the referee.

Asked about her son's plans after the fight, "Ma" Stribling seemed more concerned about his return to school than future ring engagements.

"We're going right back to Macon," she declared. "You know my boy's got some studying to do."

TENDLER LOSES TO GOLDMAN AT PHILLY

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—Dropped in the second and fifth rounds for the count of nine, Lew Tendler today lost the decision in a ten round bout here to Nate Goldman of this city. Tendler showed signs of grogginess.

After the first round, which went to Tendler, there was no question as to the superiority of the men, and the verdict of the judges and referee was unanimous.

Although Goldman, who sprung into prominence last summer by defeating Pinky Mitchell in an eight round bout here, put up a great battle, experts at the ringside agreed that Tendler lacked his former punch and stamina. Some even went so far as to say that the southpaw, once considered a leading contender for the lightweight crown worn by Benny Leonard, had seen his best days as a boxer. It was said, however, that his best hand, the left, was in bad shape owing to repeated injuries. The knuckles on this hand were broken some time ago and it was said the injury had never properly healed.

Goldman's decisive victory caused many experts to express the opinion that he would prove a dangerous contender in the lightweight division.

SCOTT HIGH ELEVEN BEATS WESTERN TEAM

Portland, Ore., Jan. 1.—Scott High school football team of Toledo, Ohio, champion in the interscholastic football title of the United States, defeated Columbia university's preparatory school eleven here today, 20 to 17.

The Toledo champions gave a remarkable exhibition of forward passing. Although outweighed 15 pounds to the man, the middle westerners overcame this apparent handicap by their wizardry in hurling the ball for long gains.

During the contest they attempted 27 forward passes and completed 12 for a total of 159 yards. By rushing, the Toledo boys gained 393 yards to 231 yards for their opponents. Scott made 22 first downs to Columbia's 12.

"Y" SENIORS WILL PLAY AT BALTIC TONIGHT

At Baltic, this evening, the Norwich "Y" Seniors will clash with the Baltic Wanderers. The Wanderers have been defeated by close scores in the last few games but are confident of turning the tables of the Seniors tonight. The "Y" team will be Pineault and Finlayson, forwards; Harris, center; Williams and Rosch, guards. The Wanderers will line up as follows: Simoneau and Ridgeway, forwards; Charron, center; Coady and R. Swanson, guards. The preliminary game will be between the Baltic Bantams and the fast Central Village A. C.

ROCKY KANSAS GETS THE DECISION OVER MEYERS

Buffalo, Jan. 1.—Although knocked down for counts of one in the first and fourth rounds, Rocky Kansas won the judges' decision over Teddy Meyers of this city here today in a ten round bout. Meyers took a count of five in the 7th round. The weights were: Kansas, 133; Meyers, 133 1-2.

Yale Beats Western Reserve.

Cleveland Ohio, Jan. 1.—Outclassing western reserve from start to finish, the Yale basketball team tonight got revenge for a defeat suffered two years ago by walloping the local quintet 39 to 12. Clever handling of the ball and expert team work enabled the Blue warriors to hurl in seventeen goals. Sulsman was the star, putting in six.

"Spud" Drew Resigns.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 1.—Harold D. Drew, football coach and director of athletics at Trinity college for the last three years, has presented his resignation to take effect at the end of the present scholastic year, it was announced today. Drew, it is understood has been offered a place at another college.

SPORT NOTES

Horse racing in England gives employment to about 20,000 people.

Ten games will be played by the Washington and Lee football squad next fall, all with southern universities.

Stanford and Idaho universities have decided to pay their football game next season in Portland, Ore.

All the prominent winter resorts in Florida are now able to boast of three or more golf courses each.

The first athletic stadium in West Virginia is being built at Parkersburg. The structure will cost $100,000 and is designed to seat 20,000.

Fishing was a popular sport 3,000 years ago, and the fish-hooks of those days were the same as now used, except that the metal then was bronze.

The winter golf season in Texas will get under way with the state open championship tournament, starting at San Antonio on St. Valentine's day.

Harry Kaskey, the speedy Chicago skater who will be one of the American contenders in the Olympic championships at Chamonix, is only 19 years old.

One by one the minor baseball leagues are discarding the split-season plan. The Piedmont league is the latest organization to announce its intention to return to the one-lap race.

The National Sporting club of London is now staging a series of heavyweight novices' competitions with a view to producing a British heavyweight champion who will be worthy of the name.

Whether the United States will be represented by a soccer team in the Olympic games depends upon the success of efforts now making by the soccer governing body to raise a $12,000 fund to cover expenses.

The Swedish people are among the greatest sportsmen in the world, water and ice sports, of course, predominating. For yachting and rowing, Sweden is the first country in Europe, and naturally leads in its ice sports.

Riding to hounds on a bicycle was the accomplishment of a titled woman member of an English hunt club some years ago. She was thrown several times, surmounted the stiles, was in at the death, and was presented with the brush.

The approaching celebration of the 50th anniversary of the National league serves to recall the fact that of the twenty-two different cities in which the parent league has had clubs, only Chicago and Boston have been continuously represented from the first season of the organization.

Pal Moran, New Orleans lightweight, and Johnny Shugrue of Waterbury, Conn., who recently checked the sensational advance of Luis Vicentini by out-pointing the Chilean in a twelve-round match, will meet next Friday night in a fifteen-round contest at Madison Square Garden.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American league club and the oldest of the major league pilots, celebrates his fortieth anniversary in professional baseball this year. It was in 1884 that he started his career with the Meriden, Conn., club.

The new recreation palace in Cleveland, where the Ohio state bowling championship will be staged in February, has forty alleys available for the tournament.

LEWIS THROWS JAP CHAMP OF JIU JITSU

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Ed ("Strangler") Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, tonight defeated Taro Myaki, Japanese champion jiu jitsu, in a mixed match in which the American and Japanese styles of wrestling were employed.

Lewis won the first fall in the second period after a total wrestling time of 35:46 with a headlock. The first bout was the jiu jitsu style, calling for twenty minutes wrestling with a five minute rest. The Japanese wrestler was hurt in the final bout and the second fall was obtained by Lewis in easy fashion with a headlock after two minutes and 17 seconds.

UNABLE TO RESIST THE CALL OF THE SEA

New York, Jan. 1—(By the A. P.)—Adrian "King" Zeeder and the sea are wed and no man can put them asunder.

Coming into New York tonight from San Francisco is the Panama Pacific Steamship Manchuria with Captain Zeeder on his last voyage as master after having sailed the charted and uncharted lanes of the deep for three score years. But the sea he loves still holds him, for after a few days on land he will start on a pleasure voyage through the seven seas and when that is finished he probably will start on another.

He has tried land many times and found it boresome, troublesome and filled with men few of whom have the confidence of sailor folk. The sea has treated him well. He has been over more than 3,000,000 miles of it in his time, weathered its storms and loved them, seen it in all its moods and been fascinated; it has never harmed him, his ships or his men and he's going to stick with it, even after his retirement tomorrow when the Manchuria is tied to her pier.

He's going to stick with it until the blood it makes tingle in his veins ceases to run and then he wants to sail through eternity on its vast floor.

When Zeeder first followed his natural bent and took to sea, he was hardly old enough to have learned much about the land, on which he was born. So after he had been sailing for a number of years he began to hear land lubbers blubber about the joys of terra firma and its inhabitants and the hardships of the sea and he decided to experiment.

He went home and started a little garden, but the lettuce was just peeping through the ground when he decided he had had enough. Back to sea he went.

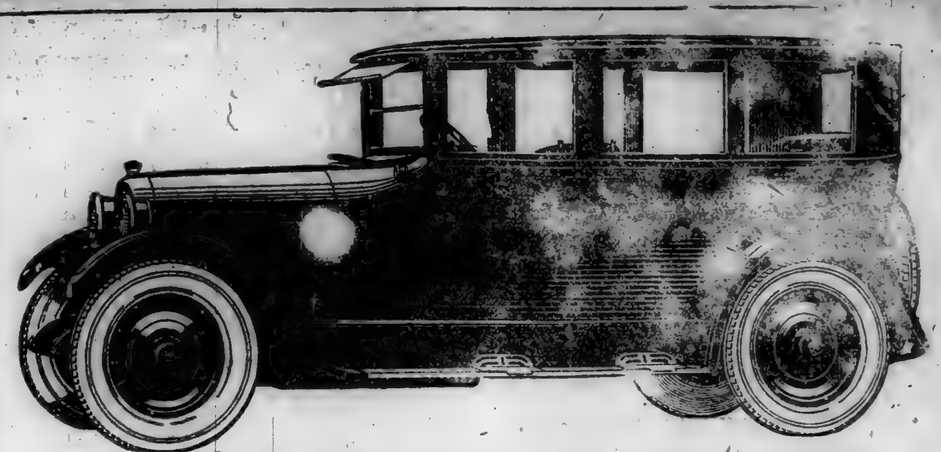
Years passed and he had another invitation for a stay ashore. It promised adventure and he accepted. This exploit found him engineering a filibustering campaign in Guatamala and it had all but been accomplished with the vice presidency of the country looming for him when the captain of the steamer Siberia died and he was offered the job. The call of the sea was too strong and he threw off his filibuster garments, donned his old sea cap and sailed.

During the war he skippered ships that ran munitions through the submarine zone to Plymouth. He was in command of a ship when it was torpedoed in the channel. It was dark and he should have been in his bunk, but he was on deck. The torpedo missed by inches and his men trained six inch guns on the undersea enemies. As the "sitting duck" sank at the U boats a roar of laughter was heard from the bridge. It was "King" amused that the enemy would waste ammunition trying to get a ship captained by a foster-son of the sea itself.

BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN FATALLY INJURED BY BANDITS

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 1—Victor Rogalski, 35, of Thompsonville, Conn., age, or perhaps because he would not resort to the methods of what he called unconscious in the road in Suffield, Conn., late last night, died in a Springfield hospital early today of a fractured skull. He is believed to have been struck down by robbers and $300 taken from him. An autopsy today showed that death was due to a fractured skull, caused by a blow from a blunt instrument. He did not regain consciousness.

Deputy Sheriff George Greer, of Suffield and men from the office of State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn in Hartford, are investigating the case. Rogalski had been in this country 15 years and had lived in Thompsonville four years. He was unmarried and employed in the wash house of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet company. Rogalski drew $300 from a bank yesterday, according to papers found on his person.



A TRIPLE ALLIANCE FOR MOTORING SAFETY

BALLOON Tires, oversized brakes, emergency foot control,—with these features Reo unqualifiedly puts the maximum of possible safety into motor travel. For they represent air-cushioned car motion, prompt and skid-free brake action, unhindered steering and instant, positive response to every traffic exigency.

Riding on low pressure balloons, Reo cars with their careful chassis balance and gentle springing offer comfort beyond description. They move at higher speed over rough roads even without vibration.

In touring, Balloon Tires permit safely swift speeds on all roads, all day. No need for furious driving on pavements to compensate for time lost on dirt highways.

Balloon Tires give almost unbelievable certainty of driving control. They obey the driver's touch instantly when other tires hesitate.

At normal speeds they can be steered out of ruts, through loose gravel, off pavements and back on, across car tracks nearly parallel with the wheels,—all without tendency to skid.

Quick, positive, skid-free braking is assured by Balloon Tires and Reo's greatly oversized rear-wheel brakes. The latter have always been able to hold the wheels from turning.

Balloon Tires offer to the road nearly three-fourths more gripping surface than regular pneumatics. This contact area is the foothold enabling the tires to slow up the car. The larger the area, the more quickly the car stops.

By cushioning the entire chassis and body against road shock and even minor vibration, Balloon Tires cause measurable saving in general service expense, definitely increase the car life, and tend to favor greater gasoline milage.

Reo engineers and testing experts have been actively interested in every step of Balloon Tire development, but critical with.

All facts and facilities Reo acquired in engineering and pioneering pneumatic tires for trucks have been used in judging the actual worth of Balloon Tires.

Factory-owned test cars have covered an astonishing total of miles, supplementing equally exhaustive tests made by tire companies themselves.

Reo has pioneered and popularized many new developments in its 20 years of life, and in a spirit of well considered eagerness to adopt proved refinements Reo offers Balloon Tire equipment.

ARMY AND NAVY FIVE EASILY WINS FROM PROVIDENCE "PRO" QUINTET

Playing an exceptionally brilliant game the Army and Navy Club Five easily won from the Providence Professionals Tuesday afternoon at Parish hall, 48 to 25, before a large crowd of local basketball fans. The game was fast but the result was never in doubt as the Providence team was outclassed from the first, the first half ending in a 23 to 10 score in favor of the local five.

The combination of Lou Mitchell of the Boston Whirlwinds, Cardie and Mills bore the scoring burden and acquitted themselves with glory. This trio alone accounted for 41 points and Harry Mills had 16 points of this to himself. Mitchell played a wonderful game on the offensive and his floor work was almost perfect. He moved through the Providence team with ease and his eye for the basket was good, he getting five from the floor and two from the foul line. Cardie also played a good game at forward, scoring five baskets and three fouls.

Peloquin of the Providence team was the only man that had an eye for the hoop, caging six field goals, many of these coming on long shots from mid-floor. The guard work of the Coleman boys kept the Providence team from becoming dangerous and the boys found opportunity to drop in several baskets themselves. The summary follows:

MYSTIC

There was an unusually interesting meeting of James W. Jackson Reliable Class of the Methodist Sunday school in the class room Sunday afternoon, with twenty of the class present. The class voted to pay $70 toward the improvement fund and to tax each member 10 cents a week. It also voted to pay one dollar a month toward the electric light bill of the church. The following officers were elected: President, Winifred Dick; vice president, Arthur Gledhill; secretary, Albert Neff; treasurer, Milton Berry.

John Goode of the Bowery mission, New York, gave an address to the boys.

Mrs. Thomas W. Ryley and daughter, Miss Blanche Ryley, have returned to West Haven after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Keigwin.

Mrs. Mary Watrous of Gales Ferry and Henry Packer of Stamford, have been visitors with their aunt, Mrs. Harriet Avery. Mrs. Avery will be 84 the 17th of March, lives alone and is in the best of health.

Canada's export trade with the United States increased $37,367,733 in the 12 months ended November 30. Total exports were $419,893,920 as compared with $382,526,187 in the preceding 12 months.

WESTERLY

New Year's day in Westerly was a sort of semi-holiday. The town hall was closed all day, although work was continued in some of the offices. Banks on both sides of the Pawcatuck river were closed the entire day and the post and express offices were closed or observed holiday hours in the afternoon. Manufacturing plants, mercantile and business places generally were open for business.

New Year's eve was quietly but generally made the excuse for larger or smaller gatherings to see the old year out and new one in. At Grace Methodist church a watch meeting service began at 10 o'clock, under the leadership of Rev. M. S. Stocking with the speaker, Rev. E. E. Morrill of the Pawcatuck Congregational church. Refreshments were served. The meeting was well attended. Three hundred attended the annual Ladies' night of the Westerly Cycle club with a dance at the Rhode Island hotel, from 9 to 11 and an entertainment with refreshments in the club rooms from 11 to 3 a. m.

A Westerly Dartmouth college group held a dinner party at the Elm Tree Inn, Pawcatuck. Beside negotiating the chicken dinner, college songs and stories provided entertainment. Before the evening was finished it was decided to apply to the Dartmouth Alumni association for the organizing of a Dartmouth Chapter in Westerly. Among those present were Judge Albert R. Stillman, Jesse and Karl Stillman, George W. Woodward, William H. Browning, Harris Browning, Hobart B. Ayers, Clifford W. Campbell, Instructor Weston of W. H. S., H. M. Barber, Ralph Koelb, Donald Burdick, Alfred Hemphill, and Rev. E. E. Merrill.

Proprietor and Mrs. Frank Furness were the hosts to a large New Year's party at the Elm Tree Inn, Pawcatuck, Monday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. John Champlin and Dr. and Mrs. John Champlin, Jr., entertained Tuesday from 4 to 6 at an afternoon tea and reception at their home on Granite street. Mr. and Mrs. Hobart B. Ayers, and two daughters returned Tuesday afternoon to Pittsburgh, Pa., following a few days at their farm on the Shore road, Haversham.

The sixteenth annual meeting of Deborah Chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star, was largely attended by members in the Masonic rooms Tuesday evening. A business meeting of Deborah chapter, which is named after Deborah Reed Franklin, wife of Benjamin Franklin, for whom the Rhode Island blue lodge of Masons is also named, was held at 5.30. Following the business session a roast beef supper was served in charge of a committee of which Mrs. Jesse K. Anderson was chairman. At 8 o'clock business was resumed, when Worthy Grand Matron Mrs. Abbie B. Coleman and Worthy Grand Patron Frank E. Ballou presided at the election and installation of officers as follows: Worthy matron, Mrs. Nora G. Fowler; worthy patron, William Harry Anderson; associate matron, Mrs. Eleanor Mitchell; treasurer, Mrs. Rhoda M. York; secretary, Mrs. M. Edith Burk; conductress, Mrs. Mabel A. York; associate conductress, Mrs. Bessie N. Clark; chaplain, Mrs. Gertrude J. McKenzie; marshal, Mrs. Esther O. Tetlow; organist, Mrs. Gertrude Murphey; Adah, Miss Edith L. Girven; Ruth, Miss Jessie Aitken; Esther Mrs. Bessie S. Mayne; Martha, Miss Louise Carr; Electa, Miss Minnie Francis; warder, Miss Alice B. Fiddes; sentinel, John Rowe.

Trustees, Mrs. Esther O. Tetlow (3 years, Thomas McKenzie (2 years) Miss M. Isabelle Fiddes (1 year). The relief and floral committee is made up of the worthy matron, associate matron and conductress.

Past matrons of Deborah chapter are Mrs. Louis A. Babcock, Mrs. M. Edith Burk, Mrs. Edith E. Girven, Mrs. Hattie I. Barber, Mrs. Fannie E. Babcock, Mrs. Maud Larkin, Mrs Gertrude J. McKenzie, Miss Grace E. Pierce, Mrs. Jessie K. Anderson, Miss M. Isabel Fiddes, Miss Grace D. Fiddes, Mrs. Lillian Pearson, Mrs. Emma Clapham, Mrs. Frances P. Rowe and Mrs. Esther O. Tetlow.

Past matrons are James O. Babcock, George E. Broughton, Thomas McKenzie, Charles M. Kebbe, Albert E. Barber, Samuel Girven, Abel P. Randall, Harry L. Bolles, Lewis Stanton and Frederick N. Robinson.

There were present 106 member of Deborah chapter and numerous visitors.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Hiscox on Spruce street, New Year's Eve was held one of the season's parties, which featured a self-service New Year breakfast for the guests in attendance.

At the Community House of the Lorraine Manufacturing Co., on Mechanic street there was a merry gathering of employees and guests. With music by Gavitt's orchestra a dance and general good time had been arranged by the Community House Dance committee, James Savage, Fred Morey and Miss Margaret Fishwick.

Early Tuesday morning many a hurrying passerby was surprised to see a number of people in a kneeling attitude, not occasioned by pious New Year resolves but by the necessity of changing number plates on automobiles, to prevent later difficulties with the law.

Beginning this (Wednesday) morning Earle S. Bavier, formerly freight agent at the Mystic station of the New Haven road for six or seven years, starts his duties as freight agent at the Westerly station, Henry D. Smith, formerly agent here beginning his duties in Norwich Monday. Frank Collins of the West Side is now the temporary agent at Mystic.

Responding to a fire alarm from Box No. 26, Tuesday afternoon at 4.30, three pieces of apparatus left the station for a bad chimney fire in the large square frame house, No. 8 Rocket street, owned by Henry Walton and occupied by Harry C. Brown, Fred A. Bowen, Mrs. Annie B. Coon and J. Edwin Burdick. The chimney in the center of the house was found to be on fire and so hot at the first floor that the firemen had to attack the blaze from the second floor where the contents of a number of extinguishers was poured in and around the chimney before the blaze was put out. While lowering a 35-footladder from the house the automatic locking device failed to work and Edward A. Farrell caught the end of the middle finger of his left hand in the ladder as it slipped down, tearing the nail clean from the flesh and necessitating attention from Dr. M. H. Scanlon. The fire damage was not great.

A Buick roadster owned and driven by Charles Moosey was proceeding down Liberty street, Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock, on the right hand side of the highway just as the Dort truck owned and driven by Merle F. Doughty passed up the street. As the driver of the truck attempted to cross the street to enter Morton avenue the machines collided with the result that the left front wheels of both were broken off and the axle of the truck bent and twisted as well as the mud guards. Officer Francis Mc-

When the fog was thickest Monday night a touring car owned and driven by H. J. Leon, who was accompanied by his wife struck the rear end of an unoccupied auto parked beneath the large electric light in front of the New Park hotel. A jammed front fender of the touring car resulted. Mr. Leon declared that the fog on his windshield prevented him from seeing the other auto.

A special session of Stonington town court was held in Stonington Saturday by Judge William A. Wilcox when a case of alleged desertion and fornication charge was read by Clerk Albert G. Martin. Probable cause being found, was bound over to the present superior court for trial. A plea of not guilty was entered and John Howard of Pawcatuck became surety in the sum of $500. Taken into custody by Officer Kane of the New Haven railroad Saturday on a complaint of trespassing on railroad property John Driscoll of Albany, N. Y., a wanderer, was found guilty by Judge Wilcox and sentenced to 30 days in New London county jail, costs being $21.50, with commitment by Constable McCort. In the same session of court Arthur W. Burnham, of Pawcatuck, was found guilty of assault on Louis Gelia and was fined $1 and costs amounting to $12.58, which he paid.

Henry J. Latham of Noank, recently elected secretary of the Southern New England Poultry association at New London, was in Westerly Monday evening en route to Boston, to attend the New England Poultry show which lasts for five days and is held in Mechanics Hall building.

The private combination car of officials of the Western Union Telegraph Co., was attached to the westbound Federal express, which stopped at the Westerly station at 9.45 Monday evening.

Louis L. Matthews returned to Westerly Monday from a business visit in New York.

Frank Robinson returns this (Wednesday) morning to Philadelphia, where he will resume his studies at the University of Pennsylvania, after the holiday vacation passed with Westerly relatives and friends.

THE WEATHER.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Diminishing northwest and weather fair Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Diminishing northwest shifting to easterly by Wednesday night; weather fair Wednesday.

Conditions.

The disturbance central Monday night over Lake Ontario moved rapidly eastward to Newfoundland attended by snow and rain in the North Atlantic states and has been followed by rapidly rising pressure and decidedly colder weather generally east of the Mississippi river.

Another disturbance was central on Tuesday night over New Mexico and moving eastward.

The outlook is that an area of high barometer central Tuesday night over the Ohio valley will advance rapidly eastward and be followed by the disturbance that is central over New Mexico. This eastward movement will be attended by general precipitation Wednesday night and on Thursday over all parts of the Washington forecast district. The precipitation will be in the form of snow in the North Atlantic states.

Forecast.

For Northern and Southern New England: fair Wednesday. Thursday unsettled and warmer with snow or rain.

NORWICH TOWN

Delightful weather New Year's day helped attract a large assemblage to the First Congregational church, to hear the forty-third annual organ recital by the church organist, Herbert L. Yerrington, who was ably assisted by Miss Ruth Ray, violinist, of Springfield, Mass.

Preceding the recital, the annual business meeting of the parish was held, at 3 o'clock, attended only by the church members.

The recital, which was one of Organist Yerrington's best, won many compliments for him and Miss Ray. The entire programme was carried out with expression and smoothness.

Miss Ray, an accomplished musician, having appeared in public many times in concert work, in Springfield, Hartford and other cities, gave as her first number Sonata in A Major, by Handel. Her concluding numbers were (a) Scotch Lullaby, by Luigi von Kunts; (b) Mazurka de Concert, by Edmund Severn, all being beautifully interpreted. Although only a young woman it is prophesied that Miss Ray's talent will win her wide success.

Significant among the numbers by Organist Yerrington, was a Pastoral Suite, by Clifford Demarest, in four parts as follows: Sunrise, Rustic Dance, Sunset, and Thanksgiving. In the sunrise the first faint dawn appears which soon brightens and as the harmonies change the heavens grow brighter and more brilliant till finally the full-orbed day is ushered in then begins the bright little dance; next the sunset begins so quietly that one hardly noticee it, then comes a melody mostly for oboe and which is carried through the piece (with the exception of the middle portion where the heavens are ablaze with beauty) with the sun finally sinking from sight. The whole composition ends in a jubilant thanksgiving in which a choral effect is worked out with full organ just before the close.

Another beautiful number was A Legend of the Desert, by Stoughton, a charming bit of delicately flowing Orientalism.

The program opened with American Fantasia, by Roland Diggle, a voluminous composer and writer for musical papers; and the closing number, Finale, by Faulkes, was a brilliant composition with a quiet middle section, closing with the first theme and short coda.

At the conclusion of the recital, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, extended a cordial invitation to the entire audience, which included representatives of many of the churches of Norwich, to assemble in the chapel and partake of the parish supper. Here more than two hundred enjoyed the hospitality of this church, when, under the direction of Mrs. Frank E. Sterry and Miss Jennie M. Case, the following supper was served: Ham, tongue, buttered rolls, pickles, cake and coffee. Others on the supper committee were Mrs. Earl Browning, Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, Mrs. Philip B. Whaley, Mrs. Grant and Miss Gertrude Avery. Those who waited on table comprised young men and young women of the Sunday school.

Preceding the supper Rev. Mr. Bailey said grace. A social hour followed.

LAWYERS WILL ATTEND STATE BAR MEETING

Several local lawyers are planning to attend the annual meeting of the Connecticut Bar association and dinner in Bridgeport, Jan. 21, when Robert E. Lee Saner, president of the American Bar association, will be the principal speaker.

Judge A. F. Ells of Waterbury will be another speaker. At a business session the committee on requirements for admission to the bar, E. M. Day of Hartford chairman, will report on the suggestion that applicants be required to show two years' college training in addition to their law school courses.

The recently elected officers of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., were installed at the lodge rooms in Odd Fellows' hall, Tuesday evening, by District Deputy Grand Master John F. Amburn of this city and suite. The newly installed officers follow:

Noble grand, Walter D. Kelly; vice grand, Louis Waters; treasurer, Edward A. Kline; financial scribe, Henry Hesbner; recording scribe, Paul Collins. The appointive officers are: R. S. N. G., Edward Smith; L. S. N. G., Harry Spicer; warden, A. H. Perry; conductor, John McNeely; outside guardian, Robert Donahue; inside guardian, Walter Stott; R. S. S., Fred Eaton; L. S. S., Walter Johnson; chaplain, S. F. Bishop; R. S. V. G., V. G. George Thomas; L. S. S. V. G., John Tefft.

After the work of installing the officers had been completed the large number of Odd Fellows present at the meeting were served chowder, pickles, doughnuts, celery, rolls and coffee by the members of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F. The entertainment committee comprised A. H. Perry, Edward Smith, Walter Stott and Walter Johnson.

At the next meeting the entertainment committee is planning to hold a debate on the prohibition question and a large turnout of members is looked for at the meeting.

Arrangements are being completed for the installation of the recently elected officers of Palmyra Encampment. No. 3, I. O. O. F., at the encampment's next meeting which will occur Thursday evening, January 10th. Besides the installation the golden rule degree will be worked on a class of five candidates. Refreshments will be served after the business session.

NORWICH FIRE LOSSES $91,211.08 IN PAST YEAR

Norwich had fire losses of $91,211.08 in the past year which was $27,957.37 more than the year before, according to the records kept by Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton from which he makes up his annual report to the National Board of Fire Underwriters and to the state police department. Chief Stanton has already dispatched both of these reports, his promptness in this respect no doubt making him first of the 5,000 or 6,000 chiefs all over the country to get their reports in to the national association.

The total loss in the city of Norwich up to midnight Dec. 31 amounts this year to $91,211.08 as against $63,253.81 for the same 12 months in 1922. This year's losses are very small with the exception of the fires of the Max Gordon Corp. which totalled $61,000. Had it not been for these cotton bale fires the loss here would have been below the cities of this size.

In figuring the fire loss of any city the total valuations at risk must also be taken into consideration. The city of Norwich has a total value of buildings involved in fires of $5,547,100 with a value of contents of $1,100,940.60 making property value a total of $2,941,978.60. The total insurance thereon is $1,363,475 on buildings and $1,160,983.60 on contents and total insurance on the property value of $3,412,588.60. The total insurance loss on buildings was $35,401.15, on contents $55,809.93; a combined total on buildings and contents of $91,211.08.

During the year there were 214 calls for the department as against 193 alarms for 1922. A short table showing the types of fires will be of interest and therefore follows:

In brick and stone buildings	80
In iron clad buildings	1
In frame buildings	104
In buildings not classified above	7
Other than building fires	12
Total	214
Confined to building or place of origin	209
Extending to adjoining buildings	5
Totals	214

Chief Stanton's department can well serve as a model for thoroughness, discipline and efficiency, as all records are kept up to the minute and equipment is maintained in A-1 order at all times, while promptness, speed and skill with which the fire fighters get at their work when responding to calls keeps the losses down to the minimum and guarantees the citizens the highest standard of protection from the fire hazard.

CONNECTICUT NOW HAS 6,008 PENSIONERS

Connecticut has 6,008 pensioners who cost the federal government the healthy total of $3,236,412 during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the commissioner of pensions.

Among the New England states Connecticut ranks third in the number of pensioners and the amount expended upon them by our government. Among all the states in the country Connecticut ranks 27th highest in amount expended upon pensioners.

The total number of pensioners in New England is 44,893, involving an expenditure by the federal government of $23,394,985, which is distributed among the other five states as follows: Maine, 7,917, $3,874,825; Massachusetts, 23,907, $9,990,373; New Hampshire, 4,060, $1,944,530; Rhode Island, 2,959, $1,357,404; and Vermont, 4,032, $1,971,833.

WILL PROVIDE PARSONAGE FOR REV. E. GEORGE BIDDLE

The Federated church at Amherst, Mass., is about to provide a parsonage for its new pastor, Rev. E. George Biddle, D. D., formerly of Norwich and New London, who has not yet been able to move his wife and daughter from Cambridge, his last charge, to Amherst. Mrs. Biddle is the guest of some of her husband's parishioners for the holidays. Dr. Biddle, a former presiding elder of the A. M. E. church for the New England district, with headquarters in New Haven, and later presiding elder of the New York district, headquarters at Newburgh, the home of Mrs. Biddle's people, is 76 but active. He has preached all over the eastern United States since he was mustered out of the Union army in 1866.

ROBT. SYMINGTON AFFILIATES WITH MERIDEN CONTRACTOR

Robert Symington, formerly of this city, who has been associated with the H. Wales Lines Co., Meriden, for many years, in which connection he has had charge of the erection of a number of important building projects, has recently become affiliated with Lewis A. Miller, contractor, of Meriden, and is to open an office in New London. Through his association with the Lines company, Mr. Symington has made many friends in New London. He is to move to New London shortly, and will act in the capacity of resident manager of the business.

Haile Club Christmas Celebration

Twenty members of the Haile club attended the annual turkey dinner and Christmas tree celebration held in the club rooms in the Chapman building Monday evening. Miss Haidie Blackstone, club president, presided over the meeting assisted by Miss Katherine Smith, vice president and Miss Mary Sheridan, secretary and treasurer. A social evening was enjoyed, musical numbers being rendered by the members until midnight when "Happy New Year" rang out in unison. The evening was a most enjoyable one for all.

WATCH-NIGHT SERVICE WAS HELD AT YANTIC

In spite of the inclement weather on New Year's Eve, a considerable number of people attended the watch-night service in Grace church at 11:30 p. m., to remember the old year as it went out and to welcome the new year in. After the service the congregation retired to the parish house where the women had prepared refreshments. At the close all joined in singing Auld Lang Syne.

Many a slow-going man would be willing to rush the growler.

JUDGE FISK DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stafford Springs, Jan. 1—Marcus A. Fisk, 85, died this afternoon at Hartford, following an illness of about two years. He had lived in Willington and Stafford practically all his life. He had been town clerk and treasurer for 28 years and connected with the probate court here both as clerk and judge from 1857, until he retired from business life in January, 1918.

He was born in Willington, June, April 4, 1838, the son of James and Mary A. Hinman Fisk. His family were old settlers in Willington, coming there in 1752, his great-grandfather, Rufus Fisk, serving as a soldier in the Revolutionary war. His father died when Marcus was a young boy. He moved to East Windsor and made his home with his uncle, Dr. Marcus L. Fisk. He studied under private tutors at Windsor and attended the schools there, later entering the University of Vermont, going from there to Yale Medical school, where he was graduated in 1863. Following this graduation he entered the employ here of the Mineral Springs Manufacturing company. He later engaged in the lumber business in Willington and in Vermont. In 1887 he dropped this work and became clerk of the probate court and after a few years became judge and filled that office until 1906 when he reached the age limit of 70. From 1908 to 1918 he was again clerk of the probate court while his son Robert H. Fisk, was judge. From 1889 to 1917 he was both town clerk and treasurer, being elected each term on both tickets. He retired in 1918.

He was a man of unusual concentration and industry and being thoroughly familiar with the land records of the town, did most efficient work in the conveyance of property. He was fond of gardening and was especially

YOUR INCOME

YOUR annual earning capacity or income is measured by the amount of life's necessities it will buy.

The American Woolen Company has through its activities contributed a great deal to raise the standards of weaving and to lower the cost of clothing, thus enabling you to use a larger portion of your income for other things essential to life and happiness.

Sixty mills equipped with every textile machine known to increase and improve the weaving of cloth, more than 35,000 workers, skilled in operating and caring for these machines, large resources and ready access to the world's markets rendering possible purchases of raw material in immense quantities at the most favorable prices—these are the advantages of large-scale operations which lower costs of production so that the ultimate user of woolen and worsted fabrics may benefit.

SUIT IS STOLEN FROM DYEING WORKS

A man's two-piece suit and a pair of trousers were stolen Monday night when entrance was effected into Gregoire's dry cleaning and dyeing store at 329 Main street by some unknown person. The trousers were found later in Hemichel's garage nearby, but the suit has not been recovered.

A window that had been forced in during the night got in. The burglary took place evidently shortly after midnight, this time was discovered about 7:30 when one of the persons employed at the place returned there. Report was made to the police who made an investigation.

THE COLONIAL QUARTETTE AT Y. W. C. A. NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION

The annual New Year's reception of the Y. W. C. A. was given Tuesday evening with an enjoyable programme for the large number attending. The guests assembled in the auditorium, where a welcome on behalf of the association was extended by General Secretary Edwin Hill and the programme was carried out by the Te Colonial Quartette who appeared for the first part in colonial costume and later in Kate Greenaway dress. At the conclusion of the programme the audience gave unanimous approval to a strong testimonial of approval for the artistic programme.

Their programme was give as follows:

Part 1—Trio, Grandma's Advice; soprano solo, When Love is Kind; dance La Bouree; alto solo, In the Time of Roses; reading, Selected.

Part 2—Duets, Two Doves, and Little Jack Horner; alto solo, If I Had a Dolly; soprano solo, If No One Ever Marries Me; reading, Verses; trios, Husheen, and All Around the House.

Swahn's orchestra opened the evening with concert selections for half an hour and played several numbers later.

After the programme refreshments were served in the lobby under direction of the social committee, Charles L. Stewart, Arthur F. Wyman and N. Eugene Smith.

POETRY

ANOTHER YEAR

Days should speak, and multitude of years should teach wisdom.—Job XXXII:7.

Another year hath brought its meed of blessing,
Its meed of honor, and its meed of praise;
Its meed of love each day, each hour, caressing,
Its meed of comfort for the weary days.

Its meed of suffering, haply, and of sorrow,
That we might learn some lesson that was meet;
Or gather strength for some unforeseen morrow,
While sitting silent at our Master's feet.

Its meed of opportunities, abundant,
For sowing precious seed of golden grain;
For tilling out the love of God, redundant,
As summer's sunshine, and as autumn's rain.

What of the year, O Soul? What of the sowing?
Hast thou sown perfect seed? or were there tares
Amongst the grain, which hurt, and choked its growing?
And didst thou heed not thro' earthly cares?

What of the vintage, Soul? When comes thy Master?
Shall He find fruitage fair, or aught but leaves?
If He should come today in they pasture,
Would He find barren land, or many sheaves?

Carest thou not, O Soul? and dost thou murmur,
"My Lord comes not today? The time long!
Tomorrow I will work, and will not falter;
Today I'll mingle with the world's gay throng"
Nay! Listen, precious Soul—"Behold He cometh!
And no man knoweth when that hour shall be."
What if He should descend ere morning dawneth?
Or in the gloaming we His face should see?

O Soul! each year, each moment brings Him nearer,
And happy are we if with brimming hand
We wan our Lord, than whom none could be dearer,
And in His holy presence perfect stand.

THE OPTION

Whether rich or whether poor,
Low-born or high bred;—
Whether young or whether old,
Strong or weak instead,—
On this ever restless earth,
Filled with myrrh and rue,
Life has signed out some task,
To assign to—You.

And while Fate and Time and Age
May demand their toll;—
Whose disheartening cares may dismay,
To depress the soul,—
Counting not the final cost,
Fearing not to die,
If you truly wish to win,
You can trust—and try.

CONGRESS TO RESUME TODAY, WITH SENATE IN DEADLOCK

Sentiment is Growing to Permit Interstate Commerce Committee to Function Without the Formal Election of a Chairman—Such Action Would Allow the Senate to Proceed With Other Business—Annual Appropriation Bills are Scheduled to Come Before the House Next Week—An Effort is Being Made to Have the Bonus Bill Reported Ahead of the Tax Bill.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Congress will come back tomorrow from its Christmas recess ready to begin the serious work of the session.

With committees of both the house and senate organized the way is cleared for republican leaders to press for enactment of legislation recommended by President Coolidge in his first annual message. They will seek to wind up the work of the session in time for adjournment just before the republican national convention meets five months hence.

While the senate still is deadlocked over the election of a chairman of the interstate commerce committee, majority leaders are hopeful that this problem will be solved one way or another within a few days. Balloting for a chairman will be resumed tomorrow with little prospect of a decision, but there appears to be a growing sentiment in favor of a chairman so that the senate may proceed with other business.

The first important measures to come before the house will be the annual appropriation bills on which subcommittees have been working during the holiday recess. Until the first of these is ready early next week the house will mark time during prepared speeches by members.

Among those to be delivered tomorrow will be one by Representative Treadway, republican, Massachusetts, on the anthracite situation; another by Representative Upshaw, democrat, Georgia, on "The Majesty of the Law and National Sobriety," and a third by Pedro Guevara, the new resident Philippine commissioner, who will discuss Philippine independence.

Consideration of tax legislation, the most important question that will come before congress at the session, will be resumed tomorrow by the house ways and means committee, which has agreed on a program of studying administrative provisions, of the Mellon bill before acting on the soldiers' bonus or rates schedules in the revenue bill. Committee members said another ten days or two weeks would be required to complete consideration of the administrative features.

Meantime republican members of the house who are former service men expect to force the issue on the bonus. They are circulating a petition for a republican party conference on Jan. 10 with a view to having the majority membership instruct the ways and means committee to report the bonus bill ahead of the tax revision measure. Some republican leaders have expressed opposition to the conference plan, but those back of the movement insist they will go ahead with their program.

Democratic members of the ways and means committee at a conference today in which Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the minority leader, participated, discussed the tax question in a general way. Views as to policy were expressed, but no decision as to a minority program was agreed upon.

Thus far there has been no call for a meeting of the house interstate commerce committee which handles railroad legislation, although Chairman Winslow said today the committee probably would get together next week. A wide range of bills for the amendment of the transportation act have been referred to this committee.

Revision of the house rules, demanded by the republican insurgents, and agreed to by majority leaders as a way to the breaking of the recent membership deadlock, will be taken up again by the rules committee with a view to a report to the house by January 14. Before this committee is pending the resolution of Representative Frear, republican, Wisconsin, for the investigation of Governor General Wood's administration in the Philippines. Besides this inquiry a number of others are proposed in the house or senate, including campaign expenditures in the Texas senatorial election in November, 1922; "diploma mills"; expenditures of the federal farm loan board and the Russian question.

SCIENTISTS CONCLUDE CINCINNATI CONVENTION

[illegible] Jan. 2.—(By the A. P.) The American association for the advancement of science closed its annual convention here today, and tonight the last of the more than 3,000 scientists who attended the meeting were [illegible] their homes.

The last meetings today were those of the American Association of Economic Entomologists, which studies how to safeguard the plant life of the nation from the ravages of insects, and the American student health association, composed of health and workers in the country's colleges and universities.

The entomologists confined their final discussion almost entirely to the European corn borer, recently became a menace to the orn crop in various parts of the country, particularly in northern Ohio and adjacent lake districts. Methods of controlling the pest has been found, speakers declared, but the problem of exterminating the borers has not yet been solved.

They also elected A. F. Burgess, director of the federal gypsy moth laboratory, Melrose Highlands, Mass., president and A. W. Collins, of the same city, secretary.

The student health workers heard speakers urge that more attention be paid to the building up of health departments in all educational institutions and that they be constituted, so far as possible of physicians who spend their ful time at the work.

Next year's convention will be held at Washington, D. C., that city being the gathering place every four years.

CHARLES BEECHER WARREN HAS DECLINED TO SERVE

Detroit, Jan. 2—Charles Beecher Warren, former American ambassador to Japan, and later high commissioner to Mexico, today sent a cable to the council of the league of nations at Geneva, declining to serve on a neutral commission of three to investigate the dispute between Lithuania and Poland over the Baltic port of Memel.

Mr. Warren in the notification of his refusal sent to the secretariat of the council, said that "owing to engagements already made from which I am unable to be released it will be impossible for me to act as president of the commission which will convene the latter part of January and complete its work in time to report to the council of the league by March 1.

The adjustment of the controversy between Poland and Lithuania is sought in a clause in the Versailles treaty. It provides for the transfer of the port of Memel to Lithuania on the condition of freedom of trade and commerce for the state and Hinterland, including Poland and Russian and a measure the Balkan states.

Brand Whitlock former American ambassador to Belgium who also had been invited to serve on the commission with Mr. Warren already has telegraphed his declination.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE AT CHARITY BALL

Washington, Jan. 2.—President and Mrs. Coolidge tonight spent about an hour at Washington's annual charity ball, the first strictly public social function they have attended since they entered the White house. They occupied a box which had been reserved for them.

HIPPOPOTAMUS WALKED 15 MINUTES AFTER BIRTH

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—A baby hippopotamus was born at the Philadelphia Zoo in Fairmont park today. The infant weighed sixty-five pounds, and fifteen minutes after being born was walking about. It is the fourth calf born at the zoo's hippopotami.

PROGRESS IN DISMANTLING THE TOMB OF KING TUT

Luxor, Egypt, Jan. 1.—Tutenkhamun's great black and gold catafalque—the curious rack supporting the linen pall over the second shrine in the mortuary chamber—was successfully taken down by Howard Carter and his coworkers today. The four pillars and five crossplieces were swathed in bandages and removed to the ante-chamber of the tomb, which once more is being filled with treasures.

Removal of the rack and pall completely disengages the second shrine, which, with its black and gold checkerboard roof and dull gold sides, stands disclosed in all its massive majesty. The next step, one of the most ticklish of the lot will be to take apart the sixteen component sections of the walls and cornice of the outer shrine.

The external decorations of blue faience and gilded gesso have in some places become partly detached through the shrinking of the roof underneath, and the brilliant azure decorations present a faded appearance as compared with their resplendent seen when the gleaming canopy was first disclosed through the pierced wall of the sepulchral chamber last February.

This, however, Mr. Carter explained, is due to the gathering of dust in the tomb during the work. At his instance the correspondent rubbed the surface of the porcelain with a damp finger, upon which the blue immediately regained its pristine brilliance.

The excavators are anxious to see whether the sections of the sides and cornice of the shrine can be got out of the tomb as all, as the sections of the great wooden canopy are too large to be be taken out without cutting down into the tomb. Should it be found impossible to get the side sections out otherwise it is presumable this alteration to the stair case will have to bo made though it is likely to prove inconvenient.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE HEARS GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Albany, Jan. 2.—Legislation and political skirmishing became the prevailing topics of conversation here today as the New York legislature convened for its 1924 session and heard Governor Smith outline in his annual message the subjects which will form the basis for forensic battles of the next few months. Interest in the message had been heightened by publication earlier in the day of a statement by George K. Morris, republican state chairman, detailing the republican program, several features of which conflicted sharply with points covered by the governor. Smith was accorded close attention by the assembled legislature and drew from both sides numerous comments which promise a heated session. Reduction of the state tax on personal incomes of $5,000 or less; legislation looking toward state supervision of waterpower by creation of a waterpower authority; reorganization of the state government, to provide for consolidation of existing departments, and extension of the governor's term to four years, were both defeated by last year's republican majority in the legislature memorialising congress to modify the Volstead act repeal of the motion picture censorship law and other recommendations were included.

REBELS WOULD COLLECT MEXICAN OIL TAXES

New York, Jan. 2. — American oil companies which operate in Mexico, served today with a decree of the De La Huerta revolutionary government directing that production taxes be paid in future to the revolutionists at Vera Cruz, will meet at 11.30 o'clock Friday morning to discuss the situation.

While none of the companies would discuss the matter for publication today, the consensus of opinion among oil officials was that no notice would be taken of De La Huerta's decree at this time.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Prince of Wales to Visit South Africa

London, Jan. 2.—The Prince of Wales, who will leave May 2 on a trip to South Africa, is expected to visit the principal centers south of the Zambesi river. He will engage in a hunting expedition in northern Rhodesia before he leaves Africa for home. He will be absent from England about four months.

NEGOTIATING SALE OF MUNITIONS TO MEXICO.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Further conferences between Secretary Weeks and Manuel Telles, charge d'affaires of the Mexican embassy, will be necessary before details of the sale of surplus war munitions of the American army to the Mexican government can be completed. Mr. Weeks conferred today with the charge and Matthew Hanna, chief of the Mexican division of the state department. Pending completion of the negotiations the war secretary declined to make any statemene whatever with regard to the pending transaction.

It was indicated that as soon as details of the sale had been completed, a formal statement would be issued by Secretary Weeks disclosing the nature of the munitions sold and probably the conditions fixed as to time and method of payment by the Mexican government. Military precautions of the Mexican government, however, probably will prevent any publication as to the place or time of deliveries.

It is regarded as posible that the erroneous statement made today in official circles in Mexico City that arms already had been delivered as a result of the arrangement with the Washington government was given out for the purpose of confusing Mexican rebel leaders as to what was proceeding. The actual deliveries are virtually certain to be made with the greatest possible secrecy in order that the chances of a rebel raid to capture the war equipment will be lessened.

On other phases of the activities credited in Mexico City advances to the Washington government and designed to aid further the Obregon government in restoring order, officials were less reticent. It was reiterated at the state department that no project for a sale to Mexico of war craft was being considered or could be considered under American obligations imposed by the naval limitation treaty. It was also declared that no plan to take steps against agents in this country of the Mexican revolutionists had been and that none would be considered unless the agents should violate American laws.

Mexico City reports that arms already had been delivered to Obregon government officials was met by Secretary Weeks with the statement that he "could not confirm" that announcement. Beyond that he refuses to discuss the arms transactions.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT REASSEMBLES NEXT WEEK

London, Jan. 2.—(By The A. P.)—None of the principal leaders of the three political parties is showing undue haste to anticipate the course of events when parliament reassembles a week hence. The present cabinet must draft the king's address for the reopening of parliament, but thus far Premier Baldwin has not even summoned a cabinet council to consider the speech, which seems to point to the probability that the royal document may be a somewhat colorless affair.

While, as has been previously explained, it will be practically impossible to carry on the government without some sort of understanding between two of the three principal parties, there is at present little evidence that the movement among financial men of London to bring about such an understanding in order to prevent the coming to power of a labor government has any very strong following, although it is widely boomed in certain sections of the anti-labor press.

EXPERTS ARE PUZZLED BY FOREIGN EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 2.—Lack of demand for English or French bills in the New York market influenced lower prices for sterling and franc exchange today, the lateer falling to 4.95 cents, a new low price for all time. Demand sterling reacted to $4.27 1-4, a drop of nearly five cents below Monday's quotation.

Most of the other continental exchanges also fell lower in rather listless trading.

Foreign exchange experts declared they could find nothing in new development either abroad or in this country to account for the heaviness of European exchanges. They said also that the volume of trading was unusually small.

Generally it was believed that buying of dollar exchange in London and Paris was the chief factor in the slump, but it was stated there were no unusual requirements to meet at this time.

Holland guilders slumped 31 points to 27.69 cents and Spanish pesetas fell off 12.70 1-2 cents.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The supreme court convened, but withheld decisions until Monday.

President Coolidge discussed the shipping problem with Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International Corporation.

Foreign trade figures for November made public by the comerce department showed no great variation as compared with a year ago.

Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, selected to help balance Germany's budget, conferred with President Coolidge and Secretay Hughes.

War and state department officials denied that arms already had been shipped to Mexico or that the government had considered selling cruisers.

The joint committee of congress appointed to study plans of reorganization for government departments called hearings to begin Monday.

Italy made representations through the state department opposing the immigration quota revision under consideration by the house immigration committee.

THREE TALC COMPANIES HAVE AMAGAMATED

Burlington Vt. Jan. 2 The Magnesia Talc company, of Waterbury, the Eastern Talc company, of Rochester and East Granville and Millsat Johnson formerly owned by the American Mineral company have been herged into the Eastern Magnesia Talc Company, Inc. organized under the laws of Vermont with an authorized capitalization of $1,00,000. The company will have a home office in this city and sales offices in Boston and New York. Freeland Jewett, of Boston has been elected president.

Taxicab Case Before The Supreme Court

Involves the Rights of States to Require Bonding of Owners of Taxicabs.

Washington, Jan. 2—After a three weeks recess the supreme court reconvened today with all of its members in attendance but no decisions were handed down and no orders were issued in any of the motions which it had under consideration during the recess. The court followed its established practice of withholding its opinions for delivery on its regular opinion day which will be next Monday. It is expected that a large number will then be announced.

The court after receiving motions settled down today to the hearing of arguments. One of the cases reached was of general interest involving the right of states to require the owners of taxicabs to give a bond to insure persons and property against damages caused by them. It was brought by William H. Packard against the attorney general of New York and the district attorney of New York county. An association of taxicab owners joined in attacking the statute.

The New York law, which applies to New York City, Buffalo and Rochester, is similar in general effect to that in force in fourteen other states. The taxicab owners would have it set aside on the ground that it is an unconstitutional discrimination against them. They complained of the cost of the bond and insisted that they should not be required to give security to satisfy judgment obtained against them while they were denied protection in obtaining the payment of judgments which they might secure.

The state asserted that the law under attack was enacted after a careful survey of "an accumulation of alarming statistics indicating laxness in the operation of public vehicles" and of thousands of judgments against taxi operators which had not been satisfied.

Attorney General Sherman declared that there is a constantly increasing congestion of traffic which made it necessary to protect persons and property exposed to injury by thousands of taxicab operators, who, he said are in no financial condition to respond in damages for accidents. The state contended that the legislature could forbid the operation of taxicabs and insisted that the operators of such vehicles had no reason to complain when the state instead of taking such action had merely provided that a bond should be given.

FALSE PRETENSE CASE AGAINST JANE O'ROARK

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Jane Jordan, also known as Jane O'Roark, who is under a criminal charge yet to be heard of having obtained $20,000 to $30,000 worth of merchandise under false pretenses from merchants in this city, Greenwich, Norwalk, and New York, today voluntarily appeared at a hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Carleton E. Hoadley, of New Haven, when her creditors were trying to find out if she had assets to satisfy them on an involuntary petition in bankruptcy.

Mrs. Jordan had not been summoned but among the witnesses had been Mrs. Ingraham, her mother, who appeared not to know much about the daughter's financial affairs but did testify that she had objected to Mrs. Jordan's actions in contracting debts and did not approve of her daughter's habits of buying goods.

When Mrs. Jordan was arrested last week tradesmen claimed that they had given her credit because she had claimed ownership of a house in Tokeneke section of Darien. Mrs. Ingraham, however, in her testimony today said that it was she who had contracted to buy the house in question, not her daughter, and that the contract had been transferred to another person.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS IN CHINA NOT SATISFACTORY.

Peking, Jan. 2 (By the A. P.)—Although the increases in customs duties arranged at the time of the armament conference in Washington, to the end that China might receive as revenue five per cent. of the value of her imports, were in effect throughout 1923, the results are disappointing. The maritime revenue for last year showed an increase of only 4,744,000 taels (about $3,500,000) over the previous record collection in 1922, according to the report of the inspector general.

Native customs collected at treaty ports, where their collection is supervised by the inspector general of maritime customs, Sir F. A. Aglen, head of the administration which exercises foreign control over the maritime customs to insure payment of the foreign debt, showed an increase last year of 162,000 taels.

All China's foreign loan and indemnity obligations due from these revenues have now been covered, including the recent reorganization loan but a default occurred in payment of interest on a portion of the domestic consolidated debt.

INCREASE OF SALES ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

Chicago, Jan. 2. —Americans have gone time payment mad, declares the January issue of the National Retailer Clothier, official publicaton of the National Association of retail clothiers and furnishers, in commenting on the tendency in the country today to buy products on the installment plan.

Statistics have compiled a list of 68 important commodities being sold on time payments, with the automobile and musical instruments heading the list. The list runs from radio sets through washing machines, stocks and bonds to buildings.

A vast majority of the wage earners, it is declared, have mortgaged their incomes for years to come because of the trend of the country to buy luxuries and necessities of life on the installment plan.

MAJESTIC ON MUD BANK NEAR THE ISLE OF WIGHT

New York, Jan. 2.—The White Star Liner Majestic, largest British transatlantic passenger vessel ran aground on a mud bank off Solthead near the Isle of Wight today, shortly after starting the voyage to Cherbourg and New York, company officials were informed in a message from her commander S. Bentham Hayes. The huge vessel got off the mud in a few minutes, the message added, and proceeded on her way.

Miss Normand Tells Of Shooting of Dines

Version is Directly Contradictory of That Given by her Chauffeur.

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—Miss Mabel Normand, motion picture actress whose chauffeur last night shot and seriously wounded Coutland S. Dines, oil operator, of Denver, tonight gave her version of the shooting, a version directly contradicting that of Horace A. Greer, alias Joe Kelly, under arrest for the alleged attack on Dines.

Miss Normand told her story, of the New Year's party in Dines apartment, which ended in the shooting of the Denver man, surrounded by newspapermen and police detectives and in the presence of her companion, Mrs. Edith Burns, for whom ploics had been searching all day.

"We'll begin at the beginning," said the screen actress by way of introducton.

She had received her interrogators at home sitting in a big overstuffed chair and attired in a trim black velvet dress. Door bells and telephone bells rang unceasingly. Reporters were seeking interviews, chauffeurs were looking for Greer's job and friends wanted to speak a word of cheer. But to all these she was not at home. The shades were drawn, the room was dark; Miss Normand spoke in a whisper.

"I didn't sleep all night," she said, "worrying about this thing, this dreadful thing. You tell them, Edith," she exclaimed, turning to Mrs. Burns: "tell them what we did during the entire day."

Mrs. Burns then related how Miss Normand had arisen at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, doing little inconsequential things which occupied their time until noon: told them how Joe Kelly (Greer) was busy "taking the Christmas tree trimmings upstairs."

"It must have been then that he got the pistol," she said; "I know of no other opportunity he could have had to get it."

Miss Normand explained she had owned the weapon for four years; that it was given to her by a friend while on location during the production of one of her film plays.

"It was given to me to shoot bottles with," she said. "I used it all the time for shooting bottles, but only on location; at least I shot at the bottles. I'd shoot over here and—blah—I'd hit the mountain some place else.

"Well," she continued arriving at the point in her narrative where the chauffeur, Horace Greer, or Joe Kelley, entered Dines' apartment while she and Miss Edna Purviance, another motion picture actress, were chatting with the Danver man.

"Well Joe came in and he had this package. I noticed nothing unusual about him and I left the room.

"I went into the room where Edna was. She had on her evening gown, but it was hooked up. I didn't want this disturbed so I went in with her dress unhooked so I went in and said to Edna, 'Say, where is your powder puff?'

"Then all of a sudden I heard these terrible things. I thought they were fire crackers. I used to set off firecrackers—about this long—at Ben Turpin—poor old Ben, all the time until he threatened to quit his job. That's what I thought they were—firecrackers. They were popping all over the house."

Then she ran into the room where Dines had been sitting and found him lying on the floor wounded.

She could think of no motive for the shooting of Dines by her chauffeur, she said, and ridiculed the theory that Greer was infatuated with her and therefore shot the Denver man n a fit of jealous rage.

"Impossible!" she exclaimed. "The man must have been insane. He was only one of my servants and was treated like one. I never talked to him even like I have to my servants in the past. I used to ask my chauffeurs, the ones before this one, how they liked a certain scene or something like that—but I got tired of all that blah blah.

"I didn't even hire him. My secretary did that."

Nor could Mrs. Burns think of any motive for the shooting.

Mrs. Burns said Joe "Just as calm as you are fussed around the house," fixing things until Miss Normand came downstairs and Joe took her over to Dines' bungalow.

"He left me there," interrupted Miss Normand. "He didn't see Court at all. I left the car and climbed the steps alone. Court answered the door. Edna was there.

"'Come on you dirty dogs' I said 'Step into your dancing togs and let's go somewhere.'

"Court said he didn't want to go anywhere, so I went in."

$100,000 LIBEL SUIT FILED AGAINST WAYNE B. WHEELER

Washington, Jan. 2.—Suit for $100,000 damages for alleged libel and slander was filed in the District of Columbia supreme court today against Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-saloon league, and nine others by Francis C. Harley, chairman of the national liberal alliance. The defendants, who include officials of other organizations identified with national prohibition activities, were charged with having issued libelous statements and circulars concerning a ballot circulated by Mr. Harley's organization to ascertain sentiment in the country regarding the eighteenth amendment.

WILL BE NO IMMUNITY FOR THAW IF DECLARED SANE

Report Says Thaw's Counsel is Endeavoring to Secure Release of Client From Asylum, and Obtain for Him Restoration of His Personal Fortune—If Adjudged Legally Competent the Slayer of Standford White Must Face Prosecution of Two Indictments Against Him in New York—The Specific Charges are Kidnapping and Second Degree Assault.

New York, Jan. 2.—Counsel for Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White and since 1917 confined in Kirkbride's asylum in Philadelphia, as seeking to have him adjudged legally competent, says a copy-right story from Philadelphia appearing in the New York Sun.

If freed, Thaw's counsel hopes to obtain for him restoration of his personal fortune now estimated at nearly a million dollars, according to the story. Then he would proceed to New York and surrender there to face charges of having beaten a boy—charges of which his counsel hopes to clear him.

The Sun states that after a three day investigation of rumors current for months that Thaw planned to seek liberty, it was able to confirm the report "from unimpeachable sources" and outlined the legal battle by which his counsel hopes to obtain his liberty.

Thaw stands accused here of having lured Frederick Gump, Jr., son of a Kansas City manufacturer, to a New York hotel and with having beaten his naked body savagely with a whip after having locked the boy in a room. The specific charges are kidnapping and second degree assault. Conviction would carry a long term in Sing Sing. Indicated with Thaw is George C. O'Byrne a companion.

Acording to the newspaper story, legal proceedings will be started within two weeks in the common pleas court in Philadelphia to have Thaw adjusted legally competent. Then overtures would be made to the New York authorities in order that Thaw might surrender. His counsel will seek to arrange bail and an early trial.

The article states that Thaw defense will be that he was adjudged insane at the time he was alleged to have committed the acts of which he is accused but that he is now sane. A sane man, it will be contended, cannot be held for trial for acts of irresponsible moments and every assurance will be offered to prove that there is no likelihood of a mental relapse.

Son of a Pitsburg millionaire, Thaw on a night in June 1906 shot and killed Stanford White, a noted American in the midst of a crowd of diners on the roof of the old Madison Square Garden. Thaw's grievance was based on a confession he said had been made to him by his wife who was Evelyn Nesbit a chorus girl regarding White's relations with her prior to her marriage.

Thaw won a nine years fight for freedom carried through the courts of New York, New Hampshire and Canada. First he was aquitted of the charge of murder but declared insane. Then in June 1915 he had escaped from an asylum and had been brought back from Canada, he was declared sane and freed.

Thaw's subsequent divorce was obtained in the Pennsylvania courts with the provision that Russell Thaw, whose parentage Harry denies should inherit part of the Thaw wealth.

Thaw was sent to his present place of confinement after fleeing New York because of the Gump incident.

DIST. ATTORNEY BANTON PREPARED TO PROSECUTE

New York, Jan 2.—District Attorney Banton, informed of Harry Thaw's reported intention to take steps to have himself declared sane that he might face charges pending against him in New York, announced tonight that his office would vigorously prosecute the two indictments against him should he gain his freedom.

NO TRUTH TO REPORT, THAW'S COUNSEL SAYS

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—Former Judge James Gay Gordon, counsel for Harry K. Thaw's mother who is "committee of Thaw's person" said today there was no intention to start proceedings for Thaw's freedom. So far as he knew, he said, there was no truth to the report. Mrs. Thaw was here recently to see her son as she frequently is, Judge Gordon added.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS OF REVOLT IN MEXICO

Washington, Jan. 2.—Official advices to the Mexican embassy on military and other developments in connection with the revolution in Mexico were summarized in the following statement today from the embassy.

"Government troops under General Caraveo engaged in a battle and completely dispersed rebel forces commanded by General Rosaulo Figueroa, forcing them to evacuate Barranaca Blanca and Zacualpan and to retreat to Cerro Alto.

"General Almazon's division is closing in on the rebels and has occupied important positions in the south.

"President Obregon returned to Mexico City from Irapuato and it is stated that he will return to the western front next week.

"Farmers in the petroleum region of Panuco, Vera Cruz, have volunteered their services to the government to fight the rebellion in that state.

"Rebels under General Cavazos clashed with members of the Atotonilco Jalisco, social defense at a point near the Zoquitlan road and were severely defeated.

"The government has received thousands of congratulations for its promptness in meeting the first payment of thirty million dollars on the external debt. The last remittance was sent on Monday last to the New York bankers.

"The newly appointed ministers of France, Belgium and Salvador presented their credentials to President Obregon. The whole of the diplomatic corps called at the national palace to present to the president of the republic their New Year's greetings."

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT INEFFECTIVE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 2.—The federal prohibition enforcement service in Pennsylvania was characterized as "notably and unexcusably ineffective" in the findings adopted late today by the Pennsylvania citizens conference of representatives of various statewide organizations. The conference an outgrowth of the citizenship conference in Washington several months ago, dealt largely with prohibition enforcement.

Besides its findings the conference adopted five pledges and agreed upon three legislative measures which members of congress will be asked to support. These measures propose deportation of aliens who violate the prohibition and narcotic laws, civil service for prohibition agents and "concentration of the prohibition unit into one bureau with one responsible head." The delegates pledged themselves to set a right example by obeying the laws; to cooperate with public officials charged with law enforcement, to serve on juries when called on, to arrange for community, city and county conferences and mass meetings and to support the work of agencies leading in the fight for law enforcement.

NINA WILCOX PUTNAM HAS BEEN GRANTED A DIVORCE

Providence, R. I., Jan. 2—Nina Wilcox Putnam Sanderson, prominent writer, who is better known under her pen name of Nina Wilcox Putnam, today was granted a divorce from her second husband, Robert J. Sanderson, on the ground of neglect to provide. Under the decree, she is allowed to resume her former name of Putnam. The case which was uncontested, was heard before Judge Chester W. Barrows on deposition, neither of the principals appearing in court.

The petitioner was married to Mr. Sanderson of New Haven, at Stamford, Conn., on Novembe r4, 1919. She claimed he deserted her about three years ago. She was first married to Robert Faulkner Putnam of New York on October 5, 1907, who died in 1918.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE NOT BENEFICIAL FOR BROKEN LEG

Framingham, Mass., Jan. 2.—After a hearing in the district court today Judge Blodgett held that Walter Moyse, a 14 year old Wayland boy who had been treated by a Christian Science practitioner after breaking his leg, was a neglected child. Counsel representing the Christian Science church entered an appeal and the case will come before the superior court at Cambridge, probably next week.

The boy fell from a haymow in the barn of his father, Harry Moyse, nineteen weeks ago. He was in bed for 16 weeks and since then has been able to walk with the aid of crutches. An agent of the society for the prevention of cruelty to children reported that the boy's condition was getting worse and the society brought a complaint against the father for neglect.

Dr. Charles E. Ayres, of Worcester, called as a witness today by the society, said that X-ray pictures of the boy's leg showed that it was in bad shape and he feared that the boy would lose the leg and possibly might see unless an operation was performed immediately.

The Christian Science practitioner who had treated the boy testified that both the boy and his father were Christian Scientists, that the boy had been carefully tended and treated according to Christian Science practice and that his condition had improved.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN COLLAPSE OF TOBOGGAN SLIDE

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 2—Two persons were killed and one injured by the collapse late today of a huge toboggan slide on the Adirondack estate of Adolph Lewisohn, New York banker, on upper Saranac Lake. The dead are Nathan M. Shelley, 52 a manufacturer of Saranac Lake and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Maude Shelley Miss Alice Shelley, daughter of Mrs. Shelley are seriously injured.

Mrs Shelley was instantly killed and his sister-in-law, Mrs. John Shelley, died an hour later.

The toboggan slide, located on the lands about the camp of Adolph Lewisohn of New York, about five miles down the lake shore from this village, descends a 2,000 foot embankment to the ice of the lake.

The Shelley toboggan traveling at great speed, dashed down the chute, struck the ice of the lake, bounded from the chute and overturned. The passengers were thrown in a heap. Shelley's neck was broken, and doctors say he died instantly. Mrs. Shelley, injured internally, was given first aid treatment, by doctors in the party, but died in the camp lodge an hour later.

The several grammar schools of the city and town opened for the winter term Wednesday morning with an attendance which equalled that of the closing day of the fall term. At Windham High school, Principal Egbert A. Case reported a registration of about 525 pupils. Principal James L. Harroun of the Natchaug Grammar School stated that 580 pupils reported at the school Wednesday. The Windham Street school reopened with a good attendance although some of the grades showed a decreased registration on account of illness among the pupils. One hundred and twenty-five pupils were registered at the Windham Center School, the average number for the fall term and at the North Windham and South Windham schools the registrations were said to be normal. About twenty-five pupils at the six grades of the Oaks school were absent Wednesday due to mumps and other ailments, a total of 116 pupils returning to resume their studies.

Over a thousand pupils were registered at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Parochial schools, Wednesday morning and this number will be added to before this week comes to an end.

The Willimantic State Normal school does not open until Tuesday, Jan. 8.

Louis Shapiro of No. 256 Rivington street, New York city made a good resolution never to get into trouble again, in the Columbia town court, New Year's morning when he was charged with leaving his Packard auto-truck parked on the highway without a light. Another charge of not having his machine equipped with 1924 markers was pelled. Shapiro said that he had mailed in his order but the markers had not arrived. He was on his way to Plainfield with a load of furniture but the old year overtook him and the new one was born while he was going through Columbia, so he stopped his truck on one side of the road. He failed to notice that he had stopped on a curve in the highway and that he had no lights on display and his arrest followed.

The driver of an automobile struck the truck, during the early morning hours and reported to Deputy Sheriff Al Frink of Andover that the highway was blocked. Shapiro was rounded up and taken before Justice of the Peace Hubert Collins who informed the accused that he'd have a hot time of it trying to run the blockade in Connecticut without new markers. Shapiro was fined $5 and costs amounting to $17.80 for parking without lights. The truck was put into storage in Columbia and Shapiro left for New York to secure his new markers.

Over two hundred queries were received over the police station telephone Tuesday and Wednesday from parties who had various excuses to give for not having the new markers and wished to secure some advice as to what they should do.

To all these questions the gentle answer was that the only thing to do was to wait patiently until the coveted plates arrived. Several cars remained parked on the street Tuesday and Wednesday, awaiting new markers. One party from New Britain came to this city Monday night to attend a watch night meeting, taking a chance with 1923 markers. Just after crossing the city line on the return journey early Tuesday, the machine ran out of gasoline and when the driver came back here to get a supply of gas it dawned on him that the year 1924 was at hand. This particular autoist does not believe in fines and the machine was left where it was until the owner secured new plates Wednesday.

A secret lock, in addition to an ordinary lock on the back door of the barber shop owned by Patrick J. Minihan at 864 Main street frustrated an attempt to break into the establishment, Tuesday evening. Footprints in the snow show that the break was attempted by small boys.

Mr. Minihan had closed the shop for the day, it being a holiday but when he went to the place in the evening he felt a draft as he opened the front door. Going to the rear he found that the pane of glass in the rear door had been broken and that the key was gone from the inside of the ordinary lock. It was found that a large spike had been used as a tempting to remove the outside moulding from the pane of glass in the door.

Inquiry was made at the Western Union Telegraph office next door but no information was given that any suspicious persons were seen or that noises had been heard around the building.

Elmer Morse, of Willimantic, and Miss Margaret Scanlon, of New Britain, were married at the St. Joseph's rectory, Monday evening, at seven o'clock, by Rev. John H. Clark. The attendants were John Moran of this city as best man and Miss Laura Barrett of Conantville, maid of honor. The bride wore a blue suit and a brown hat trimmed with brown material of lighter shade. Miss Barrett wore a blue suit with a black hat trimmed with blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse left for New York City on their honeymoon trip and upon their return they will reside in this city.

The groom is a carpenter by occupation and is well known here. Mrs. Morse has been employed at the local plant of the American Thread Company.

Miss Rose Alma Thiffeault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thiffeault of Temple street, this city was united in marriage at eight o'clock, Monday morning, at St. Mary's church with Arthur Thompson, of South Manchester, the ceremony being performed by Rev. H. C. Belec, who also sang the nuptial mass. A reception followed at the home of Mrs. Margaret Dupree, of Windham Road, at which over thirty guests were in attendance. The matron of honor was Mrs. Lillian Thompson and Anthony Thiffeault, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride was attired in a gown of brown material. Following a short honeymoon journey Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in South Manchester where the groom is employed. Mrs. Thompson has been employed at the Holland Silk Manufacturing Company plant and is well-known in this city in this city. She received many gifts.

The fourth annual New Year's festival St. Mary's Choir Boys and Alumni was held with athletic contests at the Y. M. C. A., in the afternoon followed by an excellent supper at the Al-Pierre Taberin at six o'clock. Omer Desrosier, chairman of the committee of arrangements presented choir director Joseph F. Gaudreau a handsome white-gold watch as an evidence of appreciation of the members of the several divisions, for the invaluable services rendered by Mr. Gaudreau. The annual distribution of gifts then took place. Later in the evening the party attended a moving picture show.

Edwin Harrison Hall, 79, of Windham, died at his home, No. 45 High street Wednesday afternoon after a brief illness, although Mr. Hall had not been in good health for about a year. He was born in 1845 a son of Edwin H. and Sophia Prentice Hall. He was a member of the Windham county board of commissioners and a former cotton manufacturer for many years. He retired from active business in 1917. He leaves a son, Edwin Hall and a daughter, Miss Nettie Hall.

Mrs. Emilie Roy Cartier, widow of Lucien Cartier, died Wednesday morning at her home, 186 Jackson street. She was born in Napierville, Canada, July 31, 1837, the daughter of Julien and Emilie Lord Roy. Mrs. Cartier was a devoted mother to her family and was highly respected in this community.

She was a member of the St. Anne Society of St. Mary's church. She is survived by two daughters, Misses Hilda Cartier and Celina Cartier of this city; four sons, Joseph and Pierre Cartier, both of this city, Edouard Cartier, of Montreal, Canada, and Gustave O. Cartier of Winter Haven, Florida, also by eight grand children and two great-grand children.

The bearers at the funeral of Mrs. Emma L. Johnson which was held Tuesday afternoon were Ernest Huntington, W. R. B. Tribe, Warren Holt and L. Y. Miller.

Funeral services for Mrs. Uretta J. Reynolds were held Wednesday morning at ten o'clock at 68 North street. Rev. Leonard Smith officiated. Burial was in Buckland cemetery, Manchester. The bearers were George E. and Charles A. Reynolds, Ira Wilcox and Adelbert Babcock. Avery and VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

Two freight cars, and part of another belonging to the New Haven Railroad, were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin, Tuesday night. The cars were included in a string of eighteen which were on a spur track located in the vicinity of North Windham Road. Engine Company No. 1, responded to a still alarm at eleven o'clock and the fireman played 67 gallons of chemicals on the blaze before it was extinguished. The cars were empty. Local railroad authorities are conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the fire.

An additional appropriation of $5,000 was voted, at a special city meeting held Wednesday evening in the town hall, for the reconstruction of the city ice-houses, at the Mansfield pond, which were destroyed by fire some time ago. An appropriation of $14,000 was voted upon in November, but this sum has since been proven to be inadequate. Bids for percentage contracts were asked for from three local firms by the committee, William E. Jackson, Edgar W. Jacobs and Louis J. Flynn. By a majority it was decided to award the contract to the firm which was best equipped to erect the new houses within the shortest time. The appropriation of $14,000 was conservative, as it was expected that much useful lumber could be taken from the ruins of the old buildings and from temporary sheds which hda been built after the fire to protect a quantity of ice which remained intact.

The contractors were disappointed, however, when it was found that only enough lumber could be salvaged to cover one roof and that the remainder was spoiled. In addition, it cost about $1,000 to clear the grounds of the ruins. Three houses are being built, with a housing capacity of 5,000 tons of ice. Two sheds are now completed and work has been started on the third. Every effort is being made to have the runways and machinery installed in time to harvest the first crop of ice. Attorney William A. King offered the resolution to grant the additional appropriation and contrary arguments were made by Eugene M. Marshall, who wished to know the cause of the lack of funds, and by John Logan, who asked if the sum of $5,000 would be sufficient for the completion of the work.

The meeting was opened by Mayor Hezekiah Dunn and the small attendance—less than 100 citizens—thronged to the rooms of the meeting by City Clerk James E. Donohue.

The meeting adjourned after a twenty-minute session.

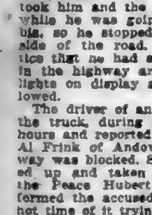
WOMAN SO BLUE SHE CRIED

Because of Ill Health—Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Burlington, Ia.—"I used to dread the time for my monthly period as it came every two weeks and lasted for two weeks, and during that time I would have the blues and cry. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am so happy I can hardly express myself. I have gained several pounds and look fine. I have recommended your medicine to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial. I hope your medicine will give others the relief it did me."—Mrs. RALPH GAIL, 1021 Des Moines St., Burlington, Ia.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for ailments common to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief as did Mrs. Gail, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help to perform its functions with ease and regularity.

DAY'S RECEIPTS, NEW LONDON COURT, $500 FINES FROM LIQUOR SELLERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 3.—The police court today found Charles Stetson, a barber with a shop on Willetts avenue, guilty of a violation of the gaming laws and fined him $25. Stetson was operating a punchboard that offered prizes of candy to the lucky ones who pulled the right tag from the blind labels that decorated the back where the punches showed through.

Stetson made no defense. His attorney simply demurred and when the penalty was named he satisfied the court by paying it.

Charles Snoeski was fined $25 for being so careless that he did not report an automobile accident in which he was concerned and which occasioned a damage of more than $10. But there was some reason for the action of Snoeski as he considered that as his machine only suffered the damage and he himself sustained an injury to the arm he did not have to report it. State Motor Officer Fred Caron was not of the same opinion and he brought Snoeski to court where the dignity of the law was upheld and he was told to settle. He did as requested.

Mary Boslowskiel, 46 North Bank street was fined $400 for selling liquor at her home and with keeping a place where it was reputed liquor was sold. Mary had not a word to say when accused except that she would not employ an attorney. She kept her word, too, and took her medicine like a man. It is understood that an attorney offered to defend her, but as she fixed the price at $50 and the attorney would not accept that amount she went it alone and played the game with the cards she held. Mary should have known better than to have attempted to cope with the law and sell liquor for she was in the liquor business before Mr. Volstead had the chance to make the regulations that took the sale away from all but druggists. She certainly knew the consequences should she be detected, but she "reached them not" and assumed that she was smarter than the law. She sold to some fellow who squealed, and she was caught.

The receipts of the court today were upward of $500 and there was about $160 taken in by the court Monday. So business started lively right at the beginning of the year. It is likely to continue at that pace however for the dealers in liquor are getting to be very leader footed as to where they tread.

Niagara Engine company held its annual meeting this evening when substantially the old board of officers was reelected. A chowder was served after the meeting, when a large party sat at the tables.

It is now probable that the rebuilt Patterson building will be of five stories when it takes the place of the structure practically destroyed by fire Christmas morning. Mrs. Patterson has asked for plans to be prepared that contemplate a five story instead of a four-story structure. The upper floors will, is expected, be used for offices.

Andrew Wilson, residing at Station 7, Waterford and employed as a machinist at the plant of the Shop and Engine company, was painfully burned this morning when his clothing caught fire while at his work. Wilson is at Lawrence hospital.

Wilson went into a large tank to work this afternoon and was using a torch. In the handling of his implements the torch came in contact with his clothing the greasy garments taking fire and enveloping the man in flames. Wilson managed to climb from the tank and after reaching the floor of the pipe room, fellow workmen extinguished the burning clothes. By that time, however, Wilson had been terribly burned about his arms, back and shoulders. He was given medical treatment after which he was removed to the hospital.

James E. May has sold a building lot on Lincoln avenue to Edward Raymond.

Gaetanina Pace has sold a house and lot on Sherman street to Knudt Bjordge.

Tug Guardsman, owned by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, which was damaged by fire which started in the craft at her pier early Monday morning, the craft finally sinking, was floated this morning and will be hauled out within a few days and be rebuilt. This morning the tug Resolute arrived in port to take the place of the Guardsman while the latter craft is being gotten ready for service again.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Bush, 85, mother of William M. Bush, organist at the First Baptist church, died this morning at her home, 72 Hempstead street. Mrs. Bush had been feeble a long time as a result of infirmities attending advanced age. Besides her son, Mrs. Bush is survived by a daughter, Miss Ada Bush, also of New London.

The funeral of Antony Enos was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Marys Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wosiechiacque, with Rev. Timothy M. Crowley deacon and Rev. John J. McGrath, sub-rector. The bearers were John Burgess, Wilford Martin, Louis Pelletier, Frank Burgess, Raymond Goulart and Frank Silva. The flower bearers were Charles Enos and William Silva. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Prayer for Robert Mills was held this morning at 10 o'clock at his residence, 45 Franklin street, Rev. Joseph A. Elder officiating, this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock public services were conducted at the Baptist church at Perryville, R. I. Burial was in the family plot in Perryville cemetery.

Mrs. William Lloyd and infant daughter, of Connecticut avenue, and Ulysses council, of Pearl street, patients at Lawrence hospital were discharged today.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Ahern are in Boston where they will attend the funeral tomorrow of Mrs. Ahern's brother-in-law, Dr. W. H. Cregan, whose death occurred this morning. Besides Dr. Cregan's widow, formerly Miss Anna Clarke of New London, a son, James, survives.

Miss Catherine Lenihan, employed by the government in Washington, is spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lenihan of Jefferson avenue.

Harold Pinney, son of Police Captain and Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, returned to his studies at Harvard Law school today after spending the holidays with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Potter have returned to their home, 4 Cott street, having visited with relatives in Providence.

Miss Clara Hughes, nurse at Home Memorial hospital, has practically recovered from an illness that incapacitated her for some time and will shortly resume her duties at the institution.

The members of the police department were busy today preparing for the target practice for which orders were issued a few days ago by Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, as a further endeavor to improve the efficiency of the department. The police have been supplied with the highest grade revolvers so be obtained.

The addition to the New London City National Bank, corner of Bank and Golden streets, is nearly completed and in another fortnight it is planned that the addition will be ready for occupancy. The interior decorating of the place is nearly completed and the fixtures and furnishings will be installed at once.

The addition to the Union Bank & Trust company, State street, has been completed and with the reception and installation of the furnishings it is expected that the addition will be ready for service by February 1st.

In order to hasten some of the building operations in progress in the center of the city, the regular force of workmen were employed New Year's day at the work on the Mercer plat, State street, where the H. Wales Lines company is engaged in constructing a series of commercial houses. The force of workmen employed on the erection of a business block on State street, between Union and Washington streets, for S. Patterson, were also kept at work. The employing of the mechanics was something new in New London for a sectional holiday.

John Stewart, of Willetts avenue, a painter, who fell from a staging in the New London City National bank while decorating the interior of the building a few days ago, is found to have been much more seriously injured than was supposed. It is discovered that his left hip is fractured and that the leg is also broken between the hip and the knee. He will be in the hospital some six weeks or more probably and perhaps may be incapacitated from work until next spring. He was in the employ of Edward Murray at the time he sustained the injury and Mr. Murray carries compensation insurance, so that Mr. Stewart will be remunerated for his lost time and his incapacity.

All who attended the welsh night festivities at the rooms of New London lodge of Elks are praising the excellent evening's pleasure provided. The music was excellent, the entertainment one of the best the lodge has had and all the festivities such as were very highly appreciated.

New London is hoping to increase its industries in the year now beginning. The city has been slow in securing manufacturing establishments but there seems to be a disposition now to go out and get business that will employ men and that these will receive wages that will be expended in the stores of the city and add to the sum total, when another December shall have rolled around.

New London is furnishing a considerable number of court attendants this week at the criminal term of the superior court. There are several cases on the docket from this city and the towns adjacent thereto and these will call for witnesses, lawyers and others interested from this city. A great deal of interest is manifested in the Dr. Gesson case, in the Charles Pear case and in several liquor cases to be heard.

There seems to have been a decrease in the rents of tenements in this city of late. That is because there are idle tenements and the owners would prefer to cut the cost of occupancy to having the apartments vacant.

The office of the motor vehicle department in the Turaine building on Bank street has been the busiest place in the city for a few days, for, from early morning till late in the afternoon there has been a line of a hundred or more people awaiting attention from the clerks in the distribution of the pappe necessary to use cars.

STAFFORDVILLE

Mrs. John Lyon, of Westford, is spending the winter with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lyon.

A few young friends of Miss Ruth Bosworth met at her home Saturday afternoon from two to five o'clock in honor of her twelfth birthday. Games were played, and refreshments were served. Many gifts were left as tokens of remembrance.

Charles W. Kissak, 35, died of tuberculosis at the state sanatorium at Norwich Dec. 27. His body was brought home and the funeral was held Dec. 24th at the Congregational church, of which he was a member. He leaves his wife and a daughter, his father, a brother and a sister. Burial was in the local cemetery.

Mrs. Lina Booth, 62, widow of J. C. Booth, who had a shock Oct. 26, and was taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grace West in Springfield, a few weeks later, died Dec. 24th. Her body was brought to Staffordville for the funeral Dec. 27th, held at the M. E. church, of which she was a very active member. A former pastor, Rev. F. W. Gray, officiated, assisted by the present pastor, Rev. Mr. Humphrey. Mrs. Booth is survived by four brothers, Matt, Myron and John Heck of Union and Fred Heck of Holyoke, Mass., by three sisters, Mrs. Ann Harris of Stafford and Mrs. Myra Rockwell of Stafford Springs and Mrs. Elmina Corbin of Springfield and two daughters, Mrs. Florence Webster of Scitico and Mrs. Grace West of Springfield, Mass. Burial was in Staffordville cemetery. The floral tributes were beautiful.

William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the anti-saloon league who is under indictment for forgery and larceny in connection with league funds, will go to trial January 14.

Great Problems Discussed in "Daytime Wives" at the Strand

The glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome, faded, when the women with their fondness for luxury and their love for excitement, dominated the ancient empires. The most famous cities of ancient times progressed while the women were frugal and industrious. When the feminine sex started to loaf on the job and take it easy, the former great empires began to decay.

Emile Chautard, the famous director in the production of "Daytime Wives," which will be the attraction at the Strand theatre for three days starting today has painted a series of living, breathing pictures that show the great danger to society caused by the lazy, Bohemian wife.

Included in the cast of this all-star production are: Wyndham Standing, Dorelys Perdue, William Conklin, Grace Darmond, Kenneth Gibson, Katherine Lewis, Edward Hearn and Christina Montt.

Closed Cars for Willimantic Firm

The Hurteau-Bosse Corp. of Willimantic has purchased two new closed automobiles to be used in connection with its undertaking business. The bodies are of special make and the new cars will be valuable additions to the firm's expanding business, especially with the advent of cold weather. Clement Hurteau and Joseph Bosse, two members of the firm, will each have his individual car.

Little Old New York at the Breed

In Little Old New York, which is now playing at the Breed theatre Marion Davies, whose work in "When Knighthood Was in Flower" is remembered by everyone who saw that production and which gave her a commanding position among the feminine screen stars of today, is called upon to act a role entirely different from anything in which she has previously been seen and she acquits herself with the utmost credit. Not only does she make a charming and graceful boy, but she acts with an unaffected naturalness and quiet poise, which makes the spectators surrender completely to the illusion of seeing in the flesh an old-fashioned girl of the early years of the 19th century.

Miss Davies brings to the role of Patricia O'Day a wistful pathos and a sense of tender fun, which are her qualities in her artistic equipment. Her portrayal in "Little Old New York" makes secure her title as one of the foremost screen players of the day.

"Little Old New York" is adapted to the screen by Luther Reed from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young, which had such a big success in New York two seasons ago and later toured the country. Sidney Olcott was engaged by Cosmopolitan to direct it and he has done a workmanlike job which he has done again proves that he is one of the ablest directors in the industry. The settings are by the noted stage and opera scene designer and artist, Joseph Urban. The set showing the Battery and Bowling Green is one of the largest ever built for any motion picture production.

The story concerns the arrival in New York in 1810 of Patricia O'Day and her father from Ireland. Her brother Pat had died on the voyage over and her father insisted on her masquerading as her brother in order to inherit the fortune left by an uncle. Patricia falls in love with Larry Delevan, step-son of the uncle, who believes he is going to inherit the fortune. Much of the comedy as well as the pathos of the picture grows out of her relations with Larry, who until almost the end of the film, believes she is the youthful lad she pretends to be. The fight between Bully Boy Brewster and The Hoboken Terror is one of the funniest scenes ever screened and the scene in which "Pat" is seized by a mob of the thousand angry fight fans and dragged to the whipping post where she receives a lashing at the hands of one of the boxers, is spectacular in the extreme.

"Little Old New York has been received in Norwich with all the enthusiasm which has been accorded it in New York, London, Los Angeles and other places, where it has been seen. It is something that every lover of the best film entertainment should make certain of seeing. Miss Davies is most capably supported by Harrison Ford as Larry; by Courtenay Foote as Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat the trial trip which, up the Hudson, affords one of the thrills of the picture; Mahlon Hamilton as Washington Irving; Kay Hardy as Cornelius Vanderbilt; Andrew Dillon as John Jacob Astor; by Norval Keadwell, J. M. Kerrigan, George Barraud, Riley Hatch, Charles Kennedy, Spencer Charters, Harry Watson, Louis Wolheim, Charles Judels, Gypsy O'Brien, Mary Kennedy and many others.

Other pictures on the bill include a news scenic and comedy. Enlarged orchestra every evening in a special musical program.

Great Keith Program at the Broadway

An all star aggregation of the world's best B. F. Keith vaudeville has been arranged for the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week starting today.

The supreme feature is Otis Mitchell and His Maryland Singers in songs and music of the sixties as sung in the south.

Franklyn and Cathlyn Rocket offer Hurrican Steps.

Summers Duo appear in a Revelation in Aerial Art.

Oscar Lorraine is a wonder and will keep everyone in rolls of laughter. He is billed as The Violin Nuttist.

Charles Mack and Johnny Jess offer a comedy riot, The Fireman.

The local admirers of Katherine MacDonald, long recognized as the most beautiful woman of the motion picture world, will find much to delight them in Heroes and Husbands, her newest picture, which is coming as a First National attraction to the Broadway theatre today for an engagement of three days.

Miss MacDonald has the role of a writer of popular fiction in her new offering. The supporting company is an unusually capable one, including Nigel Barrie, Charles Gerrard, Charles Clary, Ethel Kay and Mona Kingsley. Chet Withey directed "Heroes and Husbands," which was written by Charles Logue, who also penned Miss MacDonald's prominence success, "The Infidel."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Rev. E. M. Conklin, new pastor of the Methodist church, is to preach at the services Sunday, both morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Conklin comes here from Vaughansville, Ohio, and has had fourteen years of experience in the ministry in middle western states. His family consists of his wife and three sons.

This will be a quiet month at the state armory. No drills are scheduled for this week nor for this month until the last Tuesday thereof. Of interest was the inspection on New Year's day by two ordnance sergeants of the motor truck equipment kept here—an Class B trucks and a Dodge. These trucks are kept in the state armory garage and in constant readiness for any call that the government may have for their use. The oil heater recently installed in the armory keeps the big building warm and is regarded as a source of great comfort.

Slippery conditions on the state highway are held accountable for numbers of minor accidents to motor vehicles during the past two days. None of them accidents have been of a serious nature in this immediate territory, but on the Providence road and across the border in Rhode Island a big motor truck that went out of control crashed with a pair of horses being driven along the road and killed one of them. The truck was ditched.

It was stated Wednesday that the new sports arena, being built in the Shadyweather building will be ready for use within a short time, and that the plans now are to open with a boxing show the latter part of this month. Today work is expected to be gotten on laying the concrete floor. Heating apparatus will be installed and ready for use in about two weeks. Completing the arena after the concrete and heating is done will be only a brief task.

At the opening of the new year, the town of Killingly has good prospects industrially. With one exception—and this plant has been closed for nearly two years—all its textile concerns are operating and paying out a large amount of money each week. This is also true in a generally way of the majority of villages for which this is a trading center, although there are some plants in villages to the south that are not fully active just now. On the whole, business conditions are such as to give confidence, however.

Today the body of Major John Armstrong, of Providence, will be brought to Danielson for burial. Major Armstrong for many years was a resident for many years here and was engaged as head of a custom tailoring business. He was greatly interested in the national guard and successively went up through the various grades to the rank of major in the military forces of this state. He was a brother of Rev. F. W. Armstrong, for several years pastor of the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene, in Danielson. Major Armstrong had been making his home with his son in Providence.

Officers of McGregor post, G. A. R., and McGregor corps, W. R. C., were jointly installed Wednesday evening in G. A. R. hall. This year a custom of long standing, a triple installation ceremony which included the Sons of Veterans could not be carried out because the new officers of Colonel Edward Anderson camp were elected only Friday evening of last week and the camp could not prepare for the installation on such a short notice.

Members of W. R. C. marked in their memories Wednesday evening the absence of Mrs. Harriet Bodge of Hartford, who, as department president, instituted the corps in 1891, and had made a practice of coming here each year to act as installing officer and was regarded, as she did herself, as the mother of the corps. Her death last fall was an especially sad event for the members of McGregor corps.

This year the retiring president, Mrs. Edith L. Jordan, acted as installing officer. The new officers of the corps are: President, Miss Lillian E. Bailey; senior vice president, Mrs. Cora D. Page; junior vice president, Mrs. Lacy Grover; secretary Miss Annie L. Page; treasurer, Mrs. Hattie R. Bailey; chaplain, Mrs. Elizabeth Dawson; conductor, Mrs. Mary A. Bedard; guard, Mrs. Sarah Wild; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Ella M. Palmer; past president, Mrs. Edith L. Jordan; musician, Mrs. Eva H. Sheales; assistant conductor, Mrs. Mary E. Kennedy; assistant guard, Mrs. I. Ethel King; color bearers, Mrs. Flora E. Kennedy, Mrs. Nellie V. Moran, Mrs. Estelle M. Young Mrs. Lena M. Chase.

A. W. Bennett, who has been in Los Angeles the past two years, writes that he expects to come east for a visit in about six months.

One of the breeders in this vicinity of a line of pure bred cattle has, through the efforts of a friend, received inquiries as to sale terms on a certain number of head from a concern in the Azores.

Preparation for the Elks' charity ball will be advanced this evening when local members of the order hold a smoker to talk things over.

A period of getting down to business and working diligently throughout the winter appeared to have been inaugurated with the coming of Wednesday—the first business day after the holidays.

It is often said that the people hereabout spend all their spare money for motor cars and motoring," but that million dollar increase in savings deposits in Danielson's banks during 1923 proves something very different.

At Sellects on New Year's day, funeral services for Frederick Hopkins were conducted by Rev. Gilbert Cutler of the Rockland Christian church. Burial was in the Hopkins Mills cemetery. The bearers were Warren Averill, Oliver Arnold, H. W. Holland and Allen Stone. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Friday, Killingly High school basketball team will go to Willimantic for a game with Windham High school team.

The fire department responded to its first call of the year New Year's evening when an alarm from Box 35 came in for a chimney fire in one of the Connecticut Mills company's tenements on Water street. There was no damage.

Up to late Wednesday afternoon not an arrest had been necessary here to enforce the law against driving motorvehicles under 1923 registrations. Only vehicles with 1924 numbers were seen in service.

The pressure from school children Wednesday for the organizing of sleighing parties, but conditions are not just right for such affairs yet.

A number of local fraternal organizations have their annual meetings scheduled for the next ten days.

Lester Wheeler has received a note thanking him for cutting out a broadcasting station at Calgary, 3,000 miles away, totell them how clearly he picked up a band concert recently played there.

Danielson's coal supply is now nearer normal than in the mid-fall period and householders are obtaining sufficient amounts without great difficulty to keep homes comfortable.

Snow plows have been in use to break out some of the outlying and unimproved highways of Killingly, in which there is more than 150 miles of road.

Mrs. M. A. Shumway is a patient at Day Kimball hospital, resting comfortably after undergoing a surgical operation.

Mrs. C. E. Woods, who is at the Wilcox and Wescott home here, is ill with pneumonia.

Albert Trahan, who has been ill with pneumonia, was reported Wednesday as on the road to recovery.

Wednesday morning the mercury went down to zero here, for the first time this season.

Town Clerk Frank T. Preston said Wednesday afternoon that up to that time he had issued about 32 fishing licenses. These are now required if one would go fishing and hope to escape arrest for not complying with the law.

Judge W. Penner Woodward, who has been ill for more than a week, was reported Wednesday as improving.

Attorneys Harry E. Buck and Arthur G. Bill were in Hartford Wednesday on a case that took them as counsel before the supreme court.

Quinebaug lake is frozen over. A year ago this time heavy ice was being taken from the lake, but this year the ice is very light as yet.

William C. Vincent of Attleboro, Mass., was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Miss Catherine Connor has returned to Providence after spending two weeks here with her sister, Mrs. John Greely, of Academy St.

Miss Sadie Tracy visited Mrs. Tefft, of Dayville Sunday.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

PUTNAM

The first session of the Putnam city court for 1924 was held Wednesday morning, Judge M. H. Geissler presiding. Like the last cases of 1923, the first ones of 1924 had to do with liquor. Philip Chapdelaine and Ulric Dodge, at whose homes alcohol was seized in raids made by the local police last Saturday night, were presented to answer charges. Chapdelaine admitted selling some of the stuff to his father-in-law, Ulric Dodge, but not for a profit, and was fined $500 and costs, which he paid. Dodge was found not guilty. Attorney Irving H. Miron was counsel for Chapdelaine and Dodge.

State Attorney Charles E. Searls has given notice to all accused persons that they must appear in the superior court here Friday morning at 10.30 o'clock to plead, if they have not already done so, to charges that have been made against them, and elect whether they shall be tried by the court or jury.

There are 38 new cases to claim the attention of the court. A heavy percentage of the cases have to do with alleged violation of the liquor and motor vehicle laws. There are a number of cases in which reckless driving is charged.

The complete list of new cases follows:

Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald, who heard the case as a justice of the peace, has awarded damages of $64.65 and costs to Miss Harriet P. Slingsby, in her civil action against the Moss Electric Company. Miss Slingsly asked for damages on accounts of injury done to furnishings and other things at her home, when employes of the defendant concern went there to clean a chimney and were careless in handling the soot and other materials removed in the course of the cleaning.

Putnam and Danielson attorneys were in Hartford Wednesday to appear as counsel in the case of A. W. Greene of Kinsman, O., vs. William S. Brown of Wauregan, which went up on appeal from the Windham county superior court.

The case was tried here the past year and developed from cattle transactions between the plaintiff and the defendant. Mr. Brown, some years ago, bought a considerable number of high bred cattle from Mr. Greene. Later, following the development of certain conditions, there arose a disagreement between Mr. Greene and Mr. Brown as to final settlement.

At the end of the trial here the court directed the jury to bring in a verdict for Mr. Greene to recover $2,680.63. Claiming that there was no evidence as to the amount of Mr. Greene's loss, the attorneys for Mr. Brown appealed the case to the supreme court of errors.

For the first time this season, the mercury slid down to the zero mark, Wednesday morning; some instruments here showing 3 degrees below, and brought promise of an ice crop. It also brought good skating and many made the most of this fact during the day.

Secretary A. F. Ralston of the Chamber of Commerce said Wednesday that the organization will center its activities on industrial development during 1924.

Mr. Ralston said that no outline of what the chamber hopes to do can be given out just now, but it includes proposed effort to bring additional industries to Putnam.

Telephone messages bringing stories of a big fire in the business section of Webster, Wednesday morning, numbers hurried to that town in their cars. There was also interest here Tuesday evening in a threatening chimney fire at the Howe-Marot school properties in Thompson.

This (Tuesday) the council will hold its first meeting in 1924, and incidentally the last at which the present city administration will sit as it is now constituted. Next Monday evening the newly elected council will sit for the session that usually precedes formal organization for the next two years.

Among the little incidents that claim the attention these days is the pleas of men who want to be sent to jail. One instance of this kind developed Wednesday noon when a man went to a restaurant, had what he wished to eat and walked out without paying for it. He later told an officer that he hoped that he would be arrested for not paying, but the restaurant man failing to complain the man had to ask on his own account to be locked up. He was refused.

Midshipman William Rafferty, U. S. N., is aboard the Battleship Utah, which is going south with the fleet of about 140 vessels that is to participate in winter operations in the Caribbean sea. This is the greatest armada the United States has assembled for such manoeuvres and includes 15 battleships, 32 destroyers, four scout cruisers and 17 aircraft, with supply and other ships including a number of submarines. The fleet will remain in the south until spring.

Major A. D. McIntyre left here on Wednesday evening for New York after spending the holiday in Putnam. He said that business prospects appear bright for 1924 in all the large territory he covers, in connection with his business.

The coming ice with the prospects of fishing is bringing in the first applicants for the new fishing licenses.

Balloon tires now making their appearance here on new models of automobiles are attracting a great deal of attention. They are much larger than the ordinary pneumatics.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognised by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

JEWETT CITY

Chief Thomas Wakely, of the Jewett City fire department, gives notice of the location of the following hand chemical fire extinguishers, which are available for instant use:

Joseph H. McCarthy, Mechanic street; John F. Hennon, Mathewson street; Thomas Wakely, Green avenue; Velo Sharkey, Aspinock street; two at J. H. Tracy's store, Tracy avenue; Joseph Liberty, Ashland street; Philip Jervis, Hill street; E. H. Hiscox, Main street; Carey's drug store, Post Office square; William Greenlee, Brown avenue; Peter Bryant, Slater avenue; L. G. Buckingham, South Main street; three at engine house, East Main street; St. Mary's church and rectory supplied with three extinguishers; Finn's theatre, three; supplied on all floors.

The borough fire commission and G. H. Prior, the official fire marshal, are speaking in words of highest praise of Chief Wakely and his men, and their efficiency and skill in handling the most threatening fire problems. A Norwich fireman of experience, happened to be in Jewett City the night of the Shea Bros. coal shed and garage fire. With the mercury at zero and with a gale from the north, a big double house, only a few feet away was saved by quick and intelligent firefighting. The Norwich man declared that no company could rave improved upon that systematic attack of a bad blaze.

Local radio operators, learning from The Bulletin that the chimes of St. Patrick's cathedral, Fifth avenue, were to be broadcasted from New York New Year's eve, were anxious to tune in. One man said, although static was unusually quiet, the air was literally loaded with pretty much everything else. At 11.30 the grand old chimes were coming in fine. Soon a man over in KDKA, started in on an impassioned address relative to New Year duties and obligations. In the middle of the benediction, there came a great snapping, and some guy over in Newark announced that Lizzie O'Hara would sing that newest ballad, "You may be fast, but it won't last 'cause Mama's a goin' to slow you down."

The annual New Year's gathering at the Congregational church was held Tuesday evening, seventy being present. Miss M. A. Burdick had transformed the room into a bower of greenery with touches of red, hemlock branches, poinsettia and red and white tulips and red rugs being used to bring about the cheery appearance of the rooms. Rev. H. S. Stephenson announced the programme which opened with a violin solo by Tyler Gilbert, accompanied by Irene Stewart. There were solos by Mrs. Stephenson and Mrs. F. D. Ballou, and piano solos by Miss Viva Richardson. Misses Ethel Thompson and Viva Richardson were the accompanists. Mrs. E. J. Faust read interesting selections. A called the names of several faithful workers in the church who have been dead a number of years, but who were always present at these gatherings and whom the church loved and respected. Tyler Gilbert played the closing number. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the young men, after which there was a social hour. Mrs. Ballou and Mrs. Walter Marshall were the arrangement committee, assisted with the refreshments by Mrs. Abraham Zegeer and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. Rev. and Mrs. Stephenson arranged the programme.

Miss Bessie McCluggage and her father, James McCluggage, entertained a small party at supper New Year's Eve, in honor of John Chadwick. The guests were Arlene and Christine Burdick, Helen Gardiner of Moosup, Edward Thornton, Harold Mell and Everett Thornton.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will hold his regular clinic this week Friday morning, in the Red Cross room.

L. G. Buckingham, E. A. Faust and F. D. Ballou parked their automobiles opposite the Congregational church on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. When they went out to go home, between 10 and 11 o'clock, each car had been robbed of a valuable blanket. This is the second time within a few weeks that such a theft has occurred on Main street.

The annual meeting of Plainfield Cemetery Association was held at the home of the president, Walter Kingsley, Friday evening, Dec. 31st.

More lots have received special care the last year. Than during 1922 the association being equipped with proper tools for the care of the cemetery, to give special care to the lots of those who wish to pay a portion of the extra expense entailed by such care. The officers were re-elected. President, Walter Kingsley, secretary and treasurer, Henry Dovance.

Mrs. Andrew Gadreau, who had been seriously ill for some time, died at her home Monday, just before the New Year was ushered in. Mr. and Mrs. Gadreau moved to Plainfield in June, but has been very ill during this time. She was Miss Phoebe Hartley before her marriage and was born near Oldtown, Maine. She is survived by her husband, employed in the Lawton Mills, by three brothers, a son Wilfred Barry of Lawrence, Mass., a daughter, Mrs. George Vallincourt of Hartford, and three grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Gadreau occupied the Spalding house with Mr. Gadreau's son, Albert Gadreau and his family.

The Congregational church is to hold its supper and roll call this (Thursday) evening.

The meeting of Plainfield Library association is called for this evening in the Community house.

One of the pleasant recent events was the Christmas tree party held in the day nursery, when about 200 boys and girls enjoyed themselves in the parish hall. Through the kindness of Rev. Father R. P. Morrissey mickey sticks were distributed to the boys and dolls and candy to the girls.

The children of the Day Nursery enjoyed a chicken dinner on Christmas, planned by Miss Joan Kirby. The feature of the festival was a call from Santa Claus, who came in a big, fine motor car.

READY FOR A JOB.

What training is doing for the disabled soldiers is indicated by the statement to the effect that during the first part of this year there will be 70,000 who will complete their course and be ready for employment in the respective lines for which they have qualifications.

These are men who have had to face new conditions because of the effects of their service during the war. They have made the most of their disability, they have recognized and improved the advantages which Uncle Sam has provided for them and they are prepared, or soon will be, to compete with others in the earning of their living. They are not capitalizing their disability but have manfully gone into training and become as capable workmen in their new lines as they were in their old ones, or have fitted themselves to be as good artisans as they were soldiers.

That appeals should be made in their behalf is praiseworthy, and yet it doesn't appear to be necessary for any great effort in that direction, unless the fields into which they must enter are well filled. All that seems to be necessary is the publicity concerning the fact that these 70,000 are available, for it is believed that there will be an eagerness on the part of employers to see that they are given the opportunities they seek to earn their livings.

When the president asks for assistance for these men there is good reason for believing that they will be quickly absorbed in the various trades. It has been repeatedly asserted that too much could not be done for the disabled and the sick Disability hasn't been overcome in these cases entirely but certain handicaps have been removed through training. They are now fitted to make the most of their ability. They are not seeking charity, but a job. Their appeal goes to a country that is particularly interested in them. They stand in a different position than many others, for while they are capable in their new work they are restrained by their disability from doing anything and everything. Unless we are greatly mistaken the appeal in their behalf will not go unheeded.

MAINE ACTS TARDILY.

It is rather a belated announcement that comes from the attorney general of Maine to the effect that the state would assist the county officials in bringing to trial the persons who destroyed the body of John Snow, by burning it in the house where he had murdered three persons. It is no more than was to be expected but what the attorney general was a week in announcing should have been forthcoming the day after the dead man's body was disinterred and burned.

Because Snow took five lives before he took his own did not justify those in the community where his body was found, and where it was buried in an unmarked grave, in venting their indignation in any such manner as they did. It was a display of lawlessness that placed the perpetrators in a defenseless position, and one wonders what might have been the course that would have been followed in that community had Wood been arrested for his horrible crime before he had a chance to kill himself.

The state of Maine should do all within its power in not only aiding the county authorities but in holding them to their duty under the circumstances. One crime doesn't justify another. Maine isn't a state that is disposed to resort to lynch law, and it is certainly confronted with no uncertain duty in letting it be known that it will not tolerate anything of the kind.

Maine cannot fail to appreciate the impression that will go forth if it fails to insist upon the proper respect for the law. It certainly cannot desire to stand in the position of giving encouragement to mob rule of such a character, and yet that must be the inference unless it leaves no stone unturned to apprehend and punish those who were involved in this grave robbing and body burning. There is no community but what would resent such wholesale murdering, but it is to be expected that the same community would likewise resent any mob action that shows defiance toward established law. The act of a crazy man shouldn't cause a sane community to become infected.

MAKING USE OF LIGNITE.

Considering the price of coal at the present time, the possibility of further difficulties in the coal industry and the fact that the use of substitutes is being advocated for the relief of the consumer, attention is bound to be arrested by the claim which has been made to the effect that August Thyssen, an industrial magnate of Germany, has secured options on large lignite fields in the northwest and is contemplating the manufacture of briquets from that fuel.

Briquets and lignite are not new discoveries. Lignite is coal that displays the texture of the original wood and ranks between peat and bituminous. It is brownish black in color and is available in western states and particularly North Dakota, where Thyssen is said to be particularly interested. Briquets are at the present time made of coal dust or very fine coal, but the special advantage which is promised in connection with the lignite briquets is that while they will have all the heating value of anthracite coal it will be possible to retail them in any part of the country at eight dollars a ton.

This would mean, if the interesting promises can be fulfilled, that a bigger use could and would be made of the lignite fields, that strong competition would be offered to anthracite, especially in the neighborhood of production where transportation charges would not handicap, and that such a substitute would make a powerful appeal to those who have chafed under high prices.

Briquet manufacture under this particular process makes not only a cheap and efficient fuel but it promises to make much more desirable that which now has only a limited consumption, and which is not easy to burn. This country will not be so much interested in the one who controls the process as it will be in whether it can and does produce the desired results. Conditions in the anthracite industry are most certainly playing into the hands of those who are engaged in providing substitutes.

THE PUBLIC RECEPTION.

It is to be presumed that there will continue to be those who will insist upon rushing to the white house each New Year's day to grasp the president's hand, and perhaps give it an extra squeeze, in order to talk about it for the rest of their lives. Just as long as there is such a public reception it is to be expected that there will be no lack of public participation, and yet anyone who has gone through any such handshaking knows full well the paralyzing effect of it and must realize the president's strength should be conserved for the great burden of work that rests upon his shoulders.

There may be a reluctance on the part of those physically able to abandon this annual custom. Such a democratic affair always leaves a good impression and yet despite the willingness or eagerness of the chief executive to participate therein it always involves a tax on the vital energy that is telling.

That the president was sincere in his word of appreciation extended to an organization which met so long ago in Washington, when it voted not to visit the white house to shake hands with him, can be readily believed. Such a handshaking reception as is now held might well give way to a public gathering that would be briefly addressed on New Year's day by the head of the nation, instead of holding him to actually shaking hands steadily for several hours. It might not be quite as intimate a greeting but there would be in it decided relief for a man whose time and attention is already fully occupied with responsible and weighty matters, and who needs all his energy for such requirements.

FIGHTING THE RUM RUNNERS.

Fighting the appropriation that is sought for the purpose of getting proper vessels for stopping the liquor smugglers is entitled to little sympathy if it is done simply to obstruct the enforcement of the dry law. If it can be shown that there are vessels which will render just as good service and that the outlay that is asked is not really required, none will probably be more willing to accept such a view than the secretary of the treasury.

There can be no thought on the part of enforcement officials of going to needless expense just for the sake of spending money, or of delaying their activities until the new construction is completed. On the other hand it would be folly to load down the coast guard with expensive, unwieldy and slow vessels which could not do the work desired and do it efficiently, just because such vessels were available.

Fighting the rum runners is one of the problems that must be faced in the enforcement of the dry law. The question is whether it is going to be done effectively, or whether it is only going to be halfway done; whether the enforcement authorities are to be provided with a vehicle for meeting the determination of the law violators, or whether they are to be kept as badly handicapped as they are at the present time.

There is such a thing as causing waste by attempting to utilize what is manifestly unfit, quite the same as there is by spending more money than is needed or failing to utilize what is available. Let real efficiency be displayed in providing for the enforcement, if efficient results are desired. It makes a difference whether real or passive resistance to the rum runners is aimed at.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Only 364 of the days of the new year are left.

Are your new resolutions still on straight?

January acts as if it intended to make someone cry. Whoa!

The man on the corner says: Have you added your fishing license to the array of other licenses?

When democratic senators endorse the Mellon plan they have either heard from home, or else it is all that is claimed for it.

Ten thousand deaths occurred in 1923 from drinking poisonous liquor. Think what would happen if gasoline should be colored red.

The cost of building construction continues to mount in New York, and the higher it goes the worse becomes the housing situation.

It isn't a question of getting enough to fill the Coolidge bandwagon. The problem is to find room enough for all of them waiting for seats.

Even though the eastern end of Connecticut has had its biggest year, there's no reason why it shouldn't set out to make the new one still bigger and better.

Those autoists who run people down and then speed away are probably those who as youngsters used to pelt blind men with snowballs from behind billboards.

SWEET DISPOSITIONS

"She has the sweetest disposition on earth!" declared the entire red young man who had just got engaged. "She never loses her temper or gets peevish or cross!"

"Well, that's nothing to turn a handspring over," admonished the man who had been about a bit and seen a thing of two. "It is plain to be seen that you have not considered the situation. It is far better for a man to have a wife who occasionally raises Cain around the house than it is to be hampered by a serene sunset effect in feminine form. Nothing is worse for a man than knowing that no matter how many ashes he drips over the floors, no matter how much mud he tracks in, and in spite of all the tactless remarks he makes when company calls—in other words, no matter what awful husbandly crime he commits his sweet little wife is going to keep right on smiling and saying that he is just the loveliest man ever invented.

"He gets so cheaty that he is apt to go to sleep when the minister is calling, ask for a second serving of soup and just blow up generally.

"When they are shooting bullets from all directions at a man's heels he dances—and so he does when he's got a wife who tells him what's what, because every so often a man needs to be told just that.

"When a man knows that he can come home to dinner on housecleaning day when the meal is to consist of the last of the veal roast, where it begins to get streaked and bony, warmed up potatoes and bakery pie and bring with him the head of the firm or his millionaire college chum, just passing through town, and catch his wife in the front hall with her head tied up and wearing the apron she put on which she got up in the morning and get away with it alive, why, the whole proceeding lacks zest.

"Whereas, if he was dead sure she would tell him what she really thought of him after the company was gone he might get a thrill out of it. She might ever be furious enough to pack up and go home for a week or so. You see, a peppery wife gives a man something to think about in dull minutes.

"Nobody ever could understand what made Lummox Greene act so and carry on so scandalously as he was married to such a lovely wife. Everybody said that if there was a sweeter woman on earth than Sally Greene they'd like to see her—so kind, so patient, so agreeable when Lummox broke in, the tips of her pet fern or let the canary get away or sat on her new hat, or asked the Pecks to dinner when he knew all the time the Bushels were coming and the entire world with maybe the exception of Zahnbar knew that the Bunsels and the Pecks hated each other like poison. Lummox might get up in the morning and ask what the heck was the matter with the darned coffee and why couldn't they ever have anything besides eggs and bacon or codfish balls or sausages or waffles or griddle cakes? Why didn't she get some variety? Seemed to him that when a woman had nothing to do but plan meals she might have a little variety in the menu! And here was a button off the front of his shirt! Just dropped off! Why didn't she keep the buttons sewed on! Look how this handkerchief was ironed! And here he'd missed his train—why didn't she see that he caught trains when she knew he wanted to?

"When Lummox acted this way Sallie would never blink an eyelash. She'd help him on with his overcoat, kiss him good-by and call dearie don't get your feet wet if it rains and be home early, just as though he had behaved prettily. Well, Lummox just couldn't stand it and eloped with a vinegary person who hasn't let him call his soul his own ever since. They say he never knows when he goes home nights whether he'll be let in or greeted with melted lead from the upper windows. And he works hard and brings home the bacon, which he didn't do with the first one. So I hate to hear a young man trustingly boasting about the lovely nature of his best beloved——"

"Well, I do remember now that Genevieve looked real cross once when I was half an hour late in meeting her," the newly engaged young man broke in eagerly. "And they say she slapped her sister when she was a child of 6."

"Well, perhaps then there is hope for you," agreed the other man. "Try being an hour late next time and see if you can't stir things up a bit!"—Exchange.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

While the exemptions for married persons are $2,500 if their net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 if the net income was in excess of $5,000, there is inserted in the revenue act a qualifying clause in justice to those persons whose net income just exceeded $5,000. The act provides that the reduction of the amount of the exemption shall not increase by more than the amount of net income in excess of $5,000 the tax which would be payable had the exemption been $2,500. For example, Mr. and Mrs. John Doe had a net income for 1923 of $5,010. Without the benefit of the above provision their normal tax would be $120.40 ($5,010 less $2,000 equaling $3,010 at 4 per cent). Their actual tax is $110.40 ($5,010 less $2,500 equaling $2,510 at 4 per cent, or $100.40, plus $10, the amount by which the net income exceeds $5,000). This provision has no application where the combined net income is $5,020 or more.

Exemptions of $2,000 or $2,500 are allowed married couples only if they live together. In the absence of continuous residence together, the exemption depends upon the character of the separation. The presence of a wife in a sanatorium or her unavoidable absence because of ill health does not change the marital status, and the full exemption is allowed the husband. If occasionally the husband is away on business, or for any necessary reason a temporary separation exists, the full exemption is allowed. But, if continually and voluntarily the husband makes his residence at one place and the wife at another, they are not living together within the eye of the income tax law.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Hiram W. Johnson, who is scheduled to launch his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination with a speech in Cleveland tonight, has been one of the representatives of California in the upper house of Congress since 1917. A native of Sacramento, who studied at the University of California, and a lawyer by profession, Senator Johnson first came into state prominence by casting his lot with critics of corporation domination of the politics of California and especially of San Francisco. Elected governor of the State in 1911 as a "reform" executive, he so conducted his office that in 1916 he was re-elected for a term not expiring until 1919. In 1917, however, he resigned to take his seat in the senate. Senator Johnson was one of the founders of the Progressive party and was its candidate for the vice-presidency in the national campaign of 1912. Later he joined in the merger of the Progressives with the Republicans and supported Mr. Hughes for the presidency.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

On the Island of Sicily.

Although Little Jack Rabbit in his Magic Boat had visited many countries, he never could guess where it would take him next. His Magic Boat, or rather Airship, went just where it wanted to, you see, and when it landed he wouldn't know where he was until somebody told him the name of the country, showed him all the strange sights and explained all the strange customs.

One morning upon landing on a beautiful island, just off the coast of Italy, he saw a man driving a wonderfully painted cart. Pictures like oil paintings were painted on the boards. On one side, Venus, (which your school books will tell you was a Roman Goddess), was rising from the sea. On the other side, were fauns, toreadors, saints and nalads. Why this wonderful cart looked like a rainbow on wheels! The horse that drew it had on beautiful harness, which almost covered him. Silver ornaments and brass bells hung from it, and the bells tinkled their sweet music as the horse jogged along.

"Come, take a ride with me, little bunny," said the man. "I will show you the island of Sicily."

No sooner had the little rabbit hopped into the cart, which was like a big box, set on four very high wheels than the driver said "Gid-a-p" to his horse and away they went, past pepper trees and glossy magnolias and slim green bamboo trees, until by and by, they saw peasant girls drying figs for the winter, and others tending herds of goats.

"What do the boys do?" asked the curious little bunny rabbit.

"They swim and fish, make nets and sail boats. And then they sing. We Sicilians all have beautiful voices for we eat many grapes, and our forefathers ate grapes, and that is one reason why we have good singing voices," answered the driver.

After seeing many more strange things, the Magic Airship came down from the sky and took Little Jack Rabbit away. By and by, it came to a high mountain. When it had gently settled on the ground, the bunny boy hopped out and away sailed the airship.

"You have traveled far and wide,
Over land and ocean tide,
Be content to stay awhile
On this rocky mountain pile," shouted a thin, cracked voice, all of a sudden, just like that.

"Who are you and where are you?" asked the little rabbit, looking all around. But, dear me, there was no one in sight. And gazing up into the sky, he could see no friendly Magic Airship to come to his aid.

"Well, now I must depend on my legs," sighed the anxious little bunny "My Magic Airship is gone!"

Just then, quick as a wink, a little old man with a long white beard and a high peaked hat jumped out from behind a big stone and shouted: "Here comes your airship!" And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Has Been Without Charge For Three Years.

Mr. Editor:—I note an article in the Wednesday issue of The Bulletin under the heading "Will provide parsonage for Rev. E. George Biddle" which to my mind carries the wrong impression in part. Cambridge is not the last charge of Dr. Biddle, but where he has been living at home since 1920 when he was located by the annual conference at his personal request. In the past three years, while he has been of invaluable service to the conference, he preferred no charge. Appreciating the problems which would be naturally expected in the federated church at Amherst, and with no other available with the desired experience, the conference authority asked Dr. Biddle, who consented to take up this work. And while it is true that with great difficulties, a parsonage is being provided, it is also true that he is leaving his own home in Cambridge to assume this pastorate.

Stories That Recall Others

Making a Winter of It.

Martha and her papa and mamma spent the day recently with Junior and his parents. The children had a great time playing, but finally the time came to go home and of course the fun was over.

"Come over again soon," said Junior's mamma to Martha's mamma, "and bring a jar of your pickles. We'll get the oysters and have a oyster stew."

This evidently interested Martha for on the way home she said: "Mamma, let's take three or four jars of pickles and stay all winter."

It Works Sometimes

They were discussing the methods used at home to start to work on time.

One averred that he never had any trouble, he always was awake on the dot and never relied on a clock.

Another used an alarm clock, and another had the office girl call him.

"Well," said one, "I've got a system that never fails. We have several clocks at home, not one of which has the same time. I add all the times shown on the clocks, strike a general average, and it never fails me."

A glance at the office clock, however, showed that he was 30 minutes early by his never failing scheme.

Floyd Dell, author and Alfred Knopf publisher of "Janet March," have agreed to withdraw the novel from circulation it was announced after a conference with District Attorney Banton who told them certain features of the book had been found objectionable.

PLEASANT

[illegible] the earth
The [illegible] snows
Stood [illegible] robes of white attired.
—J[illegible] Bryant.

HIS [illegible]A

He strolled with lovely English Maidie
Beneath the silver moon
And heard in newly budded woods
The nightingale in tune—
With Scottish Jean he toured the lochs,
With Irish Nora danced,
And gazed in Spanish Lola's eyes,
But none of these entranced.

In Venice, the city of romance,
On purple nights of stars
He floated down the Grand Canal
To laughter and guitars,
With proud Francesca at his side—
Her dazzling beauty bold,
Of crimson lips and dusky locks

Among the cherry trees he sat
With geishas of Japan
As quaintly [illegible] as figures gay
Upon a paper fan.
The golden girls of China, too,
Engaged him sipping tea
In queer pagodas red and gilt—
Still he was fancy free.

He saw the fairest of the fair
In every land on earth,
Returned and met a flapper in
The village of his birth,
A little freckled sassy thing,
A saucy minx and fell.
So very hard for her, behold!
He rang the wedding bell.

Will be sold for Strictly CASH on Delivery.

After more than ten years' experience in our business with a credit system and its necessary expensive bookkeeping and collecting accompaniments, we have decided to discontinue it and adopt a strictly cash system beginning January first, 1924.

We believe this will be mutually beneficial to ourselves and all our patrons, who pay their bills, as this will eliminate all uncollectable accounts and enable us to sell for less and to do better work.

We desire to thank all our patrons for the many favors shown us in the past and trust they will see the proper meaning in this change of system.

WE WILL CONTINUE TO SELL NEW AND USED CARS ON THE DEFERRED PAYMENT PLAN.

OBITUARY

George H. French

George H. French, 67, an inmate of Fairview home for Old Fellows at Groton died Wednesday morning following a shock suffered Saturday. Mr. French formerly resided in Hartford, where he was a decorator many years, entering the home about six months ago. He was a widower. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. C. E. Judson of Hartford, a summer resident at Niantic. Mr. French suffered the shock while walking about the home, the attack being the third he experienced since his admission there.

Miss Annie D. Holmes.

Miss Annie D. Holmes, who died on December 29 at the home of her sister in Worcester, Mass., lived for many years in this city. She served for a long time as matron of the Rock Nook Children's Home where she endeared herself to the children by her motherly interest and devoted care and where she was instrumental in shaping many a young life. Later she was matron at the Sheltering Arms, giving up that home and its family the same loving service. Miss Holmes is remembered with deep affection by her friends here.

Miss Louise R. Wohlfarth.

Word has been received here of the sudden death in Los Angeles, Cal., on Dec. 30 of Miss Louise R. Wohlfarth, formerly a resident of Norwich. Miss Wohlfarth is survived by her two sisters, Annie and Julia H. They had spent the summer in New London and had returned to Los Angeles in October, occupying a new house which they had purchased. Miss Wohlfarth and her sisters resided in this city up to 1909 when they left to make their home in California.

Mrs. William O' Brien

Elizabeth Wall, widow of William O'Brien, died at her home, at 266 Edgewood avenue, New Haven, New Year's morning. She was a native of East Hampton, and resided in Middletown for several years. She is survived by one son, Rev. William T. O'Brien of Baltic; three daughters, Miss Mary of Baltic, and Misses Anna and Delia at home.

FUNERALS.

John McNamara

The funeral of John McNamara was held Wednesday morning at 8.15 o'clock from his home on Wightman avenue. At 9.30 in the Sacred Heart church, the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan celebrated a requiem high mass.

The choir sang and at the offertory, Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis. For a waiting hymn she sang Consolation. As the body was being borne from the edifice, the choir sang Lead, Kindly Light. There were several beautiful floral pieces.

The bearers were Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, John Mullen, James Purdon, James Mahoney, Timothy O'Hearn, and John Driscoll. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Father Brennan read the committal service. Cummings and Ring were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Included in the large attendance were relatives and friends from Newark, Willimantic, New London, Jewett City, Franklin and other places. Mr. McNamara is survived by the following children: John and James McNamara of North Dakota; William of New York, Anna of Passaic, N. J. Katherine of Jewett City; Charles Francis, Edward, Jennie and Mary, all of Norwich.

WEDDINGS.

Clark—Stanton.

Miss Florence Alice Stanton, daughter of the late Mirick B. Stanton of 1000 Bank street, New London, became the bride of Edward Worthy Clark of Norwich at a wedding ceremony performed Tuesday evening in New York city. Mr. Clark is connected with the Independent Fruit Auction corporation of New York city and during the World war served overseas as a sergeant with the A. E. F. He is a son of the late Edward S. Clark of Norwich.

The bride is a graduate of Williams Memorial Institute and for the past year has been manager of the Kelley & Cowles store in Waterbury. The young couple have many friends in this city and New London. They will reside in New York city.

Herman—Fishbone.

A very pretty wedding took place New Year's eve at the Jewish synagogue on High street when Miss Bertha Fishbone of Hallville and Irving Herman of Hallville, son of Mrs. Helena Herman of Norwich, were united in marriage by Rabbi Max Stamm of this city and Cantor David Sherman of Worcester, Mass. The couple was attended by Miss Etta Rose Fishbone, bridesmaid, Fred Herman, best man, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fishbone of Fitchville and Mr. and Mrs. Ike Shea of Webster, Mass. The bride was gowned in white georgette trimmed with pearls and carried a bouquet of white carnations and roses. She received many beautiful and costly gifts.

Following the ceremony the couple left on their honeymoon for New York and upon their return they will reside in Hallville. Relatives and friends were present from Gloucester, Mass., Boston, Mass., New York, Worcester, Mass., Webster, Mass., Hartford, Conn., Fitchville, Yantic and this city.

Poli Theatres to Family

PROBATION GRANTED TO THREE ACCUSED IN SUPERIOR COURT

Lawrence Gada and Elmer Bentley, two Niantic young men, were sentenced by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior criminal court here late Wednesday afternoon after they had pleaded guilty to statutory burglary in entering summer cottages and a garage where they stripped a number of parts from a Ford machine.

Judge Avery made the sentence a year in jail for each, with sentence suspended, and the two men put under probation with the requirement that they shall make full restitution within 60 days, reporting to Probation Officer Richard Mansfield. The officer is to notify the state attorney if restitution has not been made in the time limit.

Judge Austin I. Bush spoke for leniency for Bentley and Attorney Hollandersky for Gada. Neither man, the attorneys said, had ever been up before a criminal court before this time and both were completely penitent and anxious to make amends for the wrong they had done. Attorney Hollandersky had fourteen letters testifying to the previous good character of Gada, who is a blacksmith.

Attorney Warren Burrows, who is acting state attorney for this session of court, did not oppose leniency but remarked that the men must have spent nearly a whole night in the garage as they removed many parts from the automobile and put them into their own machine.

Michael Bohara of this city pleaded guilty to a perjury charge in obtaining a hunting license at the town clerk's office and was fined $50. The perjury involved swearing to the statement that he was a citizen, when he had only taken out his first papers and Judge Avery said that there did not appear to have been a deliberate intent to break the law but it seemed that Bohara did not understand his status to citizenship. The judge passed sentence after Attorney T. M. Shields for the accused man had made the claim that Bohara had exhibited his first papers to the assistant town clerk when he made application for the license.

Upon the recommendation of Attorney Burrows nolles were entered in the cases of Bernard Dolan and Frank Walsh of this city, accused of aiding in the attempt of an insane person to escape from the Norwich state hospital. Attorney Burrows said he was satisfied that this was not a true case of an attempt to aid in escape and he moved to have the cases nolled without putting the two accused men to plea.

Charles T. Bourlie of Stonington pleaded guilty to the charge of abandoning his wife on Nov. 10 and living in Concord, N. H., with another woman. Attorney Burrows told the court that a reconciliation has been effected and that Bourlie was now living again with his wife and supporting her and their child. Judge Avery made the sentence a year in jail, which was suspended and Bourlie is to report to Probation Officer Mansfield.

This closed the court business for the day at 4.30 and adjournment was taken to the next morning at 10 o'clock.

Accused Put to Plea.

Court was opened at 11 in the morning with Judge Avery presiding and Rev. C. H. Ricketts offered prayer.

Eight prisoners were in the steel pen, for having been brought from the Norwich jail and four from New London, and a colored woman, who is a prisoner sat back of the clerk's desk. Sheriff Sidney A. Brown from New London was in attendance with deputy sheriffs and the court officer was Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton. Public Defender Charles L. Stewart looked after the cases of those of the accused who did not have counsel.

Charles Loomis, Bozrah, theft of chickens valued at $30 from Steve Cumkowski, Nov. 24, court trial.

Henry Muller alias Miller, Norwich, sale of liquor, Oct. 18, and reputation of keeping place where liquor is sold, July 1, jury trial.

Edgar Robinson, statutory burglary, court trial.

HEAVYWEIGHT ROTARIANS PROVIDE FINE PROGRAM

"Nobody loves a fat man" is not always applicable to persons blessed, or otherwise, with expansive girths as was shown Wednesday noon at the Norwich Rotary club meeting when five of the "fatties" acted as hosts to the entire membership. After attending the luncheon Wednesday there was no doubt in the minds of anyone as to the reason why these five had graduated from the middleweight class to the heavyweight class. If the menu furnished by the "heavies" is a sample of their regular diet then no one can blame them for putting on extra poundage. These five pleasingly plump men are not in the least sensitive over their excess avoirdupois so it will not offend them to mention their names, George W. Carroll, Charles F. Wells, Otto F. Ernst, Herbert M. Lerou and E. Larue Bliven, and say that every member of the club thoroughly enjoyed the feast and declared that the new year had been started right.

President Charles A. Saxton presided at the meeting and Alfred E. Bliven was the song leader. There was an insistent demand that the hosts favor with a quintet selection which they did. What they lacked in harmony was amply made up in volume. The seven slender stripelings of the club also gave a selection that while rather weak was a shining example of sweetness. The visiting Rotarians also favored with a song which was decidedly the best of the three. Upon request of a former member of the local club Joseph C. Worth rendered a pathetic number that brought forth sympathetic emotions of his audience.

Another spontaneous contribution to the pleasure of the meeting was the recital of two humorous stories of the vintage of 1860 by a prominent member of the club who dearly loves to indulge in reminiscences.

Valentine Murphy of the Willimantic club brought the season's greetings from the Thread City club and also told of the attendance contest that is in progress among the members of the Willimantic club. After Mr. Murphy's talk there were several forecasts for 1924 given by various members of the club. These forecasts pertained to everything in general and some of the prophets indulged in personalities much to the amusement of those present. Ed Harris and Eb Learned rendered a parody on "On the Back Porch".

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

$1700 IN CONTRIBUTIONS FOR SANATORIUM FUND

The January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Oliver L. Johnson on Union street and was well attended. The meeting was opened at 4 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Frederick W. Cary, and the scripture reading and prayer was given by Edwin F. Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved.

The entertainment consisted of two delightful solos by Miss Martha Geer who was accompanied by Mrs. C. D. Geer, after which Dr. Hugh Campbell, in charge of the Norwich Tuberculosis sanatorium, gave a most instructive and interesting talk on tuberculosis.

In covering his subject, Dr. Campbell mentioned the fact that the disease, tuberculosis, was known in olden times, that it had been mentioned in the Bible in Deuteronomy and was also mentioned in New Testament. The germ, he said, was not discovered in 1882 and this credit belongs to John Cook.

In 1907 active work against tuberculosis was begun. The sanatorium at Norwich was opened in 1913 and in 1917 the second sanatorium was opened at Crescent Beach.

Speaking of the fight against tuberculosis, Dr. Campbell said that much credit is due to the Young Men's Christian Association, as this organization in its gymnasium work had helped greatly in keeping young people fit, making them less susceptible to the disease.

Since clinics have been established they have been a great aid to the discovery of the trouble in its early stages, aiding essentially in making a cure. Once it was considered that a person suffering with tuberculosis must leave for a different climate, but now it is known that there is no need for a change of climate as rest and more rest, with good wholesome food is the only cure.

Speaking of the collections for tubercular patients Dr. Campbell said that in 1916 the sum of $70 was collected for the patients with which to purchase Christmas presents for them, this work being in charge of Mrs. Fred A. Byrnes and Miss Mary Richards.

In 1923 said Dr. Campbell the amount of money collected in Norwich and surrounding towns was $1,700. Every patient was provided with a Christmas present and the remaining money will be used during the year for the pleasure of the patients.

After hearing the fine talk by Dr. Campbell the meeting was adjourned. During the social time which followed tea was served by the hostess.

Left Daughter in Norwalk

Besides a son and daughter in Norwich who survive the late Samuel Crooks who died recently at his home on Oak street, he left a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Crooks now living in Norwalk. She is a daughter by his first wife, who was Eliza Ferguson. Another daughter by this marriage, Annie, passed away in Chicago.

CAPT. AND MRS. POTTER MARRIED 66 YEARS AGO

Captain and Mrs. Charles T. Potter of No. 44 Spruce street completed 66 years of married life New Year's day. Although no special observance marked the anniversary day, in Noank, January 1, 1858, they were united in marriage by the late Rev. Henry Jones. Some years of their married life was spent in Noank and for six years they resided in New London, for the past quarter of a century they have lived in Norwich. 61 years of this time in the house where they now reside on Spruce St.

Charles Tilden Potter was born in Noank 78 years ago, the son of James and Grace Potter. At the age of 12 he went to sea, sailing on a ship of which his brother, the late James Potter, was captain. During one of his trips the ship was attacked by pirates and the young sailor with his brother and members of the crew were set adrift in an open boat. They survived the ordeal however. Later Captain Potter commanded a boat of his own. For years Captain Potter has had charge of the Molineux Mission on Main street and conducts services there regularly. He also conducts the Thursday evening service at the Learned Mission in New London. He takes much pleasure in making models of the scenes of Biblical happenings and has presented many of these models to missionaries who have taken them to various parts of the world.

Mrs. Potter's maiden name was Martha A. Weeks and she was born in Hartford, this state, the daughter of Rufus and Mehitable Weeks, 78 years ago. Mrs. Potter's father and two brothers died in the service of the Union during the civil war. Her father was taken prisoner by the confederate forces and died from disease. Mrs. Potter's grandfather fought under Washington in the revolutionary war.

Four children were born to Captain and Mrs. Potter and two are now living, a son, Charles E. Potter of Hedge avenue, and a daughter, Mrs Elizabeth Potter Whitney who resides with her parents.

COAST GUARD SEARCHED FOR RASMUSSEN'S BODY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, Jan. 3.—Search for the body of Harold Rasmussen who was drowned Tuesday night by stepping off the open end of a pontoon drawbridge in the Pawcatuck river, was continued in a systematic manner when early this afternoon Chief of Police Thomas Brown having been in conference with Police Commissioner Farquhar Smith obtained the services of Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station. The power boat Thomas and two of the surfmen and the necessary grappling equipment was placed in operation under the active direction of Chief Brown and Capt. Broadmeadow.

The riverbed was dragged but the Rasmussen boy's body had not been located when darkness prevented the successful continuance. Thursday it is expected that further work will be done to locate the body of the drowned boy.

Fred S. Opie of the P. H. Opie department store of Westerly was called to Webster, Mass., Wednesday morning when it was thought that the $350,000 fire in the heart of the business district threatened the Dobie Co., a dry goods firm of which Mr. Opie is one of three partners. It came within one building of the Dobie store.

COURT TAKES PAPERS IN PRESTON DIVORCE CASE

One divorce case was heard, two cases went off the assigned list for re-assignment and a non-suit was entered in one case at the opening session of the January additional term of the civil superior court Wednesday in the Chelsea parliament room in this city. Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding at the session, which was opened at 10 a. m. by Sheriff Martin of New London. Albert J. Bailey acted as assistant clerk. The two cases that went off the list for reassignment were those of Frank Connelli vs. Rosa Connelli and Elizabeth Meyer vs. Abraham Meyer.

The case heard the divorce case of Beriah E. Burdick of Preston vs. Florence E. Burdick now confined in the Norwich state hospital for the insane. Mr. Burdick testified as to his marriage. He has been paying his wife $5 a week and claims he cannot afford to pay so much. He asked that the amount be reduced. Dr. Schenk of the hospital staff of physicians testified in the case. He was made guardian of the woman. The court took the papers.

A non-suit was entered in the case of Mary M. Leandri vs. Emilio Leandri. Court was adjourned until this (Thursday) morning at 10 o'clock.

M. H. Moyer of Hartford is acting as court reporter and Charles W. Barber as court messenger.

LARGE PIMPLES PAINED AWFULLY

Itched and Burned. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"I was troubled with large, red pimples on my face. At night they would feel burned after they got me to scratch and I could not sleep. Every time I turned around in bed they pained awfully. Much work they seemed to grow larger and more painful.

"I was treated without any benefit. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so I purchased a cake of Soap and one box of Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Miss Mary Silvia, 254 River Rd., New Bedford, Mass.

RHEUMATISM

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given By One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Subacute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and subacute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

MRS. MALLORY WILL REPRESENT U. S. OR WILL NOT COMPETE IN OLYMPICS

New York, Jan. 3 (By the A. P.)—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former national women's tennis champion, will not compete for her native country, Norway, in event she is unable to represent America in the Olympic tennis events, it developed today in connection with a disclosure that international athletic authorities still have under consideration the question of her eligibility to play for the United States.

Several days ago, Mrs. Mallory was quoted as saying she would compete for Norway if unable to represent this country, but today the former champion in effect denied the statements attributed to her. At the same time it was learned from an official Norwegian source that in order to present Norway, as she did in the 1912 Olympics, Mrs. Mallory would be obliged to renounce the American citizenship she acquired by marriage to Franklin I. Mallory, New York broker. This, it was understood, she does not intend to do.

Mrs. Mallory refused to discuss the question, asserting she had not considered the situation, but when pressed as to her reported announcement, she declared:

"I have had nothing to say about it at all; I never give interviews."

Julian S. Myrick, former president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, and who is in charge of America's Olympic representation, declared it was his understanding that Mrs. Mallory could not compete for Norway because of her American citizenship. He added that the question of her representing America still was before the International Olympic committee and that there was a possibility means would be found to set aside in her case operation of the Olympic rule which now prevents a performer who had represented one country from ever contesting for another nation. This rule, it was pointed out, was not intended to bar such competitors as Mrs. Mallory, who has become an American by marriage and gained her principal prestige in tennis here. It may be amended to permit the former champion to represent the land of her adoption.

Such provision, Mr. Myrick indicated, may not be made until just before the Olympic games but he pointed out that as Mrs. Mallory intends to accompany the American Women's team abroad for the matches with English women prior to the Olympics, she would thus be prepared at the eleventh hour to compete at Paris.

"We want Mrs. Mallory to represent the United States in the Olympics," said Mr. Myrick. "We feel that she is an American in every sense of the word and that she stands for our ideals."

The international women's team, which will compete for the Wightman cup with English players probably on June 20 and 21 at Wimbledon, probably will be composed of Miss Helen Wills, present national champion, Mrs Mallory, Miss Eleanor Goss, and Mrs George W. Wightman, according to Mr. Myrick. These four players won the Wightman cup at Forest Hills last season, making a clean sweep of the matches with British women.

OLYMPIC SKATING TEAM INCREASED TO SIX MEMBERS

New York, Jan. 2—A modification of the American Olympic speed skating entry list by which the United States will be represented by six instead of four competitors, was cabled to the French Olympic committee today, shortly after the speed skating team sailed on the President Monroe.

The original entry list provided for four starters, Joe Moore, New York; Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid; Harry Kaakey and William Steinmets, both of Chicago. In the new list the names of Valentine Bialis of Saranac Lake, and Richard Donovan of Johnson City, N. Y., originally named as alternates, have been included, and arrangements made which insure two fresh contestants in each of the four events at Chamonix.

The modified entry list follows:

500-meters—Moore, Jewtraw, Kaskey and Steinmetz.

5,000-meters — Jewtraw, Steinmetz, Bialis and Donovan.

1,500-meters—Moore, Kaskey, Jewtraw and Steinmetz.

10,000-meters—Moore, Kaskey, Bialis and Donovan.

The 500 and 5,000-meters events will be raced on the first day and the 1,500 and 10,000-meters on the second day of the speed skating meet.

Siki Barred From Illinois.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Battling Siki refused permission to box in Michigan rings will not appear in Peoria, Ill., Jan. 11, it was announced tonight, because the promoters said they could not sign a suitable opponent.

OLYMPIC SKI TEAM IS CHOSEN BY COMMITTEE

New York, Jan. 2.—The entries of the skiing team which will represent the United States in the Olympic winter sports at Chamonix late this month, were forwarded to the French committee today by Frederick Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee.

Four Ski specialists, all residents of the middle west, and all of Scandinavian stock made up the team. They are Bernt C. Hansen, Anders Haugen, Ragnar Ontvedt and Karl Nellsen. Hansen and Haugen are natives of Minneapolis, while Ontvedt and Nellson are naturalized citizens, both having immigrated from Norway.

The final practice workouts of the team are being conducted this week, and its members are due to sail for abroad with the American Olympic hockey team on January 9.

The ski team will compete in four events at Chamonix, a 50-kilometer race, 12 59 18 kilometer race, ski-jumping contest and ski efficiency contest.

BASEBALL TOURNEY FOR NATIONAL AMATEUR TITLE

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 3.—A tournament of teams from all parts of the United States to decide the national amateur champion is one of the plans of reorganization to be offered to the National Baseball federation at its annual meeting in Baltimore, January 16, it was announced by John H. Gourley, assistant secretary of the sandlot organization, upon his return from the east tonight.

The plan, which involves cooperation with the Playground Recreation Association of America, depends upon division of the country into geographical sections, Gourley said. Champions of each section will be decided in intercity series, the winners to be sent to the tournament to determine the national champions.

Gourley also said that he has received assurances that the Baltimore meeting will be the largest ever held by the N. B. F. Delegates are expected from many eastern cities including New Haven.

OLYMPIC HOCKEY TEAM BEATS BOSTON SEVEN

Boston, Jan. 2.—The American 1924 Olympic hockey team, playing its first game as a unit here tonight, defeated the Boston Hockey club, of the United States Amateur Hockey league, 2 goals to 0. Herbert Drury, of Pittsburgh, was the only man on the Olympic line-up not a member of the Boston Athletic association team. Clarence (Taffy) Abel of St. Paul arriving too late to take part in the game.

Drury, Synnott and Small were the stars of the game. The first goal was scored a second before the close of the first period when Drury, by remarkable skating and stick handling, brought the puck down the ice and passed to Geran in front of the Boston Hockey club goal, Geran knocked it in. Shortly after the second period began a shot from the stick of Small, who had taken Synnott's pass, bounded off the goal tender's shins into the net.

FIRPO TO FIGHT LODGE AND SPALLA NEXT MONTH

Buenos Aires, Jan. 3.—Luis Firpo, South American heavyweight champion, today announced that his match with the Italian champion, Erminio Spalla, will take place on the Buenos Aires football field on February 24, and will be of fifteen rounds. Firpo said he would receive forty per cent of the gate receipts and Spalla a guaranteed amount which Firpo was unable to make public, but is reported to be $60,000 lire.

Firpo also said Farmer Lodge, the American boxer, had agreed to come to Buenos Aires to meet him in a fifteen-round bout on February 10 for the Women's Charity Association. Lodge to receive $3,000 and his traveling expenses. Firpo said Lodge was now on his way from the west to New York to catch the steamship Pan-America, sailing on January 5.

After these two fights Firpo will sail for the United States on February 23.

JOE RAY TO RUN IN SILK A. A. GAMES JAN. 16

New York, Jan. 3.—Joe Ray, Chicago distance running star, will make his initial 1924 appearance in the east in a special 1,500-metre event at the Silk A. A. games on January 16.

Ray was slated to oppose Willie Ritola in a 2,000-metre race at this meet but the event was cancelled because of the Finnish runner's decision to return to his native land to prepare for the Olympics. The doughty Chicagoan, however, expressed a desire to meet all comers at any distance and the shorter event was arranged as a result. Several eastern stars, including Jimmy Connolly, former Georgetown runner, will be invited to compete against Ray.

SITES FOR NATIONAL GOLF TOURNEYS ARE CHOSEN

New York, Jan. 3.—Sites for all four of the national golf championships conducted by the United States Golf Association have been selected for the 1924 season. Dates for them will be ratified by the U. S. G. A. at its annual meeting, which opens here Friday.

The open championship will be conducted at Oakland Hills, Detroit; the amateur title event, at the Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia; the Public Links championship at Dayton, O.; and the women's championship at the Rhode Island Country club, Providence.

MRS. ELLIS HEADS WOMEN'S STATE GOLF ASSOCIATION

New Haven, Jan. 3.—Mrs. A. R. Ellis, of the Hartford Golf club, was elected president of the Connecticut Womens Golf association at the annual meeting of the association held here today.

Other officers elected include Mrs. Burnside Winslow, New Haven Country club, vice president, and Mrs. George C. Seeley, Quotonset Golf club, secretary and treasurer.

The executive committee composes Mrs. Charles E. Parsons of the Shuttle Meadow club, for one year; Mrs. Charles H. Porter, New Haven Country club, for two years; Mrs. John P. Kellogg, Waterbury Country club, for three years. State team captain Miss M. J. Fawler, Waterbury Country club, and chairman of handicaps, Mrs. A. M. Collins, Hartford Country club.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

"Y" SWIMMERS DEFEATED BY WILLIMANTIC MERMEN

The Norwich "Y" swimming team went down to defeat under the hands of the speedy Willimantic "Yers" in the local Y. M. C. A. swimming pool last night, 38 1-2 to 33. The visitors had the advantage over the locals in seeming to have some better trained swimmers, although the locals worked hard to place their team in the lead. The events are as follows:

4 men relay, won by Norwich, Ruegg, Kundig, Geer, Fellows.

Diving, Cohen (W), Fellows (N), tied for first, Mocessian third.

100 yards, Oehrle 1.12.4 (W), Kundig (N), Mocessian (N).

40 yards on back, Cohen (W), 32.1, Kundig, Mocessian.

"Y" Emps Win Again.

The "Y" Emps won their fourth consecutive game by defeating the Taftville Speedboys, 25 to 20, in the Y gym last night. The Emps are developing a good passwork game, and their ability along this line enabled them to take the game. Gautier and Zeke Leffingwell were the chief basket shooters of the game.

Nuggets vs. Colts.

The Colts and the Nuggets clash tonight in the last game between these two teams in the Norwich Indoor Baseball league. The game tonight will have an important bearing on the race for second place in the league. Bush and Mulholland will work for the Colts while Murphy and Manchester will be the battery for the Nuggets.

Cornell Wins From Colgate.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Cornell university basketball team defeated Colgate here tonight, 24 to 11. Captain and Wedell, forwards of the Big Red team, featured for the winners, while Captain Wasserman of Colgate as the main star for Bill Reid's men.

Prince Regent Wins.

Havana, Jan. 1.—Prince Regent won the New Year's handicap, the feature event on the card at Oriental Park today. Topange was second and Whirlwind third. The race was an exciting one, Whirlwind having led the field until the home stretch was reached.

Army Beats McGill.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Army defeated McGill University of Montreal today at basketball, 40 to 14, outclassing the Canadians all the way. Army led at 20 to 4 at the end of the first half.

No Ice—No Game.

GIANTS START SPRING TRAINING ON MARCH 1

New York, Jan. 3.—Spring training for the New York Giants will get into full swing on March 1 at the National League champions' new camp, Sarasota, Fla., according to announcement of the club's plans today.

The main body of recruits and regulars has been ordered by Manager John McGraw to report at New York February 26, but a squad of battery men will go south probably a week earlier under the direction of Coach Cozy Dolan.

McGraw will leave for the south within a week to look over the training site and complete preparations for the team's stay.

Luque Gets Gold Medal.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 2.—The Havana Council today voted to present Adolfo Luque with a gold medal in appreciation of his work as the premier pitcher of the National league in 1923. Luque is a member of the Cincinnati team.

SPORT NOTES

Perry Hale, one of the greatest fullbacks ever turned out at Yale, has gone blind.

Pete Herman, king of the bantam gang only a little more than two years ago, is now totally blind. He is living at his old home in New Orleans.

One of the players named on Walter Camp's All-America team used to be a foundry boss, so he is probably strong enough to stand the embarrassment.

George Smyth of the Army made the longest run from scrimmage of the recently closed football season when he took the ball and dashed 95 yards for a touchdown against Lebanon Valley.

Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago, one of the greatest athletes that ever represented Yale, is 62 years old.

It is said that Judge Landis and Ban Johnson did not exchange holiday greetings, both of them preferring to exchange rights and lefts.

The annual Oxford vs Cambridge four-mile rowing race on the Thames, from Mortlake to Putney, will be decided April 5.

Efforts are being made to introduce rugby football in the Russian border countries of Latvia and Esthonia. The association or soccer style of play is already popular there.

The wife of Zbyszko charges him with cruelty. The suspicion exists that he compelled her to watch him wrestle.

Yale's football schedule for 1924 opens with North Carolina, Oct. 4, followed by Georgia, Oct. 11; Dartmouth, Oct. 18; Brown, Oct. 25; West Point, Nov. 1; Maryland, Nov. 8; Princeton, Nov. 15; Harvard, Nov. 22.

The 225,000 persons that saw the University of Michigan football team in action last fall didn't get in for nothing, and athletic officials are winding up their accountings of the receipts—nearly $200,000—that accrued to the school.

Few coaches at Harvard university can be classed as veterans. Robert Fisher has directed football five years; Edward Farrel has been connected with the track department seven years; Jack Flattery next spring will begin his fifth season as baseball coach. The other instructors are veterans and include: Edward Wachter, basketball and sculling; Harry Cowles, lawn tennis and squash racquets; Andre Danguy, fencing, and Wm. Pendergast, boxing.

Plans for the 100-mile-an-hour boat repose among the cherished files on the desk of Walter D. Beauvais at Milwaukee, Wis., and they are awaiting the expected British challenge for the America's cup.

Harvard football eleven has four captains of different sports. Hubbard is captain of the football squad. Crosby leads the hockey team, Merrill of the track team, and Jenkins, of the baseball varsity.

Washington & Jefferson's basketball prospects were dealt a hard blow last week. A bandit's bullet struck down Aaron K. Lyle, Jr., three-year star regarded as the most versatile player on the team.

Soccer enthusiasts will see the famous Corinthian amateur of London in motion next fall as the Englishmen are to appear in Philadelphia and Canadian cities. The Glasgow Celtics may also come over, now that the kicking style of football is gaining in popularity, especially in the east and New England.

Though Harold Johnson, manager of the Grennan Cakes baseball team, is playing professional basketball with the Morley & Maxwells, he will be eligible to play baseball in the Detroit Amateur Ball federation next year.

While the new football stadiums are wonderful if filled several times during the season, they become quite a burden if the eleven has a bad year and fails to draw. The new stadiums have caused each college possessing one to try to book at least three worth-while games at home. Good attractions are necessary to fill the stadiums.

Present and past billiard champions of England, Willie Smith and Melbourne Inman, have signed for a championship test. The titleholder conceding his opponent a 1,500-point start in a 16,000-point match. It is nearly 15 years since Inman, who was champion from 1912 to 1920, accepted a start, or handicap, from any player.

Repeating as baseball champions is coming common. Baltimore has for five years in succession won the international league race. The Yankees and Giants have dominated the American and National leagues three years in a row, the Yanks finally becoming world champions, while San Francisco has repeated last year's triumphs in the Pacific Coast competition.

FAILED TO DIAGNOSE HEBRON BOYS DIPHTHERIA

Hartford, Jan. 2.—C. E. Buck of Hebron testifyng before the extraordinary grand jury investigating the medical fraud in Connecticut gave evidence today tending to show that the diagnosis made by an eclectic physician into the case of his son Raymond failed to bring to light the presence of diphtheria, as a result of which the boy has lost the use of one leg.

According to statements made by Mr. Buck, outside the jury room, Raymond was taken ill last October and a Willimantic doctor was called upon to make an examination. Buck declared that the physician failed to recognize the real side of the case and treated the boy for quinsy sore throat, lancing the throat twice.

The boy's condition grew worse, Dr. W. L. Higgins, of Coventry was called and ordered Raymond to the isolation hospital in Hartford, where he was confined for three months. When he was discharged two weeks ago one leg was completely paralyzed according to the boy's father.

Shortly after the son was committed to the hospital the father and five other children were affected and the school which Raymond attended was closed for two weeks when seven cases of diphtheria developed and examination showed nine pupils to be carriers of the germs.

Other evidence before the grand jury is said to include a case under the care of a doctor a graduate of the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery) in which is is charged by several persons that an erroneous diagnosis was made when the presence of tubercular germs were evident. The names of the patients and doctor were not revealed but it was learned that the doctor's examination showed the case to be trivial and it was not until a specialist was called in that the man's condition was properly treated and the patient sent to a sanatorium.

A number of witnesses were called in today's investigation, among whom were Dr. Samuel J. Purcotte of Willimantic, said to be a 1921 graduate of the Kansas City college, who took over the practice of Dr. John Weldon; Dr. Frank E. Gavlas, of Bridgeport; Harry Chalmson, of Bridgeport and Hartford, recently appointed secretary of the Connecticut Eclectic medical examining board, and Dr. Daniel Slabotsky, of Derby.

Dr. Robert L. Rowley, a member of the sub-committee of the state medical society, who is said to have brought to the attention of Governor Templeton a year ago the conditions under which eclectic doctors were admitted to practice in this state, was requested to appear before the grand jury this morning and was admitted into the jury room this afternoon as one of the first witnesses.

The jury will sit again tomorrow and at the conclusion of the hearing will adjourn until next Tuesday.

BALTIC WANDERERS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM NORWICH Y. M. C. A. FIVE

In a fast and close game, especially in the second half, the Baltic Wanderers won from the Y. M. C. A. Seniors of Norwich, 35 to 29, on the Baltic gym court on Wednesday evening. The game was fast and at times a trifle rough, in fact so much so that a Baltic and Norwich player were disqualified. It was one of the best games seen on the Baltic surface in some time and the crowd was kept on its toes during the second half.

The game started off with Baltic immediately getting into action and caging three baskets in the first few minutes of play. The Norwich team was handicapped by the small playing space and it was not until the second half that they got started. The first half ended with the score at 20 to 10 in favor of the Wanderers. When the second half opened up the Norwich team started a whirlwind attack that put the score on nearly even terms but this was not for long and Baltic then stepped into the lead and were never in danger.

Finlayson was the leading scorer for the Norwich team while the honors for Baltic were divided between Ragner Swanson and Ridgeway. In the preliminary game the Central Village A. C. trimmed the Baltic Bantams easily by a score of 35 to 21. The summary follows:

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

New York, Jan. 3—Confused price movements took place in today's stock market, the first session of the new year, with losses and gains about evenly divided.

Broker reported heavy offerings from traders who had built up large paper profits in the last two months but deferred converting them into cash until after the turn of the year so that they would be subject to 1923 income tax laws. This selling was counteracted to some extent by the repurchase of stocks sold to establish income tax losses a month ago.

Speculators for the decline also sold certain stocks freely on the theory that the technical condition of the market warranted at least a temporary reaction. Pool operations were reported in a number of specialties, some of the outstanding strong spots in this group being American Chicle preferred which jumped 16 points and advance Rumely preferred, American Ice, Congoleum, Dupont, Jones Bros. Tea, United Drug and Woolworth, the gains ranging from 2 to 3 points.

There was a dearth of trade news during the day. Considerable interest was manifested, however, in the weekly steel trade reviews. Iron Age reports that activity in finished steel is more pronounced and that reports from principal centers agree that good mill operations are assured for the first quarter in practically all products with the exception of plates and bars, and prospects for the latter have improved.

Coppers, which have been lagging behind the rest of the list since the current up-swing started two months ago, were heavily bought on the improved trade prospects for 1924. American Smelting was pushed up 1 3-4 to 60 3-4 and net gains of a point or more also were recorded by Cerro de Pasco, Granby, Inspiration and Magma.

Davison Chemical was offered freely during the morning on reports that it was being discriminated against as brokerage loan collateral but it rallied from 63 1-2 to 68, closing slightly below the top for a net gain of 1 1-2 points. Weakness of Atlantic Gulf which sold as low as 13 3-8 as compared with a high of 17 1-4 on Monday was in direct reflection of the receivership proceedings against its subsidiary the Ward line. Other shippings were not affected. Maxwell Motors again jumped into the limelight, touching 53 1-2 or more than 3 points above Monday's final price. Buying of this issue was attributed to reports that 1923 earnings would total $15 a share and to speculative expectation of benefits likely to accrue from the new Chrysler Car.

Rails moved up slightly in the early dealings but fell back again before the close. Strength of some of the northwestern issues was ascribed to the repurchasing of stocks sold last month for income tax purposes.

Call money opened at 5 3-4 per cent, eased to 5 1-2 just after noon and rose to 6, where it closed. The time money market was quiet with business son a 5 per cent. basis. Commercial paper moves slowly at 4 3-4 and 5 per cent.

Weakness of sterling, which dropped 4 1-2 cents to $4.38 was attributed to selling of bills abroad based on the fear that the labor party would come into power and signalize its victory with a levy on capital. French francs broke 18 points to 4.- cents, a new low for all time. Other European rates yielded in sympathy

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 3—Secondary and speculative bonds were unusually active in today's bond market, the first of the New Year. Traders said much of this buying originated from investors who had sold freely during the last month of 1923 to get losses in the income tax return for that year.

There was also evidence of a good demand for the better grade investment issues, particularly railroad bonds. Local tractions bonds improved on announcement of agreement on transit plans by local and state authorities.

Trading in the industrial group was over a broad list with price movements slightly irregular. Some of the copper, rubber, steel, chemical and packing bonds recorded moderate improvement, while numerous miscellaneous industrial liens eased slightly public utility liens also were active but without definite price trend.

Conflicting influences were at work in both the foreign government and U. S. government issues. The latter moved within a narrow area and in relatively small volume. Some of the French issues moved forward briskly while other European bonds slumped slightly. The Mexican issues were bid up a point while the 5s of that country fell lower.

Only one issue of any consequence was announced for public subscription—a $18,000,000 issue of Gulf Oil Corporation due to 4 year 5 1-2 per cent. debentures.

CUBB MARKET

New York, Jan. 3—Stock prices with few exceptions, developed a reactionary tone in today's curb market. Heavy profit-taking in the oil shares by traders who did not want their profits to show in the 1923 income tax returns resulted in net losses ranging from small fractions to 3 1-2 points in that group. Standard Oil of Nebraska dropped 15 points and South Pennsylvania Oil 6, the turn-over in each case being small.

Standard Oil of Ohio improved slightly on higher crude prices in that territory and Prairie Oil and Gas jumped 4 points to 268, but Standard Oils of Kentucky and New York, Penn-Mex Fuel, Imperial of Canada and Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania dropped a point or more, selling of the last named being influenced by a bond issue.

A drop of nearly a point each in Dunhill International and Gold Dust Corporation were the outstanding developments in the industrial division. United States Distributing corporation improved moderately on stockholders' approval of the recapitalization plan.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan 2—Upturns in the prices of wheat today based partly on war like reports from the Balkans failed to hold. Weakness of foreign exchange had a bearish influence, as did an increase of the United State visible supply total, together with advices that snow was giving timely protection to the domestic winter crop. Closing quotations were unsettled at 3-8 a 1-2 cent. net lower to 1-8 cent. advance, May 107 1-8 and July 106 3-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 1-2 cent. down, oats 1-8 to 1-4 cent. off and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to 37 cents gain.

At first, the wheat market here showed a decided upward tendency in response to higher prices at Liverpool. Strength in the British market was ascribed to smallness of world shipments and to the wet harvest in Argentina, but also was associated here with news that Bulgaria was being threatened by military operations on the part of Jugo-Slavia and Greece. Bullish sentiment was further stimulated by reduced estimates of the acreage of domestic winter wheat and by small ness of primary receipts.

Slackening of demand for wheat became noticeable, however, after the United States visible supply figures were out, and although commission house purchasing of the July delivery continued to keep that month relatively firm. The market otherwise took on a downward course, with eastern interests and a Chicago elevator concern the chief sellers. Weakness of British and French exchange was regarded as an additional handicap on wheat export to Europe. Snow protection was generally held to be sufficient as against even subzero weather.

In corn as well as wheat, an increase of the visible supply acted as a weight on values, despite nearly complete absence of offerings of corn to arrive here. Oats went lower with corn.

ORDERS TO REVENUE COLLECTOR TO REMAIN AT POST OFFICE

George M. Charbonneau, deputy collector of internal revenue, has received from Hartford orders to retain his office in the lobby of the local postoffice building until further notice. Mr. Charbonneau said Wednesday that until he is otherwise notified he will be located in the lobby of the postoffice where he may be found by any persons desiring information regarding the income tax laws or assistance in preparing their returns.

Recently the officials of the local postoffice requested the treasury department to provide a new office location for the local collector outside the postoffice building. Several offers of office space for the collector have been made by local business men and the use of the county commissioners' office in the court house has been offered also. Mr. Charbonneau said Wednesday that in view of the instructions he has received from Hartford he cannot make a change in location until he receives official orders from the treasury department.

As there is some apprehension on the part of local business men that the request to move the collector to some other location outside the postoffice building may mean the loss of the office to Norwich through transfer to New London, officials of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce have taken the matter up with the treasury department at Washington in order to secure if possible an appropriation to be used for the purpose of providing a permanent revenue office on the second floor of the local postoffice building.

BRINGING STRANDED LIQUOR TO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 2.—The New London branch of the treasury department of the federal government is today dealing with another rum-running craft, the power boat Columbia, which went on the rocks at the south end of Fisher's Island, where the Thelma Phebe went ashore last spring. The Columbia is estimated to have had 480 cases of liquor aboard and most of it has been seized, for it was in the boat, had floated ashore and was recovered by the lifesaving crew at the island and by Customs inspector, Jeremiah Dillon who was hustled over to the island from New London, as soon as it was known that the Columbia was on the rocks. Three men aboard the boat were taken in custody by the inspector and on orders from New York today they were taken to Bridgeport. They are John and Andrew Jensen and John Savoresse, all of New Haven vicinity. They would not say where they got the liquor nor where the Columbia hailed from nor was there any hailing port lettered on the vessel, as required by law. When the Thelma went on the island she left a lot of liquor that was gathered in the flotsam and jetsam by the residents there, and it is presumed that the islanders got a considerable supply from the Columbia. At ruling prices the liquor is said to be worth $19 a bottle.

Paid $18,240 For Liquor.

New York, Jan. 2 (By the A. P.)—The prisoners arrested after the launch Columbia grounded at Fisher's island, with a cargo of liquor, said they were Andrew F. Jensen and his brother, John, of West Haven, Conn., and John Savoresse, of 134 Cove street, New Haven.

Their boat was the fifty-foot cabin cruiser Columbia, of New London, and was said to have got a cargo of 480 cases from the Marion Mason, a British schooner, lying about 20 miles off Montauk Point.

After paying $18,240 for the liquor the men headed the Columbia for New London. It was snowing. At first all went well. Then they ran into a thick fog. Traveling at full speed, the craft ran broadside on the rocks.

Owing to the high surf, the crew were forced to abandon their vessel after two hours' exposure. They swam a quarter of a mile to shore and, trudging about twelve miles through the storm, arrived at the lighthouse, where they were given dry clothing and warm food.

Captain Pickham in charge of the lighthouse, meanwhile had become suspicious of the men's story that they were just "gunning for duck." A short time later a coast guard patrol reported he had visited the wrecked craft and found 480 cases of whiskey in her. The guard notified customs officials in Connecticut who sent Deputy Collector Dillon to bring the prisoners to New York.

Consigned to New Haven People.

New Haven, Jan. 2.—The rum cargo on the launch Columbia, seized at Fisher's Island, N. Y., after the craft had grounded, was consigned to parties in this vicinity, it was said this afternoon on the shore front, where a lookout had been maintained several days for the launch. The liquor was expected to be here for New Year's day.

Inquiry at the home of members of the crew indicated that no word had been received either as to the craft or the arrest of the men.

NORWICH GRANGE TO HAVE RADIO NIGHT

At the last meeting of Norwich Grange, No. 172, P. of H., besides the usual programme of Christmas readings and music an auction of ladies' shoes was held. Each pair of shoes was accompanied by a lady and a box of lunch. The worthy lecturer, Ida E. Richardson, announced that the next meeting will be a Radio night.

The annual meeting of the state grange will be held in Hartford January 8th, 9th and 10th. Tuesday, January 8th the sixth degree will be conferred. All patrons desiring to take this degree must have their local dues for 1924 paid up.

TOWN SCHOOLS REOPEN AFTER CHRISTMAS RECESS

The town schools reopened Wednesday. The first educational meeting of the New Year will be that held by the primary council Tuesday, January 8, at 5.30 p. m., at Broadway school. The council has engaged Miss Anna M. Fuda of Meriden who will give a talk on Busy Work.

An interesting display of busy work for the primary grades will be shown by the members of the council.

FATHER McGANN'S CHURCH BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED

Friends of Rev. Christopher T. McCann, a former pastor of Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, will read with interest the following from a Manchester, Conn., paper:

Nowhere in town, or even in the whole diocese of Hartford, could anything be found to equal the Christmas decorations at St. Bridget's church, under the direction of Rev. C. T. McCann more than 200 yards of laurel roping was artistically festooned all over the church. The auditory lends itself particularly well to the decorative scheme employed this year, which is really the most elaborate ever attempted in the church.

Myriads of red, green and clear glass lamps are used throughout the festoons. They also circle and illuminate the largest wreaths. The decorations at the altar are very lovely; four large gold-plated vases filled with Easter lilies are placed here, and a number of other vases containing roses of different colors. Artificial poinsettia flowers and laurel leaves are also used. Tall cedar trees are placed in the background and small evergreen trees are used throughout the church. At the early Christmas morning and other services the decorations were the admiration of all the parishioners. At one side of the altar, with its particular appeal to the children, is the crib formed of birch trees and straw, with a hand-painted scene in the background. The beautiful French art figures representing Mary, Joseph and the babe, as well as the Wise Men with their gifts, and the shepherds, are the finest that art can produce, and the whole picture leaves its indelible impress on the youthful mind.

NORWICH TOWN

At the annual meeting of the First Congregational church, held New Year's afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in the church auditorium the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey presided and opened the meeting with prayer. The various reports concerning the activities of the church during the year just closed, were submitted by the following: Clerk, Herbert L. Yerrington; treasurer, Henry T. Frazier; church improvement society, Mrs. Henry T. Frazier; Sunday school, Frank E. Sterry, secretary and treasurer; Home Department, Miss J. G. Bonney, superintendent; Young Peoples' Christian Endeavor society, Burton Jopson, recording secretary, Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society, Miss Jennie M. Case, secretary and treasurer, read by Miss Louise Hyde; Home Missionary society, Mrs. Sarah Chapin, secretary and treasurer; Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters, Miss J. G. Bonney secretary; Cradle Roll, Miss Marion L. Bailey, leader; report of Standing Committee; and the following organized classes: True Blue, Miss Florence A. Sterry, secretary, read by Miss Doris Browning; W. I. T.'s Theodore Sterry, secretary, read by Miss Jessie E. Hyde, leader; Men's Forum, George F. Hyde secretary, read by T. H. Bachelers; Drop-in, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, secretary.

The following were the recommendations of the standing committee: That Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin and Miss Rose K. Durr, be nominated as members of this committee; that H. L. Yerrington be renominated to succeed himself as clerk; that Henry T. Frazier be re-nominated for treasurer and accountant; that Miss Bernice Underwood be nominated as a member of the missionary and finance committee; that the title "missionary committee" be changed to missionary and finance committee; that the old board of the reception and welcoming committee be reappointed to serve another year; that the following named persons be nominated for a board of ushers for the ensuing year: George F. Hyde, director; Philip Whaley, Ralph Marsh, Arthur Avery, Kenneth Skinner, and Misses Ida Beebe, Marjory Merry, Dorothea Buckley and Ethel Whaley. That, in view of the existence of the Annie L. Hyde fund, the income of which is to care for the needy of the church, the communion offerings be used for special objects of benevolence which may be presented by the standing committee. All of the above recommendations were adopted for the coming year.

Arthur Avery and Miss Bernice Underwood were the appointed delegates to the New London Association of Congregational churches for 1924. Following are the reports submitted: Church Improvement society, has a good balance in the treasury January 1st, 1924. The Home Department of the First Congregational Sunday school has a membership of 72, three having left during 1923. Calls have been made and quarterlies distributed. During the past year the True Blues held one business meeting with election of officers. Because of the absence of members who were out of town or otherwise engaged, meetings were discontinued. One class of girls in the Sunday school being without a teacher, its members will be included in Miss Rose K. Durr's class. It was a unanimous vote of the class to again arouse interest of the True Blues and hold meetings in 1924, one evening a month, the work to be decided upon in the future. The annual meeting of the W. I. T.'s, with election of officers was held in February. This also was a birthday celebration for two members. At the regular meeting in July, two members were admitted. At this meeting members listened to Indian Legends and other stories told by friends from Rochester, and a gift was presented to a newly married member and his wife. In August, the class enjoyed a picnic at the home of a member, Raymond Smith, of Mystic, all such gatherings helping to keep up, the class spirit. Memorial Day, a new flag was placed in the standard at the memorial tree which was planted for a lost member. During the Sunday school hour, this class of young men hold discussions on important subjects. Sunday, December 30th, one member united with the church.

The Men's Forum has met almost every Sunday noon in the church. There have been many interesting discussions in the class. Several times women visitors have shared the lesson. The membership is twelve. Some of the members never miss a Sunday. Of the money received quarterlies have been purchased, a liberal amount sent to the Connecticut Federation of Churches, also the sum of $10 given toward repairs on the church property, leaving a good balance in the treasury. The Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary Society has held the usual number of meetings, with about the usual attendance. During the year two of the number have been taken by death, Mrs. Sherman Beebe and Miss Mary E. Wattles. They were loyal and faithful members and will be very much missed. Collections during the year, including the Lenten offering, Thank offering and from the mite boxes, etc, amounted to $55.11.

The Drop-in class has had a prosperous year, meeting every Sunday except for a period during the summer. A new book for study, The Truth about the Bible, which covers a year of study was adopted. Miss Helen Lathrop aided the class by giving a lecture entitled, Trip Through Normandy, the proceeds of which $35 was given toward the expense of the gas heaters in the church parlors. A rummage sale, also food sale held during October brought $100 which was given toward the Church Repair fund. Twelve dollars was contributed to give Christmas cheer to the poor. Flowers at different times have been sent to the sick, all being much appreciated. One Sunday, beautiful chrysanthemums decorated the church in memory of two who have passed away, Mrs. Walter Brown and Miss Alice Woodmansee. The flowers were given to the members of the Johnson Home.

The Home Missionary society has met its apportionment and $326 has been sent to the treasury of the state union. This money was raised by suppers and sales, by a collection at the Thank offering meeting and from the Sunshine bags, given out to be filled during the summer. In January, a box was sent to the Chandler Normal school, Lexington, Ky., this to be the last, upon advice of the A. M. A.

A talk in February from Miss Goodnow, of the Grenfell Mission moved members to collect and pack a box full of clothing, books and toys to go with her to Newfoundland the next season.

Miss Ruth Beebe has been put on the list of teachers supported by this district and members have transferred to her work the interest so long given to that of Mr. Werkins. A box of materials for sewing classes and of Christmas gifts was sent to Athens in November, and the members expect to pack soon a box of clothing, books and magazines. This society has a balance of over $100 in the treasury.

Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters now numbers 23 members. During 1923, twenty one meetings have been held. Easter cards were sent to shut-ins. Twenty May baskets gave pleasure. Sewing for a Polish family and for the Near East occupied several evenings. A fair and food sale held October 19, brought over $80 into the treasury. At Christmas the children at Crescent Beach sanatorium were remembered.

At the Alms house services were held by the circle Palm Sunday, June 24 and December 23. This circle formed the plan of holding services one Sunday of every month at the Alms House, and secures leaders from different circles or churches. A special effort was made to provide Christmas cheer for all the inmates. The work in the Ever Ready circle is a happy service during the year.

There are 45 children belonging to the circle now. In May the cradle roll party was held in the parsonage, when there were about sixty mothers and children present. Games were enjoyed and the mite boxes were opened. These boxes yielded $12 which was sent to the Eastern Connecticut branch for children's work in Foreign Lands.

The Methodist Episcopal parish is to unite with the First Congregational parish this (Thursday) evening, in a prayer service, when Rev. Mr. Aldrich will be the speaker, Friday evening, the Congregational parish will unite for a prayer service with the Methodist parish, with Rev. Gordon F. Bailey speaker.

At Scotland Road Mail, Sunday afternoon Thomas M. Bachelor spoke from Micah 6-8, "He hath shewed thee, O! man what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and love, mercy and walk humbly with thy God." He said in the scripture we are shown the way, then we are to do—or put in practice. What we know is our duty. We are to deal always justly, tempered with mercy. Sometimes the interests of society require us to allow a wrong does even ourselves to be punished, when if we allowed our kind feelings, our mercy to sway us, the offender would not be punished. Justice to ourselves, to others, requires that they should be published as an example may be, for others.

Walking with God as our company one will have eventually, in some slight degree, some of the attributes of the Almighty. But we must remember to walk humbly, as learners, not thinking ourselves any better than others, because we walked once with God. We must continually walk, and always as humble learners follow the teachings of our companion.

Scotland Road Mail Society voted to hold no more meetings this spring, about April first.

RAYMOND GAGE SPEAKER AT FAITH TRUMBULL MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wallace S. Allis of 895 Broadway, many members attending. Mrs. George A. Ashley, regent, was in charge of the meeting which opened with the singing of America, the repeating of the Lord's prayer and the salute to the flag.

The reports of the officers and committees were read and accepted. Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, for the magazine committee, reported that a prize is offered this year by the national society to the chapter securing the greatest number of subscriptions to the Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine, in proportion to membership. Faith Trumbull Chapter ranks second among all the chapters of the county in the number of subscriptions secured since July 1st, not based on the percentage of members.

Another interesting item was the acceptance of the recommendation of the board that the chapter give $100 to the Memorial Fund. At the close of the business session, Mrs. Wilbur Ailing took charge of a program consisting talk on the history of the Constitution of our Americans, and at the close of the talk answered questions regarding the history of national periods.

Mrs. William Clayton Bowers, assisted by the committee in charge, entertained in a charming manner with reminiscences of the first regular meeting held in the first home of the chapter, the home of Mrs. Lucy Huntington Perkins, which was opened by the chapter 25 years ago. Two little daughters, Miss Annie M. Perkins accompanied Mrs. Bowers. A social hour followed, tea and sandwiches being served. The hostesses were Mrs. Wallace S. Allis, Mrs. Channing Huntington, Mrs. James L. Case, Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen, Mrs. George A. Ashley, Mrs. George W. Carroll, Mrs. William H. Allen and Mrs. William Tyler Browne. Mrs. B. F. Bishop and Mrs. Channing Huntington poured.

JOHNSON BOMBARDS OWN PARTY IN QUEST FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

Bitterly Attacks Republican National Committee For Increasing Southern Representation to the National Convention—Condemns Action of Ohio State Central Committee in Endorsing President Coolidge For the Republican Nomination—Calls For Scrutiny of the Mellon Tax Reduction Plan, Unqualifiedly Favoring the Soldiers' Bonus—Scathingly Arraigns Those Who Would Have This Country Join the World Court—Flouts Administration's Foreign Policy.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 3—(By the A. P.)—A bitter attack on the republican national committee for its action in increasing southern delegate representation to the national convention, a big gun bombardment against the administration fore supplying arms and ammunition to the Obregon forces in Mexico and a thrown gauntlet to the Ohio republican state central committee which indorsed President Coolidge for the republican nomination, marked the opening address of Senator Hiram Johnson, of California in his campaign for the presidential nomination here tonight.

Senator Johnson also made a frontal attack on the foreign policy of the administration, reiterated his Chicago speech insofar as it referred to his unqualifiedly favoring a soldiers' bonus, cautioned the people to look carefully into the Mellon taxation plan, although advocating in reduction in taxes in no uncertain terms, advocated help for the farmers by the lowering of freight rates and cooperative societies and finished with a scathing arraignment of those who would have the country join the world court.

"I have recently observed that certain people, including the distinguished Detroit manufacturer, have deplored that we should have an election this year," said Senator Johnson, "and perhaps at all; and many politicians denounce me because I have interfered with the serenity of the occasion and have not permitted their plans for a nomination by default to be consummated. I shall not concede that collectors of revenue, United States marshals, postmasters and other office holders may themselves alone nominate candidates for the presidency.

"The leaders upon the other side have demonstrated by their recent actions their contempt for the men and women who in reality constitute the republican party. Our opponents do not believe in direct primaries and direct legislation. I insist that the republicans in Ohio shall have an equal right in determining the nominee for President with the republicans in South Carolina. Obviously our opponents do not so believe.

"Just as pollution at the source of the stream will pollute the whole stream, wrong and injustice in the selection of delegates to a national convention will permeate and taint the very convention itself."

Senator Johnson then reviewed the action of the 1920 republican convention in reducing the southern delegation and said it was "a step in the right direction" as it is a basis for further reductions. He then told of the recent action of the national committee in Washington "under the order of our opponents" in again giving them the original representation and termed it "scandalous and unfair representation."

"I speak of this outrageously unfair selection of delegates because there is real service we can render," said the senator. "Nine southern states, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia polled 489,000 votes for President Harding. These nine states have 134 delegates. Ohio polled 1,182,000 votes for President Harding and Ohio has 51 delegates to the convention.

"There is not the remotest possibility of a single republican elector being chosen in any one of these nine southern states, and yet the republican national committee recently deliberately increased the representation, contemptuously repudiated the mandate of the national convention of 1920 and broke faith with the rank and file of the republican party all over the land. These southern delegates are selected by commands issued in the city of Washington to a very few federal office holders in the different states. The action of the national committee is a reversion to the abhorrent conditions from which we thought we had emerged. It is this system upon which we war."

Senator Johnson stated that he had complied with the law of Alabama and expected his name to go on the ballot but that his opponents were trying to defeat the intent of the law by preventing the primary from taking place. He stated it took two supreme court decisions to put his name on the ballot in South Dakota. He then threw down the gauntlet to the Ohio republican state central committee by telling them that no committee, "no matter how influential or how rich" could dictate to the people of Ohio as to who should represent that state at the republican national convention. The state committee recently endorsed President Coolidge. Reverting to the Mexican situation, Senator Johnson stated that he "United States is furnishing arms and munitions to Obregon in Mexico to fight revolution there."

"It is done as stated by the secretary of state, to maintain stability and order and constitutional procedure in the neighboring republic," said Senator Johnson. "Our policy is near the United States grows upon revolutions. The merits of the contest raging in Mexico I don't know, and they are immaterial in this discussion. But whatever the merits of the revolt, I have no hesitation in saying our action is immoral if not illegal. What an anomalous and paradoxical position is ours today, we, who were born in revolution. The United States government finally says to the people inhabitating this continent, if you dare fight for what you seem to be right, if you raise your hand against oppression and wrong, the most powerful nation of the world will come to the aid of those who think your oppressors and will maintain existing power."

The senator compared this attitude with that of Metternich, of Austria, and the holy alliance. "Today we follow the Metternich policy of over a century ago and free American announces the doctrine that revolution will be put down with our arms," he said.

"Today this country allies itself with war in Mexico," continued the senator. "Where are the leagues to enforce peace today?"

Attacks Foreign Policy.

The California senator then opened up his guns on the administration's foreign policy. "It may be that we do not know our foreign policy because we have none, but even the fact that we have none, the American people have the right to know," said the senator. He said that the recent message of the president said "We attend to our own affairs" but in deeds we attend not only to the affairs of our neighboring land, but to the nations of Europe. He said the message held out a welcoming hand to Russia, but through the secretary of state, the administration turns its back on Russia.

"A foreign policy," said the senator, that says the league of nations is a closed incident and then attempts to take us into a part of that league constitutes a record of foreign policy which needs the obscuring screen of a tax reduction scheme."

Taxes and Bonus.

The senator then went into the taxation problem. "There can be no political issue on reduction of taxes," he said. "Everybody would reduce the expenditures of government to the least possible sum and collect from the people only that sum. No one believes in high taxation."

He then said that there was a surplus of $350,000,000 on hand and that we should reduce just as much as possible.

"We have never in this country had anything like the propaganda we now have in behalf of the so-called Mellon plan," said the senator. "It was propaganda most carefully prepared and stimulated. Under the Mellon plan the men who pay on $250,000 will save $49,000 a year; he who pays on $300,000 will save $63,000; those who have incomes of $500,000 will save $117,000; the fortunate one who has an income of a million and the few who pay on $5,000,000 will save $1,330,000.

"Who is it that is indulging in this propaganda? Do you imagine it is the man who by a reduction will save $10 or $30 or $50 or $100, or do you think it is the individual who will save in the thousands?

"I would not have you misunderstand me at all. I would reduce the taxes of the people whenever it is possible to do so, and keep faith at the same time. I would be scrupulously just to men of large incomes and of big business, but I recognize that men of great riches and big business have a happy faculty of looking out for themselves. Those of small incomes and small business must rely upon their representatives."

In speaking on the bonus, Senator Johnson said that with few exceptions the bonus had been promised by the leaders of the republican party and cited various times when the promise had been made.

"The matter comes first as one of good faith and one of keeping a definite pledge," said the senator. "We adopted the principle of adjusted compensation for the railroads and for the mining interests, business would now deny the same principle to the man who bared his body to shot and shell across the sea. And remember this adjusted compensation bill can be passed and the sums due under it paid by the government and taxes reduced, too."

Help for the farmers, particularly the wheat farmers was advocated by the senator who said that this could be effected by a reduction in freight rates and the forming of cooperative societies.

Assails World Court Project.

In concluding, Senator Johnson brought forth his heaviest guns on those who advocate the world court. "We cannot enter this creature of the league without ultimately being entangled with the league itself," he said. "It is not a world court we are asked to enter; it is the league of nations court. It is a mistake to call it a court, and a misnomer to call it a court at all.

"The peace of the world cannot be, in the slightest degree affected by it, except so far as the nations themselves agree. It is a terrible thing to tell our people that entry into this court will bring peace to a war torn world.

"There is just one reason for our entry into the league court and this is our entry will final take us into the league. The country never has and never will be isolated from the rest of the world. In business, in finance, socially and commercially, we are not isolated from Europe. There is just one sort of isolation which has been ours and upon which we now insist. It is the isolation from the quarrels, controversies, the selfishness, the intrigues and the wars of Europe. No other isolation was ever though of and none could ever occur."

LOCATE POSITION WHERE DIXMUDE WAS DESTROYED

Marseilles, Jan. 3—(By the A. P.)—A wireless message has been intercepted reporting that searchers, by means of a captive balloon sent from Toulon have located the position of the French dirigible Dixmude, which met destruction, with presumably all hands aboard, the latter part of December. The wreck according to this message, lies in about twenty or thirty fathoms, within a circle of half a mile radius, whose center is three miles south of Cape San Marco, Sicily.

A Bizerta despatch reports the finding of two bodies off the coast believe dto be victims of the Dixmude disaster.

Two Score Missing After an Explosion

At the Plant of the Corn Products Company at Pekin, Ill.

Pekin, Ill., Jan. 3 (By the A. P.)—Upward of two score of workers, possible victims of an explosion and fire which early today destroyed two buildings of the Corn Products company plant here still were missing tonight. Today the employment office issued a statement listing between 34 and 40 persons as dead or missing, 25 injured in hospitals, 11 probably fatally hurt, and 14 injured removed to their homes.

Superintendent H. B. Lawton tonight issued an official statement to the effect that he could not tell how many were killed as some workmen may have left the plant without "checking out."

The explosion, caused probably by dust, rocked the countryside. Tonight the fire which followed still was burning. Firemen from Pekin and Peoria kept the flames in check but their efforts added to the difficulty of relief workers by covering debris with a heavy coating of ice. A second shift of wreckers had accomplished nothing at nightfall except to clear away some of the debris.

Wives and families of the victims did not congregate at the plant but kept coming and going in a steady procession, inquiring with quivering lips for word of their loved ones.

Word went out this afternoon that if it were possible that the missing had survived the explosion and fire, their lives would by that time have been ended by the cold.

Nearly all the dead, missing and injured are Americans, residents of this little town, whose 13,000 people were torn with similar grief in 1917 when the river steamer Columbia bore 86 Pekin excursionists to a grave in the Illinois river.

State and federal investigations of the explosion were in sight tonight. George M. Moffett, of New York city, vice president and general manager of the Corn Products company, directed Superintendent H. B. Lawton to spare no costs in rescue work and invited J. W. Peirce at Washington, D. C., superintendent of a division which investigates explosions, to conduct a full examination.

There was no official who would venture a guess as to the possible cause of the explosion. It was admitted, however, that a spark sufficient to cause the crash might have come from friction, or from defective electric wiring, or from a lighted match or cigarette.

How the spark was set will always remain a mystery, Superintendent Lawton said he believed. Workmen never brought tobacco or matches to work, and formerly were searched to assure no matches were carried. Later, however, it was said that an appeal was made to the honor and self-interest of the workers which proved more effective.

There were one million pounds of starch in the buildings destroyed, which Chief Chemist R. F. Sherman said contained twelve per cent. moisture. How starch of this moisture content could have produced explosive dust sufficient to cause the extreme damage done the plant, was a thing, he said, that he could not explain.

As darkness closed about the workers, a frain wrecker was still pulling cautiously at the wreckage of five box cars, in which time loaders went to their death, screaming prayers for help. Full force of the derrick was not exerted for fear the pull would bring down upon the score of wreckers the remaining walls of the ruins.

From before daylight until after dark, a Salvation Army lassie worked among the relief crew, climbing over ice-covered debris, carrying a steaming pot of coffee in one hand and a basket of hot doughnuts in the other. She was the wife of Captain Tiernan, of the Pekin corps, who, with her husband, was on the ground first among the outsiders who brought first aid.

The explosion occurred when only about 75 men were at work. Of these 28 are known to have escaped. The larger plant, employing several hundred men, had closed for the night.

The blast occurred in building No 33, the starch powder house, demolishing it and five box cars on a nearby siding. Fire, which spread rapidly, then consumed building No. 27, the starch house. Other structures within a block were damaged.

Relief work began immediately and the injured were removed to hospitals in Pekin and Peoria, while the Peoria fire department joined the local fighters in attacking the flames. The bodies of between 25 and 30 men could be seen in the ruins but the heat prevented attempts to reach them. Of those rescued, one died in a hospital tonight.

The wrecked box cars received the especial attention of the rescuers. For some time after the explosion the imprisoned men shouted for help but this afternoon all became quiet. Two of the cars were reached late today and the bodies of nine men recovered.

WESTBOUND TRAIN WAS DERAILED IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Jan. 3.—A thorough investigation into the disablement of train No. 29, bound fro mBoston to New York, here early today, resulting in the injury of two mail clerks, will be made tomorrow by E. Irvin Rudd, chief engineer of the public utilities commission. An inquiry into the matter by company officials is also being conducted.

Railroad authorities here lay the cause of the accident to a broken brake beam on the fifth car of an eleven car mail train. The beam, it is clamied, engaged a guard rail near the Bridgeport depot and tore through the flooring of the sixth mail car.

Walter Gray, of 57 Arlington street, Hyde Park, Mass., and Martin Mott, of Watertown, N. Y., were those injured. Both received treatment and were returned to their homes.

DINES AND NORMAND IN THE SAME HOSPITAL

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 3—Courtland S. Dines, Denver oil operator, who was shot New Year's night by Horace Greer, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, film actress, and Miss Normand herself both are in the same hospital tonight.

Miss Normand, who went to the Good Samaritan hospital last night in which her physicians called a highly nervous state, today went under the knife for a chronic case of appendicitis. Her physicians say she is resting easily.

Dines, with a bullet-punctured lung and a touch of pneumonia in the injured organ, is doing as well as could be expected, according to his doctors, but still is in a nervous condition.

Monster Wave Swept Nine Men to Death

Were on Powerboat Bent on Rescue Work in Great South Bay, Long Island.

Babylon, N. Y., Jan. 3.—A monster wave swept nine men from the deck of the powerboat Sid into Great South Bay tonight after the craft had gone to the rescue of three men in a speedboat that had grounded in a storm in Fire Island inlet.

The drowned men, with but two exceptions, were members of the rescue party that had gone out to search for the speedboat Electra, owned by C. C. Eccleston of Bay Shore. The other two were with Eccleston in the Electra.

First word of impending tragedy was received when Mrs. Eccleston notified police that her husband had not returned from a trip in his boat. Immediately it was decided to organize a searching party and the Sid, a forty foot power sloop, was chosen to brave the raging sea.

The sloop headed into the teeth of the gale and succeeded late in the afternoon in sighting the Electra on Fire Island bar where she was being pounded savagely by the surf. The men aboard were exhausted and lay unconscious on the deck, with the seas constantly breaking over them.

By skillful seamanship the Sid was run in close to the bar without grounding and Eccleston and his companions, John Virginier and a man named Williams were hoisted safely onto the Sid. The rescue boat then started into the inlet to head back for Babylon.

Caught in the troubled inlet waters the Sid was pitching at eccentric angles and always in danger. At last the rudder parted and the vessel began to drift, helplessly. The propeller was carried away by another wave which virtually lifted the vessel out of the water.

While the ship floundered the men huddled in the cockpit. Then a mountainous wave crashed down on the cockpit and tossed nine of the crew into the water. They were believed to have been drowned immediately, for no human being could live in those seas, old boatmen declared tonight.

In the meantime other rescue parties had started out in search of the Electra, and one after another was forced back by the gale.

Finally Captain Charles Murdock of Bayshore set out with a crew of two in his thirty-foot power boat. They passed the Electra as she still dashed against the rocks and were about to return, giving up hope.

Suddenly they saw the Sid as she floundered in the waves, and, despite the heavy swells, managed to bring the craft alongside. Seeing it was useless to try to bring them aboard his own craft Captain Murdock threw a line to those who remained on board and towed them back to Bay Shore.

Later it was reported that a fishing smack also had gone ashore and that two of her crew of four had been rescued by the Sid.

The other two members, according to this report which was unconfirmed, were accounted for but it was thought possible that they had been picked up by some other boat.

FLOODS CREATE SERIOUS SITUATION IN PARIS

Paris, Jan. 3—(By the A. P.)—The savages of the Seine flood are becoming more tragic in the suburbs, though the city officials remain optimistic as concerns Paris.

The most serious situation is at Alfortville, just east of Paris, where the swollen river Marne is carrying away embankments and flowing so swiftly through the streets adjacent to the river that the residents are unable to get away without the help of boats. This evening means to succor these floodbound people were insufficient, and calls for help were heard from many houses.

The authorities are using every effort to aid the marooned people, but many will have to spend the night in houses where the ground floors are awash. All endeavors to keep the basements in some of this important public buildings in the center of the city have been abandoned. There were several feet of water in the basement of the foreign office today, and an even higher level in the invalides station.

Workmen are busy all day constructing walls around the public edifices to guard against the invasion of water through the sewers. Thus far the subway lines have not been interrupted, but water began seeping into the north and south line on the left bank this morning.

The chamber of deputies and the foreign office, which are particularly exposed, may be closed if the waters continue to rise. Officials of the Louvre Museum are taking steps to remove all works of art in the basement and lower floor, though the danger there is not regarded as imminent.

Families flooded out of their homes are being sheltered in the bastions of the fortifications. Many, however, refused to leave, though the ground floors have been completely inundated, and boat crews have been mobilized to keep them in bread and other necessaries, fully a thousand families have already vacated their premises.

M. Lebouco, deputy from Paris, has given notice to the minister of public works that he will interpellate him, on the reconvening of the chamber, on why the projects elaborated in 1910 to protect Paris from floods have not been carried out. Andre Berthon, communist deputy, also announces that he will demand that the responsibility for neglect shall be fixed.

RETIRES AFTER 53 YEARS WITH NEW HAVEN ROAD

Bridgeport, Jan. 2.—After 53 years of service with the "New Haven" railroad, 44 years of which were spent as an engineer, Frank Hubbell, of 251 Myrtle avenue, this city, retired today with a record of having piloted passenger trains over 1,500,000 miles without a single mishap or accident. Mr. Hubbell, who will be 71 next month, made his last run from Winsted to Bridgeport this noon. He first entered the employ of the road in 1870, and in the last 44 years has averaged 750 miles a week on his locomotive. Although having the Winsted-Bridgeport run as a regular thing, Hubbell has traveled over every mile of the system and on every important locomotive.

FORMER PREMIER VENIZELOS HAS ARRIVED IN ATHENS

Athens, Jan. 4 (By the A. P.)—Former Premier Venizelos arrived in Athens at 4.15 o'clock this morning.

OPPOSITION TO THE SALE OF ARMY EQUIPMENT TO MEXICO

Two Resolutions Introduced in the House by Representative Fairchild to Block the Project—Mr. Fairchild Had Previously Conferred With Secretary Hughes—Congress Transacted But a Few Routine Details and Adjourned Until Monday—Two Ballots Found the Senate Still Deadlocked.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Congressional opposition to the sale of American surplus army equipment to the Mexican government crystalized today in the introduction in the house of two resolutions by Representative Fairchild, republican, New York, intended to block completion of the project if possible. The first resolution called upon the state department for full information as to negotiations for the sale to Mexico; the second would prohibit government sales of arms to any foreign government.

Representative Fairchild acted after a conference with Secretary Hughes earlier in the day. Neither the secretary nor Mr. Fairchild had anything to say for publication as to their talk, but it is understood they exchanged views as to the advisability of the arms sales to Mexico as a matter of policy and expediency without influencing their respective positions.

During the day both Secretary Hughes and Secretary Weeks conferred with President Coolidge at different times and later Ramon Ross, who was one of the Mexican commissioners in the recent Mexico City conversations which led to diplomatic recognition of the Obregon government by the United States, called at the White House, accompanied by Manuel Tellez, Mexican charge. It was learned authoritatively that the visit of the two Mexican officials had been arranged by Secretary Hughes in order to permit Mr. Ross to carry out instructions from President Obregon and pay respects to President Coolidge in the name of the Mexican chief executive. So far as could be learned the visit of the Mexican officials had no connection of any direct nature with the arms sale.

Frank expression was given at the state department to administration disapproval of the sale of arms from any American source to the Mexican revolutionists. While no embargo existed to prevent exportation of arms from this country to Mexico, it was said that the Washington government strongly disapproved sales to the revolutionists and that such sales would be made by Americans "at their own risk." So far, the state department has not been advised officially that arms have been shipped from the United States to the ports controlled by the Mexican revolutionists.

ONLY ROUTINE DETAILS TRANSACTED BY CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 3—Congress returned today from its holiday recess, listened to several hours of pent-up oratory, transacted a few routine details, and then adjourned until Monday, next week, with committees at work both the senate and house are scheduled to get finally into a stride which will carry them up to adjournment, planned for before the national political conventions next summer.

Work on administrative features of the Mellon tax reduction bill was resumed by the house ways and means committee, which hopes to bring forth legislation in ten days or two weeks. The first appropriation bill of the session, that for the interior department, is to be presented to the house next Tuesday and be followed by the army and navy budgets.

The senate today made another ineffectual effort to elect a chairman of the interstate commerce committee two more ballots, the 26th and 27th of the long drawn out contest between the regular and insurgent republicans, and the democrats, being taken without breaking the deadlock. The voting stood approximately as before Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa receiving 28 and 29 respectively, for reelection; Senator Smith, democrat South Carolina, receiving 21 on both ballots, and Senator Couzens, republicans, Michigan, eleven.

Nine insurgent republicans and the two farmer-labor senators voted for Senator Couzens, their strength being increased by Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, who has been ill and returned to the senate today for the first time this session.

A solution of the contest is looked for next week, however, discussions today centering upon plans to shelve the fight on the senate floor and leave to the committee itself, temporarily at least, the selection of a chairman or a temporary presiding officer.

In considering matters of routine business, the senate during the day formally provided for investigation by the privileges and elections committee of the election of Senator Mayfield, democrat, Texas, charged with excessive expenditures and other irregularities. A sub-committee will meet next Tuesday to map out procedure.

Inquiry into plans of the American Bar association to use a British vessel for transportation of members on a pilgrimage to London next summer was ordered by the senate, which also asked for information as to the facilities the board had offered the delegation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for its trip last year to Rome made in a foreign vessel.

During a day largely given to oratory at both ends of the capitol the senate listened to an address by Senator Shephard, democrat, Texas, eulogizing former President Wilson for his part in ending the world war and his fight for the league of nations, while the house heard several beginning with a speech of Representative Upshaw, democrat, Georgia on prohibition in which he proposed punishment for members of congress and other government officials who may violate the dry law. He also denounced alleged leaks of embassy liquor to bootleggers and afterward Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, introduced a number of resolutions designed to tighten enforcement.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Congress convened after the holiday recess and adjourned until Monday.

Lower anthracite price were demanded in an address by Representative Treadway, republican, Massachusetts.

Consideration of the administration tax bill was resumed by the house ways and means committee.

Louis Marshall, of New York, attacked proposed further immigration restrictions before the house immigration committee.

Another failure marked the senate's efforts to elect a chairman of the interstate commerce committee.

Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner for the Philippines advocated Philippine independence in an address in the house.

Representatives Upshaw, Georgia, and Blanton, Texas, democrats, introduced resolution to stop liquor drinking in official life.

A resolution authorizing investigation of the election of Senator Mayfield, democrat, Texas was adopted by the senate.

President Coolidge called the shipping board and others to the White House for a conference on the merchant marine problem.

The shipping board was asked by the senate what efforts had been made to forestall decisions of American organizations to travel on foreign ships.

Additional avidence was made public by the state department in support of its charge that Russian soviet propaganda is being directed against this country.

A FATAL COASTING ACCIDENT IN BRISTOL

Bristol, Jan. 3.—Joseph Poroski, 17, died during last night from cerebral hemorrhage which followed a coasting accident in the evening. Poroski on a sled went down Chestnut street and struck a double-runner which was being drawn up the hill. He was senseless for a time, revived, and walked home. When hemorrhage was started a surgeon was called but death came almost immediately.

NORWALK WOMAN DIES IN HER 107TH YEAR

Norwalk, Jan. 3.—Delia M. Sanford, who would have reached her 108th birthday on February 2, next, died at her home here today, following an illness of five days.

Mrs. Sanford was reputed to be the oldest resident of Fairfield county and one of the oldest in the state.

Mrs. Sanford was born in Redding but for the past four score years had been residing here.

REV. G. F. COGGSWELL HAS CLOSED HIS INSTITUTE

Hartford, Jan. 3—As the first step towards keeping his promise made to the grand jury today to close the Hartford Institute of Therapeutics, the Rev. George F. Coggswell, head of the institution, hung a "closed" sign on the Asylum street door of the building this afternoon. Dr. Coggswell appeared before the jury which is probing the fraudulent medical situation in Connecticut, and was quizzed concerning his methods of healing. He stated that he healed as the prophets of old, by the laying on of hands and by "spiritual uplift", that he had no fixed charges for his services and that he had patients "from Omaha, Neb., to Lewiston, Me." Upon the advice of the grand jury to close the institution Dr. Cogswell states, that he would do so, that he did not care to continue his practice if it was against the law.

The Rev. Cogswell is pastor of the First Church of the Divine Light, Inc., and has been its since incorporation in this state March 26, 1918.

It was revealed that Dr. Cogswell was fined $200 in the district court of Holyoke, Mass., in December, 1922 for practicing medicine without a license though he said today that all he had done was to advise a person who had asked him how to cure constipation. At the time of his trial there considerable interest was aroused because of his alleged cure of a seven years-old girl said to have been afflicted with St. Vitus dance.

A number of witnesses were summoned into the jury room during the day and at the close of the session this afternoon the jury adjourned until next Tuesday.

TWO DARIEN FIREMEN CHARGED WITH ARSON

Darien, Conn., Jan. 3—In addition to charges of wilful destruction of property against them as the result of confessions to the authorities that they caused incendiary fires there with property loss totalling over $75,000 Arthur Willmott, 30, and Richard Abendroth, 28, members of the Darien fire department, were today charged with arson following the arrest and confession of former Constable Ferdinand Hartog, of 14 Tokeneke avenue. Mechanic of Noroton Heights fire company, number 1, that he had a hand with them in the firing of Ring's mill here on September 10, last, part of which was used as an abode by the mill caretaker. Other arrests are imminent.

Hartog, an employe of the Connecticut company in Stamford, was arrested while at work this afternoon by state Police Sergeant John C. Kelly, of Ridgefield, who is directing the incendiary fire probe, and Chief of Police John Brennan, of Stamford. Hartog, who also admits having participated in the firing of a haystack at Noroton Heights with Willmott and Abendroth, is being detained in lieu of bonds of $1,000. Willmott and Abendroth are also held in default of bonds of $3,000 and $1,500 respectively.

Town Clerk and Treasurer Frank P. Fenton and Selectmen Russell A. Andrews, Bert More and Charles Larrabee held a special meeting Thursday afternoon and signed serial bonds which were taken up by Putnam & Storer, brokers, of Boston, and which were received Thursday morning. The bonds comprise the issue voted at the special town meeting October 22, 1923, for the purpose of paying for the new school building at Windham Center and the addition to the Natchaug Grammar school in this city, the latter structure now being in course of construction.

The issue is for $160,000 and includes 120 bonds at $1,000 each and 20 at $500 each. There were a total of 140 bonds requiring that number of signatures of the selectmen. Mr. Fenton was required to affix his signature 280 times, half for his office of town clerk and the remainder for town treasurer. The payments on the bonds will be at the rate of $6,500 yearly at interest of four and one-half percent annually, payable semi-annually. The first payment on the bonds was made January 1, 1924 and the final one will be made January 1, 1924. The interest rate starts July 1, 1924. The bonds are to be delivered to Putnam & Storer within a short time by the town clerk and selectmen. Clients of the brokerage concern have subscribed for the entire issue.

Among the several doctors summoned as witnesses Thursday before the extraordinary grand jury which is investigating medical conditions in Connecticut was Dr. S. J. Turcotte and Dr. W. D. MacCormack, both of this city. Turcotte was questioned about several cases which he had handled, the most recent being that of a South Coventry woman on whom he operated after he had promised that she would be "up and around in two or three days." Another operation was performed by a second physician about a month later. The case of Raymond Buck, son of Clayton Buck of Hebron, who was another patient of Dr. Turcotte's, was discussed. The father told the grand jury that his son's throat was lanced several times as a treatment for diphtheria. Dr. W. L. Higgins of Coventry, former state senator, later gave the boy 10,000 units of antitoxin and sent him to the Hartford Isolation Hospital where he was seriously ill from October 26th for several weeks. He was discharged December 18, but is still unable to walk and may be permanently affected.

Achille Perrault, 53, died suddenly early Wednesday afternoon as he was entering his home at 9 Adelbert street from his work for his lunch. Mr. Perrault had been in ill health for a long time and had been suffering from chronic heart trouble for the past twenty years. Some ten years ago he went to Canada in a futile effort to regain his health. Mr. and Mrs. Perrault and son, Delphis, reside in the upper tenement and Mr. Perrault had ridden home on his bicycle and as was his custom had gone around to the rear of the house. He ascended the rather steep stairway and his wife had seen him pass one of the windows to the outer door with his pipe in his mouth, but when he failed to enter she asked her son what his father was doing and almost simultaneously both heard a heavy sound as something had dropped to the floor of the veranda but Mrs. Perrault believed it to be a hod of coal which her husband usually placed outside the door. She finally became anxious and upon opening the door she saw the lifeless form of her husband lying face down on the veranda. Dr. J. A. Girouard was quickly summoned but the man was beyond aid. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason was notified and pronounced death due to chronic heart disease. Mr. Perrault was born in Vaneluse, Canada, February 28, 1870, a son of Toussaint and Gustine Goux Perrault. He had been employed in the carding department of the American Thread Company plant for the past six years. Previous to this time he had been a baker in the employ of Hormisdas Dion for about 18 years. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Delia Berard Perrault; one son, Delphis; three brothers, Ovila of Boston, Mass., Emile of Assumption, Canada, and Ladislas of Honolulu; his mother, Mrs. Gustine Perrault of Assumption; and a sister, Mrs. Georgianna St. Germain. Mr. Perrault was a highly respected French resident. He was a member of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, Court Sabre, No. 3, 495, Independent Order of Foresters and Les Artisans. He was a devoted member of St. Mary's church.

The town of Windham has lost one of its leading citizens who had always been interested in civic and community affairs, through the death of Edwin Harrison Hall, 75, Wednesday afternoon at his home on High street. Mr. Hall was a prominent member of the Republican party, had served on the town central committee and October 1, 1915, he retired from the office of county commissioner. He was on the board of commissioners for over a quarter of a century, being a commissioner at the time of the erection of the county home in Putnam and the Brooklyn jail. He was born December 29, 1848, a son of Edwin H. and Sophia Prentice Hall, the eldest son in a family of five children. He acquired a public school education in this city and attended a business college in Hartford in 1865. For two years, he and his father conducted a profitable mercantile business but he later entered the employ of the Willimantic Linen Company, with which he was connected for several years. Later, he spent three years as an employe of the Gardner Hall, Jr. Company of South Willington. He then entered the employ of the Merrick Mills Company of Holyoke, Mass., and remained there until he and his father embarked in the manufacture of cotton yarn at North Windham. This business was successfully conducted until 1913, when the plant was destroyed by fire. Mr. Hall then retired from active business and he had been enjoying a well-earned rest, spending the winter months at his home in this city and the summer season in North Windham. Mr. Hall was at one time connected with the Ancient Order of United Workmen and was a member of the Methodist church. He is survived by a son, F. Louis Hall of this city; a daughter, Miss Nettie Hall; two sisters, Mrs. P. A. Foland of East Hartford and Mrs. L. Lyman of Springfield, Mass.; and two grandchildren, Miss Marjorie and Edwin H. Hall.

Joseph B. Hood, 73, of 118 Chestnut street, died suddenly Thursday morning, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elias Robinson, of Somerville. Mr. Hood with Mrs. Hood and his brother, John Hood, had gone to Somerville to spend the holidays with Mrs. Robinson. Mr. Hood was seized with an attack of high blood pressure, Christmas Eve, but was thought to be improving and local relatives received word to that effect Thursday morning. Three hours later they were notified of his death. Mr. Hood was born in Liverpool, England, May 1, 1850, a son of Joseph and Elizabeth Walker Hood. Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elias Robinson, of Somerville, Mass., and Mrs. Henry Lussier, of Hartford; a brother, John Hood, of this city; and a sister, Mrs. Charles Little of New Haven. The body will arrive in this city today. As a young man Mr. Hood entered the employ of the Willimantic Machine Company and was with that firm for many years and later with the Atwood Machine Company plant on Milk street. He was a foreman when he retired last July. Mr. Hood retained an interest in the company, being one of the directors up to the time of his death. He was a member of the Alerts fire company for twenty-five years, being a foreman when his resignation took effect. He was also captain of the fire police for a number of years.

In spite of the fact that the attendance contest came to a close at the last meeting, the postponed meeting of the Willimantic Rotary Club held Thursday noon, was attended by all but three of the members. President James P. Mustard presided. Several matters of interest were brought up for discussion, but they are to be announced later with the committees in charge. Announcement was made that the local club led the district for the third consecutive month, according to attendance records for November. It is expected that arrangements for a Ladies' night will be taken up soon.

One of the most delicate surgical operations performed at St. Joseph's hospital in the history of the institution was the removal of an abscess from the brain of Frank O. [illegible] of pring street, this city, this by Doctors O'Neill, Jenkins and [illegible] dry. In the opening of the skull, the mastoid bone back of the ear had to be removed to get to the abscess, which was on the brain just above the right ear. Mr. Brown's condition continues to be critical but there are hopes for his recovery.

The next regular meeting and supper of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponde from the 8th to the 15th of January. Rev. John L. Davis of New Britain will be the speaker. Rev. Mr. Davis is leader of the largest Bible class in the world. At the February meeting, Walter W. Husband, U. S. commissioner of immigration at Washington, D. C., will be the speaker.

The officers of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief Corps were installed Wednesday evening by Mrs. Kay Ogden of Waterbury. Mrs. Ogden was acting as installing officer for the first time since her appointment by the president of the state department and she was presented a cut glass tray by Ida Chamberlain. Three members of the G. A. R. were guests of honor. The officers installed are: President, Mrs. Margaret MacArthur; senior vice-president, Lena Tripp; junior vice-president, Alice Benly; treasurer, Alice Easterbrooks; secretary, Helen French; guard, Harriet House; assistant guard, Mabel Payson; conductor, Minnie Jones; assistant conductor, Lucy Champlin; color bearers, [illegible] Williams, May Russ, Kate Woodward and Elizabeth Clark; musician, Hattie Ladd. Maud Deming will be installed as chaplain at a future meeting. A supper and business meeting followed the installation.

At an afternoon meeting of the Willimantic Woman's Club, Mrs. Patty Leem Waterman Clark of Hartford, charged her audience with an informal discourse on Oriental life and customs, the title being, "Here and There, In the Orient." Mrs. Clark was one of a party of fifteen sent to the Orient by the Y. W. C. A. to study conditions in China. The trip lasted four months and covered 20,000 miles. A business session followed with Mrs. Carl R. Alford, the president, in charge. Announcement was made that the club would entertain the Federated Woman's Clubs of the state January 31 at the Congregational Church House. Miss Rose Berry of Berkeley, California, will be the speaker of the day.

Archibald Buchanan of Mansfield, agent for the state board of education, was at the common council chamber in the town building Thursday morning and gave the required tests to about half a dozen children between 14 and 16, who sought employment certificates.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred M. Smith entertained the Willimantic Medical Society recently at their home on Windham Road. Twelve of the members were present. A fine lunch was served by the hostess, after subjects of interest had been discussed.

Miss Juanita Jackson, daughter of Alderman and Mrs. William E. Jackson, has resigned in Hartford and will join the clerical force in the cost department of the American Thread Company plant here.

Miss May A. Cheney and Miss Mary Twomey entertained a party of ten friends at a local tea room, in the evening, to celebrate their birthdays, which occur this week. Two members of the sewing circle were present, Miss Katherine Twomey and Mrs. Harold T. Robinson of Norwich. The remainder of the evening was delightfully spent at the home of Miss Cheney.

On account of the storm there was a decided drop in the number of applicants who called at the police station Thursday to receive examinations for motor vehicle drivers' licenses, being issued by State Policeman Herbert Helmold of the Stafford Springs barracks.

ENGLAND IS WORRYING OVER FOREIGN LOANS

London, Jan. 3—(By the A. P.)—England is showing some anxiety over the repayment of the $4,000,000 pounds which she lent Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania in the war period, and diplomatic inquiries are being made at Warsaw, Belgrade and Bucharest as to whether the discharge of these debts will be delayed or prejudiced by the 66,000,000-franc loan which these countries recently contracted from France.

The British view is that the British loans should have priority in payment, since they were contracted during the war.

France's action in lending so much money to these countries when she has not even paid the interest on her own debt to Great Britain has been a sore subject with the British government, and the French explanation that these loans were intended merely to provide Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania with arms so that they could enforce the terms of the existing peace treaties has not relieved the irritation of British officials.

The view is held in some quarters that England ought to make demand upon France for the repayment of the 600,000,000 pounds France owes England, or at least the interest upon it. It is considered unlikely in well-informed quarters, however, that the British government will make any such request unless the United States should set a precedent.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS

The greatest menace on earth to happiness is the ill health with which so many women are afflicted. The young woman is subject to pain and irregularities, the mother to the tortures of displacements with consequent pains, aches and nervousness—the middle-aged woman to the uncomfortable conditions caused by this critical age. The one remedy to control these conditions and restore the system to a normal healthy condition is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for fifty years has been restoring sick and ailing women to health and happiness.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATRE

In this age of flappers and jazz and the upsetting of old traditions the sight of an old-fashioned girl—one of a hundred years ago with her winsome, modest charm and her feminine ruffles and frills—will be a refreshing sight. Marion Davies as Patricia O'Day will bring to the screen just such a girl in her Cosmopolitan picture "Little Old New York" which is now playing at the Breed Theatre. Patricia is gay and full of fun, but she also has the shyness and reserve which characterized the girl of long [illegible] and made [illegible]

[illegible] a girl masquerading as a boy she has to assume a boyish swagger, yet at the same time experience all the feelings of a young girl falling in love—and having to keep the fact completely hidden. Miss Davies handles the role with supreme artistry.

She thoroughly enjoyed playing the part for she comes of Irish ancestry herself and she makes the character of plucky little "Pat" shine with wit and sparkling humor. It was the Irish sense of humor which enabled Miss Davies quickly to grasp the amusing angles of the peculiar situation in which Patricia finds herself when she comes to the America of a hundred years ago. The adventures and perplexing dilemmas in which she finds herself in this strange new country form the oasis for this delightful photoplay. The big climax of "Little Old New York" comes when the daring Pat is rescued from a mob of a thousand men who wanted her whipped for a prank she had played on them.

"Little Old New York" was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed. Sidney Olcott directed and Joseph Urban designed the settings. In the great cast are such popular actors of stage and screen as Harrison Ford, Courtenay Foote, Mahlon Hamilton, Sam Hardy, Louis Wolheim, J. M. Kerrigan, Spencer Charters, Norval Keedwell, Gypsy O'Brien, Mary Kennedy, Charles Judels, Elizabeth Murray and many others.

Other pictures on the bill include Edna Murphy in "Her Dangerous Path," the Pathe News and an Educational Comedy. Enlarged orchestra every evening.

Strand Theatre.

Presenting a splendidly virile drama of woman against woman for supremacy in love and business, Daytime Wives, which is now being shown at the Strand theatre, is a great, powerful drama of a woman's heart. It is a striking example of the power of a motion picture to combine love, humor and pathos with smashing melodramatic thrills.

With the unerring eye of one who has looked deep into a woman's heart Director Emile Chautard has shown us three separate and distinct types of woman—each of which is a splendid, virile character study in itself.

It shows the deep, unselfish self-sacrificing affection which an office girl had for her employer, contrasted with the selfish, self-satisfied life displayed by a rich man's wife who has nothing to do in life but live a round of jazz-bubbles and saying sweet nothings with many words to other men. It unfolds a story of how an office girl unselfishly helped her employer to make a name for himself and gather in the dollars to hand over to an empty-headed baby doll flapper to spend on drinking, gambling and chasing male butterflies. Underlying the great theme of a man and woman's regeneration are two [illegible] and lyrical love stories. The stories are simply and beautifully told in settings that are rich and gorgeous.

Each of the noteworthy cast of all-star players give a splendid performance, including Wyndham Standing, Grace Darmond, Dereys Perdue, William Conklin, Edward Hearn, Katherine Lewis, Kenneth Gibson and Christina Montt. The story was written by Lenore Coffee and Joan F. Goodrich and adapted for the screen by Wyndham Gittens and Homer [illegible].

A comedy and news completes the [illegible].

AT THE PALACE

The bill at the Palace playhouse [illegible] of this week is one that pleased the large audiences that filled this popular playhouse on Thursday. The bill is well balanced and the feature act is one that is centered around a clever female impersonator whose comedy work is really laughable. This act is a surprise act and has to be seen to be appreciated.

The act of Bann and Mallen is a unique comedy act featuring Mr. Bann in a clever impersonation of the Flapper of 1924. Mr. Bann is really funny and does not try to delude his audience as to his true sex.

Local interest centers about the act of Peggy and Arthur Van in a sketch from "Bringing Up Father", McManus' famous cartoon strip of the same title. Both principals are Norwich people and Mr. Van will be remembered as "Doc" Kinney who made his home in Norwich a number of years ago before taking up the theatrical profession. Doc's act is a clever animation of the cartoon [illegible] was received with [illegible] many local [illegible]

The opening act is [illegible] is a strong [illegible] that is very good.

The feature picture is "The Golden West," a picture [illegible] David Belasco's famous stage play of the same name. A comedy and education film completes the bill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Christopher Campbell, 84, for many years a resident of Dayville, died Thursday morning at the home of his niece, Miss Campbell after an illness largely due to his advanced years. He was a native of Ireland, but came to this country as a young man and had been a resident at Dayville for nearly half a century and for years was employed in what is now the plant of the Assawaga Woolen company. Mr. Campbell was an uncle of William Campbell of Dayville and Christopher Campbell of Putnam.

Maybe the town might listen to a suggestion frequently heard repeated of late that an improved court room be provided, nothing elaborate, but a larger one, with provision for spectators such as is not provided in the present court room.

Frequently there is widespread interest in cases that come before the town court. It is the practice at such times for as many as can squeeze in using all the science toward such an end that is known to New York subway crowds, and once they are in everyone is uncomfortable and the air abominable.

Some taxpayers have remarked that they feel they have a right to attend sessions of court and that a more comfortable and suitable place should be provided. It is held that this might be done by enlarging the present court room, which is in the basement of the town building.

Following are the newly elected officers of Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans: Commander, James E. Keach; senior vice commander, Frank Greenmr; junior vice commander, Nathan N. Cook; secretary, W. H. Cook; treasurer, George Miller; chaplain, E. C. Babson; guide, Herbert Lyman; patriotic instructor Everett M. Colvin; color bearer, Walter P. Fisk; inside guard George Cook.

F. O. Plummer, a Danielson business man who lives in North Sterling, has set forth very forcefully the need of road repairs on Killingly highways leading into North Sterling, which is just over the Killingly border and one of the centers from which Danielson attracts a great deal of business. Mr. Plummer points out that during a great part of the year these highways almost impassable on account of ruts and mud. He suggests that it would be good business for Killingly to improve the condition of these roads and make it possible for residents over that way to get into Danielson without such, great difficulty and without imposing so many hardships of travel as attend using them now.

At Wednesday evening's meeting of Moriah lodge the officers were installed, B. C. Hopkins acting as installing officers. The new officers are: W. M., Frank E. Kennedy; S. W., A. M. Thompson; J. W., Rev Walter B. Williams; treasurer, Charles S Bill; secretary, F. O. Armington; S. D., John Marland; J. D., Charles A. Burdick; S. S., L. S. Ingalls; J. S., Walter Anderson; chaplain, Harry Brearley; marshal, W. E. Bitgood; tyler, E. S. Carpenter.

Thursday, the funeral of Mrs. Ellen Doyle was held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Monohan of Riverview, with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. John Roux, M. S., being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Relatives and numbers of friends were in attendance. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery in Dayville. The bearers were James Corcoran, Patrick Tighe, Hugh Gorman, Martin Dooley, John Ryan and Jeremiah Delaney.

The danger of allowing children to coast on hills or grades on borough streets, especially those that are part of trunk line highways, is again pointed out to parents and is exemplified by the experience of little Nancy Spanella, 7, of Water street, who steered her sled into the rear step of a southbound trolley car. Had it not been for the prompt action of Motorman Poitras in bringing his car to a halt when he saw the accident impending; the child very likely would have been seriously injured if not killed. As it was the trolley car had come to a standstill before she struck it—and could not very well dodge out of her way. This affair happened on a very moderate grade, not on a hill.

The special point that an effort is being made to bring out here is that children were being allowed to slide in what is a very busy street, carrying a great amount of automobile traffic as well as providing space for a trolley line. The danger to children sliding there is extreme.

It was suggested Thursday that coasting might be forbidden on certain hills in Danielson and other hills reserved for the children to enjoy the winter sports. This is done in many towns and cities and is a means of reducing the liability of accidents.

Parents particularly can help by forbidding their children to coast in danger zones, and recognition of these is easy for all.

Danielson will be visited by Commandant Johnston of Salvation Army headquarters of Boston in her work of raising a fund of $7,500 to go toward paying the cost of the Salvation Army building recently purchased in Putnam.

Plainfield appears to be in line for an important work of state highway improvement in 1924, when, it is expected Plainfield street will be concreated. This will be part of the big proposal of making an all concrete highway from Putnam to New Haven via Norwich and New London.

Thursday, when it was raining here and the streets were not excessively slippery it was sleeting only such a short distance north as Attawaugan, where the state road was glare ice and dangerous for all traffic, this during the morning.

Additional sets of automobile markers continue to be received here every day and some machines that have been out of service since the first of the year are getting out on the roads again.

Mrs. E. H. Keach will have the members of the Civic Federation at her home for a meeting this (Friday) afternoon.

Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis presided at a session of the town court Thursday morning at which two cases were tried—men charged with intoxication. They were to jail for 30 days.

A big motor truck, south-bound from Massachusetts, slid off the state highway just below Attawaugan Thursday because of the sleet and storm that was prevailing. The big machine was not damaged.

Hills to the east of here on the Providence route were sanded Thursday, by a crew of the state highway department, working under Frederick Warren's direction.

Between the zero minimum registered early Wednesday morning and the maximum reached when the temperature ran up during Thursday's rainstorm there was a variation of 56 degrees.

Rev. and Mrs. William Swainson are entertaining relatives from Cherryfield, Me., at the Congregational parsonage in Dayville.

Seven prisoners held at Brooklyn jail to answer to criminal charges will be taken to Putnam and put to plea in the superior court.

John A. Dowling of Fitchburg was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

PUTNAM

Commandant Johnston, from the Boston headquarters of the Salvation Army, is in Putnam to conduct the campaign that it is hoped that will produce $7500 in subscriptions to be applied toward the cost of the brick building the organization acquired by purchase, in Union street, late last year. The sum set forth here represents the difference between the mortgage which a bank is carrying and the purchase price. Announcement of the campaign which Commandant Johnston is now here to conduct was made upon the occasion of the recent visitation of Colonel McIntype and the Sally band of Boston.

The press was invited Thursday to give publicity to the aims of the campaign and of the presence here of Commandant Johnston, an able woman who has been in the Salvation Army for 34 years. During the years since it established a post in this city the Salvation Army has made for itself a record of achievement that is very generally known about. The great amount of good work done points to the still greater labor for unfortunate humanity that may be accomplished in the future if the army workers get the co-operation of those who appreciate the excellence of its endeavors and the comfort and relief it brings where consolation, aid and encouragement are needed. Co-operation in this instance means financial aid, that the army may have a permanent and suitable headquarters in this part of the county for carrying on work that covers not only Putnam, but various surrounding towns.

In her labors here Commandant Johnston will have the earnest aid of a number of prominent people and organizations. She will remain in Putnam for about a month. Discussing in a general way the army's plans for Putnam Commandant Johnston said Thursday morning that eventually the building herein referred to will be in part used the upper floor—for army headquarters and it is hoped eventually to fit up a few rooms that may be used to aid any transient unfortunates who come along.

Salvation Army workers are kindly thought of in Putnam and in the surrounding territory, and past expressions of good will indicate that Commandant Johnston's mission here will be marked by success.

Captain William Jarvis has completed his annual report, which was presented to the common council at Thursday evening's meeting. It is chiefly statistical and sets forth in detail just what the police department did during 1923 as to arrests, disposition of cases, the nature of them and various other activities pertaining to the routine of the department.

The report shows that a total of 301 arrests were made here during 1923, and that 160 of them, or a little more than one-half, were for intoxication. In addition there were 16 arrests for violation of the liquor laws.

Violations of the motor vehicle laws made the next big block of cases—there being 48 arrests in such actions. During the year 157 persons were given lodging at the police station.

Total fines and costs imposed in the city court reached the impressive total of $6,777.69. Comparative figures were not available Thursday, but this amount is easily representative of the greatest amount of revenue through the city court in many years. Most of it came from fines imposed in liquor cases.

The L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation of Putnam, Conn., whose financial statement as of December 31st appears in this issue of The Bulletin, can point with justifiable pride to its financial condition as reflected in its statement and the remarkable progress the corporation has made since its organization, in 1921.

The corporation is engaged in the commercial banking business employing its capital in discounting commercial paper that is amply secured, and the safety of its plan of operation seems abundantly assured, not only by the general character of the business in which it is engaged, but by the fact that in the operation of its business since the beginning it has not yet taken a single loss.

During 1923 the commercial paper of approximately 600 firms and individuals was discounted, the average loan amounting to about $600. It is a well known fact in banking circles that the greatest measure of safety lies in a financial institution loaning its money to a large number of small borrowers, rather than a few firms or individuals requiring large sums.

The standing of the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation among deposit banks is such that it is able to rediscount a substantial amount of the paper it buys, thus increasing its working capital materially. This enables the corporation to turn its capital several times a year, and even with a modest percentage of profit on each turnover, the aggregate at the end of the year shows exceptional net earnings.

After paying all operating expenses, dividends at the rate of 7 per cent on all outstanding preferred stock, and $1 per share on the 18,775 shares of common stock outstanding, the corporation carried over a net surplus of $52,786.83. This surplus is equivalent to $2.80 a share on all of the outstanding common stock which when added to the dividend paid of $1 per share shows earnings on the common stock of $3.80 per share for the year.

None of the shares of the corporation have ever been issued for good will or promotion purposes, every share of stock outstanding having been bought and paid for.

The showing is considered remarkable in view of the fact that the corporation during the year incurred and paid out of earnings extraordinary expenses for recapitalization, books, stationery, etc., which will not require duplication at least for a long time to come.

The L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation, being a local institution within our state, has gained the confidence of the people in every community where it does business and is known, and

Melodious Instrumental

Moorish March (from "Beabdil") (Moszkowski) / Torchlight Dance (from "Feramors") (Rubinstein)	The Goldman Band	19166	.75

Two band numbers in sumptuous, semi-barbaric style Both are revelations of concert-band playing

Dance Records

Irish Melodies—Medley Waltz ("My Wild Irish Rose"—"Molly O"—"Mamie Reilly") / Songs of Yesterday—Medley Fox Trot No. 1 ("On San Francisco Bay"—"She Was Bred in Old Kentucky"—"In Dear Old Georgia"—"My Old New Hampshire Home")	The Troubadours / Manhattan Merrymakers	19177	.75

These remarkably fine records are made up of well-known tunes. Waltz and fox trot between them yield a brilliant number.

There are Some Things You Never Forget—Fox Trot (from "One Kiss") / Your Lips—Waltz (from "One Kiss")	International Novelty Orchestra / International Novelty Orchestra	19207	.75

Here is a dance record so good in detail it will pay you just to listen to it even if you don't care to dance.

Roamin' to Wyomin'—Fox Trot / That's My Baby—Fox Trot	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra / Waring's Pennsylvanians	19209	.75

These will suit every variety of that world-institution, the Pan-American fox-trotter.

Not Here—Not There—Fox Trot / Down on the Farm—Fox Trot	Joe Raymond and His Orchestra / Manhattan Merrymakers	19210	.75

Happy-go-lucky fox trots. The second has a vocal refrain, animal sounds, a barn dance with quadrille-calls—all in a single number.

DUE TO POISON DRINK.

In connection with the efforts that are being made in Philadelphia to clean house in its department of public safety, there was enough in the claim of the city's coroner when he recently stated that 975 had died in that city from the use of poisonous liquor to indicate that there would be no lack of opportunity in that direction.

But from the figures which have since been issued by Professor Wells at Hahnemann Medical college, it is quite evident that the corner has understated instead of overstated the situation. Professor Wells states that poisonous liquor is responsible for 5,000 deaths in the Quaker city instead of the 975 which the coroner claimed, and he explains this difference by stating that "Probably 65 per cent of the deaths today from hardening of the arteries, hardening of the liver and Bright's disease are the result of continued drinking of illegal hootch."

Warnings of this kind are nothing new. They have been issued since the early days of prohibition and from the time when the illegally manufactured liquor was being distributed and consumed. Since the early days some fear has been quieted by the claim of being imported stuff, by the improvement in the taste of the hootch and by the fact that less attention has been attracted by those cases of sudden deaths from poison liquor.

Possibly such warnings as are conveyed through the death record for hootch will get no more attention than they have in the past, and will serve to check indulgence in it no more than the frequent fatalities at railroad crossings serve to check the death list there, but they are nevertheless warnings that are certainly justified. Many there are who depend upon the labels, others upon the word of another, others upon the taste and still others are ready to declare that liquor which they know is manufactured illegally is better than the old time bonded goods.

There can be little wonder under such circumstances that there are so many deaths from poison liquor directly or through resultant diseases. Philadelphia has plenty of reason for its clean up activities, but it doesn't stand alone in this situation.

MEETING NEW CONDITIONS.

For the purpose of dealing with the new immigration legislation that is expected at this session of congress recommendations have been made for the consideration of the immigration committee. Whether they will be incorporated into the bill that will be reported to congress is uncertain.

A protest has already been received from Italy because of the reduction in the number of Italians who can come here in case a suggested cut in the quota for certain countries goes into operation. This cut isn't directly made but is brought about in the proposal for using the number of aliens in the country in 1890 as the basis for figuring the percentage of new ones that can be admitted instead of the figures of 1910. This affects some countries favorably and others unfavorably, the idea being to favorably affect this country.

A suggestion that has been made concerning which there deserves to be careful thought is that which proposes the putting of limitations on those coming here from countries in this hemisphere. Such a move is not sought because of a desire to keep these of other American countries out, but to protect us against those who are coming into the United States through these countries by fraud. The smuggling of immigrants is not new and many have conceived the idea of becoming citizens of some South American country, for instance, in order to escape the quota figures for entrance into this country, admission to which they promptly seek.

Protection for ourselves, the bettering of the class of new comers and the elimination of certain distressing features that now exist, and which can be relieved to a large extent by new legislation cannot be ignored in the drafting of a new immigration law, or the remodeling of the present one. Conditions which develop from year to year dictate changes that are required, and such action as is sought must be in keeping therewith.

BIG CANAL BUSINESS.

Opportunities to say "I told you so" are frequently presented. Sometimes they are due to favorable outcomes and sometimes to unfavorable ones, but they invariably arise from the confidence which has been displayed at some time or other in the success or failure of a particular movement or undertaking.

There were plenty of pessimists concerning the successful outcome of the Panama canal project. Those who saw great possibilities in it and knew that it would succeed were not few. In the past few years they have had the chance to impress upon their friends how well they had figured it out. Even those who were confident that it would serve a long felt need may not have anticipated that by the end of 1920 it would be possible to show tolls of $22,000,000 a year, but such is the record for the past year, and it appears all the more conspicuous because of the fact that it represents a gain in tolls of about $10,000,000 over the previous year.

Canal business has been jumping by leaps and bounds during the months of 1922 and it is headed for even bigger attainments. Having learned the advantage of such a short cut between the two ocean shipping lines have been making the most of it, new lines have developed and increased trade resulted because of the canal. Conditions may vary from year to year but the advantages of the canal are certain to be appreciated more and more as time goes on, and it is increased traffic rather than decreased that can be anticipated.

One big year may be insufficient upon which to determine whether there will be a lowering of the rates, but if the increase continues at the rate it has during 1923 the time will not be far off before efforts can be expected in that direction, since this government did not make its investment in the canal for the purpose of profit and it is certain that it will not change its view at this time. For the present the large volume of business is highly gratifying and the future must be relied upon to take care of itself.

KEPT ITS WORD.

An announcement that will be received with interest is that which has been made by President Grace of the Bethlehem Steel corporation to the effect that with the opening of the new year there are less than two per cent of its employes working more than ten hours a day.

This is a departure from the twelve hour day which has been maintained in the steel industry and is a response to the appeal that was made by President Harding for the elimination of such a long working day. That goal for all the company's employes is still the aim and only awaits operating conditions which will permit it.

This means a radical departure in this industry, one that has been put into operation under favorable conditions since the change was made when the corporation was not being forced to operate its plants at capacity and because of the earnest efforts which the employes have made, through the employes' representation plan, to aid in the solution of anticipated problems arising from the new arrangement.

What the effect is going to be remains to be disclosed. While it has been advantageous in making the change that the plants have not had to be operated at full capacity, it nevertheless makes it difficult to tell what the ultimate economic effect is going to be. It is now passing through a test period under favorable circumstances. It is getting away to a good start and it is quite apparent that the corporation has kept its word. The cooperation which has come from the employes is always an important factor and must of necessity be expected to continue.

FALSE FROM THE FOUNDATION.

The wild rumor mill is a great producer of things that are not so. Perhaps its greatest danger lies among those who are ready to swallow hook, line and sinker as well as the bait.

In connection with the plan for the disposal of a limited amount of war material to the Mexican government, which is no secret, there has been set afloat a story to the effect that this government was going to sell four of its discarded warships to Mexico for naval operations.

The state department is quick to nip such a story in the bud and to point out that under the Washington conference agreement it is not only impossible for it to do so but for any of the other countries to take such action. The warships that are to be disposed of must go to the scrap-heap. It is possible to sell them for junk, for the government to cut them up or for it to take them out and sink them, but neither it nor the purchaser can harbor the idea of selling them to another for naval purposes.

Whether that was apparent to the one responsible for the spreading of the unfounded statement, the absurdity of it is quickly disclosed by Secretary Hughes. It is evidently an attempt to direct increased attention to the plan for the sale of arms and ammunition in support of the Obregon government and constitutional procedure in the country to the south of the Rio Grande. It of course falls of its own weight and accomplishes nothing except possibly among those who fail to see the denial or who do not understand the restrictions.

THE BROKEN LUSTRE TEA CUP

"I want to explain my bringing a stranger here," and Richardson detained his hostess from joining the other guests.

"He looks interesting," replied Dorothy Clinton, "but I would rather just learn about him as we go along.

"I see I already have a rival. However, I insist on your knowing. It all came about over a rare bit of royal Satsuma that I saw in an out-of-the-way antique shop. I was surprised at the dealer's obstinacy in going higher each time, instead of coming down nearer my original offer.

"One day there was a stranger in the place, and the shopkeeper seemed unnecessarily nervous. Of course, it transpired that the stranger was the man who had been bidding against me. So it was not long before we came to an agreement.

"From the first I liked the way the stranger handled the situation; so when he suggested drawing lots for the piece of Satsuma—a beautiful plate—I invited him to my rooms, where he immediately proceeded to win the prize. He has called a few times since, and our talk always begins or ends with the same subject. He evidently has a fine collection. He came in tonight just as I was starting to visit you; and, remembering that you, too, had the china fad, I brought him along. Don't like him too well for you see I really know nothing about him. So much for the man. Now you can study his bridge."

As the game progressed Dorothy looked triumphantly at Richardson, for her partner played a remarkably successful and intelligent game. Richardson began to feel uneasy. It seemed as if Lagrange handled his cards too well. Once more he wished that he knew more about the man.

Finally they gave up the game in despair—it was so absolutely one-sided; and Richardson suggested to Dorothy that Lagrange would be interested to see her collection of china.

When they reached the cabinet Lagrange's hand went out instinctively to a beautifully decorated cup and saucer in gold lustre.

"Why, I have a cup which is, I think, an exact copy of that," he said in some excitement. "I have searched everywhere for a saucer to match. Tell me, if you don't mind, where you picked this up?"

"I got the cup from Mrs. Philander Bush, who lives at a place called La Tuque, on the St. Maurice river."

Although Lagrange admired the collection, his attention was never long diverted from the cup and saucer.

"You had better take it," he said, laughing, "or I shall never be able to part with it!"

There was a sudden breathless pause. Whether Lagrange had let go before Dorothy Clinton took hold or just how it happened, neither could tell. Lagrange made a lightning-like move and caught the saucer as it slipped through their fingers, but the cup was in pieces on the floor and in the excitement that ensued Lagrange disappeared.

"Mr. Richardson," said Dorothy when the others had gone, "you know, and I know, that our chance acquaintance wanted my saucer to complete his set. What I know, but you only guess, is that he has carried off my saucer.

"You knew it and you let him go?"

"Yes, I was conscious that he disappeared through the doorway during the confusion."

"Why didn't you—"

"Because I did not want their sympathy, and I could not stand their talk. Think how they would gossip!" Dorothy shuddered.

"Miss Clinton—" Richardson tried to keep his voice calm—"you must let me see this miserable affair through."

"What do you mean?"

"I shall put a detective at work tomorrow morning and see if we can recover your loss. I don't even know whose the fellow was."

"But I don't want the saucer, now that the cup is broken!"

"I can't help that. I must do something. Perhaps you don't realize my responsibility in the matter. Why did I bring him here? He was a plausible rascal, but we shall get even with him yet. I may even recover my beautiful plate of royal Satsuma."

"But there is no hope for your lost rubbers of bridge tonight!"

"I am glad you can joke about it. I shall feel more like joking when we have caught the villain!"

"If I agree to putting it in the hands of a detective you will see that it is done inconspicuously?"

"So quietly that even you need know nothing about it, except to hear of our final success."

The following evening Miss Clinton was surprised to have Richardson announced.

"I suppose you were not expecting me so soon. Our man is off"—

"To Canada," interrupted Dorothy. "That was a clever guess. You can't have seen the detective!"

"No I have inside information!"

She handed him a letter, which read:

My dear Miss Clinton:

First let me apologize for my abrupt departure last evening. My only excuse was a mad desire to see if I could not speedily repair my awkward blunder. A difference in coloring prevents it, and necessitates a little trip into the interior of Canada. I hope to bring back either a new cup and saucer, or a cup exactly matching the saucer, which I carry with me as a talisman.

Yours hopefully,
Worthington Lagrange.

Mrs. Worthington Lagrange, nee Clinton, shows as her choicest possession a cup and saucer of gold lustre, and smiles when any one remarks that the flowers on the cup are red, while those on the saucer are pink. People wonder why her second best is a cup and saucer of gold lustre, with the flowers that match exactly.—Ottawa Citizen.

Carter Glass, senior United States senator from Virginia, born at Lynchburg, Va., 66 years ago today.

George K. Burgess, director of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, born at Newton, Mass., 50 years ago today.

Marion E. Rhodes, former Missouri congressman, now assistant to Comptroller General McCarl, born in Bollinger county, Mo., 56 years ago today.

Bishop Frank M. Bristol, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, born in Orleans county, N. Y., 73 years ago today.

Louis F. Hart, for two terms governor of the State of Washington, born at High Point, Mo., 62 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William E. Chilton, who has made known his desire to return to the United States senate, was of that body as one of the representatives from West Virginia for a six-year term that ended in 1917. Now he aspires to the seat held by Senator Davis Elkins, whose successor will be chosen in the election next November. Senator Chilton is 66 years old and a native of West Virginia. After completing his academic training, which was received largely from private tutors, he decided upon the law as his profession. He was admitted to the bar in 1880 and has since been in practice in the city of Charleston. His first public office was that of prosecuting attorney of his county, to which he was appointed for an unexpired term in 1883. In course of time he rose to prominence as a Democratic party leader in West Virginia, served for a time as chairman of the State executive committee, and in 1893 was chosen secretary of state of West Virginia.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

A single person, if the head of a family, is allowed the same exemption granted married persons, $2,000 or $2,500, according to the amount of net income. A head of a family is a person who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more persons closely related to him by blood, marriage, or adoption and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependents is based upon some moral or legal obligation.

Mere support of relatives does not entitle a taxpayer to a status as the head of a family. The dependent must be a member of the taxpayer's household, and the taxpayer must, in fact, exercise family control over such dependents.

In addition to a personal exemption a taxpayer is granted a credit of $400 for each person depending upon him or her for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" includes not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

Such a dependent need not be a relative of the taxpayer, nor need he be a member of the taxpayer's household. A son living in New York who is the chief support of an aged mother living without necessity for the separation, in Baltimore is entitled to a credit of $400. Were the mother a member of the son's New York household, the son, as the head of a family, would be entitled to an exemption of $2,000 or $2,500, according to the amount of net income, plus $400 for a dependent. The $400 credit does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, though one may be totally dependent upon the other.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Hottentots, Anyway

The class was discussing family traits and characteristics. The teacher was questioning the pupil concerning their respective families, when one boy volunteered this information: "I must be from a pretty hot family, because I've got electricity in my hair and my grandfather has gas on his stomach."

Not Jim, Not Charlie

A certain corner was the inspiration for this rather droll incident. Two heavily raincoated and umbreilaed figures met.

"Hello, there, Jim, you old fossil," chirped one of the figures.

"Howdy, Charlie, you old mossback," the other fired back.

"Say, I'm not Charlie," complained the first gentleman.

"Well, I'm not Jim," the other counter-complained.

RALLY IN ENGLISH BILLS BUT NOT IN FRENCH FRANCS

New York, Jan. 3.—English bills rallied sharply in the local foreign exchange market today after a heavy opening. French francs, however, failed to react above yesterday's final level.

Sterling bills opened at $4.26 1-4, a one cent drop from Wednesday's close, but improved rapidly thereafter until the closing figure was $4.29 7-8.

The recent heaviness of francs generally has been attributed to the demand for dollar exchange in Paris, but traders saw some significance in the weekly statement of the Bank of France which showed an increase in note circulation of more than one million francs to 39,714,032,000, the highest since war years.

Francs opened in the local market at 4.88 cents and later rallied two points to 4.90 cents, as compared with yesterday's final quotations of 4.85 cents.

Still in her early twenties, Miss Wan Ying Hsieh, a Chinese student at Wellesley College, has written four volumes, two in prose and two in verse, together with numerous contributions to Chinese journals.

WEDDINGS.

Guyon—Theberge.

The honor of being the first bride of the new year at West Warren, Mass., goes to Miss Delia Theberge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Theberge, Brimfield road, who was married Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock in St. Thomas church to Albert Guyon of Palmer. Rev. J. B. La Mothe officiated. Miss Lillian Theberge, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and William Guyon, of Norwich, a brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

The bride was attired in a brown crepe de chine dress, with hat to match, and carried an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid's gown was similar to the bride's, and she carried red roses. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the bride's home to about 35 guests from Norwich, Ware, Palmer and Springfield. The couple left in the afternoon for a two weeks' honeymoon in Norwich, Conn., and on their return will make their home in Palmer.

The bridegroom is a native of Warren and he is employed in the Palmer Wire Works. The bride was employed in the Better Brush company of Palmer.

PENSIONS TO TEACHERS AVERAGED $34.87 MONTHLY

During the year ending December 31, 1923, the payments to teachers throughout the state by the teachers' retirement fund, amounted to $1,976.91 in annuities and $52,404.79 in pensions. The total paid was $54,381.70. The average pension paid to retired teachers was $34.87 a month.

The board received from teachers' salaries the sum of $432,147.86 for the year. During the past seven years the teachers paid in assessments of five per cent. of their salaries the total sum of $1,367,284.96. This is assessment of five per cent. on salaries up to $2,000. By this limitation an assessment can never exceed $100 a year. During the year 1923, the membership of teachers' retirement fund increased from 6,308 to 6,822. Eleven hundred and ninety new names were added to the roll of members during the year, 17 retired and 42 died. The number of withdrawing assessments was 730 and the number reinstated 70.

The total amount of paid in pensions since 1917 was $139,228.59 and in annuities $4,598.56. The first annuity paid in 1917 amounted to only 63 cents and the total pensions in that year amounted to $818.

DR. HARPER EXONERATED OF ANY SUSPICION OF DIPLOMA FRAUD

"I don't want you," was the greeting Dr. Francis J. Harper of this city received from Bert C. M. Holden, foreman of the special grand jury on the medical probe in this state, when the Norwich physician appeared Thursday at Hartford, in answer to a subpoena to appear before the grand jury.

"I have been investigating your case," continued Mr. Holden, "and I find we have nothing on you."

Dr. Harper was fortified with documents to show the receipt of his medical diploma and license to practice. He proffered them to Mr. Holden, but the grand jury foreman waved them aside. "No, I don't want to look at them," he declared. "You shouldn't have been summoned."

That closed the incident and Dr. Harper returned to this city without having been obliged to appear before the grand jury. He was congratulated by his friends upon his return with his complete exoneration from any implication in the diploma scandal which the special grand jury is investigating. The outcome of his visit to Hartford was just what his friends had been predicting would be the result ever since they heard he had been served with a subpoena.

Since Dr. Harper received notice to appear at Hartford he has been to much trouble to comply with the requirements of the summons that he should produce his diploma and license as these had been burned in the Shannon building fire with all his other papers on Feb. 9, 1909. He graduated April 1, 1899 from the medical department of the University of Georgia at Augusta, Ga., and he was licensed in Georgia, where he practiced for one winter in Savannah. The acting dean of the Georgia university sent him a signed and sworn statement that he had received a diploma from the university, which is a Class A college. Dr. Harper received his Connecticut license in 1900 and began the practice of medicine in this city in August of that year. He has since then taken a course at New York Post Graduate Medical school.

Dr. Harper was supplied for presentation to the grand jury if necessary with letters of endorsement from Dr. J. J. Donohue and Dr. W. K. Tingley of this city, both of whom referred to Dr. Harper's fine character as a citizen and his ability as a medical practitioner and both regretted that he had been drawn into what Dr. Tingley described as "this mixup of pretenders and quacks."

BERT LUCAS ENJOYING LIFE AT MIAMI

While Norwich is experiencing some winter weather and preparing for more Herbert W. Lucas of this city is sitting under the cocoanut palms evenings at Miami, Fla., and listening to Pryor's band with the thermometer at 75. Christmas eve the thermometer stood at that mark at 9 o'clock, according to a letter he writes the Bulletin. The Rotary club gave a Christmas tree for the boys and girls and about 16,000 people gathered about the tree and in the park for the event. It was a beautiful moonlight night. The band played from the top of a hotel building, and the people sang.

Mr. Lucas enjoys bathing every day at the beach and saw two 800 pound sharks brought in by the fishing boats. He took a hydroplane ride over the harbor and city. He has met a few Norwich people in Miami. The city is booming, and has a population of 50,821, which will be 100,000 by the middle of January they expect. Mr. Lucas has found one bad feature in the poor water with which the city is provided. To overcome this everybody uses spring water.

THERMOS CO. PRESIDENT LEFT $200,000 ESTATE

The estate of the late William B. Walker, president of the American Thermos Bottle Co., of this city, was the largest probated in the past year in New London where Mr. Walker had his home. It was an estate of $209,711.59.

The second largest was that left by Thomas F. Foran with a total of $172,530. The third largest was that of the late Eugene T. Kirkland which amounted to $91,072.03. The largest estate left in Waterford was that of Charles P. Avery which amounted to $25,345.25.

Records of the probate court for the past year indicated a total much less than those of a year ago when the grand total was swelled by the estate of Charles T. Palmer with a figure of $320,274.49. There were numerous small estates this year, many of which totalled less than $1,000. In several instances, including the estate of the late Bryan F. Mahan, no inventory has yet been filed.

AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY OPENING ABOUT JANUARY 17

Because two of the sixty mills of the American Woolen company are located in Norwich (Thamesville) and Yantic, there is interest in the announcement Thursday that the opening of fall dress goods lines by the American Woolen company will take place about Jan. 17.

Certain of the goods, particularly those in the woolen category, may show an advance in price, possibly ranging from eight to ten per cent. Worsted goods, owing to a larger production through the contemplated use of men's wear machinery, will, it is said, show practically no advance. The new line will be highly varied. Bolivias, according to report, will again be shown, reflecting confidence that these fabrics still have their appeal. Velours, camel's hair effects and a large series of sports fabrics, it is understood, will be included. Broadcloths will be more featured than they have been.

MINISTERS OF COUNTY HELD HELPFUL GATHERING

The Protestant ministers of New London county met Wednesday as the guests of St. James Episcopal church in New London, at the call of a continuation committee appointed at a similar meeting held last January at the Park Congregational church in Norwich.

Over 50 men, representing seven denominations, gathered. The Right Rev. E. C. Acheson, D. D., led devotions and spoke of the quality of united religious interest of the representative assembly before him. The rector, the Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, gave the formal welcome to the company and responses followed from the Rev. David A. Pitt of Norwich, representing the Baptists, the Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich, representing the Congregationalists; the Rev. W. H. Bath of Norwich, representing the Methodists; and the Rev. Richard F. Graham of Norwich, representing the Episcopalians. The Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, D. D., made the report of the continuation committee and submitted the program for the day. With it he presented a complete roster of the religious clergy of New London county, which is to be printed and placed in the hands of all those whose names appear thereon.

At 11 the topic of the day was taken up, The Social-Service of the Church, and the Rev. A. C. Coburn of Danbury, gave a vivid account of several years of experiments in his own church along the lines of Mid-Week Religious Education. He dismissed the parish school plan as unfitted for all religious denominations. He had succeeded in holding a large body of school children on week-days for one period a week for each child directly after the schools had dismissed. His ideal would be a co-operative or community plan along that same line. His address was followed by a lively discussion entered into by the Rev. Roderick MacLeod of Hanover, the Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Norwich, the Rev. Allen Shaw Bush of Gales Ferry and others. Mr. MacLeod urged the Summer Vacation Bible school as the most feasible way of beginning this line of work.

President Benjamin T. Marshall, D. D., of Connecticut college, followed with a strong summing up of the topic and closed the morning session with devotions.

On motion of the Rev. Alexander Abbott it was unanimously voted to have a similar gathering next year and the retiring continuation committee was reappointed to the task of preparing for the same and representing the ministry of the county in any capacity called for and in the spirit of the two annual meetings already held.

At 2 p. m. the topic of the day was taken up under the subtopic of Co-operation With the Social Forces of the County. Four of these were presented by the representatives of the same, the Farm and Home Burau by H. M. Whitman; Mrs. Richard J. Whitham of the county grange, president of the county organization; C. S. Bailey secretary of the county Y. M. C. A., and Frederick A. Benton, Boy Scout executive at Norwich. Each gave a clear statement of the work attempted. The Rev. Giles F. Goodenough took up the clergyman's side of the questions raised and pressed home the possibilities of coordinating all the social forces of the county.

This was followed by the main address of the day by the Rev. Rockwell H. Potter, D. D., of Hartford, moderator of the National Council of the Congregational Church of America, who spoke on How the Churches Can Train Forces for Social Leadership in the County. Emphasis was laid on the presentation of Christian ideals from the pulpit to satisfy the hunger of the thoughtful minds. The Rev. S. H. Howe, D. D., of the Park Congregational church of Norwich brought the meeting of the day to its close by summing up its message and closing with devotions.

A meeting of the continuation committee was held to make plans for the future activities of the churches represented. It consists of the Rev. Richard R. Graham of Norwich, the Rev. Myron B. Genter, the Rev. Chester H. Hoover, the Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, President Benjamin T. Marshall, New London; the Rev. A. N. Foster of Norwich and the Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, D. D., of Groton.

WILL BRING CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS AGAINST M'COOK

Attorney General Frank E. Healy is quoted as saying that he expected to file papers in the condemnation proceedings against the McCook property at Niantic, which he will institute for the state some time during the present month in the superior court for New London county.

The condemnation proceedings will bring to a head a long fight between the state and the McCook family, represented by Executive Secretary Anson T. McCook, for a portion of the land owned by the family adjoining the Seaside state tuberculosis sanatorium, East Lyme.

Additional land is needed by the sanatorium for its work and additional beach space is very much desired, according to Senator Irwin G. Atchison, chairman of the committee which reported the condemnation bill.

The bill, which was passed by the last legislature, provided for the acquisition of a strip of land 200 feet wide, parallel to the present sanatorium property, and extending from the shore to a railroad. The land was to be acquired from the McCooks by purchase if possible; if not, by condemnation proceedings instituted by the attorney general.

After a hearing was held on the bill Captain McCook offered, in the name of the family, to deed to the state, free, a strip of land 200 feet by 60 feet, conditional upon an agreement that, so long as any member of the McCook family owned the land the state would make no further attempts to acquire any land, and also conditional upon the state's not allowing drainage from the sanatorium property would run onto the McCook land. This offer was not accepted by the legislature.

Announcement was made Nov. 1 that the attorney general had been requested to institute condemnation proceedings as all efforts to buy land from the family had failed.

FOUR GENERATIONS AT BABY GIRLS' CHRISTENING

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Peltier entertained a number of relatives at their home in Occum on New Years Day in honor of the christening of their infant daughter Evelyn Janice, four generations being present, guests were present from New York, New London, Groton, Gales Ferry, Montville, Plainfield, Taftville, Occum and Versailles. The sponsors were Mrs. Anthony Kostick of New York City, a sister of Mrs. Peltier, and Armand Mossey of Versailles, her brother-in-law.

A beautiful dinner was served, covers being laid for thirty. The menu consisted of chicken a la Morengo, mashed potatoes, creamed carrots, cranberry sauce, stuffed olives, celery, fruit salad, assorted cakes and coffee.

The room tastefully decorated in the color scheme of pink and white, a large bouquet of pink and white and carnations occupying the center of the table.

Dancing was enjoyed by the younger folks during the afternoon with music by a Victrola.

The child received many beautiful gifts, including several gold pieces.

BYRON HATFIELD WILL MAKE METROPOLITAN DEBUT

Norwich friends have received cards to the debut of Byron N. Hatfield, baritone, which will take place Saturday, Jan. 5, at the Metropolitan Opera House studio. Mr. Hatfield is well known here where he was formerly a member of the quartette of the Central Baptist church, and he has been heard with much pleasure on the programme of the Norwich Music Association. He is the son of Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, who is pastor of the Baptist church in Westerly.

TENNIS PLAYERS WRITING FOR PAPERS MAY BE BARRED FROM AMATEUR RANKS

New York, Jan. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Tennis players who profit substantially by writing for newspapers or magazines will be declared ineligible for amateur competition, if a proposal by the amateur rule committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, announced tonight, is adopted.

This stringent interpretation of amateur status, designed, according to the committee, to check the menace of commercialism to tennis, already has been approved by the executive committee of the U. S. L. T. A., and will be laid before the annual meeting of the association here February 8 for final action.

Although George T. Adee, chairman of the amateur rule committee, declared the move was not aimed at any particular individual, it is generally understood it was designed to curb the journalistic activities of several star players, notably William T. Tilden, II., of Philadelphia, the national champion, and recognized world's premier player; Vincent Richards, youthful Yonkers star and former national doubles championship partner of Tilden; and Frank T. Anderson, of Brooklyn, one of the leading Metropolitan racquet wielders.

A similar move was made by the amateur rule committee at the 1923 annual meeting of the U. S. L. T. A., but, framed as a by-laws amendment, it failed to receive the two-thirds majority vote needed for adoption. As revised, the proposal now takes the form of a resolution interpreting the amateur status, leaving discretionary powers to the executive committee, and needs only a bare majority to become part of the tennis law.

Because of recognition that some players already may have signed contracts to write tennis articles this year, the resolution provides that the new interpretation would not become effective until January 1, 1925.

Asserting that "the nation-wide development of tennis for all classes has produced a situation which threatens the very foundations of the game," the amateur rule committee's report to the executive committee "sees this introduction of money-making or commercialism," which it looks upon "with grave alarm and concern." The report refers to "the practice of players receiving substantial sums of money for writing tennis articles for newspapers and magazines," adding that while it "is in favor of players writing articles on tennis as much as they like or as much as they can find time for apart from their business, it does not approve of any player making what amounts to a living out of writing tennis articles in connection with playing. "Such a course," it says, "violates both the letter and spirit of the amateur rule."

"Furthermore," says the report, "it was proved last summer that the newspapers want the advertising value of a great player's name rather than the literary value of his articles. Twenty-five papers are offered syndicated articles by A. Wallis Myers, of England, perhaps the greatest authority on tennis in the world and a writer of distinct literary merit. They refused the offer, but asked for articles by Miss Helen Wills, then a schoolgirl, who had just won the national women's championship, and about whose literary ability they knew nothing. Miss Wills refused."

Another resolution which disapproves of a player receiving or negotiating for money in payment of any expenses incurred in attending a tournament, exhibition or team match, except through the proper officials of his home club or association or the National Association, also is recommended for adoption by the amateur rule committee.

This action, according to the amateur rule committee's report, is due to "the increasing tendency of players and more particularly prominent players to expect clubs to spend large amounts of money to make the players comfortable and give them every luxury while playing in the clubs' tournament."

Under a resolution adopted a year ago, players are required to file expense accounts, but, the committee points out, to date 93 prominent men and women players have filed such reports while 19 have failed to do so.

PROMOTER DRAWS FINE FOR BEATING GOVERNMENT

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 3.—Floyd Fitzsimmons, prize fight promoter of Benton Harbor, Mich., pleaded guilty in federal court here today to a technical violation of the internal revenue law in connection with payment of taxes on gate receipts on the Jack Dempsey-Bill Brennan fight at the Michigan City, (Ind.) arena which was prevented by order of Governor Warren T. McCray. Judge A. B. Anderson fined Fitzsimmons $250 and costs.

The promoter said he "went broke," in his attempt to stage the Dempsey-Brennan fight. He asserted the governor had given him assurance the fight could be staged in Indiana, and later stopped it. Fitzsimmons appeared at the Federal building last month in connection with the indictment and it was erroneously reported then that the charge would not be pressed.

THOROUGHBRED HORSES TO ARRIVE SATURDAY

New York, Jan. 3.—Ninety-four English and French thoroughbreds, valued at half a million dollars and comprising the most valuable shipment of horses to cross the Atlantic since before the war, are due to reach New York Saturday or Sunday on the Steamship Mississippi.

All were purchased by American horse fanciers at the December sales at Newmarket and the destination of the majority of their number is the Blue Grass region of Kentucky.

Among the better known stallions in the shipment are Craigangower, a five-year-old chestnut, by Polymelus out of Fortuna, by Snearmint and Royal Canopy, a gray 10-year-old, by Roi Herod, out of Cream O' the Sky. Craigangower's purchaser is former Senator J. M. Ganden, of Lexington, Ky., while Roi Herod's new owner is Captain P. N. Walker, of Boise, Va.

LOCAL BOY TO FIGHT CANADIAN CHAMPION

Baltimore Joe Gans, local colored light heavyweight, has signed to fight Silas Green of Claremont, N. H., light heavyweight champion of Canada and former heavyweight champion of Canada, at Claremont this month. The date of the bout has not yet been set. Green held both titles in Canada until he lost the heavyweight title to Jack Renault, a contender for Jack Dempsey's title. Green has also boxed a number of other good boys including Leo Anderson, Panama Joe Gans and Kid Norfolk.

The local boy has not fought a real ring battle in the last two years but has kept in excellent condition and has conducted a school of boxing here since quitting the ring. Baltimore Joe Gans originally came from New London and several years ago went to New York where he boxed for Amie Mack and was for a time with Leo Flynn. The local lad at that time was in the same stable with Panama Joe Gans and Kid Norfolk. While with them he fought a draw with Soldier Bartfield and the Zulu Kid and Jamaica Kid. Later he boxed an exhibition with Harry Wills and also met Kid Norfolk after he left Mack's stable.

Gans is a clever boy with a deadly short range punch and is very clever at in-fighting. His defense is good and he handles himself with perfect poise in the ring.

WEISS GETS RECEPTION ON RETURN TO NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 3.—George M. Weiss, president of the New Haven baseball club, who was hurt in the wreck of a section of the Twentieth Century express on the New York Central railroad on Dec. 9, at Forsyth, N. Y., returned to his home today. He was brought here in a private car and his mother, sister and several relatives, together with many friends, were at the station to welcome him. The car was backed on a siding and Mr. Weiss held an informal reception.

Mr. Weiss says he is feeling finely, but suffers somewhat from the injury to his back. For a short time he will continue under the care of a nurse.

It was in the wreck that Will (Wild Bill) Donovan was killed.

RING NOTABLES AT MISKE FUNERAL TODAY

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 3.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Billy Miske, St. Paul's heavyweight pugilist, who died New Year's day from Bright's disease.

Active and honorary pall-bearers will include many of his friends, among them Tommy Gibbons, of St. Paul, several times a ring opponent, but one of his closest friends.

Services will be at St. Adelbert's church. Messages of condolence continued to arrive today at the Miske home from pugilists and other friends.

LOCAL GOLF PROFESSIONAL TO CONDUCT WINTER SCHOOL

George Falconer, who has been golf professional at the Norwich Golf club for the past two years, has declined the invitation of a golf club in Savannah, Ga., to become a professional there. Mr. Falconer will spend the winter in Norwich where he plans to open an indoor golf school. The indoor feature is an innovation for Norwich and there is much enthusiasm among golf players as it gives them a chance to improve their game during the winter months when it is impossible to play on the outdoor course.

Stribling Knocks Out Numbers

Fayetteville, N. C., Jan. 3.—Young Stribling, the Macon, Ga., high school boy, knocked out Kid Numbers, of the Seventeenth Field Artillery, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at the Fort Bragg arena tonight.

A Challenge.

The manager of the Melrose Five says his team did not play the Laurel Hill Crescents on New Year's day but would like to play them any time for fun, money or marbles

COLTS CLINCH SECOND PLACE BY BEATING NUGGETS BY BIG MARGIN

The Colts took complete possession of second place in the indoor baseball league Thursday night when they rode rough shod all over the Nuggets and trimmed them 21 to 10, the worst beating that the Nuggets have suffered this season. The Colts deserved the victory for they played an exceptionally good game, hitting well and playing star ball in the field, while the Nuggets put up a terrible exhibition of the indoor game.

Everything that the Nuggets did went wrong. They could not field the ball, hit or run the bases and the errors they made would seldom be seen in a kids' game. The game was practically an even break up to the seventh inning when the Nuggets blew up. They had got some good breaks up to that time and then the balloon arose and soared away.

Up to the seventh it was a see-saw affair but in the first of the seventh inning error after error mixed in with a dumb play or two resulted in five runs for the Colts. The Nuggets stopped into form in the eighth inning but the final inning was a terrible exhibition, the Colts hitting the ball to all corners of the big drillshed and romping around the bases without the least opposition. The score by innings:

Colts ..... 1 2 2 0 5 0 5 0 8—21
Nuggets ..... 1 3 0 2 1 2 0 1 0—10

Batteries—Bush and Mulholland for the Colts; Murphy and Manchester for the Nuggets. Umpires—Malcom and Levine.

LANDIS AWARDS MAYS TO CINCINNATI CLUB

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The Cincinnati Nationals tonight were awarded the services of Pitcher Carl Mays, formerly of the New York Yankees when Commissioner Landis denied the claim of the Philadelphia National League club, which filed a claim for him. Garry Herrmann, president of the Reds, had purchased Mays during the recent baseball meeting here for a reported price of $10,000.

Waivers had been obtained on Mays in the American league and then asked in the National League, but Philadelphia claimed the famous side-arm pitcher. The Yankees refused a National league waiver and sold him to the Reds.

Commissioner Landis decided that it was not necessary to obtain waivers from the National league in order to sell the player to the Cincinnati club. If the Yankees had desired to send Mays to a minor league, Commissioner Landis ruled, it would have been necessary to obtain waivers from both leagues.

MAJOR LEAGUE SEASON WILL CLOSE WEEK EARLY

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Decision to wind up the 1924 major league season a week earlier than usual was reached President Johnson of the American League said tonight, to avoid a conflict with the start of the football season.

"We want to draw our games to a close before the big football games start," President Johnson said. "We found we could shorten the season by a week by arranging a few doubleheaders."

President Johnson said that unless a western club wins the championship, it will be possible to conclude the 1924 world series at a time when the 1923 world series was just starting. The danger of cold and possibly rainy weather will likely be averted under the new arrangement.

President Johnson, together with John A. Heydler, president of the National league, have noted that football games have made inroads in baseball attendance.

PLAINFIELD TO PLAY FAST ATLAS CLUB TONIGHT

Friday nights attraction at the community house, Plainfield, will be the fast Atlas A. C., quintet of Hartford. This will be the second appearance of Manager Flavell and his quintet of basketball players in this section of the state this season. Earlier in the season his team was defeated by the fast army and navy club by the scant margin of one point. The Hartford team will be composed of the following men Hunt and Pentland forwards Smith center Edgar and Cervin guards, Mullins and Dietz, subs.

The Plainfield quintet is showing marked improvement under the coaching of Joe Belair and this game should prove to be one of the fastest so far this season.

New Year's afternoon Plainfield took the Willimantic team into camp by the score of 54 to 13.

Plainfield will use regular team consisting of Benjamin and Belair, forwards; Dougherty or Benjamin center; Swanson, Provost and Blake guards.

YALE TEAM VOTED GRID CHAMPS OF EAST

Philadelphia, Jan. 3—The Yale football team was voted the champions of the east tonight by the directors of the veteran athletes of Philadelphia at a special meeting to select the champions to receive honors at the annual meeting of the organization on the night of January 19. The Eli eleven will receive the Joseph H. Jolley trophy. Yale won over Cornell after a long discussion by a vote of 11 to 7.

Cooney Wins Decision

Hartford, Jan. 3—Jimmy Coony, of Holyoke, Mass., won the referee's decision over "Newport Johnny" Brown, Rhode Island, here tonight. Cooney won ten of the twelve rounds in the opinion of newspaper men at the ringside. Sammy Bienfield of New York, outpointed Gus Marino, of Jersey in the semi-final.

Renault Matched With White

New York, Jan. 3—Jack Renault, Canadian boxer, and Joe White, Alabama heavyweight, were matched tonight to meet at Trenton, N. J., January 14.

YEAR'S FIVE LOSS IN NEW LONDON AMOUNTED TO OVER $58,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 3.—New London lodge of Elks had the largest class of candidates for initiation this evening it has ever had. There were some 80 members and they came from New London and nearby towns. The work was of some duration, but after it was completed the members sat down to a feast and while they ate there were ten acts of vaudeville entertainers from Boston, male and female. It was a great night for the wearers of the antlers, the lodge now being close to the point of a membership that numbers 1000. When the Elks go out to roam there seems to be nothing but pleasure in their forests. But they do a lot of charitable work, too, and merit the right to frolic once in a while.

Not a word has been heard from Inspector Jere Dillon since he took into custody three men whom he found aboard the motor boat Columbia on the rocks at the south side of Fisher's Island, where she ran in a snow storm Sunday night. The Columbia was laden with 480 cases of liquor and it was on this account that the crew was seized and taken before a United States marshal at New York. The cutter Gresham made a special run to New York to convey them, for the boat was in New York waters when she was seized and the cargo confiscated by the government.

Here it is the 3rd of January and not a pound of ice has been harvested in this section of the country, nor has there been any indication that any is to be secured soon. Years ago, when winter set in in November and continued until March the dealers were of the opinion that unless they got a crop of ice in the houses by the 1st of January they would not have the good fortune to get any ice. They said that ice that came after the middle of January rotted on the ponds. In those days the cost of harvesting ice was about seven cents a ton, it was estimated; now it is about ten times that sum and the cutting and harvesting is largely done by power, while automobiles are generally used for the distribution of it.

One of the smallest restaurants in the city, but one that does as much business as the largest, has a force of employes that numbers thirteen. The men are said to average $30 a week, besides their board, and still the restaurant is a most profitable one.

William L. Holmes, 37, who died last night at his home, 5 Belden court, had been ill a long time. Until his physical condition prevented, he was employed as machinist at the plant of the Whitton company. Mr. Holmes is survived by two brothers, Harry E. and Walter E. Holmes, both of New London.

An automobile, owned by Waterman & Wolfe, became ablaze presumably by back-firing, late yesterday afternoon at the corner of Huntington and Church streets. An alarm was sent in from box 21 causing the greater part of the city's fire fighting apparatus to respond. With the arrival of the firemen the blaze was quickly extinguished by the application of chemicals and without much damage resulting.

A still alarm caused the Northeast Hose company to respond last night when the city's dumping grounds on Broad street became ablaze, causing a dense cloud of smoke to fill the heavy atmosphere, proving a nuisance to residents in that section. The blazing refuse was extinguished in quick time.

Three military prisoners at Fort Wright escaped from the guardhouse last night. The soldiers, Privates [illegible] Chase and Potter, successfully [illegible] the guard on duty and getting [illegible] shore, took possession of a [illegible] boat, and in this manner continued through the Sound to freedom. The New London police were requested to be on the lookout for the fugitives, as it was believed they would land in New London.

The deed transferring the property, corner of Huntington and Church streets, from Mrs. Etta Henderson Sullivan, wife of James P. Sullivan, and long used by Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan as a residence, to the Young Women's Christian Association, was received for record this morning at the office of the city clerk. The price paid for the property was $50,000. It is understood that the association will cause alterations to be made to the place, after which it will be used for the association's headquarters.

Emily H. Wuest of Hartford, guardian for Elsa F., Mildred F., and Alma B. Wuest, has sold a dwelling on Frost street to Ella Braverman.

Frederick Asher, 29 Arch street, Springfield, Mass., in passing through State street this morning struck and damaged a silent policeman of the lighthouse type. The lighthouse was damaged, and Asher was taken into custody by Traffic Officer William Corcoran. Asher will not be prosecuted, however, for he has agreed to pay the costs of the damage resulting.

Miss Helen Dempsey of Montauk avenue, and Miss Margaret May of Franklin street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

George Hayes, 41, of Black Point, died this morning at Lawrence hospital, where he had been under treatment two months.

Mrs. Charles Pigeaux, 116 Main street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, returned to her home today.

The funeral of Pamelia C., wife of Charles H. Benner, of Groton, was held at 15 Masonic street this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Frederick W. Haist, rector of Bishop Seabury Memorial church, Groton. The bearers were Howard A. Edgcomb, Albert O. Darison, George R. Hempstead and William L. Morgan of Groton. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Asa H. Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Perkins, of Pleasant Valley, Groton, and Miss Pearl B. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith of Gales Ferry, were married Tuesday evening at the parsonage of the Groton Heights Baptist church by Rev. George R. Atha. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Garvey of Groton. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins will make their home at Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Herman Johl, wife of Manager Johl of the Max Pollock company of Groton, is seriously ill at a New York hospital as the result of an operation which Mrs. Johl underwent recently.

Fred Brayne has returned to New Britain, after having spent several days with relatives in New London.

Miss Leona Chartier of Ocean Beach, has concluded a several days' visit with her uncle and aunt, Mayor and Mrs. Hormisdas Dion of Willimantic.

Miss Julia Quaintance of New York is being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Wilbur.

Announcement is made of the betrothal of Miss Dorothy Goldstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Goldstein, of 58 Jefferson avenue, to David Rakowsky, a New London merchant.

Antone Loverone, a former cafe proprietor, who has been in Miami, Fla., several weeks, is in New London and is seriously considering returning to Miami to locate and engage in the contracting business.

Paul Tasca, 12, residing at 836 Bank street, and Harold Haney, of Waterford, proprietor of a milk route automobile were injured this morning when Haney's automobile was overturned, following collision with an automobile, owned and operated by Albert Goss, of Clark Lane, Waterford. Haney sustained severe bruises, being hurled from the automobile, while the Tasca youth's left hand was forced through the windshield, and terribly lacerated before he, too, was thrown to the pavement. Haney had been to Colver Heights and made a delivery of milk and as his machine descended the grade at the approach to Lincoln avenue he observed the machine operated by Goss headed in a northerly direction approaching. To avoid a collision Haney speeded his car in an endeavor to pass into Lincoln avenue ahead of the Goss car, but as the car was about to cross Jefferson avenue, Goss' machine struck the rear end of the Haney car, causing it to completely overturn and forcing its two occupants to the highway. Acting Detective Frank Howard, after conducting an investigation, ordered Goss to appear in the police court tomorrow morning and answer a charge of reckless driving. Haney and the Tasca youth were taken to a hospital for treatment.

A short circuit on a wire of the Connecticut Power company's lights, corner of Huntington and Broad streets this evening, caused only half the illuminating lights on both sides of State street between the Union station and Huntington and State streets to glow.

The evening trains brought several hundred students of Connecticut College for Women, who have been absent from the school since Dec. 23rd for the holiday vacation at their homes. The students utilized all the taxicabs to be obtained at the station and two trolley cars were filled.

An automobile bearing Massachusetts registration 26-803, collided with an automobile of Connecticut registration, L-518, near the Union station late this afternoon, the latter car being damaged. The driver of the Massachusetts machine speeded away although an attempt was made to intercept him.

The members of the police force have donned their winter caps, the officers appearing in their new headgear for the first time this winter last night.

Mrs. Pauline Parker, wife of Ruby Parker, formerly proprietor of a grocery store in New London, was taken into custody at East Lyme this afternoon by State Policeman Walter Bahr of the Groton barracks, charged with violation of the liquor law. Officer Bahr escorted Mrs. Parker to New London, where she was released from custody upon furnishing a surety on her bond of $1,000 for her appearance in the East Lyme town court tomorrow. Bahr went to the store conducted by Parker and finding Mrs. Parker in charge obtained a quantity of cider, which had been in the store for some time, and had, it is claimed, become hard, and contained alcoholic contents in excess of one-half of one percent. Taking a sample of the cider as evidence, Officer Bahr placed the woman under arrest.

At a hearing in the council chamber in the municipal building this forenoon to obtain an expression from parties interested in the proposed plan of the city to widen Pequot avenue, 4.5 feet at a point near Glenwood avenue, it developed that the Pequot Hotel croporation and Miss Francis O. Jones, property owners where the proposed land is to be condemned if the changes are determined, intend to obtain an injunction enjoining the city from proceeding with the project, on the grounds that their property will be seriously damaged.

The Catholic Ladies' Aid society observed its 18th anniversary Wednesday evening at a meeting at the headquarters of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service on Jay street. Mrs. F. H. Davis, Mrs. Jerome Collins and Mrs. Stanley Thomas were the committee in charge. At the meeting it was voted that the society disband as a relief organization and that the efforts of the members be enlisted in the work undertaken by the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service. A sewing society will be maintained, however, by the members and this will meet each Wednesday afternoon to do sewing for the work of the bureau. The members present last evening were: Mrs. John C. Geary, Miss Elizabeth Drea, Miss Katherine Hogan, Mrs. Thomas Shea, Miss Nellie Sweeney, Mrs. Frank D'Avignon, Miss Mary Drea, Mrs. Mary K. Murphy, Mrs. Stanley Thomas, Mrs. John McConville, Mrs. Jerome Collins, Mrs. James Cody, Mrs. F. H. Davis, Miss Katherine E. Moran and Miss Delia M. Moroney.

During the meeting the members presented Miss Katherine Hogan a silver rosary and a bar pin in appreciation of her services to the organization.

WESTERLY

The Alert Hook and Ladder company, organized in 1843, held its annual election and turkey supper on Thursday evening, at the rooms of the company, on Union street. The meeting was featured by the presentation by James E. Tefft of a 14 carat gold life membership badge, similar to the company fire badge, to the retiring foreman, George A. McKenzie. The badge was inscribed "Life Membership, 25 Years' Service, 1899-1923." At the annual fire district meeting on Dec. 5th Foreman McKenzie was elected assistant engineer of the fire district. The session was attended by 50 members and exempt members with Harry Peckham as steward and under the direction of a committee consisting of Herbert W. Hoadley, Everett Clark and George W. Burdick. Chief of Fire Department George Egger and Columbus Passetti were also in attendance.

The election resulted as follows: Foreman, James E. Tefft; first assistant engineer, George W. Burdick; second assistant engineer, Thomas P. Patton; treasurer, Herbert W. Hoadley; secretary, George M. Pendleton.

The third meeting of the week of prayer was held at the Pawcatuck Congregational church Thursday evening at 7.30, when the pastor, Rev. Ernest E. Morrill, had for his subject, The Need of Prayer, with prayer theme, The Nation.

This (Friday) evening at the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church will be held the fourth in the week's series of union evening prayer meetings. Pastor Rev. Clayton A. Burdick will have for his subject, The Power of Prayer, and the prayer theme will be The World.

The Little Nelly Kelly company, one of the largest song and dance companies to play in Westerly, arrived in town by special train at 3.45 Thursday afternoon from Fitchburg, Mass., by way of Providence. The special train carried 64 members of the company in a coach and had two baggage cars. This (Friday) morning the train is scheduled to leave Westerly for Newport, R. I.

Run onto a siding at the Westerly station Thursday morning was a special construction train of three cars bettered Western Union Telegraph Co. The equipment consisted of two sleeping cars with dining compartments and a tool car. The construction crew of thirty men are making repairs and renewals to the telegraph company lines, coming here from New London and going to Kingston, R. I.

Fayette F. Freeman of Westerly is a business visitor in Boston this (Friday) morning.

A regular conclave of Narragansett commandery, No. 37, Knights Templar, was held in their asylum on High street Wednesday evening when the Order of The Temple was worked. There being present four Knights from Columbian Commandery in Norwich.

William D. Cross, towerman at Bradford on the New Haven railroad, returned to his home in Westerly on Wednesday evening from a Christmas and New Year vacation, passed at the home of his mother in Chester, Pa.

Miss Martha Burdick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Burdick of the West Side, returned to Providence on Wednesday afternoon, to resume her studies at Brown, after the holiday vacation passed with her parents in Pawcatuck.

Miss Mary Brodie, after a mid-year vacation with her parents and sisters in Westerly, left Wednesday for Plainfield, N. J., to take up her duties as a teacher in the public schools.

A long heavy freight train, eastbound, Wednesday afternoon was unable at 3 o'clock to make the grade past the Westerly station. When near the top of the grade the string of cars was backed up to the Palmer street crossing, where a pusher locomotive was added to send the train east.

Mrs. William B. Senior of the West Side was in Providence Wednesday to place her young son, Robert Thomas, in school.

Session of the Third district court will be held in the court rooms on Union street this (Friday) morning at 9 o'clock. A week ago Judge Michael J. Turano, in the case of alleged keeping intoxicating liquors for sale, State vs. Patsy Salemano, in which a question was raised as to whether the place described in the search warrant was 79 or 79 1-2 Pleasant street, reserved his decision for a week; judgment will probably be given this (Friday) morning.

The second in the series of union prayer meetings begun at the Methodist church, New Year's Eve, was largely attended at Calvary Baptist church Wednesday evening. Tuesday evening having been omitted from the week's series. The speaker was Rev. Lewis A. Walker, the subject, The Nation, being used for the prayer theme.

Probate Judge Edward M. Burke held a session of the Westerly probate court Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock when business was disposed of as follows:

Estate of Celines Schweizer—Walter Pickering of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of Providence, was appointed executor. Bond $20,000, with surety Francis G. Haswell was appointed appraiser and residuary agent. Attorney Francis T. Reeves of Waterbury was present at the hearing.

Estate of Nancy N. Gardner—First and final account received, allowed, and ordered recorded. Permission was granted to set aside trust fund of the share of Herman Lamphere, 60 years of age, fisherman, formerly of Westerly, one of the heirs whose present address is unknown.

Estate of Mary N. F. Brigham—Petition of Washington Trust Co., for permission to sell real estate in Westerly, received and continued to January 15th.

BRITISH EXPECT WONDERS FROM RADIO SCIENCE.

London, Jan. 3 (By the A. P.)—England, like America, has become radio mad. The recent successive triumphs in "getting" the United States and other distant countries by wireless telephony have given enormous impetus to the sale of receiving sets, some varieties of which are being sold for as little as fifty cents.

To meet the British public's demands for further dissemination of wireless programs the British broadcasting company now is erecting another powerful wireless relay station at Plymouth which, with the transmitting plants at London, Birmingham, Manchester, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Cardiff and Bournemouth, will link up the whole British Isles.

Nothing has fired the public imagination so much as America in the silence of the night sending New Year's greetings across the ocean in mystic radio waves to her British cousins. The East Pittsburgh and other stations were heard as clearly as though the heaving Atlantic had been eliminated and England had become a next door neighbor to the United States.

During the last week not only America but remoter places like South Africa, India, New Zealand and Mesopotamia have been heard distinctly, and the British public expects that this year will bring more sensational achievements in radio science.

It is anticipated that as continental and transatlantic transmission improves, the relay system now conducted by the British Broadcasting company will enable listeners-in here to make a tour of the world in a single night, and hear in the course of an hour or two the concerts in New York, Chicago, Vienna, Prague, Rome, Berlin, Paris and Moscow.

Even those possessing crystal sets have been able to listen to America through the action of the powerful broadcasting station here in relaying the American programs. Only those possessing multiple tube sets have been able thus far to pick up the United States directly, and then only after the rest of England had gone to bed and there was complete darkness over the Atlantic.

At Manchester this week Mrs. Sarah Nightingale heard the voice of her son, S. J. Nightingale of the Westinghouse Electric company, Pittsburgh, across 3,500 miles of space as he sang a number of musical selections.

So much success attended the recent experiments of British radio engineers in talking across the ocean that a great part of England now sits up all night trying to establish wireless contact with the American stations. Amateurs are encouraged in their efforts by the fact that the American wave lengths are much the same as those used by the British stations, which range from 300 to 500 meters.

With a five tube set messages from New York have been received on the loud speaker in London, Manchester Bradford and other English cities. On New Year's eve a group of Americans were heard lustily singing: "We won't go home until morning."

FAMILY WOULD OPPOSE THE RELEASE OF THAW

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 3.—Any effort to obtain the release of Harry K. Thaw from a sanatorium in Philadelphia will be opposed by his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, Howard Irish, trustee of Harry K. Thaw's estate announced tonight in a statement issued on behalf of the Thaw family.

Mr. Irish stated Bartholomew B. Coyne, New York attorney, who has announced that he would seek Thaw's freedom, "does not represent us in any way," the statement follows:

"Speaking for Mrs. Thaw, the family and myself as trustee, Mr. Cuyne does not represent us in any way. If any action such as reported in the press for Harry K. Thaw's release is started, it will be opposed by Mrs. Thaw and the family."

130,000 METAL WORKERS ON STRIKE IN BERLIN

Berlin, Jan. 3.—Owing to the refusal of the metal workers here to agree to a proposed reduction in wages the employers today locked out 130,000 men in the industry. One hundred Berlin plants are idle as a result.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

FARMS DON'T WEAR OUT, BUT FARMERS PETER OUT.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I don't s'pose you ever heard of Pierre Lafargue? Anyway, I never did till last week when a chance reading of an item in the foreign news introduced him.

You see, he isn't the sort of chap to get his name on any front page of any newspaper. He never rose to fame by planning big battles or burning peaceful villages. He never attained eminence in politics by doubling-up constituencies. He never acquired great wealth by overworking and impoverishing other men. He never made a big name at the bar through securing the release of desperate criminals by sharp practice and perversion of truth. Indeed, he never seems to have done any of the things which would be likely to put his name amid the more or less notorious list of front-pagers.

He's just a plain farmer. He lives on a small farm in the department of Tarn-et-Garonne in southern France. This department is about the size of New London and Windham counties, consists mostly of a plateau averaging about a thousand feet above sea level, and produces grains, grapes, hemp and sundry root crops. Its soil is neither arid nor especially fertile,—just a fair average sort of dirt. Pierre Lafargue cultivates a small farm in this department, and manages to make a fair living for himself and family, as well as, in the thrifty French fashion, to lay by a little something for coming rainy days.

The only reason his name ever got into print at all, is that the French government has just given him an honorary medal.—There's another illustration of the odd ideas those Frenchmen have about the functions of government. Did ja ever hear of an American farmer being presented a medal, honorary or otherwise, by the American government, huh?

But the French government gave Pierre Lafargue an honorary medal because investigation showed that he is today cultivating the same farm which his ancestors in unbroken line, have cultivated and lived on for the past 1,151 years.

Assuming the accepted average of 33⅓ years to a generation, this means about thirty-five generations of Lafargues who have farmed the same land, doubtless in about the same way and with about the same crops; and who have managed to keep up both the productivity of the soil and the virility of the Lafargues during that time.

Think of it: eleven hundred and fifty-some years steady, consecutive farming of the same land by the same people, and both going strong and nearly today!

Yet you and I know of farms in Connecticut, naturally just as fertile, blessed with quite as good a climate, managed by that sort of Yankees whom we are apt to hear described as the brightest minds and the keenest wits and the sharpest managers in the world,—which have been abandoned as 'worn-out' after hardly two hundred years of farm cropping.

Please take off your old cap, fellow Yank, scratch your head a few minutes and tell me, if you please, what's the reason for the difference. When you put on that cap again, rumble-looking, too. Don't clap it on rudely put it on straight and sort o' over one eye in any cocky fashion. For, really, I don't think the facts warrant any of us New England farmers in assuming very much cockiness in our accoutrements or demeanor.

I would give something to know the farming history of that Lafargue domain in Tarn-et-Garonne. I would be glad to have some first-hand information as to how the trick has been done. Let's see, 1151 years ago; that would have been A. D. 772. That was the year after Charlemagne became sole king of France,—the year when he began his career of victory by conquering the Saxons on his eastern frontier, the year before he crossed the Alps and overthrew the Lombard kingdom. It was before any Rich nation as England had been born, while yet the barbarous tribes of the isles were ruled only by the long-forgotten kings of the so-called Heptarchy, of whom the best among them being Offa, king of Mercia, a precious old pirate and scalawag who I confess I never heard of till I just now looked him up in the encyclopedia.

That was when the first Lafargue of whom family records preserve the name lived and brought up a family on the farm in Tarn-et-Garonne. His son succeeded him, in due time, and his son's son, later along. From that date the line is clear, without a break. Lafargue after Lafargue, thirty-five of them in lineal succession, have lived and worked and brought up families and been buried on their own ancestral acres.

Nor is there anything in existing circumstances to forbid the presumption that other Lafargues will succeed, for thirty-five more generations.

Now, I admit that, while this is interesting about the Lafargues, it isn't awfully exciting to the casual reader. Nor could I expect you to be deeply thrilled over the placid, eleven-centuried existence of a family of French peasants, in a remote rural province.

But, if you're a farmer, you can't help being not only interested but "all worked up" by curiosity to know how in tophet those peasants have managed to keep a small farm up to high productive capacity during 1,151 years of consecutive cropping.

Unfortunately for that curiosity of yours in which I fully share, no information is at present available. In the absence of knowledge of how it was done, we can only suggest certain ways in which it manifestly was not done.

It wasn't done, for instance, by free use of Chilian nitrate or Tennessee phosphate, for neither Chili nor Tennessee were then discovered. Nor to German potash, for there wasn't at that time a German in all Deutschland who knew that such a thing as potash existed in the earth.

In truth, realising the utter lack of roads in A. D. 772, the impossibility of commercial transportation, and the complete dependence of every community on its own resources to furnish its own needs, we can set it down as fairly certain that the Lafargue farm, for at least the first thousand years of its existence, kept itself, of itself, by itself, and for itself. It grew its own crops for its own maintenance, and, at the same time, developed annually a fresh supply of fertility against next season's demands.

In other words it did, for a thousand years at least, just exactly what the fertilizer advocates and too many working New England farmers say can't be done. That is, it maintained its productive capacity for all that time, without importing anything whatever to make good the drain of annual crops on the soil's inherent fertility.

If you think that feat isn't one deserving an honorary medal, then your judgment isn't as good as it might be.

Can you do it?

Have you done it?

Do you know any brainy Yankee farmer who has done it?

Why, Eaten up at Storrs is trying his hardest—and that's something not to be sneezed at—to make Connecticut farmers see how they can get their nitrogen out of their own air, and their potash out of their own soil, so that, supplemented by a little imported phosphate and a decent dressing of farm-made manure and the thrifty saving of self-grown humus, the soil will seasonally recreate and rejuvenate itself. Yet, for every one farmer who's trying out this system for himself, two are abandoning their farms in hopeless despair as "worn out" beyond the chance of profitable redemption.

It's this sort of thing which makes me a bit indignant and inclined to be sassy. Can't Connecticut Yankees who are fond of boasting themselves "heirs of all the ages and in the foremost files of time"—can't they do as well by their farms as a procession of French peasants have done by theirs for more than a thousand years?

The average Yank has as good a head and as strong arms and as sturdy legs as any French peasant. He has ten times greater opportunities for self-teaching and self-help. Yet the Lafargues farm it successfully for eleven hundred and fifty-one years on the same fields, while the woods of Connecticut are full of Weary Willie farmers who have given up farming because they say their land is "worn out" and won't pay any longer for working.

The plain truth seems to be that, in nine cases out of ten, it is not the farm which wears out but the farmer who peters out. Why, all the farms of France and Germany and England have been cultivated and cropped for at least a thousand, some of them for more than two thousand years. Not always nor often by the same family, as in this Lafargue case, but by some one. They've kept up their fertility, too. They've been so managed as to feed themselves at the same time they were feeding the families which cultivated them. The average production of potatoes in Germany is much greater per acre than in the United States. The average production of wheat, per acre, in England is higher than in this country. That, too, on fields which have been cropped for untold generations.

The comparison is not one to induce boastfulness on our part. Rather it should suggest a somewhat humble inquiry as to why we, with our comparatively new soils, have impoverished them instead of maintaining them.

It isn't wise to be too flat-footed and outspoken in our judgments. Undoubtedly there are instances of farm-impoverishment in New England which are not due to personal lapses on the part of their conductors. It won't do to make a special case the basis for a general dogma. But all the evidence seems to point to the truth that nine times out of ten, soils which are intelligently and thriftily managed do not wear out. When they do, it is more probable that the farmer is at fault than that the land is.

The first farmers of this country found its soils enriched to saturation with the accumulated and unused fertility of ten or twenty thousand years. There are still areas of the west and northwest in that same condition. It is mighty easy land to produce from, that; but it is calculated to lead a rather thriftless and heedless form of agriculture. We are hardly as apt to foster and nurse that which costs us nothing as that which has to be earned by work and sweat.

Yankees are considered a thrifty breed. Yet those who know from observation unanimously report that hardly a farmer in the whole length and breadth of New England observes the same painstaking care in saving farm manures and utilizing farm wastes as is practically universal in France and Denmark. Farmers in those lands have been taught by stern experience that they must do this or starve. We might save ourselves some loss if we would profit by their experience, rather than wait to be cudgelled into submission by our own.

In the mean time "Vive Lafargue!" And, eleven hundred and fifty years from now, may there be scores of New England farms with similar records to point back to!

We'll all join in wishing that. But how many are ready to bet that it will actually happen, eh?

THE FARMER.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

A Visit in Cuba

Now where do you suppose the magic airship took Little Jack Rabbit one evening? Why, to Cuba, where the first thing he saw was a number of children with rude lanterns, and for light they had filled them with the wonderful fireflies of Cuba. Hopping up to one of the children to look more closely at the strange lanterns, he saw that the fireflies were as large as a roach, each with three eyes, which shone like phosphorous.

"Goodness me," he cried. "I have seen many strange things in Fairy Land, but never such wonderful lanterns."

Pretty soon, a little Cuban girl confided to him that she also kept these fireflies for pets and often wore them in her hair for ornaments.

"What is your name?" he asked.

"Oh, I have many names! but every Cuban girl is named Maria, no matter how many she may have," she answered.

By and by, she invited the little bunny boy to her house, and, as it was late, he soon fell asleep on a mat. When morning came and the bright sun shone on the house, he thought at first, there must be a rainbow somewhere, for the houses in Cuba, you know, are painted purple and pink, scarlet and blue, yellow crimson and emerald. And they have no glass windows—just bars of iron.

After a while, he hopped down to the seashore to watch the men catch the fish. And would you believe it, they were as gaily colored as the houses.

After that he hopped into a part of the town where the poor children lived—in little huts with [illegible] and roofs of palm leaves. They played in the dust among the [illegible] cacti, a kind of prickly plant you know, throwing stones at the hens and goats, which often walked right [illegible] the hut as though it belonged to them.

From there the [illegible] stopped on a little way to see many children at work; some sorting coffee beans, and others filling big market baskets with fresh grass.

Now and then, the little negro children would stop working and begin a wild dance, and the little Spanish children a graceful one, while the negro boys beat on their drums.

By and by, as Little Jack Rabbit stood watching these strange sights, a procession came by. It was in honor of the patron saint of the little village, or "pueblo," as the Cubans say. It was the "procession of Maria." A little girl was riding in a cart, in front of which walked men clad as Indians, and behind it, men clad as Moors. And there was music and they marched all about the village.

And when the day was almost over, the convent bells began to ring, just as the sun was going down and everyone stopped work or play and knelt to pray. And later, when the moon shone over the beautiful bay of Havana, the little rabbit heard a mother say to her child, "Come in out of the moonshine," for every Cuban mother believes the moon twists the beast of the field and turns good fish into poison and makes the little children crooked-faced. And in the next story you shall hear where the bunny boy went in his magic aeroplane.

LEFFINGWELL

Mrs. Justine Bedal, of Maple street and Miss Eleanor Harrington, of Ann street, Norwich, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bedal.

Merton L. Swan of Connell street Norwich, was a visitor New Year's day at The Old Homestead farm. Mr. Swan has just returned to Norwich after having completed a four years' course at Tri-State college, Illinois.

Three young men in Leffingwell were wide awake Monday evening and insisted on awakening the rest of the neighborhood by ringing out the old year—and ringing in the new, on the church bell. Several of the people arose and prepared to attend the fire, but finally discovered the noise was caused by the changing of the year.

At the four corners, and across from the church, a mileage post has been erected with the help of several of the men. At the very top a sign reads: "Leffingwell Centre."

Tuesday evening, a roast pork supper was held in the church vestry, in charge of Mrs. N. E. Whiting and Mrs William A. White. The menu comprised stuffed roast pork, mashed potato, turnip, apple sauce, rolls, coffee, and squash pie. Popped corn was served later in the evening. Over $13 was realized.

Wilfred Connelly is confined to his home because of an abscess in his ear.

School opened Monday morning, after the Christmas holidays.

Saturday evening the Ecclesiastical society is to hold its meeting at the church.

Miss Edith A. Leffingwell of New York spent the holiday week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell.

Two unmasked bandits held up the First National Bank at Shidler, near Pawkuska, Okla., yesterday and escaped with $8,100.

CHAPLIN

Miss Vera Back of New York was visitor over Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Carrie Hemingway.

The annual business meeting and roll call service of the Congregational church was held Tuesday, Jan. 1. Rev. John H. Knott was chairman for the day. The business meeting was at 11 o'clock a. m. Reports by A. M. Grant, the clerk and treasurer and by W. B. Gallup for the prudential committee were read and accepted.

Deacon A. M. Grant was reelected clerk and treasurer. Samuel A. Chappell, member of prudential committee for three years; auditor, Frank C. Lummis. A good number were present and at noon all enjoyed an excellent dinner and a social hour. The dinner was in charge of Miss Ada Lanphear and efficient helpers. At the afternoon service interesting reports were given by the Sunday school, Y. P. S. C. E. and the Ladies' Aid society, all showing a prosperous year. The roll call followed when sixty-five responded in person and by letter.

Rev. J. H. Knott gave an inspiring report of his work during the past year and thanked all for their cooperation in the work of the church. During the past year there were four deaths, four removals and one added by letter. Membership of the church Jan. 1, 1924, is 95. The invested fund of the church are $11,734.48.

The every member canvass resulted in an increase of funds over the previous year and the church starts the new year under encouraging conditions.

HOME, THE FORSAKEN

I am called Home! In bygone years a nobly cherished place;
A portal glorified of men, revered by all the race.
Today I live unloved, unsung; a rooftopped vagabond
Whose clan is on excursion to Care-freedom and beyond.
But I've had happiness, my friend! I've known a gladder day,
When 'round my door and fireside the children used to play.
Good fathers, by the evening lamp, were well content to be Within my portals, where good wives held sweet supremacy.
Good neighbors came, at periods, to sit and while away
An evening over chess or whist and topics of the day.
Old Romp, the dog, snug by the fire, knew not a canine care;
Old Puss, the cat, content at home, found catly comfort there.
How well do I remember, too, the organ, Estey-made,
Whereon, in humble happiness, heart-hallowed hymns were played.
I see a great round table, too, with coverlet of red,
A pyramid of apples—gone ere evening prayers were said!
I see in memory many things that picture well the day
When Home was Home—but, now, alas! My tenants! Where are they?

I am called Home! But not the home of happy used-to-be;
Instead I'm refuge only in some dire extremity.
My threshold is a racing post from which the speeders fly
In quest of thrills romantic by land and sea and sky.
They week-end here, they week-end there, they sojourn at the springs—
When last I saw our debutante she played with baby things.
I had to smile a week ago when father tried my door—
You would have thought my key was one he'd never used before.
And son—son home from college—raced in to find his room
A museum for mummies from some far Egyptian tomb.
Then mother—worn and haggard—came in the other day
To clear her trunks of desert sand, repack and rush away.
Old Romp, the dog, now knows no home except the chauffeur's seat;
Poor Puss, the cat, has dwelt for months in some feline retreat.
As, restless souls! I wonder when your feet will cease to roam;
If somewhere, deep within you, there is not a thought of home?
I'll watch and wait! Perhaps some day you'll stagger thro' the door,
Confess there's no place else to go—then fall faint on the floor!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SHARP REACTION IN MARKET

New York, Jan. 3.—Professional speculators for the decline, taking advantage of the heavy realizing sales by traders who deferred converting their paper profits into cash until after the turn of the year, succeeded in bringing about a sharp reaction in today's stock market, net losses in active issues ranging from fractions to 5 1-4 points. Oils, equipments and steels were the hardest hit among the standard industrials with sharp breaks also taking place in such specialties as Davison Chemical and Dupont, off 5 1-4 and 3 3-8 points, respectively.

The selling was conducted in the face of several favorable trade developments, including another reduction of 16,500 barrels daily in crude oil output, and an increase in gasoline prices in Ohio, higher pig iron prices at Chicago, reports of increased copper consumption, and lower rates for call money.

Weakness of the foreign exchanges, which is reported in some quarters to have influenced the local selling of securities, is regarded in some quarters as a bullish factor on the theory that it would tend to send European funds to this center for investment. French francs sank to a new record low of 4.83 cents at the opening in response to heavy selling of franc bills abroad, but made partial recovery before the close. Demand Sterling rallied from a low of $4.26 1-4 at the opening to above $4.28 1-2. Most of the other principal exchanges showed small recessions on the day.

Selling in the stock market was concentrated for a time on U. S. Steel common, which had been pushed up above par on the last day of 1923. The stock was forced down nearly a point today to 98 1-8. Bethlehem slipped back 3-4 to 53. Selling of these issues brought about liquidation in the general list, recessions of a point or so being quite common before noon. Improved buying came into the market later and the general list showed a tendency to firmness when heavy selling broke out just before the close in the Pan-American issues on reports of a sharp reduction in earnings resulting from the steady decline of Mexican light oil production. Pan-American A and B dropped nearly 5 points each to 54 and 56 respectively, making a feeble recovery in the final sales.

Losses of 1 to nearly 2 points were recorded by Baldwin, American Locomotive, American Can, American Smelting & Refining, Corn Products, Pacific Oil, Producers & Refiners, Phillips Petroleum, Pure Oil, Jones Bros. Tea, Schulte Stores, Philip Morris and Continental Can.

Good buying developed, however, in Consolidated Gas, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Stewart-Warner Speedometer, Central Leather preferred, Cuyamel Fruit and International Harvester, the gains ranging from 1 to 4 points.

Trading in rails was sluggish at times although marked progress was made by some of the southern and northwestern carriers, Southern Railway, Seaboard Air Line preferred, Louisville & Nashville, Chicago & Northwestern, the Rock Island preferred issues and Texas & Pacific all closing a point or so higher. Express shares also were strong.

Call money opened at 5 1-4 percent., eased to 5 and then to 4 3-4, reflecting the return flow of funds withdrawn from this center by interior institutions to meet year-end payments. The time money and commercial poper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Wheat averaged a little lower in price today with weakness of foreign exchange rates having some depressing effect notwithstanding that Sterling subsequently rallied. Wheat closed unsettled at ¼c net lower to ½c advance, May 107 1-2 to 107 5-8 and July 106 1-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 3-4c higher, oats unchanged to 1-8c off and provisions varying from 15c declining to 7c gain.

There was little inclination to buy wheat with the domestic visible supply totaling about 75,000,000 bushels and with export and domestic trade both slow. It was pointed out that the amount of wheat cleared from the United States last week was only enough to keep one elevator working one hour, furthermore, according to a prominent miller, 75 percent of the flour business has been done, leaving but 25 percent for the remainder of the season. Under such circumstances, today's downturn in foreign exchange counted as a bearish influence despite the fact that export business of late has been nearly negligible.

Strength in the corn market was more or less responsible for slight rallies which the wheat market showed during the last part of the day. Besides, some attention was given to primary receipts of wheat which are only about one-third as large as a year ago. Opinions were expressed in some quarters that hereafter the small receipts will be reflected by decreasing stocks. Late gossip also was current that a little United States wheat had been taken for export, and that European buying of Canadian wheat yesterday had been under-estimated.

Decided falling off in the volume of corn receipts here gave an upward tendency to the corn market throughout the day. Oats were upheld by corn.

Provisions were weak in sympathy with the hog market.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 3.—Heavy selling of the oil shares, representing profit-taking by traders who had purchased stocks during the early part of the recent rise and short selling on the theory that the condition of the market warranted at least a temporary reaction, brought about a sharp downward revision of prices in today's curb market.

Prairie Oil & Gas dropped 14 points to 254 and then rallied to 256 and Standard Oils of Ohio and Nebraska each closed at a net loss of 9 points. Losses of 1 to 3 points were registered by Galena Signal, Humble Oil, Illinois Pipe, Imperial of Canada, Ohio Oil, Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky and New York, Prairie Pipe and Vacuum Oil.

Revival of activity in Durant Motors, which moved up 1 point to 35, and the establishment of a record high at 35 by Gold Dust corporation, were among the outstanding developments in the industrial list. Dunhill International and Glen Alden Coal lost ground.

The slump in Walker Mining to 2 1-2 as against a high of 3 1-8 yesterday featured the mining group.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 3.—Strength and activity of foreign government bonds in the face of declining foreign exchanges featured today's relatively active bond market.

In some quarters purchase of French and other Continental bonds was construed as rebuying of securities sold during the latter part of 1923 for income tax loss purposes. Some of the French Municipals gained more than a point today.

While some of the high grade investment railroad mortgages were easier generally railroad securities as well as the bonds of public utilities and domestic industrial companies met good support at slightly higher levels.

In the industrial group selling was largely confined to the tobacco, copper and steel company issues, while the buying covered numerous utilities, some of the oils and chemicals and a wide assortment of specialty company mortgages.

Compilation of 1923 bond transactions of the New York stock exchange disclosed a total par value of $2,758,641,000 as compared with $4,098,978,000 in 1922, a decline of approximately 32 1-2 in volume.

THREE-YEAR SENTENCES FOR RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Boston, Jan. 3.—Morris and Jacob Slarsky, brothers, and Harry Schwartz, all of Ayer, were sentenced in the federal court here today to three years imprisonment each in the Worcester house of correctoin for receiving stolen goods. The government charged that they were the ring leaders in the recent theft of army goods valued at $25,000 from Camp Devens. Nine soldiers who had been stationed at the camp were sentenced yesterday to a year's imprisonment each.

SALE OF GERMAN DYE AND CHEMICAL PATENTS UPHELD

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 3.—Sale of the seized German dye and chemical patents of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., by the alien property custodian, was sustained today by Judge Morris, in the federal district court here.

Judge Morris declared he could find no ground upon which the sale of enemy property to the foundation might be set aside, as the government had asked in its suit in equity, and announced that the government's bill of complaint "must be dismissed."

Announcement already has been made on behalf of Attorney General Daugherty that an appeal will be noted and that the case will be carried to the supreme court for ultimate adjudication.

GULBRANSEN
The Registering Piano

Real Music—"As You Like It"

$420
$495
$575
$650

DO your own playing! It's so much more fun than to have others do it for you!

To go to your Gulbransen—and actually play—gives you a real sense of accomplishment! It interests—satisfies! It is one of the most delightful experiences imaginable!

Delightful because Gulbransen music is so expressive! So full of feeling—so full of life—you take a personal pride in producing it.

Accenting, for instance. That's important! For in any piece you play there's a strain of "melody" you must pick out and accent properly, to give it a pleasing rendition.

But, where are the melody notes? In what part of the keyboard do they occur? With the ordinary player-piano that's a real problem. But by observing the Melody Indicator—a simple and convenient little patented guide—you know where the melody notes are, and just where to accent them, on the Gulbransen!

The Melody Indicator greatly simplifies correct playing. In combination with sensitive "pedal-touch" and Gulbransen Instruction Rolls, it is the thing that makes musicianly playing possible!

NORWICH TOWN

Following is the report of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, as submitted by the recording secretary, Burton W. Jopson, at the annual business meeting of the First Congregational church New Year's afternoon. The average attendance at the regular meetings during the year was fourteen members and four visitors, with the exception of a few special meeting which were more largely attended. A list of the officers and members has been sent to the United Society for printing. Letters have been written and those received have been passed on to the several officers and committees. The corresponding secretary has kept the society in touch with state and local work. This year each of the members has led one or more meetings. At least four times this society has met with the First Methodist society.

The regular service has been given up three times to attend meetings at the Y. M. C. A., to hear Mr. King, also Miss Margaret Slattery. Reports have been read of the State C. E. convention, Fitchville Union and the C. E. Institute, at New London.

This society has had the pleasure of hearing several fine speakers. One who gave an address on the American Bond; Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn on the Passion Play; Miss Slattery on several occasions; Miss Rose Durr on school nursing; Miss Ruth Beebe on her work in Athens, Alabama; Lemuel M. Fielding of Norwich in a very interesting talk about the Mohegan Indians; Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Greeneville, who spoke before the society on Easter Sunday; Charles Abbott of St. Paul, Minn., on Evolution, and Eddy Asivatham of Madura, India, who gave a talk on work and customs in his native land.

Orrin Maples, superintendent of Norwich C. E. Union and Miss Florence M. Bennett a member of the union committee have had charge of two meetings; and two meetings of the Norwich union were held with the local society, one in January and one in September. Several outside of the society have led meetings during the year; three Sunday evenings motion pictures were shown on The Life of Christ, entitled "From the Manger to the Cross."

Several meetings of the Lookout committee have been held and four new active members, one new associate member have been added and one associate member has been transferred to active membership. The Missionary committee met at the home of Miss Helen Schwenk and made scrap books for Miss Beebe. In December, The Missionary Pageant was held church night. The Missionary Play was given also for Sunday school entertainment.

A number of programs have been arranged for the Sunday school hour. Stereopticon Lectures were given in January, on Home and Foreign Missions. The Missionary Committee had charge of several meetings during the year.

A Valentine Social was held in the Chapel February 14th. Games were played, prizes awarded and refreshments served. The C. E. Society had charge of one of the Thursday evening suppers. About eighty were present. An admission of 25 cents was charged to defray expenses. $10 was cleared at the supper, some being used for C. E. work.

On June 28th, a shower was held in the chapel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Jopson. At the close of the evening a casserole was presented Mr. and Mrs. Jopson. October 30th, the C. E. society held the annual picnic at Ocean Beach. Bathing, bowling and a basket lunch were greatly enjoyed.

The Flower Committee was very efficient in providing flowers for the church. Special Music has been arranged on several occasions.

Concluding the report of the corresponding secretary, the report of the treasurer was given which showed the society to be in good standing leaving a balance in the treasury. When the play entitled "The Ministers Wife's New Bonnet" was given in the Congregational chapel by the Methodist C. E. society, the net proceeds received by the Congregational society was $36.75. From this $26 was sent to the State Union for pledges and $10 was contributed to the Church Repair Fund. Besides this, money has been received from several other branches, which with disbursements throughout the year, leaves a substantial balance in the treasury.

At this annual meeting of the church a letter from a former pastor, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, extending cordial greetings to his Norwich Town friends, was read by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the church.

The usual first Friday devotions will take place at Sacred Heart church, today (Friday). There will be mass at 7 o'clock in the morning with devotion in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in the evening, at 7.30.

Miss Margaret Mahoney of Scotland road, was the guest New Year's Day and is remaining throughout the week, at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr and Mrs. D. J. Lucy of Asylum Avenue, Hartford.

Raymond P. Lamb, M. D., of Boston, who has been a guest for ten days at the home of his parents Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, returned Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Harriet Brainerd and her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gremley of Mystic, motored to Norwich Town recently, and were callers on Dr. and Mrs. Lamb, having made the trip especially to meet Mrs. Brainerd's nephew, Dr. Raymond P. Lamb, of Boston. Dr. Lamb was warmly greeted by his relatives and friends whom he had not met in several years.

LEGAL NOTICES

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Connecticut.

In the matter of Simon Pogolowitz, a bankrupt, in Bankruptcy No. 6775.

To the creditors of the above named bankrupt, of Norwich in the county of New London, District aforesaid, bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 28th day of December, A. D. 1923, the above named was duly adjudicated a bankrupt and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held before the undersigned, at his office, 56 Church St., Norwich, in said District, on the 14th day of January, A. D. 1924, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint trustee, be heard as to orders of Referee for care of property of the estate and disposal thereof, at auction or private sale, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THOMAS M. SHIELDS,
Referee in Bankruptcy.
Norwich, Conn., January 3rd, 1924.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What! You are planning to go to Vienna? But that will cost you a fortune."

"Oh, not so much. You see I'll have my youth restored by Dr. Steinach and come back on a child's ticket."—Lustige Blatter.

"You believe in signs, eh? I wasn't aware that you were superstitious."

"Superstitious? I call it self-protection. I always drive my own car and I haven't yet received even a cross look from a traffic cop or lost my way in the country."—Boston Transcript.

"Jack says when we are married he won't allow me much out of his sight."

"Oh, don't bother about that, my dear! Has he said how much he'll allow you out of his income?"—London Mail.

Margaret, aged 4, upon her return from a visit to her grandparents in the country, was asked how she enjoyed her visit.

"Oh, pretty well," she replied, "but I'd like the country much better if it was here in town."—Chicago News.

Practicing golf indoors he had broken a mirror, but it didn't seem to worry him. "Don't you realize," said his wife, "that you are in for seven years of bad luck?"

"Sure!" he answered merrily. "But I'm used to that—the point is, if I'm to have seven years of bad luck, I'm sure of living that long, anyhow."—Boston Transcript.

PUTNAM

more than 500 responsible business and professional men have bought its shares and have good grounds to justify their pride in owning an interest in it.

It is reported by the corporation that the increased capital recently authorized by the board of directors is being rapidly taken up among its present shareholders and their friends.

The corporation did a volume of business of approximately $400,000 during the year and with larger capital to work with it is confidently predicted that 1924 will show still greater progress and greater earnings for its shareholders.

Thursday morning found the first batch of prisoners of 1924 leaving this city, after presentation in the city court, for a stay in Brooklyn jail. There were three men in the party—Alfred Ouillette, who said he hailed from Willimantic; Thomas Davis of Attawaugan and Henry Menard of Wauregan. All went over for 30 days.

The "mysterious stranger" who has never been seen and who never has been caught by officials sold them their liquor. None of them knew him. He looked different to each of them. Tall to one, short to another, etc. He even solicited them to buy. And the court listened and tapped its fingers—and then came the sentence in each case "20 days." Peter Gardner gave the trio their ride to Brooklyn over ice-coated roads.

Of interest here is the announcement that Charles K. Shaw, Providence, formerly of this city, so badly sprained a leg ligament recently while playing tennis that he will have to wear a cast for several weeks. Mr. Shaw left here eight years ago, was engaged in business in Pawtucket for a time as a partner of Philip Benoit, also formerly here, and in more recent years has been engaged in business for himself. He was state tennis champion of Rhode Island for one year and is one of the best exponents of the game in that state.

A sleet storm Thursday morning gave motorists their most trying experiences of the season, due to bad wheeling. Cars slid and scooted about in unexpected ways, despite tire chain protection and in some instances were ditched.

County Agent F. L. Davis is at present engaged in making a fruit survey. This work includes obtaining filled out questionnaires from members of the largest growers of fruit in the county. These forms cover in a comprehensive manner the whole subject as to major considerations of fruit growing and are expected to prove very valuable to the County Farmers' association and especially to the fruit growers themselves.

District Deputy Kenneth Michie and suite will come here from Danielson Tuesday evening of next week to install the newly elected officers of General Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows.

Judge George E. Hinman will be here this morning to preside at the opening session of the January term of the Windham county superior court. All accused will be on hand and put to plea.

Next week, by virtue of a reappointment made in the legislature in 1923, Judge M. H. Geissler will begin another term of two years as judge of the Putnam city court.

Vincent McAvoy, seriously injured while in active service in the front lines with the Rainbow division in France during the World war, has gone to United States Veterans' hospital No. 81, in the Bronx section of New York, for observation. Mr. McAvoy required nearly a year's hospital treatment for his injuries after returning to this country from France. Of late his health has been such as to make it advisable for him to go to New York for observation.

FOR RELIEF OF TRAFFIC LOAD ON THE RAILROADS

New York, Jan. 3—A hundred of the largest manufacturers and shippers of the east today joined the American railway association in forming the middle Atlantic coast regional advisory board as a step toward the elimination of car shortage and embargo an dan aid in cooperatively distributing the traffic load of the railroads.

Heads of the A. R. A. announced that, with most of the area of the nation already covered by similar regional boards, recently organized, others would be formed by next March which would complete the national region board system. Organizations of the Illinois district will be undertaken next. It was said, after which the New England states will be organized as a group.

The middle Atlantic group taken into the system today included New York state east of the Niagara Falls district, eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. Committees were appointed to study the car supply problems of each industrial group and to seek, through conferences with rail experts and representatives of state public utilities bodies, to eliminate over-production, seasonal traffic jam, partial loading of cars, unnecessary demurrage, and avoidable embargoes.

As a first step, the advisory will ask each freight car user in the region to report every 60 days the number loaded cars he experts to receive in the next three to six months, and the number of empties he will require for outgoing shipments.

It is intended that these reports will not only enable the railroads to plan the distribution of rolling stock so as to forestall congestions and shortages, but that it will effect a saving for shipper by assuring them a more equable distribution, a consequent more equable production, and a co-ordination between manufacturing and sales departments which will result in big plan economies.

$1,300 VERDICT AGAINST ESTATE OF MARK TWAIN

Bridgeport, Jan. 3—A verdict of $1,300 for the Bridgeport Land and Title company in its suit against the estate of Mark Twain for an unpaid commission on the sale of the author's Redding home, "Stormfield," was returned by a jury in the superior court here this afternoon. The verdict was accepted by Judge Arthur F. Ells.

"Stormfield" which recently burned to the ground, was sold to James Frederick Givens, of New York for $30,000, and the award of damage represents the regular commission of five per cent., less one half of a bill for advertising which the plaintiff had agreed to pay in the event that a purchaser was found.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF BUSINESS FAILURES

New York, Jan. 3—Business failures in the United States fell off 14 per cent in 1923, Bradstreet's reported today. The number of failures last year was 19,163, as against 22,415 for 1922, the greatest decrease being in the south. New England, the middle Atlantic and central states also showed decreases but the west and northwest states recorded more failures than in 1922.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau of Providence street celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Thursday, by entertaining 150 relatives and friends. There was a solemn high mass celebrated at Sacred Heart church at 10 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. T. O. Bellerose. The church was filled with friends, and there was special music under the direction of Professor Adolph Dugas. After the service, there was a dinner served at the Parish hall. Brennan's orchestra played throughout the afternoon and dancing followed the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Fregeau received many beautiful gifts of gold. They have the following children: Mrs. Alfred Chartier of Moosup, Mrs. Edmund Proulx, Mrs. Telesphore Dupont, Miss Solfride Fregeau, Mrs. Rose Blanchard, Miss Aurore Fregeau of Taftville, Mrs. Urgel LaFrance and Mrs. Marie Faucher of Central Village. Mrs. Rosanna Bousquet and Horedore Fregeau of Danielson. A son, Exaudias, died several years ago. There are 36 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fregeau are in the best of health and their many friends unite in extending to them wishes for many more years of happy married life.

The funeral of Joseph Pothier was held Thursday morning from his late home on Merchants avenue, with a requiem high mass sung at Sacred Heart church. There were many beautiful flowers and friends acted as bearers. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. Undertaker George G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

M. J. Hatton of Providence, R. I., was a business caller in the village, Thursday.

The Thursday Evening Basketry class resumed its weekly meetings this week in the Red Cross rooms in the Lonemah block, following the holiday recess.

E. J. Fenley of Providence, R. I., was a business caller in town on Thursday.

The annual meeting of the Taftville Congregational church which usually takes place on the first Thursday after January 1st, has been adjourned until next Thursday. The standing committee met for a business session Thursday evening in the church vestry.

BROTHERS OF COTTRELL TESTIFY IN TRIAL

Charles P. Cottrell of Westerly, executor of the estate of his brother, the late Edgar H. Cottrell, wealthy printing press manufacturer of New York and Westerly, testified in the superior court in New London Thursday morning in the trial of the appeal from probate of the will of the latter, which his wife, Mrs. Leone Balfe Cottrell, is trying to break on the ground of mental incapacity. The appeal involves an estate of about $2,000,000.

Mr. Cottrell was on the stand for a short time late Wednesday afternoon and he was recalled Thurday morning. He identified numerous letters written by his brother, Edgar, to himself and brother, Arthur M. Cottrell, also an executor of the estate. The letters covered a period of about ten years and were of a private and business nature. The witness identified the handwriting as that of his brother and the letters were introduced as evidence.

Lawrence W. Scudder, an expert accountant from New York, was put on the stand by the appellants and gave testimony regarding the value of stock of the Cottrell company.

Arthur M. Cottrell was on the stand Wednesday afternoon and gave testimony regarding an agreement on the sale of stock of the C. E. Cottrell & Sons Co. in Westerly, of which the testator was president. He said he was not present when his brother Edgar made and signed the contract several years ago but that he had heard it mentioned in connection with annual inventories.

SPECIAL SYNAGOGUE SERVICE IN ENGLISH LANGUAGE

Rabbi Max Stamm and those at the head of the United Brothers Synagogue on High street, deciding to follow in line with all the orthodox and modern synagogues all over this country, have instituted special services which will be given every Friday night in English for the benefit of those who do not understand the Hebrew language.

On Friday night, January 4th, at 7:30 p. m., the first lecture in the new plan will be given and every Friday night thereafter.

The directors and the rabbi will be greatly encouraged if the public at large will shew their willingness to come to these lectures or services.

JAIL SENTENCES IMPOSED ON ELEVEN LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS

Eleven men went to jail from the superior court here Thursday afternoon to serve sentences for violations of the liquor law, while six Jewett City women had jail sentences given them but suspended for a year during which they will be under probation. Eight of the eleven men who went to jail and the six women were arrested in the Jewett City neighborhood when state police made a clean-up there on Sept. 19 at places having the reputation of selling liquor.

Nine of the sentences were given by Judge C. L. Avery at the morning session of court and the others in the afternoon. Those who went to jail were Athas Dimitris, Edward G. Gomes, Dominick Leese, Lucien Marcarelle, Steve Nofle, Albert Prenladz, Joe Solski, Joseph Glowacki, all of Jewett City, and Henry Miller, alias Muller of Norwich, Harold A. Cobb and Stanley Lesnick of New London.

The women given suspended jail sentences were Caroline Bakanowski, Josephine Cholewa, Mary Leese, Barbara Maleck, Katie Polonski, and Yevta Levine. The court named Rev. J. J. McCabe as the probation officer for these cases. In five of the families affected there is a total of 29 children.

The following were the liquor cases disposed of at the morning session of court.

Caroline Bakanowski, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on each of two counts, suspended for a year, with probation.

Josephine Cholewa, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on each of two counts, suspended for one year, with probation.

Joseph Ciriello, Jewett City, nolle entered.

Athas Dimitris, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on each of two counts, $50 fine on each count.

Edward G. Gomes, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on first count, second count suspended.

Dominick Leese, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on first count, second count suspended.

Henry Muller alias Miller of Norwich, $10 fine, 30 days in jail, for violation of liquor law at the American house in this city.

Mrs. Dominick Leese, alias Mary Leese, Jewett City, $100 fine, 30 days in jail, suspended for one year, with probation.

Barbara Maleck, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on each of two counts, suspended for one year, with probation.

Lucien Marcarelle, Jewett City, alias John Doe, $50 fine, 30 days in jail.

Steve Nofle, $50 fine on each of two counts and 30 days in jail on each count.

Mrs. Joseph Polonski, alias Katie Polonski, Jewett City, 30 days in jail on each of two counts, suspended for one year, with probation.

Albert Prenladz, Jewett City, 30 days in jail.

Joe Solski, Jewett City, 30 days in jail.

Joseph Glowacki, Jewett City, $100 fine, 30 days in jail.

To Jail for Burglary.

Edgar Robinson, negro, was sentenced to a year in jail for burglary at a New London hardware store. Robinson got into the store for four mornings in succession by climbing down through a skylight before the store had opened for the day. He got a small amount of money from the cash register.

To State Hospital.

Stephen Hunter of Norwich, accused of indecent assault, and Charles Loomis, 75, of Bozrah, accused of theft of articles of clothing from Steve Crumblich, were both committed to the Norwich State hospital after Drs. C. C. Gildersleeve, J. J. Donohue and J. W. Callahan had examined the men and pronounced them insane. Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main took the two men to the state hospital at the noon recess.

Afternoon Session.

After the noon recess court did not come in again until 4 o'clock. The intervening time was occupied by acting State Attorney Warren Burrows with conferences with Public Defender Charles L. Stewart and with attorneys for different accused persons as a result of which a number of pleas of guilty were entered and sentences were given.

Yevta Levine of Jewett City, the mother of three small children, pleaded guilty to counts of keeping liquor with intent to sell. She was given a jail sentence of 30 days and fined $100 on the first count, with sentence suspended for a year. Sentence on the second count was indefinitely suspended.

Harold A. Cobb of New London pleaded guilty to transporting liquor by automobile and was given 30 days in jail. He has already been in jail 99 days.

Charles Fear, colored, pleaded guilty to indecent assault upon John Perino in New London. He has been in jail since Nov. 17 and was sentenced to one year in jail.

Stanley Lesnick of New London, with whom Albert H. Fox was joined in the charge of transporting liquor by automobile, Dec. 11, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 60 days in jail. A nolle was entered in the case of Fox upon recommendation of Attorney Burrows.

Salvatore Delaporta, 16, and Stephen Downey, 16, two New London youths, pleaded guilty to attempt immoral actions with two girls. Because of their youth Judge Avery showed leniency and sentenced each to a year in jail, with sentence suspended under probation. Sentence on the second counts was indefinitely postponed.

Court adjourned until 10 o'clock this (Friday) morning.

Jury Next Tuesday.

All but one of the 35 jurors who had been summoned for court Thursday morning reported. The absentee was Max Cohen of Colchester who sent word that he was sick. Seven were excused from duty by Judge Avery as they presented good excuses why they wished to be relieved from jury duty.

The jurors were kept waiting in the jury room all day, pending possible call for their services, but at 4 o'clock Judge Avery sent instructions to them that they were excused until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The following were present when the roll was called by Clerk Parsons at the opening of court in the morning:

Norwich—Samuel S. Greenman, Cornelius J. Downes, Walter S. Grant, Michael J. Coscoran, F. Herbert Brown, Ashley T. Boon, John R. Fowler.

Preston—Ernest Luther, James Guy Ayer, Allen B. Burdick, Frank R. Ayer, Allan R. Burdick, Frank R. Ayer, Walter McGilmon.

LIONS HAVE GUESTS AT REGULAR MEETING

President George A. Finn presided over the regular weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting opened with the singing of America after which the following guests were introduced: Arthur L. Peale, retiring president of the Boy Scout Council; Scout Executive F. A. Benton, Abraham W. Silverberg and Lee Moore of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Tyler Stanton officiated as song leader and there were special songs by the guests and a solo by Mr. Silverberg.

The committee on the Grace Sage Benefit concert gave a report of progress. This splendid concert is being given by the Lions for the benefit of the Newington Home for Crippled Children, at Hartford.

Lion Harlow Bogue was heartily commended by the club for his heroic deed this past week in connection with the saving of lives in the recent Colchester farm house fire and was presented a cauliflower bouquet from the club, Lion John Barry making the presentation speech, saying in part as follows:

Bogue, we sure are proud of you—we knew you had good stuff in you. We feel that you have by your splendid courage cast a halo of glory around yourself and reflected credit to this club.

We are thankful that you were on hand to render these people aid when they needed it, to you is due credit for saving the lives of this family—no greater service can a man render than a service to mankind. We of the Lions want you to forever remember this day, to [illegible] gift—and to forever keep this token of our esteem so that you may show it to your children and your children's children, so that the brave act of Lion Bogue may be an example and inspiration to your posterity.

A true man—and a true Lion after he has rendered a favor seeks nothing else—his reward lies in the service rendered. You who read a local paper yesterday morning must have noticed a heading in the paper in bold type, "Norwich Man Saves Three Colchester People," and then as you read the article discovered that the hero of the episode was one Harlow Bogue—our friend and fellow Lion. Our good friend Bogue while returning from Hartford to Colchester, discovered a farmhouse on fire, he made frantic efforts to arouse the inmates, but without success, probably much to the surprise of many present who know what a loud voice he has in action. But like a good Lion Bogue was not discouraged, but jumping into his chariot—I understand it was not a Ford—sped swiftly towards Colchester, summoned aid, and with reinforcements hurried back to the burning building and rescued the inmates.

We hail our friend Bogue as a hero—who has secured public recognition in the press for his daring act. We are glad that he had put into practice his teachings of service to the community.

Max Hanover then introduced his guests, Arthur L. Peale and Scout Executive F. A. Benton, both of whom spoke briefly regarding the work of the Boy Scouts of Norwich and urged the continuance of the support of the men of Norwich and vicinity, through the Lions club and other like organizations.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

HERBERT LUCAS TELLS WHY HE LIKES MIAMI

"After traveling 30,000 miles since last summer, I have been unable to find a climate such as Miami has," declared Herbert W. Lucas, of Norwich, Conn.

"I have been in every state in the Union, also Canada and Mexico, and I wish to say that I have enjoyed the last three weeks in this city more than a similar period at any place than I have been.

"Last winter I spent the time in California, but the climate of Miami far surpasses that of that state. Back at home on December 20, everything was frozen up. At last I have found a wonderful climate for the winter."—Miami (Fla.) Herald.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR MISS CONSTANCE RIDGEWAY

Members of the "T" club on Wednesday evening surprised the leader, Miss Constance M. Ridgeway, at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. Geigenfuller, in Baltic, in honor of her birthday. Games were enjoyed until nearly 10 o'clock, when coffee and cake were served. Candy was also served during the evening. Miss Ridgeway received a beautiful gift from the members of the club.

Those present included the Misses Eva Erickson, Nettie Goldblatt, Alma Philipp, Hulda Schleich, Rose Goldblatt, Florence Barnes, Florence Firth, Lillie Almquist, Dora Sargent, Esther Erickson, Mildred and Lillian Massey, Beatrice Ashworth, Irene Chadwick and Mrs. A. Geigenmiller.

UNCASVILLE TO HAVE MILL MAKING MOHAIR

The Sydney Blumenthal Co., which on Dec. 1 bought and took possession of the Uncasville Manufacturing Co. plant at Uncasville, is now preparing to dispose of the entire equipment of machinery used by the cotton manufacturers to make room for the installation of equipment for the manufacture of mohair.

The sale of the property, which includes 85 acres of land and 25 dwelling houses in addition to the plant itself is said to have involved $80,000. Sash Lightowlers, formerly of Sanford, Me., has been installed as superintendent of the plant and with a force of workmen is preparing the old machinery for an auction, when the entire equipment will be cleared out.

Immediately following the sale new machinery for the manufacture of mohair will be brought in and installed preparatory for the beginning of operations as soon as possible. The Uncasville Manufacturing Co., Charles D. White of Norwich, president, though not out of existence, is at present inactive.

The Sydney Blumental Co. is an old established firm and besides the Uncasville plant, maintains branches at Little River, N. J., and Shelton, this state.

Month's Mind for Esther Smith

Rev. William H. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, has invited parishioners and their friends to attend the parish mass this (Friday) morning which he will offer as a month's mind mass for a former pastor, Rev. James J. Smith of St. Francis church, New Haven. He has suggested that they offer their holy communions for the repose of the soul of Father Smith, who was greatly beloved by all during his successful pastorate at St. Mary's.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB HAS NEW YEAR'S PARTY

The meeting of the Catholic Women's club of St. Patrick's parish held Thursday afternoon at the rooms of Mercier Council, Ladies of Columbus took the form of a very enjoyable New Year's party there being a large attendance. The president, Mrs. James J. Lawton presided at the brief business meeting, when work for the year was mapped out. It was planned to begin sewing for the parish poor at the February meeting.

The social committee for the afternoon was Mrs. Nelson C. Disco, Mrs. Joseph E. Marchessault and Mrs. J. J. Casey. The tea table was effectively decorated with poinsettias and red shaded candles.

Allen's Lung Healer
PREVENTS PNEUMONIA

Mrs. W. H. Walker gratefully adds her testimony to the many which have been published:

Mr. H. J. Allen, Druggist:

Dear Sir—Allen's Lung Healer is the most effective medicine I ever used in my life. It seems to work like magic. My daughter was so badly broken up with a cold that she had to give up work and go to bed. Her cough was hard, dry and distressing, her lungs were sore and breathing difficult and she seemed on the verge of having pneumonia. I was told of the Lung Healer and decided to give it a trial. She had taken but a few doses when she began to improve rapidly and in a week's time she was entirely cured and back at her work. You can be sure I was surprised and delighted with the way the medicine worked, so quick and thorough.

Yours gratefully,
MRS. W. H. WALKER,
Moulton St., West Lynn.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE WILL OPPOSE ANY ATTEMPT TO COMPROMISE MELLON TAX PLAN

Announcement Was Made at the White House as the Ways and Means Committee Continued Its Consideration—President Coolidge Has Confidence That Congress Can Be Depended Upon to Refuse Compromises—Before Acting on the Tax Bill, the Committee is Disposed to Determine Whether a Bonus Bill Should Be Passed.

Washington, Jan. 4. — President Coolidge is opposed to any attempts by congress to alter the essential provisions of the administration's tax bill.

This announcement was made today at the White House as the house ways and means committee continued its consideration of the measure and republican leaders of the house redoubled their efforts to postpone action on the soldiers' bonus until something affirmative is done on tax revision.

Comment on the situation at the White House was to the effect that any attempt by congress to compromise the principles embodied in the plan outlined by Secretary Mellon would meet with the president's opposition. Mr. Coolidge, it was asserted, has confidence that congress can be depended upon to refuse compromises.

Outstanding in the developments of the ways and means committee's consideration of the draft submitted by the treasury was the rejection of an amendment to make gains from stock dividends subject to the regular income taxes. Representative Rainey, democrat, Illinois, proposed the amendment which was voted down 12 to 11. He announced later he would bring up the question again.

If the bill is not amended in this respect, gains from the sale of stock dividends after two years will be taxed only to a maximum of 12 1-2 per cent., the regular normal and surtax rates prevailing within the two-year period.

The committee pressed forward under its agreement to consider administrative features of the bill, then to determine whether a bonus bill should be passed, and finally to act on proposed changes in tax rates.

The republican steering committee of the house, however, in discussing the legislative program today seemed inclined to postpone a show-down on the bonus, and leaders got in touch with republican former service men who are demanding a party conference next Thursday on the question with a view to having them alter their plans.

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, declared he favored postponement of the conference until the ways and means committee had "ample opportunity" to act on the tax bill, including provisions proposing changes in rates.

Representatives who have been circulating petitions for the conference, among them Representatives Johnson, South Dakota, and Fitzgerald, Ohio, said that they had more than enough names to insure the calling of a conference. The petitions, they said, had not been filed, however, and it might be decided to give the ways and means committee a "reasonable" time in which to report a bonus bill.

PROGRESS IN FORMING NEW JAPANESE CABINET

Tokio, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—Rapid progress was made by Viscount Kiyoura in the work of forming a new cabinet, according to unconfirmed reports from political observers tonight. The same sources were authority for the following tentative list of new ministers:

Home affairs: Rentaro Misuno, who was home minister in the Kato cabinet organized in 1922.

Finance: Kazue Shoda, who held that post in the second Okuma cabinet in 1916.

War: General Masataro Fukuda, formerly commander-in-chief in Formosa.

Navy: Vice Admiral Kantaro Suzuki, vice minister of the navy in the second Okuma cabinet.

Justice: Viscount Nobuaki Makino, who has held many portfolios in various cabinets since 1906 and who was one of Japan's representatives at the peace conference.

Education: Count Hirotaro Hayashi, a lecturer in the Imperial Tokio university and, since 1922, chairman of the educational investigation committee.

Communications: Narakachi Maida, director of the communication bureau of the department of commerce.

Agriculture and commerce: Baron Yoshiro Fujimura, a notable figure in the Japanese industrial world and well known in London, where he was head of a large exporting company's branch establishment.

Railways: Count Enkichi Oki, leader of the Kenkyukai and holder of the same portfolio in Baron Kato's cabinet in 1922.

Rev. Leighton Parks Cautions Modernists

That This is Not the Time to Assert That the Fundamentalists Had Been Defeated.

New York, Jan. 4.—Declaring that the action of Bishop Moore of Dallas, in calling off the trial of the Rev. Lee W. Heaton, of Forth Worth, Texas for heresy, was "all that could have been expected," Mr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's, today cautioned modernists that this was not a moment to assert the fundamentalists had been defeated, but a time to recognize their own serious responsibility.

Dr. Parks, who several weeks ago doffed the vestments of priesthood in the pulpit of the fashionable Park avenue church and said that he himself would welcome a trial, deplored the action of certain modernists, in speaking, "in a tone which cannot fail to add to the bitterness of the present controversy." Present questions, he said, must be settled not by controversy, but by exposition.

"While Mr. Heaton may feel aggravated at the bishop's intimitation that he might still be brough to trial, and that he has been dismissed under a suspended sentence,' said Dr. Parks, "nevertheless he should find satisfaction in the remembrance that his case has been decided by the supreme court of public opinion, and that he is now in the same position as many of the laity and clergy and at least a certain number of bishops.

"It was well that a protest should be made, but the protest having been made, the modernists must now answer the questions which a large number of bishops, clergy and laity are asking. They are saying in substance: 'we are willing to admit that you are honest men; but we feel that you should recognize that we are perplexed and we desire to hear from you more plainly as to what you do believe. If, as you say, your position can be justified by an appeal to the scriptures and teachings of the church of which you are ministers, then tell the people in the spirit of meekness how you feel that you are so justified.,"

The question must be met not by controversy, but by clear exposition said Dr. Parks, and if the serious minded modernists would turn their attention to it, great good would result to the church.

"Many devout men and women cannot rid themselves of the suspicion that the modernist denies the supernatural, the divinity of Jesus, and is contemptuous of the church," he added. "I need not say that while I believe this suspicion to be unjustified, I do not think it is an unnatural one on the part of those who, while devout, may be ignorant of history and of technical theology. I feel that the modernists must meet it fearlessly, frankly and constructively."

To Procure Ships to Combat Rum Vessels

President Coolidge Makes Suggestion to Director Lord of the Budget Bureau.

Washington, Jan. 4—President Coolidge has requested Director Lord of the budget bureau to confer with shipping board and navy department officials with a view to purchase of vessels under control of those two agencies for use in combatting rum smuggling off the American coast.

Such purchase of ships for use by the coast guard, if possible, would in the opinion of the president be more economical than the building of new boats at a cost of from 10 to 75 million dollars such as was recommended recently in the executive's budget message to congress. The purchase also would make the vessels available more quickly than they would be if they had to be constructed.

Director Lord, it was said at the White House today has the matter before him in connection with the recommendation for an appropriation of more than $30,000,000 to build and man coast guard ships but no decision has yet been reached.

KISSING CANDIDATES FOR THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London Jan. 4—Kissing candidates for parliament is a custom which seems to be springing up in the country now that women are allowed to sit in the house of commons.

Lady Terrington, elected in the last election as a liberal, told the society known as the six point group in London that the men in her constituency had been very kind to her; she was kissed by dozens of them.

"But it wasn't so much a question of being kissed by them as really changing their opinions," she added.

Lady Terrington promised that if she was lucky in the ballot for private members' bills she would introduce a measure to allow the vote to women at the age of twenty-one. At the present time women in Great Britain have to be thirty or more to vote, but many by tradition refuse to admit any advance beyond twenty-nine.

SALE CONSUMMATED OF WAR SUPPLIES TO MEXICAN GOV'T

Secretary Weeks Has Announced the Sale of 5,000 Enfield Rifles, 5,000,000 Rounds of Ammunition and Eight DH-4 Surplus Airplanes — Terms Call For One-Half Payment in Cash, Balance to Be Paid Within Thirty Days — Whole Transaction Involves Less Than $400,000.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Sale of 5,000 Enfield rifles, 5,000,000 rounds of ammunition for the guns, and eight DH-4 surplus airplanes to the Mexican government was announced today by Secretary Weeks.

The transaction was completed during the day when word came by wire to Mexican agents that the government had transferred funds necessary to make one-half of the payment in cash, the balance to be paid within thirty days. The terms fixed by Secretary Weeks were equivalent to a cash transaction and were accepted by the Mexican government, paving the way for immediate delivery of the war munitions at the army depots where they are stored.

Under the terms of the sale the war department will turn over the rifles and ammunition at Fort Sam Houston and Fort Bliss while the airplanes will be delivered from the depot at Fairfield, Ohio. The Mexican government will make its own arrangements for shipment to the border. Orders were issued at once for delivery of the military supplies to designated Mexican agents. They will reach commanders of the depots tomorrow.

Although the statement issued by Secretary Weeks did not disclose the total amount of money involved in the sale, on the basis of prevailing prices it would appear to be less than $400,000, as Enfield rifles sell at about $35 each and surplus ammunition at about $18 per thousand rounds while the airplanes would be valued at about $12,000 each.

It was reported when first word of the sale of arms to Mexico became public that the Obregon government expected to spend $750,000 for the equipment. Whether, in view of the necessity of making the deal practically a cash transaction, the Mexico City government found itself unable to go beyond the purchase of the amount of equipment mentioned in today's statement, or whether Secretary Weeks found it inadvisable to authorize any larger sale has not been disclosed.

Mr. Weeks did not say what other equipment the Mexican government had asked for in its original list. He stated, however, that the airplanes to be sold were not equipped with machine guns or other armament and that any proposal to equip them before delivery would be supplemental to the present deal. The war secretary also said that there was no project for the sale of field artillery and artillery ammunition now under consideration.

The Enfield rifles were turned out after the United States entered the war to supplement the supply of Springfield rifles and since have been recalled from service and stored as surplus.

The ammunition also will come from surplus stocks manufactured during the war. So far as known there has been no important deterioration in

While there were no developments today in connection with opposition in congress to the sale of arms to Mexico, an authoritative statement of the administration attitude became available at the White House which made it plain that the purpose of Washington government in the present transaction was only one of aiding a neighbor state in the maintenance of order and governmental stability within its own borders.

Any suggestion that the administration might have under consideration munitions sales to other governments where the question involved was aggressive warfare planned by one nation against another was rejected.

DESTROYED BOATS WERE PROBABLY RUM RUNNERS

Babylon, N. Y., Jan. 4.—While search was being continued today for the bodies of six of the nine men who were drowned off Fire Island inlet yesterday when they were swept from a rescue boat by heavy seas, developments ashore gave support to the theory of coast guards that two of the boats were rum runners. This was believed by coast guards to account for the failure of the crew to signal for aid when their boats were in distress.

Captain H. F. Pearsall, of the Oak Island Coast Guard station, said it was his opinion that the two boats in distress were loaded with liquor from the rum fleet 12 miles off Fire Island. He said the men seemed to be hiding from the coast guard station instead of seeking aid and that no distress signals were received from them.

Seven men comprising the crews of these boats had been rescued by men aboard the power boat Sid, which had been sent out for the purpose, when the rescue craft itself was struck by a huge wave.

Coast Guardsman Albin at the coroner's investigation today asserted that one of the two boats had been brought in at dawn with a load of liquor. 'Another coast guardsman said it was his conclusion "that the boats were bringing stuff—I mean merchandise—from the fleet that lies twelve miles out."

Another angle of the case came to light today when it was learned that a stranger in a fur overcoat had hired a Babylon aviator to fly over the inlet and locate the two boats before the Sid was sent to their rescue. The coast guard, however, never were notified that the boats were in distress.

INFORMATION BY JEWELERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION

New York, Jan. 4.—Meyer D. Rothschild, president of the American Jewellers' Protective association, today announced that the federal investigation reported to have resulted in $150,000 customs settlement by Simon W. Straus, investment broker, on jewelry brought into this country last November, was made on "definite and explicit information" furnished by the association.

Three months prior to Mr. Straus' arrival from abroad, Mr. Rothschild said, special customs agents here received an anonymous letter which caused agents to interrogate Mr. Straus on his jewel purchases abroad.

The banker was permitted to claim his baggage but three days later, acting on information furnished by the association, federal officials began a further inquiry, which led to the settlement which included the value of the jewels and a reported fine of $41,125.

Mr. Strauss arrived from Europe in the Majestic November 2. Deputy Police Commissioner Harris, who boarded the liner at quarantine to meet a friend met Mr. Strauss and, it was stated, requested customs authorities to expedite the baggage of the banker whom he had known for many years. The baggage was passed on the basis of the items declared.

EXPLOSION WAS CAUSED BY DYNAMITE EMBEDDED IN COAL

Harrisburg, Ky., Jan. 4.—Dynamite embedded in a piece of coal today was thought to have caused an explosion Thursday in an open grate at the home of Curtis Alford, 18, who has lost the sight of one eye and is suffering injury to the other as a result of being struck by coals from the force of the explosion. A sixteen months old baby, sitting near the fireplace, was blown bodily into an empty coal bucket.

The theory was advanced that dynamite might have been left in the coal following its failure to completely explode after a mine blasting process. The explosion was of sufficient force to rock the house, extinguishing the lights and blowing open the doors of the room.

NEGOTIATING WAGE SCALE FOR BITUMINOUS MINERS

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—An effort to reach an agreement for the bituminous coal miners of the old central competitive field will be made on February 11, at Jacksonville, Fla., when the miners and operators of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and probably western Pennsylvania, will meet. This was decided upon at a meeting of representatives of the operators and miners from Ohio, Illinois and Illinois here today.

FRANCE MOVES TO HALT DEPRECIATION OF FRANC

Paris, Jan. 4.— (By The A. P.)—Leading financiers have been invited by Finance Minister De Lasteyrie to confer with him concerning means of suppressing speculation in exchange and halting the depreciation of the franc. This is the first time in recent month that the government has looked upon the position of the franc as being serious enough to warrant positive action.

The common explanation for weeks in French financial quarters and in the newspapers has been that powerful money interests in New York and London were deliberately depressing the franc—New York purely for profit and London as a political scheme designed to modify the French policy in the Ruhr. Another explanation up to the end of December was that the year-end requirements in settlement of foreign balances were responsible for the rapid rise of the pound sterling and American dollar but this explanation is no longer available.

Officials in charge of the Paris branches of American banks resolutely reject the suggestion that speculation originating in New York is operating against the franc. They affirm that the moderate balance of trade amounting to 1,500,000,000 francs against France in 1923 together with the regular interest installments of the loans, have not been counterbalanced by the tourist expenditures.

The French government, it is pointed out, is having about $40,000,000 annual interest on its American loans and on its debt for arms supplies.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCES IN NO SENSE A VINDICATION

Washington, Jan. 4.—The action of President Coolidge in commuting the sentences of thirty-one war law offenders recently, was "in no sense a vindication" of the men concerned or the acts committed, Attorney General Daugherty declared in a letter to Federal Judge Martin H. Wade, of Iowa City, Iowa, made public here tonight. The prisoners, those in authority believed, had received the punishment necessary, he added, and further imprisonment would have been injurious rather than helpful.

Mr. Daugherty condemned "agencies and men and certain newspapers" which have disseminated "misinformation * * * to tear down and destroy confidence" in lawful government.

"These are the men," he continued, "for whom the rabid, lawless, anarchistic and disgruntled element of society in this country have been laboring ever since sentence was imposed (in the war time prisoner cases) and of late their forces have been augmented by many good, law-abiding citizens who have been misled by the subtle arguments of those propagandists based upon misstatement of fact."

BROKERAGE SALESMEN CHARGED WITH LARCENY

Boston, Jan. 4.—Twe men were placed under arrest here today as the result of the investigation by the district attorney of the brokerage firms of T. J. Day and Company had Wellington and Company. The men, George Alexander, a salesman of the Georgetown district, and Archibald Jeanette of Watertown, are charged with larceny.

Alexander, who was locked up at headquarters late today, is charged with larceny of $16,450 from Agnes Blood of Winthrop and others. Three charges of larceny involving about $1,000 are lodged against Jeanette who was said to be a salesman for the borkerage firms. A continuance until January 18 was granted in the case of Jeanette.

MYSTERY STILL SURROUNDS DEATH OF RUTH HUNTER

Canton, O., Jan. 4.—While authorities were continuing their efforts today to solve the mystery surrounding the death of Miss Ruth Hunter, 18, whose bruised body was found on a lonely road near here early yesterday, Canton citizens started a movement to raise $10,000 to be awarded for the apprehension of those responsible for the girl's death.

A. B. Flory, head of a chain of grocery stores started the fund with a subscription of $500.

After questioning him for eight hours, the authorities today released L. E. Griffith, wealthy Canton manufacturers and exonerated him from all connection with the case.

HEARD RADIO 90 FEET BENEATH HUDSON RIVER

New York, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—Huddled in a dripping tunnel, 90 feet below the surface of the Hudson and 1,500 feet from an exit, a group of transit officials, electrical experts, "sand hogs" and newspaper men today tuned in on radio concerts broadcast from Pittsburgh and a half dozen nearer stations.

The experiment was conducted at the far west end of the uncompleted Jersey-Manhattan tube of the dual vehicular tunnel by technicians of the Radio Corporation of America, the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company, and the New York and New Jersey bridge and tunnel commissions.

The radio programs were heard distinctly, both by ear phone and loud speaker.

This test convinces us that the future will enable our divers and caisson workers, whose lives often are lost or imperilled when the telephone lines they communicate with are swept away, to carry small portable radio transmitting and receiving sets which will make them independent of all other means of communication," said M. M. Frolich, secretary of the New York bridge and tunnel commission, who instituted today's tests.

EARTHQUAKE IN RUSSIA DESTROYED TWO VILLAGES

Moscow, Jan. 4.—An earthquake on December 29 in Russian Turkestan, near the town of Ura-Tyube destroyed two villages comprising four hundred houses. Eighty-three persons were killed. These advices were received here today in a dispatch from Tashkent.

The quake left big fissures in the earth over a wide area and severed all communications with the affected districts.

WOULD BAR MABEL NORMAND FILM PICTURES FROM OHIO

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 4—Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, today "urgently requested" that all films in which Mabel Normand appears be barred in Ohio, in a letter directed to director of education Vernon M. Riegel under whose direction censorship is conducted.

BROTHERS HAD ROBBED BETWEEN 30 AND 40 HOUSES

Rutherford, N. J., Jan. 4.—Diamond rings and jewelry valued at more than $1,000 have been recovered by police as a result of the arrest last night of James Bright, aged 16, and his brother Edward, aged 11, of Lyndhurst. The boys told police they had robbed between 30 and 40 houses here and in Lyndhurst during the past month. Both carried guns when arrested, the elder having a loaded .32 calibre magazine revolver.

The boys were captured here last night by a policeman who noticed a long screw driver protruding from the hip pocket of one of the pair as they walked past him. When searched at police station, their pockets were found to contain more than $200 worth of diamond rings. Loot valued at more than $700, rings, handbags, brooches and gold bracelets were found by police in a hiding place under the front porch of the boys' home in Lyndhurst.

In addition, the youthful prisoners have given police the names of a large circle of friends, boys and girls, to whom they say they gave presents of stolen jewelry. These recipients are to be questioned tomorrow morning. The boys declared also that they had hidden a large amount of plunder at a shack in the woods near Lyndhurst.

Declaring he expected to be "shot and killed" sooner or later, the elder boy carried an identification card, so that, according to his explanation, his body might be sent home.

WAS PART OF EQUIPMENT OF DIRIGIBLE DIXMUDE

Paris, Jan. 4.—The gasoline tank, bleckened by fire, which was discovered recently off Sciacca, Sicily, was part of the equipment of the ill-fated dirigible Dixmude, it was officially confirmed today by the French ministry of marine.

Experts believe that in order for the tank to get clear of the wreckage the ship must have broken violently in two.

This theory is borne out by the testimony of persons at Sciacca, who saw two balls of fire fall into the sea as though two balloons were plunging down in flames.

SENTENCE OF MONTH FOR BAY STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Boston, Jan. 4—State Representative Richard D. Gleason of Roxbury, and Charles Galino said to be his political lieutenant, were sentenced today to one month in the house of correction by Judge Joseph N. Palmer, in the Roxbury court for assault and battery on James L. Cluney.

Cluney testified he was attacked because he had transferred his political affiliations. James Bunelli and Joseph Gleason, a brother of the representative, tried on the same charge were found not guilty.

S. O. S. CALL FROM MEXICAN REBEL VESSEL ON ROCKS

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 4.— The Mexican rebel steamship Progreso, is on the rocks between Progreso, Yucatan and Vera Cruz, and in danger of losing all passengers according to a s. o. s. call picked up by the Fort El Paso radio station. The ship was bound for the rebel city with supplies and troops at the time of the disaster the message said. Mexican government ships are responding to the call for help.

BLAST SEVERED 11,000 VOLT TRANSMISSION LINE

New Haven, Jan. 4.—A portion of the 11,000 volt transmission line of the New Haven Shore Line Railway company was carried away this afternoon by a blast set off by striking workers near Madison. Service was held up over an hour and a half.

FIVE DARIEN RESIDENTS BOUND OVER FOR ARSON

Darien, Conn., Jan. 4—George Smith, of this town was arrested today charged with arson in connection with the investigation being conducted here in which six others have been arrested on similar charges for wilfully starting fires incurring a loss of approximately $75,000. Smith was released on his own recognizance to appear Monday in the Darien justice court.

Five of the men were bound over to the criminal superior court when arraigned this afternoon. They are George Nash, in bonds of $2,000; Carl Rellstab, $500; Richard Abendroth, $2,000; Harry Pardee, $1,000, and Arthur E. Willmott, $2,000. Attorneys for the men filed demurrers which were overruled.

Former Constable Ferdinand Hartog, whose case was called today, was granted a continuance because of illness which he claimed prevented him from being present in court.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON URGES LAW ENFORCEMENT

Waterbury, Jan. 4.—Mentioning that Connecticut had the unique position of being creator of the first written constitution in this country, Governor Charles A. Templeton, addressing a meeting in interest of law enforcement tonight said this was an especial reason why this state should be foremost in support of the constitution today. "It was the Constitution State' in 1638 and 1737," he said; "it should be the Constitution State' in 1924."

10-YEAR OLD TWIN BROTHERS KILLED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Mount Holly, N. J., Jan. 4.—Charles and Edward Swain, 10 year old two brothers, were killed late today when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Harry Turner, of this place. Both suffered fractured skulls. The boys were in an express wagon that was being pushed by a companion near their home.

When Mrs. Turner attempted to pass another car, the express wagon, she said, was pushed directly in her path.

MEXICAN INDIANS ARE SUSPICIOUS OF OBREGON

Mexico, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—Indian tribesmen in the states of Puebla and Oaxaca are supporting Obregon in his fight against the rebels. Ten thousand Zacapoaxtla Indians, members of the Mountain tribe in North Puebla, will cooperate with Eugenio Martinez at the eastern front, according to Luis Cabanas, who has arrived in Mexico City after a trip through the region.

MANY DRIVEN FROM HOME BY FLOOD WATERS OF SEINE

Paris, Jan. 4.—(By The A. P.)—The rise in the flood waters of the Seine was slower today than on yesterday, but the level reached during the night was sufficient to cover large areas of new territory. This compelled thousands of additional waterbound people to take safety in boats or to rely on boat services for supplies. Many of the big apartment buildings in large towns just west of the city, such as Asnieres, Colombes and Argenteuil have been cut off. An omnibus-skiff service was organized to take housewives to the markets and businessmen to their trains.

The number of people driven from their homes increased during the day by several thousand. A large number of these were removed from Alfortville, where a majority of the houses have become uninhabitable, and from along the Marne, where more than four thousand buildings are surrounded by water at Nogent, Champigny, Bry-Sur-Marne and Le Perreux.

The damage done by the waters inside Paris is still confined to the district of Antuell, where a number of streets have been invaded and cellars filled, and to the sections in the neighborhood of the chamber of deputies and the invalides palace, where the Seine is now high enough to seep through the porous soil and into cellars.

The weather predictions tonight are for a lower temperature tomorrow. This was added to the official optimism that the worst is over.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Pilots and alternates for the flight around the world were announced by the ward department.

James C. Davis, director-General of Railroads, announced the settlement of all claims arising from war time railroad control.

President Coolidge, it was said, would elevate one of the present commissioners to the chairmanship of the shipping board.

Secretary Weeks announced the sale of 5,000 rifles, 5,000,000 rounds of ammunition and eight airplanes to the Obregon government of Mexico.

Harry F. Sinclair gave the senate public lands committee additional details of the financing arrangements for operation of naval oil reserves leased to his enterprises.

Officials expressed doubt of the genuineness of the registry of the British rum runner Tomoka, the release of whose crew has been asked by the British government.

The White House stated that any attempt by congress to compromise the principles embodied in the Mellon tax reduction plan would meet with the opposition of President Coolidge.

The House ways and means committee rejected an amendment to the tax bill under which gains from sale of stock dividends would be subject to normal and surtax rates.

By direction of the president officials were said to be considering the purchase of ships from the shipping board and the navy for use of the coast guard in combatting rum smugglers.

CASE CALLED IN COURT OF MAN WHO HAD BEEN HANGED

Washington, Jan. 4.—When the case of George Henry Terry, charged with assault, was called today in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, during a clearance of the docket, Attorney Edmund Carrington arose and pleaded that Terry had been hanged in Baltimore four years ago.

CANCELS FILMS IN WHICH MABEL NORMAND LEADS

Sacramento, Jan. 4.—The manager of a motion picture theatre here announced today he had cancelled a film in which Miss Mabel Normand plays a lead, because of the shooting of Courtland S. Dines by Miss Normand's chauffeur.

AMUNDSEN SPEAKS OF PROJECTED ARCTIC FLIGHT

Copenhagen, Jan. 4—(By the A. P.)—Captain Roald Amundsen, the noted explorer, who is busily engaged in planning details of his projected airplane flight across the North Pole, was guest of honor at a luncheon of the American club today presided over by John D. Prince, the United States minister.

Captain Amundsen told the correspondent afterward he intended starting on his flight in the early summer, weather permitting. The flight, he pointed out, was in no sense to be classed as an attempt to "discover" the North Pole, as he fully acknowledged Peary's discovery. News regarding the flight, he added, would be broadcast by wireless.

The great problem confronting him Captain Amundsen said, was to get just the right sort of flying machine, capable of landing on both ice and water, but without too great weight. The engine, he said, had not been definitely decided upon, but it would not be the American liberty motor. Tests were being made with various machines fitted with both pontoons and skils. He said he calculated upon being in the air fully twenty hours, landing on the northern Alaskan coast.

Captain Amundsen expressed his gratitude for the assistance rendered him in different ways by official America.

FLOOD OF OHIO, ALLEGHENY AND MONONGAHELA RIVERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 4.—After reaching a chest of 27.4 feet today, the Ohio river here began to recede and tonight the stage was officially reported at 25 feet and still falling. By early morning it is expected that the river will have dropped to a 20-foot stage.

Thousands of workers in plants along the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela rivers have been temporarily thrown out of employment by the rise of waters. In the north side district a number of streets were inundated and railroad tracks submerged. Scores of families on the north side and suburban districts tonight were occupying temporary shelter, having been, in a great many instances, taken from their homes in row boats.

From many towns along the Ohio river in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia come reports of submerged streets and waters sweeping through the first floor of homes. There has been no report of loss of life.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED FROM CORN PLANT WRECKAGE

Pekin, Ill., Jan. 4.—Two bodies were removed today from the wreckage of two buildings of the Corp Products company plant here which were destroyed by explosion and fire early yesterday. Frank Yelds, employment manager, said his best information tonight was that six are known dead and 36 are buried under the debris of listed as "missing." Earlier semi-official reports that other bodies had been removed was due to duplication, it was explained.

Despite the cold weather, 100 men were engaged in exploring the wreckage. The bodies were those of William Rumler and Lee Harding, a foreman.

First funeral services were arranged for tomorrow, when Harding will be buried.

GIRL STUDENT DEAD WITH BULLET WOUND IN HEAD

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 4.—Miss Myra Strauss Freiberg, 18, a student at Wellesley college, was found lifeless, with a bullet wound in her head, tonight, in the private library of her cousin, Dr. E. Tauber, in the latter's apartment in Avondale.

Beside her was a revolver, one of a collection of firearms kept by Dr. Tauber. A bullet had entered the girl's mouth and passed through her head at the base of the brain.

Coroner D. C. Handley notified police that, from what could be learned, Miss Friberg's death was accidental.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
61 Church Street Telephone 1062

The full board of aldermen convened at a special meeting Friday evening, Mayor Hermidas Dion presiding. The first business to be taken up was the voting of the appropriation of $5,500 authorized at a special city meeting Wednesday evening for rebuilding and equipping the city icehouse at the Municipal plant at Mansfield. A resolution was adopted waiving the fact that the special meeting had been called for any specific purpose and the board proceeded to ratify and confirm the appropriation for the various departments which were voted upon at the last regular monthly meeting. Adjournment was taken after a fifteen session.

Erroneous statements were made in some of the papers this week in connection with the medical probe being conducted by the Holden grand jurors that Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte of Willimantic was a graduate of the Kansas medical college. Dr. Turcotte is a graduate of the Middlesex Medical college, of Cambridge, Mass. He passed the examinations before the Eclectic board and received his certificate for the right to practice in this state from John T. Black then secretary of the Connecticut State Department of Health.

A charge of "malicious prosecution" has been brought in a civil suit against William E. Jackson of this city deputy sheriff for Windham county, detective for the Windham county superior court and a member of the common council of the city of Willimantic, by John Killourey, supernumerary officer of the Willimantic police department. The action was taken through Killourey's attorney, Prosecuting Attorney Samuel H. Harvey and the plaintiff claims $1,500. In the writ it is he alleged that the defendant caused the plaintiff to be brought before the mayor of Willimantic, corporation counsel and members of the board of aldermen, on the night of November 21, at a special meeting to answer to the charge of "intimidation and attempted extortions from the Jordan-Buick Auto company", alleged to have been committed on or about April 3 last; that the charges, several in number, were not substantiated by Jackson; that the board of aldermen exonerated Killourey; that the plaintiff was restored to his worthy standing by the mayor as a member of the police department; that by reasons of the charges were false, the plaintiff has suffered, his reputation having been blemished and his business of making a living affected, and that as a consequence he has lost time and money in legal defense, along with other expenses.

It has been generally rumored within the past few days that Officer Killourey would soon take action against County Detective Jackson, recent agitations having been brought the Jackson-Killourey situation to a boiling point. Deputy Sheriff A. J. Greenslit served a writ of attachment on Jackson's automobile Friday morning as the latter was preparing to convey Judge George E. Hinman to Putnam for the opening of the criminal session of the Windham county superior court in Putnam. Jackson was about to hook up some of his friends to give security for the release of his car, when Town Clerk Frank E. Fenton came along and after hearing the facts in connection with the situation, he agreed to go security and the bond of release for the car was signed in the office of Attorney S. H. Harvey. Detective Jackson and Judge Hinman were then able to resume their journey to Putnam. The case is returnable before the Windham county superior court the first Tuesday in February.

End fire trouble by using Lambert Trubleproof fires.—adv.

Thomas J. Killourey, city sheriff of Willimantic will not have to face trial in the superior court until May. Sheriff Killourey's case was taken up in Putnam Friday and he pleaded not guilty to a charge of misappropriating funds and elected a trial by the presiding judge.

Judge George E. Hinman then announced that he felt disqualified to try the case because he had heard so much discussion in regard to it and he suggested that it be put over until May Bond was continued at $300 when the state's attorney accepted the judge's suggestion.

In the Windham county superior court at Putnam Friday, Eddie Jouas, of Willimantic was sentenced to one year in jail, after he was found guilty of driving a car while intoxicated. John's sentence is the first of this kind to be imposed in the county. He was arrested on September 23, soon after his license had been revoked for a similar offense.

During 1923 the Willimantic police department made a total of 351 arrests which is considered one of the largest in the history of the department and is close to an average of 30 per month. The month of July led all others with a record total of 60 arrests, while February was the smallest with 15 arrests.

Forty-five per cent. of the arrests were due to the use of liquor, seven per cent. for theft, eighteen per cent. for violations of the automobile and traffic laws, three per cent. for violation of city ordinances and one per cent. for immoral acts.

Two hundred nine of the arrests were for liquor violations as follows: Drunkenness 143; violation of the liquor law 16; breach of the peace 12; assault 14, drunkenness and breach of the peace 9; breach of the peace and resisting of officer, drunkenness and resistance, one each.

Arrests for stealing totalled 31 as follows: Larceny 9; breaking and entering 4; theft 11; embezzlement 2; breaking safe 3; forgery, passing worthless checks, attempt to break and enter one each.

Eighty two arrests were made for violations of the automobile and traffic laws; violation of the auto law 72, reckless driving 3, violation of the motorcycle law 3, passing standing trolley car 2, speeding and violation of the traffic law one each. Five arrests were made for immoral acts as follows: manifest danger of falling into vice 2, adultery and fornication, one each.

A total of 23 arrests were made for violations of the city and town ordinances. They were evading payment of personal tax 14, failure to clear snow from sidewalks 3, violation of the Sunday law2, violation of the game law and fuel law, one each.

Thirty-four persons were arrested during the year for trespassing on railroad property. Suspicious persons taken into custody numbered 26 and 13 vagrants were arrested. There were nine arrests for non-support, three for desertion, six for gambling, six for injury to private property, two for cruelty to animals. Eight insane persons were taken into custody.

One hundred and seventy-two tramps were given a night's lodging at the police station. 53 doors were found open and locked. Electric lights were reported out 3,849 hours. The police found two lost children. The department received complaints to the number of 2,351 during the year.

A resident of South Coventry announced Friday that he wished to correct an erroneous impression created by a dispatch which came over the wire this city and appeared in Friday morning's issue of the Bulletin relating to the probe being conducted into the alleged medical fraud in Connecticut. His correction was in regard to the statements made concerning the treatment of a South Coventry woman who was under the care of Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte of Willimantic, and who, in the mind of this man, was done a great injustice. The woman in question happens to be the wife of the Coventry man and he states that she was operated on by Dr. Turcotte of this city, that her trouble was eliminated and that within a short time she was better. It became necessary, however, to treat her for kidney and bladder trouble and as Dr. Turcotte did not have the required equipment, he suggested that she be sent to St. Francis hospital in Hartford where a cystiscopic examination was given. The man denies that his wife was ever operated upon by any other physician but Dr. Turcotte. It was Dr. Turcotte who cured her after she had been under the care of two other physicians. The woman is now doing fairly well.

The Coventry man, who signed his letter "Justice" plans to make out a sworn affidavit denying all false allegations, to be presented before the holden grand jury which is sitting in Hartford, conducting the investigation. He believes that out of fairness to Dr Turcotte it is the proper course.

A wrestling match with a 250 pound deer was the experience of Ralph L. Lussier of No. 1149 Main street, this city about ten o'clock Thursday night after three deer had blocked the highway as he was driving down the Eagleville road in Mansfield with two friends. The animals seemed to be dazzled by the lights of the car and even shouting failed to frighten them away. Lussier who is a strapping young man, then got out and two of the deer scampered off, but a third decided to remain on the spot. Lussier gave the animal a few slaps on the back and when it still refused to budge he grabbed it by the horns and after giving it a "good spanking," probably for playing out in the road, he released the deer and (with tears in its eyes) it ran off. Lussier then resumed his journey home.

Mrs. Ellen Corrigan Hopper, widow of Joseph Hopper of South Coventry died at her home there Friday morning after a long illness. Mrs. Hopper leaves three daughters Mrs. Julia Nugent of Newton, Mass., and Misses Mary and Catherine Hopper, of South Coventry.

Captain William A. Wolfe who transports children from the Ripley Hill district to the Center School house, South Coventry, was the first man to be convicted in this section for using 1923 automobile markers. Wolfe was before the Coventry town court Friday morning with Justice of the Peace William B. Hawkins presiding and Grand Juror Robert G. Brooks, prosecuting.

Wolfe pleaded guilty and said that he had been ill and as a result had been unable to secure his 1924 markers, but upon cross-examination he admitted having been negligent in not making arrangements to get the new markers.

State Policeman Hardesty, of the Stafford Springs barracks, arrested Captain Wolfe Thursday afternoon on the highway. Justice Hawkins imposed a fine of $1 and costs remitting the fine. The costs amounting to $12.75 were paid.

R. C. Fletcher was unanimously re-elected president of the musicians local for the year 1924 and Joseph Pepin was again chosen vice-president. Other officers elected are secretary, William Smith; treasurer, John Meehan, F. J. Dillon and Ralph Gibson; sergeant-at-arms, Harry D. Rosen.

Engine Company No. 1 used thirty-eight gallons of chemical in fighting a stubborn chimney fire, Thursday afternoon, at the home of William Cummins on Windham Road, just outside of the city limits. A still alarm called out the firemen.

The installation of officers of the Baptist Church Christian Endeavor was held Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. An excellent supper was served at 6.15 o'clock was followed by a business session. The committee meeting was then held. in charge of the supper were Miss Peterson, Elizabeth Peacock and Miss Ines Paton.

At the installation of the Women's Relief corps, held this week Mrs. Mabie Bennett was installed patriotic instructor and Mrs. Jennie Randall was made press correspondent. These names were omitted from the list of officers previously published.

Officers of Natchaug lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias, recently elected are: Chancellor Commander, George H. Arnold; vice-chancellor, John A. Bowman; prelate, William F. Mann; master-at-arms, Orlando P. Smith; inner guard, Harold James; outer guard, Owen D. Leach; master of finance J. Raymond Smith; keeper of records and seals, Carleton P. King; district deputy, Allen G. Pratt of Hartford will install these officers next week.

Since the leave-taking of Mrs. Henrietta Crowley, following the acceptance of her resignation by the school committee, the Lebanon Center school has been closed and the members of the school board are still trying to secure a new teacher. One of the substitute teachers of the town, Miss Katherine Sweet has been occupied with teaching at the Kick Hill school and it is said that her mother Mrs. Katherine Sweet, a member of the town school committee has been requested to temporarily replace Mrs. Crowley but for some reason she has refused to do this.

Keeping Millions Free From Colds and La Grippe

W. H. HILL'S LIFE WORK

Colds cause more illness than any other human ailment. Realising this 50 years ago, W. H. Hill determined to develop a quick-acting scientifically correct cold and la grippe remedy.

Years of research brought success. Mr. Hill discovered a most remarkable formula. He backed it with energy, faith, integrity and a name that meant "satisfaction or money back."

Today more than 4,000,000 families—one-fifth of America's population—use and recommend Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine.

The formula has never been changed in a quarter century. What Hill's has done for millions, it can do for you. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait. All druggists, 30 cents.

GOSHEN

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Geer of the North street called on friends here Sunday afternoon.

December 31 brought to the close of a very unusual month, as well as that of a whole year. The last day of the old year at Maple Hill, there was a sweet song of a blue bird.

A number improved the light snowfall and tried out a sleigh and a pung.

A Goshen farmer met with a series of mishaps while hauling a load of green wood several miles. The rear axle broke, the stove wood was reloaded into another wagon borrowed from a kind hearted neighbor. Going a ways farther this wagon broke down and the fuel was again reloaded into an auto truck and thus was taken to its destination.

The Community club held a masquerade social at the regular meeting on Wednesday evening. Among those present in costume were Ole Block Joe and wife who sang during the evening, Carry Me Back to Old Virginny. Cake and coffee were served.

The first radio in Goshen is being installed by A. C. Lathrop on Silver street. The long aerial antennae 35 feet high has been installed to catch the delicate sound waves traveling in space at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

J. Y. Thomas has been called to serve as juror at the present term of court in Norwich.

NEW LONDON JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED JAN. 15TH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, January 5—

Whether the city will construct a junior high school has not yet been settled. On the 15th of the month the advocates of such a building as is proposed and the opponents of the plan will come to the parting of the ways and before an interested gathering of citizens, no doubt, will make their arguments in the council chamber in the city hall. Councilor Fox is understood to be luke-warm toward the scheme for a new building and he will have some facts and figures to advance at the hearing. The members of the board of school visitors are said to be enthusiastic over the plan to build, or at least some of them are and they will urge beginning work on the structure with as little delay as is needed. Then there will be citizens who are not members of the school board nor of the council who may want to participate in the presentation of facts and in the advancement of reasons for or against the construction of the building. It is pointed out that at one time the school board desired to begin the building by erecting the wings first, a course that the opponents of the movement say is evidence that the promoters of the scheme do not realize just what they want. Councilor Fox claimed at the meeting of the city council a week ago that the number of pupils registered in New London by the last census of school children was smaller than the registration a year ago showed. He urged that the meeting with the school board should be "in the open" that the taxpayers might know just what was said and who said whatever was put forward in arguments for or against the construction policy. Mr. Fox was a member of the board of visitors for a considerable time, but he retired after he went into the city council. He was not always agreed with his associates in the board as to policy and was a disturbing influence at times. He admits that fact, but says he was protecting the interests of the taxpayers and getting the best that was to be secured for the children in the schools. It is said that a son-in-law of Councilor Whiton has been considering the plans for the proposed school, and as he is an architect what he has suggested, if he has suggested any changes, will be taken into consideration. Mr. Whiton, himself a member of the body that is to pass upon the issuance of bonds to pay for the building, objected to the adoption of the plans originally presented because the building could not be constructed for the amount appropriated for the purpose. The city has secured from the legislature the privilege of issuing school bonds but they have not all been authorized by the city. Another thing that Mr. Fox is anxious about, it is understood, is whether the plans the city paid a large sum to have prepared have been discarded as worthless.

Albert Goss, an employe of the city was fined $10 in the police court this morning for speeding his machine past an intersecting street, off Jefferson avenue, and failing to give any signal that he was approaching, so that Harold Haney, operating a car in an opposite direction with a child in the car with him, could get away from harm. Goss has been driving a car some time, it is said, but he got on a speed yesterday that put the car out of his quick control and he went into the Haney car with a force that hurled its occupants out. They were not seriously injured.

It would be interesting to know just how many persons George Beck has become sorety, when they have been called upon to appear in court. It is the business of George to furnish bonds and he is paid for that service, but he often is obliged to take a chance and he does that with good grace.

The funeral of Mrs. Henrietta M. Bush, widow of Aaron Bush, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at her residence, 73 Hempstead street, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Francis and Rev. Mr. Grimstead. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

John A. Hanninen, a contractor, 34 Parker street, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court last night, charged with violation of the automobile law on two counts, not having an operator's license and operating an automobile that was not properly equipped with brakes. On the first count Hanninen was fined $5 and on the latter charge a fine of $5 was imposed which with the annexed costs of $14.35 compelled Hanninen to pay $22.35.

Hanninen was arrested on the night of the 28th, when his machine collided with an automobile, owned and operated by Albert Burgess of Oranieville, both cars being damaged. State Policeman Joseph Kaminski investigated the crash and determined that Hanninen was at fault and his arrest followed.

Adolph Wade of Mystic, Mrs. Joseph Poretta and infant son, Waterford, Mrs. Daniel Roberts, Westerly and Charles Nixon of the lighter Addie, owned by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

A motorcycle, owned and operated by Onufry Toupasz, 189 Howard St., in passing through Bank street this afternoon collided with an automobile truck owned by the New London Fruit & Produce company. The motorcycle was damaged.

Private Chase, King and Potter, the three soldiers, who escaped from the military prison at Fort Wright, Wednesday night, whom they successfully eluded the guard and went to the shore where they went out on the sound in a small rowboat that was in waiting for them, have not been captured and whether they have reached shore is not known. The night was a tough one on the sound for a strong tide and a heavy wind prevailed, making it extremely dangerous for the navigation of a craft of the rowboat type. It is possible that the fugitives may have received assistance from one of the many fishermen of that vicinity who may have picked up the soldiers and conveyed them to a Connecticut or Rhode Island port.

Harold Weaver, of Whitestone, L. I., a practicing attorney of New York, was arrested this afternoon by State Policeman Benjamin W. Kenerson in Waterford charged with violation of the automobile laws. He was presented before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton and fined $25 with costs $12. Weaver paid Justice Morton $37 and then departed on his journey.

Weaver was passing through Waterford when the state police officer copied the machine travelling at a high speed. Kenerson put chase and finally overtook the speeding motorist. When Weaver was ordered to stop he refused to and continued for a considerable distance, but finally came to a stop. He was then placed under arrest and escorted to the residence of the justice for the hearing.

Mrs. Louise Davis, wife of John F. Davis, died this afternoon at her home, 14 Spring street. Mr. Davis, besides her husband, is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mary H. Squires.

Edward P. Shugrue, son of Mrs. Alice Shugrue, 112 Riverview avenue, died at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 28th. Mr. Shugrue was employed by the Edison Phonograph company at the time of his death and during his residence in New London was employed by the Brown Cotton Gin Manufacturing company and by the New London Ship & Engine company. Besides his mother, Mr. Shugrue is survived by his wife and three children and by four sisters, Mrs. James McKenna of New London, Mrs. Richard Morris of Columbia, Ga., Mrs. William Herald of Richmond Hill, N. Y., and Miss Alice Shugrue of New York. Mr. Shugrue had been in ill health and underwent an operation for stomach trouble.

Homer K. Underwood, headmaster at Berkeley school, has gone to Winsted, where he will remain several days in the home of obtaining relief from an attack of asthma, by the change in climatic conditions.

Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linicus is now occupying his new office in the municipal building the new quarters being those formerly assigned to Police Woman Alice Hunt. The office heretofore used by Inspector Linicus is being altered and when this work is completed will be used for juvenile court sessions.

Among the preliminary students accepted by Miss Ida M. Reade, R. N., principal of the School for Nursing connected with Lawrence hospital, is Miss Mary McGibney of 262 Broad street, Norwich. Other students to be accepted are Miss Teresa Kiely, Miss Malloy, Miss Helen Sullivan, Miss Flores White and Miss Ruth Williams of New London; Miss Marjorie Winship, Groton; Miss Mary Yurkewitz, Oakdale; Miss Ida Thompson, Noank; Miss Marion Howe, Wyoming, R. I., and Miss Berdie Jay of New York. The presentation of caps will be made to the students on the evening of the 12th inst., by Miss Katherine M. Prindiville, superintendent of the institution, in the presence of relatives and friends of the students.

H. I. Morris of Bridgeport, U. S. deputy collector of customs, has been assigned to duty at this port, the assignment however, being only temporary.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, who has been confined to his home on Nathan Hale street for a week by illness, is greatly improved and will resume his duties within a few days.

The sale of Anti-Tuberculosis seals in New London during the holidays netted the New London Visiting Nurses' association $764.16.

The civil action brought eight months ago by Mrs. Susie Partello of Groton, widow of Eugene Partello, who was fatally injured by being struck by an automobile owned and operated by Dr. John N. Dimon on Bank street, has been settled, Judge of Probate Arthur B. Anderson making such a precedure possible by granting an order of compromise. Mrs. Partello brought suit for $10,000 damages.

At St. Mary's Star of the Sea church this morning at 8 o'clock an anniversary requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Dr. T. M. Crowley for Mrs. Maria May, mother of William T. May and James R. May of New London, Rev. Francis A. May of Hartford and Rev. Michael H. May of Norwich.

At a meeting of the Marine Engineers Benefit society, last evening, the following officers were elected: President, John Dart; vice president, Carl A. Lundburg; second vice president, Bert Davidson; corresponding secretary, George Fraster; treasurer, William Dolbeare. John Dart was appointed a delegate to the national convention at Washington the 30th inst.

Within the past few nights Lieut. Benjamin Beebe and a detail of officers have visited three places where it was believed gambling was in progress but they failed to find any evidence. The proprietors of the places the police visited are wondering why they were selected as the possible subjects for arrest when at least two other places in the heart of the city, where it is an open fact that gambling is promoted were not visited and never are.

New London lodge of Elks will hold its annual banquet during the first part of February. The lodge has grown rapidly until now it boasts a membership of 1200.

Mrs. Pauline Parker, proprietress of a store at East Lyme, whose place was raided by State Policeman Walter Bahr of the Centerbrook barracks Thursday afternoon at which time about a gallon of cider was seized, was before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis in the East Lyme court tonight. The evidence which had been seized had been analyzed by the state chemist and showed the cider to contain approximately 4.47 per cent. alcohol. The minimum fine under the law was imposed.

State Policeman Bahr visited a half dozen other places in East Lyme, but no evidence, even cider, was found.

The municipal police department began economizing at the start of the new year for then two patrolmen who have been doing duty for a considerable time were laid off until the activities of summer began. New London's police woman, though she resigned some months ago, is still under pay and is supposed to be doing duty. Her work, it is said does not come to the attention of the public, but is rather of a corrective sort that "is not puffed up, does not vault itself in public." Mrs. Hunt, the policewoman, is to serve until her successor is appointed and when that will be no one seems to know.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

In spite of the unfavorable weather of Tuesday evening a good number attended the watch meeting services held at the Eber Dunham Memorial church, commencing at 9.30 o'clock. Rev. C. A. Johnson had charge of the first part of the service, his theme being Lord, I believe. Then followed a social half hour at which refreshments were served. The meeting was then resumed, being devotional, conducted by Rev. J. W. Carpenter, closing at 11 o'clock.

Clifford Bonham has been transferred by the H. Wales Lines company from Springfield, Mass., to Stamford, where they have a contract to build twenty houses.

Miss Mildred Perkins of Mystic, is visiting her grandfather, W. H. Corbit.

Relatives from Holyoke called on Mrs. George Cosgrove, New Year's day.

Miss Bertha Botham spent the week-end and New Year with friends in Oakville.

Milton Wilcox and Lloyd Wilcox called on their grandmother, Mrs Wilcox and aunt, Mrs. Irving Botham one day last week.

Fenelon McCollum, Jr., was a Hartford visitor on Monday.

Miss Gladys Thompson returned to Palmer Wednesday, after spending a week at her home here.

Thurve Hammelin has commenced work at the Mansfield Organ Pipe Works.

Mrs. J. W. Carpenter went to Providence Thursday to attend the funeral of a friend.

Friends of Mrs. Emma Johnson who used to be a resident here, were saddened to hear of her death, Saturday, Dec. 29.

Snow and ice are a reminder that we may have winter yet.

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Most Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I dragged myself around and did not have an appetite. I would get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got results from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. ANNIE YOUNG, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S.C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it.

Because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is reason why it should help you.

The bride wore a gown of cocoa canton crepe with fur coat and gray velvet hat. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Fleck went by automobile to Plainfield where they took the train for New York. They will live with Mr. Fleck's parents on Daggett street.

Mrs. Fleck is the daughter of Louis Gendron, selectman of the town. Mr. Fleck works for his father who has charge of the state roads in this section. The family moved here from Pomfret last July. Both the young people are active in the grange and have many friends.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Palace.

Besides picturing a corner of London life in its most exciting moments, an entirely different phase is also shown in Me and My Gal, the attraction at the Palace theatre, Sunday night. When the action follows Betty Balfour as Squibs, star character of the comedy-drama, to the country, all the beauty and interest of rural England are shown. Unusually fine photography does full justice to the lovely countryside in Surrey, the county nearest the metropolis. Roads and lanes and shady dells all prepare the eye for a vista which ends in a quaint thatched cottage, picturesque, cozy and very comfortable.

When it is further made known that the cottage is occupied by the parents of Squibs' sweetheart, former policeman and cook, there is a point of interest in the fact that English country people of humble means live in an atmosphere of thriving beauty. Such natural beauty, in fact, as Americans expect only on the carefully-tended estates of the rich.

From tranquility such as this the closely-knitted plot of Me and My Gal shifts back to the tenser life of the city, there to end in a thrilling climax.

The second big feature has a distinguished cast of players to support the charming new star of the screen, Helen Jerome Eddy, in her first important independent vehicle, When Love Comes. Among the players are Harrison Ford, Fannie Midgeley Claire Dubry, Joseph Bell, Gilbert Clayton, Buddy Messenger, Molly Gordon, J. Barrows and Fay MacKenzie.

Helen Jerome Eddy, now a full-fledged star, and Harrison Ford, one of the foremost leading men of the screen, make a charming and romantic couple.

Short subjects will complete the best Sunday program offered in this popular playhouse for some time.

George A. Congress has accepted a position as night manager at the new [illegible] restaurant, Main st.

Big Feature Movies Picture at Y. M. C. A.—Public Invited

By special arrangements the management of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association is able to announce that on Sunday, January 6th at 4 o'clock the unusual and religious moving picture, The Steam of Life, will be shown. This picture is produced by James K. Shields, and is one of the most impressive pictures stories on the screen. It is the story of the breaking of home ties as the young man leaves home and goes for the first time to the big city to shift for himself, taking with him all the fond good wishes of his Godly mother and father who part with them both with heavy hearts. The son at first has a hard time of it, but finally wins success in the business world, but things of life wanes and he is soon in the whirl of social life and well nigh forgets the teachings of his Godly parents. The fact wears on the aged mother, whose husband has passed away, and alone she bears the burden of disappointment. After some years certain trials compel the son to think of more serious things and he in due time comes back to his mother's God. The entire six reels are brim full of real heart interest. This feature has been used in many of the churches of America with splendid success and the impression made has been lasting. The public generally is invited. A free will offering will be taken.

Next Week at United Congregational Church.

The cabinet of the Woman's Guild will meet at the home of Miss Elisabeth Huntington, 344 Washington street, at 3 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon.

Mid-week meeting, Thursday evening, at 7.45, when Mr. Abbott will review Simkhovitch's "Toward the Understanding of Jesus."

On the afternoon of Friday, at 3 o'clock, the Woman's Guild will meet at the Community House. The usual business meeting will be followed by a delightful program of readings of original poems by Miss Mazie V. Cauthers, and music by Mrs. James A. Bidwell, soprano, and Miss Faith Curtis, violinist. Tea and a social hour will add to the afternoon's pleasure.

The Camp Fire will meet for handcraft, at the Community House, at 7 o'clock Friday evening.

On Sunday evening, Jan. 6th, at 7.30 o'clock, Dorothy B. Carpenter, one of the foremost readers on the American platform, will appear in the Central Baptist church. For this super service Miss Carpenter will read The Other Wise Man, by Van Dyke and The Three Christmas Trees, by Ewing.

Miss Carpenter is the possessor of unusual dramatic ability, a keen analytical mind, and a splendid personality. Miss Carpenter's power lies in her clear understanding of human nature and her remarkable ability in vividly portraying human characters. Her many successful appearances in this city have won for her great popularity.

The public is cordially invited

Slater Hall Musical Course.

"The reason that European musicians write music which is only designed for the ears of those who are themselves musically 'schooled'" says Percy Grainger, the young Australian composer and pianist, who will be heard at Slater Hall on Friday evening, Jan. 11th, "is because European people are inclined to be exclusive people.

"In the same way, Americans musicians have been particularly successful with democratic music because America is essentially a democratic country. I have been often quoted as denouncing the studied and polished music of Europe, but I have really never done so. My real feeling on the matter is that both types of music are equally high forms of art. The only reason I have seemed to uphold the democratic sort of writers is because most European musicians have no use for them at all. I can see no reason why their efforts are not just as important and interesting as those of the most technically perfect musicians on the other side of the Atlantic. If you take an audience, for instance, which is made up of cultured people, and uncultured men and women, and play something for them, the uncultured portion of the audience will be just as quick to discover a law in the playing, I have found, as the most expert critic there. This is because, as far as appreciation is concerned, music is a universal art."

Tickets for this recital are on sale at The Cranston Co. Tickets $3.00, tax exempt. Mail or phone orders will be given prompt attention.

Next Week at Park Church.

Sunday, the men's and women's Bible classes and the Sunday school meets immediately following the church services. Moving pictures of the Bible given each week at the evening exercises of the Sunday school.

Tuesday, the regular meeting of the Camp Fire will be held on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, in the parish house.

Thursday, the meetings of the Blue Birds will be resumed, each member of the organization, with a guest, being urged to be present to take part in a surprise program. The meeting will be at 4 o'clock in the primary room of the Sunday school. Mid-week service in the chapel at 7.30 o'clock.

Friday, Jan. 11, the mission meeting will be held in the parish house parlors at 3 p. m. Miss Alice W. Cogswell will give a synopsis of The Woman and the Leaven in Japan, by Charlotte M. DeForest, the book for foreign mission study for 1924. All women of the congregation are especially invited for this first meeting of the year.

Norwich Music Association.

The Norwich Music Association will hold its regular monthly meeting in Slater Hall on Monday evening, Jan. 7, at 8 p. m.

The evening will be devoted to a piano and song recital by Henry J. LaFontaine, and will afford a welcome opportunity to Mr. LaFontaine's many friends to hear him in a recital program.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Little Old New York Closes Engagement at the Breed Theatre Today

"Little Old New York," starring Marion Davies, which has been playing to capacity houses all week will close its engagement at the Breed theatre today. If you have not seen this picture do so by all means today as you will enjoy every minute of it. "Little Old New York" was adapted to the screen by Lotta Woods from the play by Rida Johnson Young which had a most successful run on Broadway. Joseph Urban designed the settings which recreate the quaint charm of New York as it was a century ago. Sidney Olcott directed the picture. A cast which even surpasses that of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" in which Miss Davies scored such a tremendous success, adds features to "Little Old New York." One in which was made in the Twenty-third Regiment armory in Brooklyn because no studio was large enough, is the largest set ever filmed in motion pictures and covered 980 square feet of floor space.

Harrison Ford Courtenay, Poote Mahlon Hamilton, Norval Keedwell, George Barraud, Sam Hardy and Andrew Dillon portray members of the first families of New York of those days—the Vanderbilts, Astors, Rivoorts and others, not forgetting Robert Fulton, who ran the first steamboat up the Hudson, also Washington Irving. Others in the cast include Lou a Wohlm, J. Kerrigan, Spencer Charters, Har Watson, Gypsy Abbott, Elizabeth Murray, Mary Kennedy and Charles Judels.

Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10.45, and the feature will be shown at 1.30, 3.50, 6.10 and 8.30 p. m.

Broad Theatre

Mae Murray, the magnetic Metro star, whose new production of Fashion Row will open a four day engagement at the Breed theatre starting Sunday, has acquired a beautiful Russian wolf hound. This name is Stanislavsky, after the guiding genius of the Moscow Art theatre, of whom Miss Murray is a tremendous admirer, but since the star and her director husband, Bob Leonard, call him "Stan" for short, the wolf hound is hardly known by any other name in Hollywood.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Of special interest was the disposition of Eddie John's case in the superior court at Putnam Friday. John was sent to jail for a year for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, a second offence. He was the driver of a car that crashed with a Springfield, Mass., machine at the junction of Broad and Reynolds St., on Saturday, September 29, and then ran away before an officer could be summoned, abandoning his machine. John, whose home is in Willimantic, was found when taken into custody an hour later by State Officer Merrill Keith to have been drinking and a bottle of liquid of the moonshine variety was found in his car.

The public will applaud the action taken in John's case, especially the people who do any motoring, dangerous enough in the heavy traffic of today without its being made more so by drivers not in their right senses.

There were special features provided for the weekly dance at the state armory Friday night. Music was by Sheridan's orchestra, which plays during season at a resort on the Charles river, Boston. Exhibition dances were given by Jimmy Bray and Miss Mae Shearin from the Jalais Royal at Hartford. The dance attracted a large number from all the surrounding towns.

Officers of Orient lodge, K. of P. elected for the ensuing year are: Chancellor commander, Arthur W. Logee; vice chancellor commander, Alton Eldridge; prelate, F. J. Trudden; master of work, Hiram W. Burton; keeper of records and seal, Henry E. Burton, master of exchequer, Walter W. Ryder; master of finance, F. E. Young; outside guard, Kenneth Preston; inside guard, Roscoe Burton; trustee for three years, C. H. Bacon.

Something that will be a novelty in Danielson and not duplicated in any place in this corner of the state is the sidewalk clock that will be erected by the Danielson Trust company at its building on Main street. The clock is of ornamental design and will be set in the walk, close to the curb, near the entrance to the bank. It will be electrically lighted and will not only serve as a public timepiece but also as an ornament and to add to the brilliancy of the lighting in the central part of the business section.

Little has been heard of late relative to the petition for the removal of a row of shade trees in Reynolds street between Main and Broad Sts., that more width be gained for the state highway there and the dangers of traffic movements in that particular section minimized. Though the subject has been a dormant one for several months, it is known that interests who desire the trees removed still have the matter in mind and will press it at the first favorable opportunity. Opposition to the removal of the trees has been largely on account of their beauty and the shade they have given about the southerly side of Davis park.

Showing that mink are not extinct or nearly so, as many have supposed, in this section of New England, one dealer in town has collected 30 pelts of these animals during the present season and sent them away to dealers. Mink are not numerous hereabouts, but there are more of the animals to be found in the territory than the average person would imagine.

Interest here will center next week insofar as the doings in the superior court at Putnam are concerned, in the trial of Ralph Denoyelle of Providence, facing a charge of manslaughter. Denoyelle was driver of a heavily loaded motor truck that struck and killed Julius Benac, Sr., at the head of Reynolds street one afternoon the past fall while Mr. Benac was acting as flagman for the state highway department while repairs were being made to the state highway in that section. Denoyelle pleaded not guilty Friday and elected to be tried by the court.

A Danielson case disposed of in the superior court at Putnam Friday was that of Wilfred Blanchette, charged with indecent assault. He pleaded guilty to simple assault and was fined $200 and placed in charge of Attorney Charles L. Torrey of Putnam as probation officer. Blanchette is now living in New Bedford.

Weasels—Brown or white wanted for prices up to $1.50; also mink, red fox and other furs. Ship at once to James E. Smith, East Killingly, and get highest price. Tel. Danielson 326-13.—adv.

Looking forward this early to the national election scheduled for next fall, some active spirits imbued with more than incidental interest in politics already are making plans to largely increase Killingly's voting list by urging upon qualified persons who have not done so to become electors of the town that they may have the power of expressing themselves at the polls in the year's elections. It is pointed out that the voting list of Killingly can be very materially increased by interesting those who can pass the tests required of voters in filing applications to be made.

Members of the Methodist church will be especially interested in Sunday's services in view of the fact that Rev. H. H. Conklin, the new pastor, will be officiating here for the first time. Rev. Mr. Conklin will preach at the morning and evening services. He comes here from Vaughanville, Ohio.

Killingly High school basketball team was at Willimantic Friday for a game with Windham High school team.

An arrangement has been made for the inspection of the teeth of public school children of Killingly by a competent dentist, who will have the co-operation of the visiting nurse, that suggestions may be made as to such care as individual cases need, the recommendations being merely suggested and not necessarily to be followed by parents of the little people.

Bad traveling conditions the past few days appears to have popularized the trolleys as a safe and comfortable means of transportation, with no worry over the icy conditions of the roads.

Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of Willimantic will come here Sunday after noon to install the officers of the St. John Baptist society at a ceremony to be held in St. John's hall.

This is the last day of grace allowed delinquent personal taxpayers, if they would avoid having their names handed to the prosecuting attorney with requests that he proceed to collect the taxes.

The late John Armstrong, whose body was brought here from Providence for burial this week, had advanced to the rank of Lieut. Col. before his retirement from the national guard of this state.

Henry A. Frankman of New Bedford visited friends in Danielson Friday.

This (Saturday) afternoon Justice Frank M. Bedard in the town of Brooklyn there is to be a hearing of the case of the state vs. Alex Ruzzella of West Wauregan, at whose place a quantity of cider and wine was seized a little more than a week ago.

Vaudeville attracted the usual large attendance at the shows at the Orpheum theatre on Friday.

Mrs. Emily Gilette of Dayville observed her 98th birthday this week. She is a native of Colchester, this state.

Mrs. Willard Danielson of Hutchins street will have the members of the W. C. T. U. at her home for a meeting next Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. A. V. Woodworth will entertain the Ladies Reading circle Monday afternoon

Central Village was interested Friday in the arrest of five youths, hailing from Boston, on a charge that they broke and entered a little wayside business place near French's crossing and stole a quantity of inner tubes. They also were held for breaking into a house nearby and taking some suitcases.

PUTNAM

The work of disposing of a long list of cases on the criminal list was begun in this city Friday morning, when Judge George E. Hinman presided at the opening session of the January term. Prayer was offered by Rev. Simeon E. Cozad, pastor of the Congregational church.

A jail sentence of one year was imposed upon Eddie John of Willimantic, after he had pleaded guilty to a second offense charge of operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of liquor. This is indicative of the degree of offense that John committed and how such crime is regarded by the courts and the public at large.

John was arrested in Danielson on September 29 after the machine which he was driving was in collision with another car owned in Springfield, Mass., the accident happening at the corner of Broad and Reynolds street, where the trunk line highway from Providence comes into Danielson.

John deserted his car after the crash, in which no one happened to be injured, and was not located for an hour or more, when he was found by State Officer Merrill Keith and placed under arrest. At the time of the accident his operator's license had been suspended after conviction of a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The case of Thomas J. Killourey of Willimantic, was continued until the next term of court. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of embezzlement and elected to be tried by the court.

Judge Hinman stated that on account of the case having been more or less a subject of discussion in his presence he felt, though not prepared to say he was disqualified to hear it, that he would prefer that it be heard by some other judge and continued it to the next term of court. Mr. Killourey was represented by Attorney Samuel Harvey as counsel.

In the case of the State vs. H. H. Doorin, alias Benjamin Marion, counsel for the accused, who was in court, requested that the bond in the case be reduced, representing that $11,000 was excessive in view of the fact that the amount involved in the proceedings was probably not more than $1,200 to $1,400. Doorin is the young man who was arrested in Providence a few weeks ago and brought to Canterbury to answer to a charge of embezzlement in a stock transaction. It was stated to the court that Doorin, if in the wrong, would endeavor to make restitution. Judge Hinman ordered the bond reduced to $2,500 and continued the case to the next term of court.

Having pleaded guilty to a charge that he transported 100 gallons of alcohol, which was seized as he arrived with it in Moosup from Rhode Island, Adolph Lantange of Moosup, was sentenced to serve two months in jail and to pay a fine of $200. The penalty for such a violation of the law as that with which Lantagne was charged might have been as much as two years and a fine of $2,000.

In passing on this case State Attorney Charles E. Searls outlined for the court the policy that has been followed in this county since last fall, in dealing with liquor cases and pointed out that jail sentences have been imposed in the superior court in every instance where there has been conviction of violation of the liquor laws. Mr. Searls added that he felt that he need make no recommendation as to the case before the bar other than to set forth that the offense of transportation was a serious one in the eyes of the law.

In behalf of his client Attorney J. J. Desmond of Norwich pointed out that Lantagne, a young man, is handicapped by a physical defect that almost cripples him and that he has a wife and two small children; also that the charge against him constituted a first offense.

Judge Hinman said in passing sentence that he had taken note of what Mr. Desmond had said in Lantagne's behalf, this in fact being the only redeeming feature of the case. The penalty, the court said, would be sufficient to stop the accused from further violation of the liquor laws and to warn others against such violations. Lantagne was warned by the court that should he appear again on similar charges he could have no claim for leniency.

Wilfred Larose, Moosup, pleaded not guilty on a second offense charge of violating the liquor laws and elected to be tried by the court. This case may come to trial next Tuesday, when sessions are resumed for the week.

Cyrus H. Greene, Pomfret, charged with obtaining money under false pretense from Fred W. Cunningham of Pomfret, pleaded not guilty and elected to have his case tried by the court. He became involved in difficulty with the law through a transaction in which he pretended, it is alleged, that oxen he disposed of to Cunningham were his property.

At the afternoon session Ralp Donoyelle of Providence, charged with manslaughter, pleaded not guilty and elected that he be tried by the court. The charge aainst him arises out of a motor truck he was operating striking and almost instantly killing Julius Benac, at Danielson, a few weeks ago. Benac was an employe of the state highway department and was acting as a flagman at the time of the accident.

Edgar A. Auger of this city pleaded not guilty to abuse of a female child and elected to be tried by the court. This case will be heard later during the term. The case against Augur grows out of allegations made against him by a Dayville girl, who was one of a party that took an automobile ride via Alexander's lake to her home town with a party of four, after attending a theatre in this city.

Another trial is in prospect in the case of the State vs. Albert Kruppowich and Anna Kruppowich, husband and wife, who will be charged with violation of the liquor laws. This is the only case brought forward during the day in which the accused expressed a preference to be tried by a jury rather than by the court.

So many cases are on the list that it was impossible to give attention to all of them Friday, but business was so expedited that it will be possible to begin the trial of cases when court opens next Tuesday for the week.

A delegation of nearly a score of the members of Wappaquasset tribe, Order of Red Men, will motor from this city to Springfield today (Saturday) to witness the conferring of degrees on a class. Teams of three different tribes will confer the three degrees. The first of the degrees will be exemplified this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Vital statistics for Putnam during 1923 show that there were 136 deaths, 111 marriages and 245 births.

Friday's session of the superior court brought the majority of the attorneys of Windham county to this city, nearly all having clients to represent.

Few changes in the appointive offices of the city are expected to follow the organization of the new common council during the coming week and there may be no changes at all.

Shares of the 17 series of the Putnam Building and Loan company are now being taken by the public and are selling in a manner to please the officials of the organization, which now has assets of nearly $200,000.

Judge Frank H. Foss of the Willimantic city court was in Putnam Friday.

A few more days of cold weather and those who have been anxious to go fishing through the ice will have their opportunity on some of the smaller bodies of water.

That the superior court proceedings of Friday held much interest for the local public was indicated by the fact that the court room was filled with spectators throughout the day.

The group of cars used by Western Union men who are renewing lines of the company in this part of the state have returned here, after having been at Danielson for some time.

Unusual results are being obtained by radio fans here these winter nights, and the daily reports of distant stations clearly heard and what they were sending forms an interesting story.

Only five alderman, including the alderman-at-large were present at the last meeting of the old common council, Thursday evening, at which Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, mayor-elect for another two-year term, presided.

The fire committee submitted prices on a thousand feet of hose and stated that if the order was placed at once it could be bought ten per cent. cheaper than in the future. Mayor Chapdelaine stated that unless it was really necessary that the hose be purchased at once, he thought the matter should go over until the next annual budget is made up. The question was laid on the table until the next meeting.

Reports of department heads were read, consuming most of the time, and it was shown that there is less than $200 cash in the city treasury, which will necessitate the borrowing of money until taxes are collected.

Abutters on Mill street petitioned the council to accept the thoroughfare as a city street and to curb it, build sidewalks and to install electric lights. The matter was referred to the highway committee.

Superintendent of Streets Frank Dumas told the council that one of the city's pair of horses had outlived its usefulness. He thought that in view of the fact that there might be a heavy fall of snow at any time and as it is necessary to use the horses at such time that quick action should be taken in procuring another horse. The matter was referred to the highway committee with power to act.

A list of abutters on streets where sprinkling with oil had been requested, was read. These abutters have not paid their sprinkling assessments and the total amount due the city is over a thousand dollars. It was voted to have the money collected.

The street superintendent called the attention of the council to the drainage of surface water from the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad onto Harris street which, when it freezes, makes a dangerous situation. He had talked with officials of the railroad company but the company had taken no action. It was voted to instruct the corporation council to take the matter up with the railroad officials.

Tax Collector Archibald MacDonald, Jr., reported that he had collected $60,682.90 for the past year and enough additional back taxes to bring the total up to $61,791.41.

Several permits for building garages were referred to the highway committee. Regular monthly bills were ordered paid and at 9 o'clock the council adjourned to next Monday evening.

WESTERLY

In the third district court session, held in the court rooms on Union street Friday morning, Clerk M. Walter Flynn read the following docket:

New Writs—George W. Woodward vs. Harriet M. Green. Continued one week.

Whiton Machine Co. vs. William McKenzie. Continued two weeks.

Ledyard Anthony vs. Roy Talbot. Continued one week for hearing.

Cluett, Peabody Co. vs. Louis Alberts. Continued one week.

Civil Docket—Superior Arc Lighting Co. vs. Antonio Felicette. Continued one week.

Portage Tire and Rubber Co. vs. Westerly Motors, Inc. Continued two weeks.

Superior Arc Lighting Co vs. Louis Deutch. Continued one week.

Westerly Furniture Co. vs. Frank Chemento. Continued one week.

Judge Michael J. Turano then took up the criminal docket and called the case of the State, Thomas E. Brown, Chief of Police, compl't. vs. Gaitano Fiore.

Upon inquiry from the judge the defendant stated that he could not speak English, so the court directed that Pasquale Salemano, who was in the court room, act as interpreter. On the writ the defendant was alleged to have in his possession liquors which contained alcohol in excess of one-half of one per cent. Answering through the interpreter defendent said "that he did have it," the judge directing a plea of guilty, asked of Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., what were the facts. The town solicitor said that defendant operated a store on Pierce street, known as a cheese store, where men were accustomed to congregate and that drinking and playing of games went on. Fifteen half-pint bottles of beer were found on the premises. Judge Turano said to the defendant that he need not have the impression, as the judge had been informed with the case, that he was not guilty if he did not sell, but if he had it in his possession he was guilty. Finding him guilty the judge imposed a fine of $50 and costs, which he said he did not have.

Judge Turano asked if there was any appearance for the 15 one-pint bottles of beer. There being none, the wet goods were ordered forfeited to the state.

In State vs. Pasquale Salemano, a case of possession of intoxicating liquors alleged to have been seized at 73 1-2 Pleasant street, the defendant claimed residence at 73. Judge Turano announced a week ago that he would suspend decision for a week and on Friday said that "he was reserving decision until later" in that case.

Christ Church Choir club held its annual meeting Friday evening, in the vestry of Christ Episcopal church, Broad street. The meeting was largely attended by the club members and was featured by the presentation of a gold medal to William E. Weeden, who has sung in Christ church choir since its organization, a period of about thirty years. Mr. Weeden is a charter member of the choir club and the presentation was made as a token of esteem and regard in which he is held and a memento of his long and faithful services as a bass singer in the choir. The presentation was made by David E. Lowry.

The choir club members were served light refreshments at the close of the meeting. The officers elected for the coming year were: President, David A. Lowry; vice president, Esther Taylor; secretary and treasurer, Earle E. Saunders; librarian, Harry Lawton; assistant librarian, Gladys Holdsworth; advisory committee, William Weeden, Doris Hartridge, Lillian Thorpe.

PLAINFIELD

The annual meeting of the Plainfield library was held Thursday evening at the Community House, the vice president, Mrs. Henry Dorrence, presiding. The following officers were elected: President, Rev. William E. Wilson; vice president, Francis Baxter; secretary, Miss Annie L. Tillinghast; treasurer, Benjamin F. Dawson; trustees for three years, Rev. William C. Prentiss.

The librarian, Miss Edith Burtwhistle, reported an increasing interest in the library and a larger circulation of books during the past year.

"Red," the new hunting dog owned by Carl Mathewson, lost in the Canterbury woods three weeks ago by picking up a fresh deer trail, has been returned to his owner. The dog seemed delighted to get home.

Miss Nelsie Hartwell has been spending several days visiting friends in New York.

Dr. and Mrs. William E. Wilson are to spend the winter months in the south. They left Plainfield Thursday morning for New York, on their way to Florida.

A week ago Sunday the main streets were crowded with automobiles when visiting delegations attended the meeting of the Knights of Columbus, to witness the working of the third degree on a class of candidates by a degree team from Westerly. There were visitors from a wide section of the country, some coming from Hartford and other cities.

Miss Louise H. Jerome gave a card party to some of her friends Friday afternoon.

James Muldoon was a guest at the managers' banquet given by the Atlantic & Pacific company in the Wauregan hotel, Norwich. A turkey supper was served and a delightful musical program enjoyed.

JEWETT CITY

A special communication of Mt. Vernon Lodge, No. 75, F. & A. M., was held at Masonic hall, Thursday evening when the Master Mason's degree was conferred by the following past masters of Mt. Vernon lodge: W. M. Arthur M. Brown, M. W. G. M.; S. W. Wor. William T. Crumb, J. W. Wor. Raymond F. Cheney, Treas. Wor. Charles H. Ray, Sec'y Wor. George H. Prior, S. D. Wor. Edwin M. Gray, J. D. Wor. Edw. F. Blake, S. S. Wor. Norman B. Parkhurst, J. S. Wor. Wallace H. Payne, Chaplain Wor. Archibald M. Clarke, Marhal Wor. Fred L. Kanehan, Tyler Wor. Earle E. Gilbert, assisted by Past Grand Master Thomas McKenzie of Westerly, and Past Grand Master Charles D. Perkins of New London and District Deputy of the Eighth Masonic district, David H. Seamon of Poquonnoc Bridge.

Arthur M. Brown, most worshipful grand master of Masons in Connecticut, was born in Jewett City, first joining Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, in the home town. Mr. Brown's elder son, Francis Y. Brown, like his illustrious father, is a native of Jewett City, and now in being raised to the sublime degree of a master Mason in Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, he received the honor at the hands of his father, who in addition to being Connecticut's Masonic master, sat for the time being in the east for Mt. Vernon, No. 75, of which he was once the master.

There were visitors present from Norwich, Hartford, Providence, New London, Westerly, Montville, Moosup, Meriden, Southbridge, Cambridge, Worcester, Niantic, Lowell, Whitinsville and Easton, Pa. The attendance was 150. After the work the company adjourned to Rioux hall where lunch was served by the banquet committee, under the direction of William Dealtrey.

Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of fashion and society. And the over-fat wring their hands in mortification and helplessness; revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Prescription and learn through it that they may safely reduce steadily and easily without one change in their mode of life, but harmlessly, secretly, and quickly reaching their ideal of figure, with a smoother skin, better appetite and health than they have ever known. And now comes Marmola Prescription Tablets from the same famously harmless formula as the Marmola Prescription. It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe, fat reducer by giving to your druggist one dollar for a case, or sending a like amount to the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets.

COASTING ACCIDENTS.

... has had no ... coasting, but ... which have and the ... begun to take ... numbers are far greater ... a score of years ago. It is not a case of keeping out of the way of the trolley cars and the other coasters but of dodging the automobiles.

It can never be a pleasing task for those upon whom it devolves to stop such pleasures as are gained from sliding down hill, but there comes the time when it becomes necessary for the protection of life at the expense of pleasure. Where it is possible to reserve hills for coasters without interfering with highway traffic there is an opportunity for action, but in many instances cross streets, or main thoroughfares where trolleys run, cannot be shut off from customary use, and it is invariably at such points that accidents in which traffic is concerned occur. Much as it may be regretted, safety directs that coasting on such hills should be prohibited. It is preferable to have coasters go elsewhere in the interest of safety than to permit them to take unwarranted chances and invite a trip to the hospital or the cemetery.

There are hills which may be regarded as safe and others which must by their very location, be rated as unsafe, and it is the latter where restricted use is to be expected. This doesn't infer that no serious accidents can be expected on the "safe" hills, but that coasters are required to remain off of hills where intersecting street traffic creates a conspicuous danger.

JOHNSON'S ADDRESS.

Senator Johnson in his initial appeal for the favorable action of the Republican national convention on his desires to become the party nominee for president makes a dubious showing. He talks like a desperate down-and-outer, who recognizes that he has little or no chance but is determined to make it just as uncomfortable for the other fellow as he possibly can.

He shows through his speech that he is on the off side. He is bothered because there has not been as great a rally to his standard as he had expected, he chafed because he has been prevented from getting a certain advantage which had been banked on ... has the temerity to rant at ... public demand which has already ... manifested for a reduction in ... taxes. THE MAN WHO TALKS

There is always a fascinating mystery connected with the new year. Our lack of knowledge of what it contains allows the imagination to people it with all sorts of things. There is always a charm in uncertainty provided it is free from fear and dread. With some people it calls for the desire to gamble on certain issues. With all of us the expectancy is more or less keen as to what the morrow will bring forth. Of one thing we may all be perfectly well assured and that is the future is to reveal both the joyous and the sad side of life. Probably with none of us will it be all of either. It may, however, be very unevenly distributed. Some may have coming to them vastly more than seems to be their share, and, at the same time we may wonder why others have so few clouds in their lives. Possibly they have more than the public knows. The best way to face the future is: to get right with God, and live in good relations with your fellows.

We naturally wonder what the outcome of our present political muddles will be in 1924, and many of them must inevitably be brought to an issue during the year on which we have now entered. We instinctively turn our eyes to the European situation with the expectation that the close of the year will see a different political, and possibly moral, map of the continent before the year closes. The present German condition is so aggravated that almost any turn must be for the better, but exactly what it will be even the keenest statesman would hardly venture to predict. It is not with any selfish pride that we look at our own country which is so powerfully intact; so completely free from any outward invasion and attack. Still the new year finds us with trends that threaten to weaken our democracy. No person can look at the present widespread disrespect for law without some fear of the consequences unless checked. The people as a whole must insist upon obedience to law.

Politically, here in America, we are facing a delightful and important uncertainty —that of the presidential succession. At present we have only trends, but trends may lead us widely astray. Four years ago the trend seemed to point strongly in Leonard Wood's direction, but he didn't get the nomination. Oftentimes the "dark horse" is a good deal more than a possibility. As far as one can judge from the present outlook the republicans seem to have the more tangible proposition before them than the democrats. If "possession is nine points in law" then the ruling administration has the inside track. There is, however, one thing that ought to satisfy everybody, and that is, a weak and inferior man has no chance of being president of the United States, no matter on what ticket he runs. The population out of which the selection can be made is so big, that a man who measures up to the office can be found.

As a matter of course there will be many surprises along the path of our individual life in 1924. What they are to be are kindly hidden from our eyes at present, and for two reason. First, there is a kind of surprise that takes the heart out of a man; he may be forced to pass through some great business or domestic shadow. It is going to be something that will take all of his personal strength of mind and character plus all the extra help he can get to endure it. It may be any of the overmastering sorrows to which man is born "like the sparks that fly upward." Would it do him any good to know beforehand that on such a day this or that dreaded thing was coming into his life? Would it not sap whatever joy was in his heart at present? "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Again, if there is some unusual joyful experience in store for him, would it not detract from the duties of the hour? In both cases can we not truly say, "blessed are the eyes that see not" some things?

"A young year, fresh flung from the loins of the Father of Time, plumps itself on your door-step and calls out lustily, 'Hello, you! Here I am! Now, what are you going to do with me?'" So wrote Richard Wrightman in 1917. Now it seems to me that this is a fresh and unusual way of saying that, for the most, the year on which we have now entered is going to be just about what we propose to make it. Let it be admitted that unforseen things may give it tone and color, but the main direction is to be determined by our own wills. Here is something beyond the dictation of an outside party. The individual, and nobody else, has the shaping of one's destiny. One may be influenced, he may be helped or hindered by outside advice, but in the decision, his own will power stands supreme. The individual is going to stand or fall by what he himself proposes to do. He himself is the court of final appeal.

Back in the ancient world one great writer said this "Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler." That we have extra help when we get tangled up in the meshes of the world has been generally admitted since the dawn of inspired revelation. There may be times when we cannot avoid the entanglement. But isn't it a thousand times better to go through the day with eyes so open, and mental faculties so alert as not to tumble into the "snares of the fowler?" Fowling is a business today just as much as it was in past centuries. The only difference is in the kind of game snared. Formerly it was only small game that was enticed into the trap for the purpose of furnishing food. Today fowling has become more of a fine art with the advance of civilization. Today the fowler is the man who tries to get his brother into the net by selling him gilt stocks and other bogus properties. It is quite an advance over the gold brick that is now looked upon as crude and crooked. But it is not quite such smooth sailing for the up-to-date fowler as it was.

Life is full of minor purposes which directly or indirectly support the major purposes in life. The following is an illustration of this: The last several presidents of the United States have put on their knickerbockers and have gone to the golf links. The presidency of the United States is the greatest office on earth and also the most exacting. No human being could stand the strain without a frequent let-up. The nation as a whole rejoices when it sees its president in golf regalia and knows that he plays the game. It does not for a moment mean that he is neglecting important matters of state; that he is crazy over the game. But it does mean that he is making a subordinate purpose strengthen his main purpose in life. It means that he is trying to keep up that physical and mental trim that will make him more efficient as the chief executive of a mighty country.

January the first marks something beside the beginning of a new year. On this date in 1791 the United States bank was established; in 1835 the anti-slavery society was organized in Boston. This was the beginning of that public protest against slavery that culminated in the war of the rebellion; in 1848 (near the first day) gold was discovered in California; in 1863 the Emancipation Proclamation was proclaimed by President Lincoln which was doubtless one of the most far reaching events in the world's entire history that is associated with Jan. 1; in 1879 the resumption of specie payments which had such effect on the business of the country; in 1894 the midwinter world's fair informally opened at San Francisco. These are among the notable things done on Jan. 1 in this country.

Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon

"Mellon says—"

That is one phrase rarely heard in Washington. Mellon does not say. He writes letters. He issues communiques. He is the most extraordinary man in public office today. He has nothing to sell. He is not trying to put over his policies or his personality on the public, writes Herbert Corey in the Washington Star. He is essentially a buyer. His motto is, presumably, caveat emptor—"let the buyer beware."

The public knew next to nothing about Andrew W. Mellon when President Harding made him secretary of the United States treasury. Bankers knew that he is one of the great bankers of the world and one of the four richest men in the United States. A few others knew that his home is in Pittsburgh. That is about all that is known about Andrew W. Mellon today, except that books of reference give his age as sixty-eight and the newspapers tell that he is slender, gray and apparently diffident.

Congress Not Used to His Sort.

Congress knows more about him and wishes it didn't. If a contest of unpopularity were to be held on the hill, which is Washington vernacular for the capitol, the devil and the kaiser might run first and second, but A. W. Mellon would certainly be a good third. Congress is not used to the sort of man he has proved to be in office. He does not argue, he does not make speeches. He writes letters. And they are terrible.

"Taxes should be reduced," is the burden of his lay. "They can be reduced. This is what should be done."

His attitude is wholly that of a banker. He does not discuss rights and wrongs or duties or policies or votes or office-getting. Bankers rarely do. When they invest in the bonds of foreign railroads they do not ask whether the poor heathen will be made better and brighter by the vision of mogul locomotives hauling freight cars upgrade. They ask whether the roads will pay. As Mellon sees his present job it is to get the business affairs of the American people back on a business basis. If congress, which has the power, prefers to increase taxation rather than reduce it, that is congress's own responsibility. But so long as he has the letter writing privilege congress cannot say it was not warned.

Was Misunderstood at First.

When he first came to Washington to take charge of the treasury he was misunderstood. The reporters who called on him broke out the word that he is diffident. If Mellon is diffident, then Napoleon was an evangelist. He is not talkative or jolly. He has a way of looking out of the window when he is being talked to, and he seems a bit frail and a bit oversupplied with nerves, but he is not diffident. There is not a man in the world of whom Andrew W. Mellon is afraid on matters of finance. One assumes that he is only interested in matters of finance. His other interests are not obtrusive.

The treasury offices open at 9 o'clock. He is always on time, except when he is ahead of time. At first he used to beat the colored messenger to the door. During busy seasons he still does. He handles matters of billions as expertly as some men do hand balls. Every minute of his day is occupied with appointments of various but always financial kinds. These appointments often run through until midnight. Almost every proposition has to do with the spending of public money. Generally speaking, Mellon's answer is "No."

No man so completely foreign to the life, manner of thought and shibboleths of statesmen ever came to Washington, perhaps. When the first reporter came to talk with him he was quite frank. He wanted to know whether it was a part of his duty to talk to reporters. Apparently that had not occurred to him as a possibility when he accepted the position. The reporter assured him on this point. It is one of the important duties of every man in office.

"I did not know," he said. "In Pittsburgh reporters have been coming to see me, but I always send some one else out to talk to them."

Both the reporters and the secretary felt the difficulty of the position at first. The reporters were perhaps unduly careful in propounding questions to one of the richest men in the world. It was easy to see that he had not been accustomed to cross-examination. On his side he so thoroughly realized the delicate nature of the negotiations with which he dealt daily that he feared lest a crudity of phrase or a misunderstanding of the elements involved might make needless trouble. Now the reporters and the secretary know each other well.

"He is one of the simplest and most candid of men," say the correspondents. "He talks to us freely."

Keeps Reporters Instructed.

While that is the fact, it is also true that he prefers to issue communiques. He keeps the reporters instructed on national and international finance, but when he has a statement to make it is almost invariably a written one. His is and always will be the banker's attitude. Thanks to their knowledge of the situation the reporters can write accurately on their own account, but he can only be held responsible for his written words.

It is doubtful if he has ever put in words what must be his knowledge of the fact that his is a position of extreme difficulty. On the one side is congress, pressing for more money, still suffering from a hang-over of extravagance dating from the war times, when millions were thrown away like birdseed. On the other, is the public, resenting over-taxation and yet demanding more money from the treasury for every sort of cause. Between times he has to resist his fellow members of the cabinet, each of whom is perfectly willing that every other department shall be made to economize.

"But do not touch mine."

Mr. Mellon's policies are perfectly well known. He believes that the European debtors should pay, because borrowed money should always be repaid. That is business. But he would not press them unduly until they are able to pay. That is business, too. He believes that lower taxes would not only relieve the individual pocketbook but would give a tremendous forward impetus to business. He thinks that any savings we may be able to make in the conduct of our national business should be devoted to paying our own debts, instead of being spent. Great fortunes should pay their proper share of taxes, but unfair taxation is confiscation.

An Optimist Above All Else.

Above all else he is an optimist. No man in the United States, perhaps, is as widely interested in foreign business as he, through his holdings of stocks and bonds. His fellow members of the cabinet are almost daily being astounded at the vast stretch and intimacy of his knowledge of affair. In defiance of the pessimists, who think the world is going to the dogs, he believes it is getting better. He is able to foresee an era of renewed peace and solvency in Europe. He is certain of the essential sanity and solidity of his own land.

But all without blah. No wind, no oratory, no eloquence. Always the banker's point of view:

"Two and two have always made four," he says in effect. "They always will. Taxation cannot be reduced by increasing taxes. Prosperity cannot be encouraged by hamstringing prosperity."

Politicians have almost stopped trying to talk politics to him. He is not interested in popularity. He does not care to have babies named Andrew W. Mellon Smith. Jobs are not swapped for votes in the treasury. He is there to do business in a non-conversational sort of way, but always business.

Uncle Sam pays him $12,000 a year. If his services were put on the market the bidding would be in the millions.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Bright Side of Suffering.

We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed: II Corinth. 4:8-9.

And all this hardship comes to the disciples of Christ in order that by so sharing as it were in His death, they may also share in His resurrection.

"For which cause we faint not, but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day. For our light affliction which is but for a moment, worketh, for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Remember all the things Paul suffered in the service of Christ: you will understand something of what he means. "I know whom I have trusted, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day.

What had Paul committed to Christ? What had he entrusted in Christ's keeping? Had he not entrusted Him with all his hopes? Had he not put his whole future in Christ's hands? And what made him do this, do you suppose? Ask yourself if he would have done it if he had had any doubt of the divinity of Christ or of his faithfulness. Paul trusted Christ—for what? Why, to satisfy his largest hopes and ambitions; to give him a greater career than any that he could have achieved by his own efforts. He trusted Christ, to be, as it were, a good banker, who would at the great account-settling day, give back to him all he had put into the business, and good interest besides.

Paul believed—he knew—that there was no disappointment in store for him. He trusted Christ. But, who will say that it does not take a lively trust to make one sure, that even such sufferings as Paul endured are not to be compared with the "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" which follows in their wake? As to some of us, it is to be feared that the amount of strain our trustfulness will bear fall's far short of that which did not for one moment shake the confidence of the Apostle Paul.

Today's Anniversaries

1840—The Chinese emperor issued an interdict against intercourse with England forever.

1849—Announcement of the invention of the magnetic clock by Dr. Locke.

1872—Overland mail first traveled through the Mont Canis tunnel in the Alps.

1886—Enoch Pratt free library in Baltimore formally opened to the public.

1899—Rev. Nowell Dwight Hillis of Chicago was invited to the pastorate of Plymouth church, Brooklyn.

1921—Five women members took their seats in the Connecticut legislature.

1922—American proposal to prohibit use of submarines against merchantmen agreed upon in committee by Arms Conference at Washington.

1923—France made ready to occupy the Ruhr.

Bituminous wage conference adjourned without agreement.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prince Erik of Denmark, whose choice of a bride has fallen upon a Canadian girl, Miss Lois E. Francis Booth, granddaughter of the Canadian lumber king, J. R. Booth is closely allied with nearly all families of Europe. He is a nephew of King George of England and of King Christian of Denmark. Those who think of royalty as a perpetual source of trouble and loss will find Prince Erik unique. He offers a commendable example to the paraditic class, whether of royalty or merely rich. Several years ago he quietly dropped down in western Canada, bought a farm near Calgary, and set about to make a practical study of agriculture. That his act was not the result of an idle whim is evidenced by the fact that he stuck to his venture and made a success of it. By hard work he has learned how to cultivate the soil harvest its fruits in order that he might be a more useful member of society.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

Neither the personal exemption nor the $400 credit for dependants may be prorated on account of a change in status, martial or otherwise, of the taxpayer during the year. His status is determined as of the last day of the taxable year, December 31, if the return is filed on the calendar-year basis, as most are. For example, a married man with no dependents loses his wife just before the end of the taxable year. He must file his return as a single man, and is allowed only an exemption of $1,000. The law, however, works both ways. A man may wed on December 31, yet he is granted the exemption allowed a married person for the full year.

Similar conditions exist with respect to the personal exemption allowed the head of a family and the credit for dependents. A person who has a dependent child, not mentally or physically defective that attains the age of 18 years just prior to the last day of the year cannot claim the credit for a dependent. If a dependent dies just before the end of a taxable year, no credit for such dependent is allowable. If during the year the head of a family ceases the support in his home of relatives, he is entitled only to the $1,000. exemption.

In the absence of continuous residence with the persons whom he supports, the question whether a person is head of a family within the meaning of the revenue act depends as in the case of married persons, upon the character of the separation. If a child is away at school or on a visit, or through force of circumstances is maintained in a boarding house or with relatives, the exemption allowed the head of a family applies. But when needlessly and continuously the parties live apart the status of the head of a family does not apply, irrespective of the support given.

HELPED LITTLE GIRL'S COUGH

"Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is fine. My little girl had an awful cough. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and gave her a few doses and she was greatly relieved," writes Clyde H. Benson, Marlbrook, Virginia. The best remedy for coughs, colds, hoarseness; relieves promptly and effectively. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has stood the test of time, serving three generations. Stories That Recall Others

Putting on the Soft Pedal

Edgar, a 14 year old, had reached the awkward stage. He was just outgrowing the largest knickerbocker trousers, his hands were large and he used them in a none too graceful manner. His feet were oversized and unmanageable. He went through the house slamming doors, whistling and scuffling until the family was driven to distraction.

He happened to overhear his parents in conversation as to his Christmas present.

The next day he told a friend what thought he was going to get for Christmas.

"A saxophone, I guess," he said.

"What they going to get one of them for," he was asked disdainfully.

"Because they don't want me to make so much noise," was his innocent reply.

A Pointed Question

It was a tense moment in a motion picture theatre. The villain stole into the darkened room, drew a knife and walked stealthily toward the bed in which the hero was supposed to be sleeping.

The stillness was broken by a child's voice:

"Say, mamma, is that the devil?" he asked.

199th DIVIDEND

Norwich, Conn., December 15, 1923.

The Directors of this Society have declared out of the earnings of the current six months, a semi-annual dividend at the rate of four per cent. per annum, payable to depositors entitled thereto, on and after January 1st, 1924.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Among the Eskimos.

Now, let me see. In the last story, Little Jack Rabbit had visited Cuba where the children make strange lanterns out of the calabash, by boring tiny holes in the rind and filling it with fireflies, whose light is as good as that of a candle and perhaps better, for it never flickers out when the wind blows.

Well all through the night as the bunny boy traveled in his Magic Aeroplane, the air grew colder and colder. Towards morning, the airship settled down to earth amid a land of snow and ice, where the little Eskimo children live in huts of snow, and their fathers sail the sea in boats made of sealskin and bone.

By and by, an Eskimo woman came along carrying a baby in her hood. Then, a band of Eskimo boys. At first the little rabbit thought they were going to school, but he soon found out that there were no schools in that cold country, except Mother Nature's where they are taught to find eggs in the nests of the wild sea birds and to catch the eider-duck.

Pretty soon a number of Eskimos dressed in sealskins were on a seal hunt. They looked so like seals that they were able to creep up close to these animals without frightening them.

Well, after that, an Eskimo, with a team of dogs asked the bunny boy to take a ride with him on his sleigh, and maybe if they kept on until they reached Labrador, Little Jack Rabbit could have taken a reindeer ride, for there the Eskimos use reindeer. It was indeed a strange country, and the bunny boy could hardly believe that for months the sun never sets, and then for months it is as dark as night. But the little Eskimo children are happy. They have games and toys just like other children, only when they play horse and drive each other with strips of hide for reins, they call it "playing dog" or "playing reindeer."

After the sleigh ride was over, Little Jack Rabbit hopped into a snow hut in which there was a little baby only a few days old. Here he learned something very strange about little Eskimo children. They are always born with a fair skin, except for a dark round spot, sometimes as small as a cent, on the small of the back. But, as they grow older this little dark spot spreads and spreads until the Eskimo child is as highly colored as a well-smoked meerschaum pipe.

Had the bunny boy been able to make a longer visit, he would have learned many more strange things, but when he hopped out of the snow hut, he saw his airship circling above him. Pretty soon, it came down on the snow, and, as it wouldn't wait any longer, he hopped in just in time. Away it went, above the sea on which the Eskimo boys were sailing in their queer shaped boats made something like a canoe, but covered with skin with an opening only large enough to pass through. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

POETRY

"THANK YOU"

When every last fir has been chevvied,
And each present is rifled and tagged;
When the last shop-girl has fainted
And the toughest expressman is flagged;
You will rest? What a silly suggestion!
Lie down for an eon or two?
Nay, nay, 'tis Christmas "Thank you"
That will put you to work anew.
For those who had gifts must be grateful;
Sit down in your straight-backed chair
And labor o'er suitable greetings
'Til you babble and tease your hair;
Send thanks for what-d'ye-call-'ems,
Of which you can't figure the use,
And eke for the thing-um-bobbys
That haven't e'en friendship's excuse.

And the word "attractive" will help you,
'twill often give you a lift
To write of "your thoughtful present"
And "your dainty Christmas gift."
Then add " 'Tis just what I wanted!"
For off to a separate star
Would be banished such truthful parsons
As spoke of gifts as they are.
—By Winifred Arnold.

ESCAPE

Would I might leave the prison that is I
And be some other person for a day,
And feel the fires of mind and passion play
Beneath some other breast—behold the sky
With other vision that my own, and sigh
With other anguish, yearn with other hope.
Oh, I would soar and sing, aspire and grope
On paths where alien spirits pant and die!
Who knows what rapture, what tempestuous dream
Might then burn deep into my bone and blood;
With blue, perpetual spring my days might bud,
And all the world I knew before might seem
But as an isle that caught a sudden gleam
From foggy mainlands past the bridge of sea flood!
—Stanton A. Coblentz in New York Herald.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Uncle Meadows—"I see it says here some of them London banks have been doin' business for thirty years and never closed their doors."

Mrs. Meadows—"Dear me, how careless. I wonder anybody trusts 'em with their money."—London Tit-Bits.

"Can't you make that little boy stop crying?" asked a kindly old lady of an urchin who was contemplating a smaller child weeping. He pondered a moment.

"I could, mum," he replied, "but it would be moider in de foist degree."—American Legion Weekly.

Lida—"What cigarettes do you smoke?"

Letty—"My husband's."—Exchange.

"Oh mamma," exclaimed little Edna as she watched the large snowflakes falling, "come and look! It's wainin' poptorns!"—Chicago News.

Flubb—"Your wife has a promising voice, old man."

Dubb—"I know it. She's had that ever since we've been married but it hasn't made good yet!"—New York Sun.

"Your advertisement begins: 'Wanted—Silent partner.'"

"Yes, that's right."

"Do you want it placed under Business Opportunities or Matrimony?"—London Tit-Bits.

Son—Father, can you sign your name with your eyes shut?

Father—Certainly.

Son—Well, then, shut your eyes and sign my report card—Washington Star.

He had become engaged, and was calling on her the next day.

"So glad to see you, Bessie," he said. "I met your brother just now and he said I'd find you out."

"Oh, what about?" she asked eagerly.—London Tit-Bits.

"So," sobbed Ilma Vasilinovitch, "Ivan Niuespotski died in battle! Do you say he uttered my name as he was dying?"

"Part of it," replied the returned soldier; "part of it."—New York World.

America is to have its own Roquefort cheese, which will look, taste, and smell just like that which has been made near the village of Roquefort, in southern France for 2,000 years. The French Roquefort is made from sheep milk and ripened in cool windy caves. Lacking the strain of milking sheep and the windy caves, United States government experts have successfully substituted cows' milk and built insulated curing rooms where conditions found in the original Roquefort caverns are simulated.

POST AND RELIEF CORPS HOLD JOINT INSTALLATION

The joint installation of the officers of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., and Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16, was held Friday evening at the Buckingham Memorial, over 100 members of both organizations being present.

The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock in the usual form by President Jayne E. Seed of the W. R. C., and after a few remarks the officers of Sedgwick Post, were installed.

The installing work was nicely done by Past Commander George Hayens of New London, assisted by Past Post Commander Lafayette Starr, the following officers being installed: Commander, Orrin M. Price; senior vice commander, Theodore E. Smith; junior vice commander, James McKee; adjutant, John Irish; quartermaster, George C. Crocker; surgeon, Henry F. Clark; chaplain, James McEntee, officer of the day, Thomas Warmsby; od Patriotic Instructor, Edward G. Willey; officer of the guard, George F. Tillinghast; sergeant major, John Service; quartermaster sergeant, John Curran.

After the officers of Sedgwick post had been installed the members of the relief corps prepared to install their newly elected officers. The installing officer for the evening was Mrs. M. Florence Dean, who was escorted into the hall by Conductor Mrs. Lena Pukallus and the color bearers.

The officers installed were: President, Mrs. Clara P. Burke; senior vice president, Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury; junior vice president, Mrs. Maud Moody; secretary, Mrs. Lillian E. Brewster; treasurer, Mrs. Iola H. Blurstrom; chaplain, Mrs. Mary E. Beswick; conductor, Mrs. Florence L. Bliven; guard, Mrs. Elisabeth Mackey; patriotic instructor, Mrs. E. Florence Dean; 2nd, Mrs. Grace Manning; 3d, Mrs. Mary Austin; 4th, Mrs. Inez Hill.

Following the installation Mrs. Dean, installing officer, expressed her appreciation for the work of Conductor Mrs. Pukallus and the color bearers during the evening. On behalf of the Woman's Relief corps President Mrs. Burke thanked Mrs. Dean for her excellent work.

Before the close of the meeting, Mrs. Jayne E. Seed, retiring president of the relief corps, was presented a beautiful cut glass salad bowl. The presentation was made by Mrs. Lydia Perkins, who expressed the appreciation of the members of the corps for the untiring efforts of Mrs. Seed to make the past year one of success for the corps. In return Mrs. Seed thanked the members for their gift and informed them that the past year had been a happy one for her and she hoped the new officers would find the same cooperative spirit behind them during the coming year, that she enjoyed in 1923.

The meeting came to a close in the usual manner with the salute to the flag and the singing of America.

Following the installation of officers light refreshments were served by the executive committee of the Woman's Relief corps and a social hour was enjoyed.

The number of edible dogs eaten annually in China is estimated at 5,000,000.

BORN

SUPERIOR COURT DISPOSES OF 35 CASES IN THREE DAY SESSION

The criminal superior court adjourned here Friday afternoon until Tuesday next having disposed of 35 cases in the three days that have made up the first week of the January term with Judge C. L. Avery presiding and Warren Burrows serving as acting state attorney. It is probable that the number of cases cleared off the docket makes a record for three days of court, 19 of them having been for violations of the liquor law.

The largest part of the business was done in the first two days and there were only a few cases disposed of Friday.

Wilfred Labowe was given a year in jail for the theft in Bozrah, Oct. 21, from Samuel Crumblich of a sweater, overcoat and pair of gloves all of the value of $60.

Kate Ockery, colored, of this city was sentenced to a year in jail, with sentence suspended and she is placed in charge of the probation officer in Hartford as she is to make her home there. She was charged on two counts with harboring and receiving money from a female for immoral purposes.

Charles Roderick, colored of this city was given a year in jail with sentence suspended under probation on the charge of a statutory offense against a minor female.

Deonisia Acosta, a Porto Rican, who was employed as a porter in the New York to New London boat, and had been charged with transporting liquor, pleaded to keeping liquor with intent to sell and was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $25.

Attorney Earl Mathewson presented the claim of Constable Jeremiah Sweeney of Bozrah for $50 reward for catching a chicken thief, but Judge Avery disallowed the claim, stating that he did not consider an officer could claim a reward for making such an arrest in his regular line of duty.

JUDGE BROWN HEARS MOTION LIST MATTERS

Before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Friday morning, the following matters on the motion list were disposed of at a short calendar session:

H. M. Lee, individually, and as Trustee, vs. B. H. Lee, exr. et al, appeal from probate. Judgment postponed.

Wight as admr. and individually vs. Lee, tr., appeal from probate. Judgment postponed.

Kleinfield vs. Cooper, et al. That case be reinstated unconditionally, granted for on or before June 1st.

Fitzpatrick vs. Ryan. That case be reinstated unconditionally, granted for or before June 1st.

Andrews vs. Puritan-Maid Bread Company. Allowance of claims, off.

Agnes Pitras vs. Charles, alias Kirl Pitras. That case be ordered on uncontested list, postponed.

Miner vs. Ryan, et al. Continuance. Continued as to Ryan and wife, 30 days.

Hillhouse, et al., vs. Duca, et al., acceptance of report of committee, judgment postponed.

Ida A. Daboll, exx., and tr., vs. Ida A. Daboll, et al. Reservation for advice of the Supreme Court of Errors. Judge took the papers.

LaPointe vs. Arnold Electric Tool Co. Application of Receiver for acceptance of final account and discharge as receiver, accepted. Judgment accepting final account and dissolving corporation, judgment ordered.

Mickrott vs. Posneck. Motion for appointment of appraisers, off.

Sistare vs. Connecticut Company. Motion for default for failure to plead.

Andrews vs. Puritan-Maid Bread Company. Advice of superior court on allowance of claims, order entered. Approval of deed to real estate, postponed.

Emma L. Chapel vs. Samuel Chapel. Alimony pendente lite, granted $50 per week commencing Jan. 5.

AMERICAN LEGION POST COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

The first meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, for the year 1924 was held Friday night at the legion rooms on Main street with Commander Herman A. Bruckner in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted after which Commander Bruckner announced the committees for the year as follows; House committee, William E. Corey, F. S. Wilson, Charles Pchewlys and Fred H. Geer; service committee, Harry W. House, John A. Cunningham and Webster D. Copp; historian, Captain William G. Tarbox; legal committee, Charles W. Cassidy and Edward McKay; publicity committee, Joseph C. Broadhurst, Benedict Pullen and Clifford C. Oat; chaplain, Rev. Robert B. Day; Americanization, John A. Cunningham; entertainment, William E. Anderson; employment, William McClimon.

A committee to revise the charter of the post was also appointed after which adjournment took place.

STATE POLICE MADE 48 DECEMBER ARRESTS

Forty-eight arrests and the recovery of $1,050 worth of property are the results of the activity of the state police during the month of December, according to the report issued Thursday. There were twenty different charges upon which the arrests were made, the charge upon which most arrests were made, being that of operating a motor vehicle in a reckless manner, endangering all traffic on the road. Aside from traffic duty, the state police examined 205 applicants for motor vehicle licenses, inspected thirty-six motion picture theatres and made 162 inspections of weights and measures. The state police covered 16,247 miles in their work during December. Five of the arrests made were for violations of the liquor laws.

CLERICAL FORCE FILLED AT GAS & ELECTRIC

General Manager C. W. Taggert of the Norwich Gas & Electric department said Friday evening that no successor to Fred S. Maples, who recently resigned as cashier at the gas and electric office, has yet been appointed. The appointment of a new cashier has been left in the hands of Mr. Taggert by the board of gas and electric commissioners.

At the present time a representative of Ernst & Ernst, well known accountants, is acting in the capacity of cashier at the G. & E. office and an efficiency plan is being worked out for the office. The office staff, which was depleted by the walkout of eight of the eleven women clerks when Mr. Maples and Miss Catherine Bowen presented their resignations after the gas and electric commissioners made a move to secure greater efficiency in the business of the office, is now complete and the business routine of the office is being carried on without interruption.

Heads Second Honor Group

Lester Gallup, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Gallup of Woodstock, formerly of Norwich, heads the second group for honors for the fall term at Williston seminary, Easthampton, Mass., according to announcement just made.

Unclaimed letters in the Norwich, Conn., post office for the week ending January 4, 1924: Mrs. Florence Starr Brown, Mrs. Louise Dow, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Headen, Miss Lena McIntosh, Miss Betty Service, Miss Ferrell Taylor, Mrs. Sarah Tracy.

BODY OF RASMUSSEN RECOVERED AT WESTERLY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, Jan. 4—The body of Harold E. Rasmussen, 18, was found this afternoon at 3.50 o'clock in the Pawcatuck river, nearly midway across the river and about 50 feet above the lower end of Pendleton wharf by Supernumary Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon, one of the volunteer searchers, who is a constable of the town of Stonington residing at 201 West Broad street.

The young man was drowned about 11 o'clock last Tuesday night when he stepped off the open end of the pontoon drawbridge which is used for pedestrian traffic crossing the river near the press works of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons Co.

All day Thursday James and Walter Rasmussen practically alone dragged the river between the press works and Pawcatuck Rock without results. Due to the stormy weather the Watch Hill coast guard crew was prevented from making the trip up the river to search for the body as they had on Wednesday. The tug Westerly, Capt. Frank Robinson, made two trips on the river and careful watch was maintained by the crew for the body of the missing boy.

Friday morning Selectman L. C. Purtell took an active hand in the prosecution of the search with the result that he obtained the use of 14 rowboats and enlisted the efforts of about 30 men. Visiting the house house of the P. S. Barber Hose Co., men were found and on Saturday there was promise that more men would be available but their services will not now be needed. Also on Friday were present the coast guard cutter and crew from Watch Hill station whose services had been secured through Police Commissioner Smith and Chief Brown of Westerly.

Friday afternoon Constable Sheldon and William Stewart were in the boat of John Eaton and when at a point of about 100 yards downstream from the end of the pontoon drawbridge one of the prongs of Sheldon's grappling hook caught under the drowned man's leg and with difficulty the body was brought to the surface.

In a nearby boat were William E. Chapman and Archie H. Sheldon who passed a rope around the drowned man's arm and the body was towed to the Margin street river bank near the foot of Beach street, when Medical Examiner Michael H. Scanlon was called and after examination gave permission for its removal. The body was found clothed, without hat, with overcoat and gloves and was in about 11 feet of water. There were no marks or scars on the body.

Many people had gathered on the Margin street river front when the remains were taken in charge by a local undertaker. James and Walter Rasmussen were present on the river bank and had temporarily been relieved from their efforts when the body was discovered, the father of the young man having just left the scene.

MANCHESTER UNITY LODGES HAVE OFFICERS INSTALLED

At a joint meeting of Loyal Hugh H. Osgood lodge, No. 6920, and Victory Lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. F., M. U., held Thursday evening in Steiner's hall the officers of the two lodges were installed. The installing officers were P. G. L. A. Partridge and P. P. G. C. Charles B. Barnes, deputies of the two lodges. The following are the officers of Victory Lodge:

G. L., Mrs. G. Alquist; N. G., Mrs. Grace Shaw; R. S. N. G., Mrs. Alice Newton; L. S. N. G., Mrs. Ellen Ainsworth; vice grand, Miss Dorothy McNeely; R. S. V. G., Mrs. Hunt; L. S. V. G., Mrs. Hartley; L. M. and chaplain, Mrs. Annie Armitage; recording secretary, Mrs. Armitage; tary; Mrs. Armitage; treasurer, Mrs. M. McNeely; elective secretary, Mrs. Nellie Ince; warden, Miss E. Houston; inside guard, Mary Greenhalgh conductor, Mrs. Carter.

The officers of Hugh H. Osgood lodge follow:

P. N. G., William Ellal; N. G., Harold Tarbuck; R. S. N. G., James Johnson; L. S. N. G., Edward Crooks; vice grand, George Lake; R. S. V. G., James McNeely; L. S. V. G. Frank Hill; P. S. William Partridge; treasurer, Thomas Addison; elective secretary, Ralph James; warden, A. Turner; inside guard, William Cocker.

After the installation a varied program of songs and dancing was enjoyed. Solos were rendered by Miss Hartley and Mr. Armitage. Kyle's orchestra provided music for the dancing and refreshments were served. Nominations for district officers were made for the next district meeting to be held in New Haven the fourth Wednesday in April.

RUMOR MORGAN AND CASEY FOR ERGEANTS

Although members of the police commissioners are making no statements in advance of the common council meeting next Monday evening, the report has been in circulation for the past few days that officers Myron O. Morgan and John Casey are to be the nominations made in the council meeting for appointments as sergeants on the Norwich police force. One will fill the sergeant vacancy left by the death of Allen C. Mathews, and the other will be an additional sergeant on the force.

This will be the first time that the Norwich police department has had three sergeants, although a third sergeant was authorized several years ago by an amendment to the city charter. When it came to making the appointment to the extra berth, however, the contest became so warm at that time that a deadlock resulted and no appointment was made.

Officer Morgan is at present on traffic duty at Shannon's corner and Officer Casey has covered the Greeneville beat for some time past.

NORWICH MAN RECEIVER FOR PAWTUCKET MILL

John E. Martin, of 30 Oak street, who is vice president of D. Goff & Sons, Inc., of Pawtucket, R. I., capitalized at $3,440,000 has just been appointed temporary receiver of the corporation under a decree in the superior court at Providence by Judge Chester W. Barrows. The receiver's bond was fixed at $25,000. The corporation is one of the largest worsted and braid concerns in Rhode Island and a pioneer in the industry.

Receivership proceedings were instituted by Frederick W. Eaton of Boston a creditor and noteholder of the corporation, who, in his petition, alleged that the corporation is unable to meet its obligations as they become due.

The corporation for the past year, it was stated, has been operated by a committee of bondholders and creditors. The immediate cause of the receivership, it was said, was the inability of the company to continue business without adequate working capital.

Liabilities are estimated to be $1,250,000 representing bonds, and there are said to be something more than $1,000,000 of unsecured debts. In addition to its bonds, the corporation has $1,250,000 in preferrel, and $840,000 in common stock. The book value of the assets is declared to exceed by a considerable margin the liabilities but the market value of the assets is uncertain, it was declared.

The receivership petition also seeks the appointment of Mr. Martin and Robert N. Smither as permanent receivers to continue the operation of the plant and hearing on the question of permanent receivers is set down for Jan. 16.

It was stated Tuesday since the slump that hit the textile industry in 1920, the corporation has been operating under adverse conditions. When Mr. Martin became vice-president and general manager January 19, 1922, the mechanical end of the plant needed considerable reorganization, it was said, but, despite the disadvantageous circumstances, Mr. Martin succeeded in operating the plant at a profit during the year 1922.

Theopile Guerin of Woonsocket became president of the corporation in April 1921, about a year after its reorganization at a capitalization of $3,000,000. He remained in that capacity until the latter part of 1922, and upon his withdrawal the conmpany went undr the active management of a committee of creditors and bondholders.

Mr. Martin has been a residence of this city for the past 16 years, having been originally connected with the Reliance Woolen Co.

FOUR DIVORCES ARE GRANTED FOR DESERTION

Four divorces all for desertion, were granted by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Friday morning. Two husbands and two wives were the petitioners.

George H. Ruell of Norwich was granted divorce from Clara Champagne Ruell, now of parts unknown. They were married April 1, 1915 and had lived together only three days when the wife deserted.

George H. Clark of Stonington, was granted divorce from Julia A. Clarke, last heard of in Springfield, Mass., but now of parts unknown. He was given the custody of a daughter, aged and a son aged 7. Plaintiff and defendants were married Oct. 23, 1913 and he alleged his wife deserted him April 26, 1920.

Sarah H. Migkins of Preston secured divorce from William H. Migkins, formerly of Norwich, now of parts unknown. She was allowed change of name to Sarah H. Gilchrist. They were married at Norwich April 25, 1906, and she alleged that her husband deserted her Dec. 25, 1913, and left on Jan. 14, 1914 for parts unknown and has never been heard from since then.

George F. Davis of New London, was granted divorce from Bertha Warner Davis, now of parts unknown, to whom he was married Dec. 22, 1906. He claimed she deserted him Dec. 2, 1916. The court gave him custody of the four oldest of their five children. The youngest, a girl was taken by her mother when she left him.

The divorce matter of Emily Marra of New London vs Daniel Marra of Bozrah and Gordon F. Whittlesey of New London vs Frances Edwards Whittlesey of parts not known went off the list.

SEEKING $1500 HERE FOR JEWISH THEOLOGICAL SEMINAR

To Abner Schwartz, who has accepted the Norwich chairmanship in the effort to raise the local quota of $1,500 towards the $1,000,000 endowment fund for the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York city, has come a letter of gratitude from Louis Marshall, honorary chairman of national campaign committee for having assumed this task. Mr. Marshall's letter "a powerful and moving plea to the Jews of this city to do their bit in order to save the institution and give it the means to continue and expand its efforts to spread the message of Judaism in this country.

"I learned with much pleasure that you have accepted the chiarmanship of a committee which will endeavor to raise funds in your community, in connection with the campaign for a million dollar endowment for the Jewish Theological Seminary.

"I am quite sure that the efforts of yourself and the splendid men and women who are cooperating with you will be crowned with success because I have the feeling that every Jew in the United States is vitally interested in the success of this effort. It cannot be otherwise.

"This campaign must succeed if the Jews of this country are to make that spiritual and cultural progress which is expected of them by reason of the opportunities and the religious freedom which has been vouchsafed to them as citizens of the United States. It is the greatest contribution which the Jews of this country can make to the spiritual and cultural development of American.

"We owe it to ourselves, we owe it to our neighbors, we owe it to the communities of which we are citizens, to develop in our youth a keen consciousness of Jewish values; to impart to them an intelligent understanding and knowledge of the history of our people and of the tenets and traditions of our faith. The better the Jew, the better the American, is a trite but true slogan, and as we preserve our youth for our faith, we develop them into a higher and more useful American citizenship.

"The Jewish Theological Seminary has during the forty years of its existence, graduated several hundred English speaking rabbis, exponents of traditional Judaism, who have become important factors in the spiritual development of their own congregations and equally important factors in the spiritual and cultural development of the communities in which they are located. It has sought to stimulate the development of scholarship and research and it has trained teachers and leaders for religious schools and Jewish centers throughout the country. It has been in financial difficulties for a number of years and the time has come when the Jews of America must make adequate provision for that tremendously important work with which the Jewish Theological seminary is charged.

"I am very glad that the response to our appeal for cooperation in this effort has not been limited to one particular shade of Judaism. Orthodox, Conservative and reform Jews have with equal spontaneity offered their assistance, because they feel that in a matter touching the strengthening of Judaism in America, every Jew, regardless of the particular shade of his affiliation, is concerned.

"May I bid you and your committee, God speed in your work, which I am sure will be crowned with every success and will meet with the approval of every element in your community."

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

HILLTOP LEGHORNS HOLD LEAD IN EGG LAYING

In the ninth week of the annual egg laying contest at Storrs the hens let up just a little. Their batting average dropped from 491 last week to 476 this week. This means that they came through with 105 eggs less than the lay last week but it is encouraging to add that the yield was nearly six hundred eggs better than for the corresponding week last year. As yet no one seems able to head Hilltop Farm at Suffield, Conn., but D. O. Witmer's pen of White Wyandottes from Joplin, Mo., ran neck and neck with the leader. Both tied for the week with 56 eggs each. Fernside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds for Attleboro, Mass, captured second place for the week with 53 eggs. White Leghorns entered by W. E. Atkinson from Wallingford, Conn, was third best pen for the week with a yield of 52 eggs. A pen of Reds owned by E. Newton Searles from Pomfret Center, Conn., and two pens of White Leghorns entered by F. M. Johnson, at Waldboro, Maine, and Hanson's Poultry Farm from Corvallis, Ore., all tied for fourth place with 51 eggs each.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY BY ST. JAMES' WOMEN'S GUILD

The Women's Guild of St. James church, Poquetanuck, held its annual New Year's party at the home of Mrs. Charles Harkness Thursday. A delicious luncheon was served at noon to about 30 members. After lunch a short business meeting was held and quarterly reports were read by the secretary and treasurer. This was followed by the distribution of New Year's gifts by Mrs. Charles Weeks and Mrs. Lillian Lucas, after which the afternoon was given over to a social program which was much enjoyed by all. One of the features of the program was a roll call to which each one responded with a New Year's resolution. Mrs. Harkness was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. George Bogue, Mrs. Bert Williams and Mrs Alaneon Fuller.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARTY IS HELD BY XENS

The Xens society held its annual Christmas party Friday evening in the Sunday school room of the First Baptist church. A varied programme of readings and recitations was enjoyed and Christmas gifts were distributed. Light refreshments were served under direction of Mrs. Edward Briggs, chairman of the committee in charge of the evening's programme.

The society voted to hold its annual banquet January 25th. The society recently presented the sum of $80 to the church and an acknowledgment of the gift was received Friday evening.

Groton Wedding Jan. 9.

Miss Mary Alice Denison, who has given out mail to Grotonites for over fourteen years, is leaving the post office service. She will be married to one of the other employes of the Groton office, George Clark, R. F. D. carrier. The wedding will be at her home on Pleasant street, Groton, Jan. 9. John Harrington, senior relief clerk from the New London office, will take the place.

Attending Salvation Army Council

Lieutenant Frank C. Grillo of the Salvation Army will leave early today (Saturday) for the annual New England Official Council to be held in Boston, January 5th to 11th. During the absence of Lieutenant Grillo, services at the army headquarters here will be conducted by local members.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

New York Jan. 4.—Stock prices moved upward today after an early period of irregularity but except in the case of a few specialties, the net gains in most issues were limited to fractions.

Selling pressure was again in evidence at the opening, particularly in the oil, independent steel and motor shares, but this was lifted before noon on a resumption of successful pool operations in other sections of the list. Leather, rubber and fertilizer stocks, which have been lagging behind the rest of the list, were taken in hand during the day and some good gains were recorded in those groups.

One of the individual features of the session, was General Electric, which again crossed 200 for a net gain of more than 8 points, on reports that 1923 earnings will total $18 a share and that an early capital readjustment was likely. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was another strong feature, moving up nearly 4 points to 74-34. Congoleum, which recently was placed on a $2 dividend basis, climbed 3 3-8 points to 19 1-2.

American Can moved up 1 point to above 104 but U. S. Steel common, Baldwin and Studebaker showed only fractional gains.

Shipping shares benefitted by reports of higher ocean freight rates, marine preferred touching 32 3-4 and closing 1 7-8 higher at 31 7-8. Much of the buying of this issue is reported to have come from brokerage houses with Miami, Fla., connections giving rise to reports that it was for the account of large traders wintering in that territory.

Railroad shares developed strength during the afternoon. Northern Pacific Union Pacific, the Rock Island preferred issues, Gulf, Mobile and Northern, Katy preferred, Pere Marquette preferred, Frisco common and preferred and St. Louis Southwestern all closing a point or higher. Car loadings for the week endend Dec. 22 showed a further falling off, but this was regarded as seasonal, current leadings being well above those of a year ago. In November 182 class one railroads reported net operating income of $84,516,800, or at the rate of 4.65 per cent. on their tentative valuation, according to the bureau of railway economics. In November 1922 the same roads reported net income of $81,691,-760, or 4.62 per cent. and in October 1923, $102,933,691, or 4.79 per cent.

Pan-American oil issues made slight recovery from recent weakness on the official denial of reports of a material decline in Mexican light oil production. Reports that all Mexican oil fields were now in the possession of rebel forces was construed as meaning that the revolutionists held the territory in which they were located, and not that they were being confiscated.

Demand sterling made further recovery from recent weakness, climbing more than 1 1-2 cents above $4.30 French francs touched a new low at $4.84 13 cents, but made partial recovery later.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent, but eased to 4 1-2 before the close. An easier tone and broadening activity characterized the time money market, more funds being available at 4 3-4 per cent. Out of town institutions are still the principal takers of commercial paper. Prime Names move from 4 3-4 and 5 per cent.

Bond Market

New York, Jan. 4.—While bankers profess small disappointment at the relative small volume of new financing that is coming to light since the first of the year, trading in listed bonds has indicated a fair amount of reinvesting and prices have held firm in practically all classes of securities.

Today's market saw a renewal of Liberty bond buying for the accounts of both the British government and the American government, the latter purchasing third liberty 4 1-4s for the most part while the English buying was said to be largely second and fourth 4 1-4s. No great price advance were recorded, however, by any of those bonds.

Transactions in the railroad group covered a broad list, but prices were somewhat irregular. The western tractions met good support while some of the local subway and elevated company liens fell lower.

American cotton oil 6c jumped 4 1-2 points to a new high price, reflecting the improved business of that company under the reorganization plan, whereby it became a subsidiary of the Gold Dust corporation.

Generally the industrial and public utility list moved within a narrow market today.

The plan for segration of the coal property of the Lehigh Valley railroad company calls for the early sale of $15,000,000 bonds of the coal company to reimburse the railroad for all indebtedness, E. E. Loomis, president of the railroad stated in a letter which is being forwarded to the company's stockholders.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Soaring prices of corn lifted the value of all grain. The rise in corn was chiefly due to scarcity of receipts. Wheat closed firm, 1-4c to 1 1-4c net higher, May 1.08 3-8 a 3-4 to 1.08 3-4, and July 1.06 7-8. Corn after reaching new high records for the season finished at 1 1-8c to 2 a 2 1-8c gain, with oats 1-8c to 3-4c a 7-8c up, and provisions varying from a shade decline to 5c advance.

Before the bulge in the corn market began, wheat prices had a downward tendency, the result of sympathy with weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool, where offerings of Canadian wheat were said to be cheaper and it was reported Argentine shipments had enlarged. As soon as enhancement of corn prices became pronounced, however, there was rather lively demand for wheat, traders who were short showing anxiety both on account of the ascent of corn as a result of the circumstance that wheat receipts in every direction were meager.

May delivery of wheat closed at the highest price this week, in this connection, it was pointed out that shipments from Chicago in the last few days have exceeded the receipts, and that apparently interior millers were turning to primary markets to obtain supplies. Talk was current, furthermore, that wheat as well as corn may be on a strict domestic basis before the end of the crop year.

Big broad trading in corn was witnessed, and notwithstanding that rural offerings became somewhat larger as the market went upward the total remained much below what is usual for January. Particular stress was laid on the fact that in the northwest especially there was a notable falling off in the volume of receipts. Oats followed corn upgrade, with May oats at nearly the season's top price.

Commission house selling of lard held down provisions.

Curb Market

New York, Jan. 4.—Speculators for the advance succeeded in regaining control of today's curb market but they were forced to contend with heavy realizing sales which gave the market an irregular appearance most of the time.

Prairie Oil and Gas was the individual feature of the oil group. It opened 2 points higher at 258, dropped to 253 and then soared to 282 1-2 for a net gain of 6 1-2 points. Ohio Oil closed 5 1-2 higher at 79 while Standard Oils of New York and Ohio, Washington Oil and Buckeye Pipe moved up 1 to 2 points. South Penn-sylvania Oil broke 2.

In the industrial list heavy speculative trading took place in corn products, which broke below 81 for the first time, since it has been listed, and Gold Dust, which surged to 34 1-4 and then bounded up to 35 3-4, a record high. Other changes in that group largely fractional.

Walker mining, which was heavy yesterday, recovered its loss.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

My Creed

To live as gently as I can;
To be, no matter where, a man;
To take what comes of good or ill
And cling to faith and honor still;
To do my best, and let that stand
The record of my brain and hand;
And then should failure come to me,
Still work and hope for victory.

To have no secret place wherein
I stoop to shame or sin;
To be the same when I'm alone
And when my every deed is known;
To live undaunted, unafraid
Of any step that I have made;
To be without pretense or sham
Exactly what men think I am.

To leave some simple mark behind
To keep my having lived in mind;
If enmity to aught I show,
To be an honest, generous foe,
To play my little part, nor whine
That greater honors are not mine.
This, I believe, is all I need
For my philosophy and creed.

The Old Piano

How still and dusky is the long closed room!
What lingering shadows and what sweet perfume
Of Eastern treasures; sandalwood and scent,
With nard and cassia, and with roses blent!
Let in the sunshine.
Quaint cabinets are here, boxes and fans,
And hoarded letters full of hopes and plans;
The old piano, dear to memory,
In past days mine.

Of all sad voices from forgotten years,
It is the saddest. See what tender tears
Drop on the yellow keys, as soft and slow
I play some melody of long ago!
How strange it seems!
The thin, weak notes that once were rich and strong
Give only now the shadow of a song;
The dying echo of the fuller strain
That I shall never, never hear again
Unless in dreams.

What hands have touched it! fingers small and white,
Since cold and weary with life's toil and strife.
Dear clinging hands that long have been at rest,
Folded serenely on a quiet breast.
Only to think,
O white sad notes, of all the pleasant days,
The happy songs, the hymns of holy praise,
The dreams of love and youth that round you cling!
Do they not make each sighing, trembling string
A mighty link?

All its musicians gone beyond recall!
The beautiful, the loved, where are they all?
Each told their secret, touched the keys and wires,
Gave thoughts of many colors and desires.
With whispering fingers
All now are silent, their last farewells said,
Their last songs sung, their last tears sadly shed;
What Love has given it many dreams to keep
In this lone room, where only shadows creep
And silence lingers.
The old piano answers to my call,
And from my fingers lets the last notes fall.
O Soul that I have loved! With heavenly birth
What thou not keep the memory of earth,
Its smiles and sighs?
Shall wood, and metal, and white ivory,
Answer that touch of love and melody,
And Thou forget Dear One, not so!
I move thee yet, thou how I may not know.
Beyond the skies.

Two Books

Of all the kind words you ever have said
Were printed and bound in a book,
With every laugh and every smile
And every affectionate look.

And all your unselfish and generous deeds,
And all of your duties well done,
And all disappointments you've cheerfully borne—
Yes, every single one—

And then if another book were to be made,
Containing your frowns and your scowls,
Containing your cross words and angry retorts,
Your fretful and quarrelsome growls.

Each duty neglected or carelessly done,
Each pettish and petulant tear—
Then if these two books were stood up side by side,
Which one would be larger, my dear?

WHO ATTENDED CENTENNIAL TEA PARTY?

Dear Social Corner Friends: It was quite a disappointment not to be at Club No. 2's December meeting. The rain kept me at home. Then I made up for it by going to Club No. 1 in Willimantic. The day was fine, and such a nice time. Wish I knew who got the box, "all wound 'round with a woolen string" marked "67. Whoever it was hope she will enjoy its contents.

Jeremy: Thanks for taking notice of my request. I like to keep old friends as well as to find new ones.

I want to thank all the Corner sisters who remembered me with Christmas cards, also friends outside the Corner.

I wonder if any of the sisters attended the centennial tea party in Breed hall in Dec., 1875? I was there.

Roxanna Keables: I had a good laugh reading your letter and wish you would give us another. Laughing strengthens digestion.

I agree with Marigold and would like to have a letter telling of our good times even if we are present. We would enjoy reading about it.

The calendar sent out this by The Bulletin Co. is a handsome one. In 1870 my husband worked in a meat market in that building on the Main street side. Steward & Ruby conducted the market. I remember John Benson well. I also remember the first street car which came down from Greeneville. I went over to see it from the West Side where I lived at that time. C. J. Winters was there to see the first horse car, too. Some great changes since.

Happy New Year to all.

JOAN.

MEMORY A WONDERFUL GIFT

To the Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Wish the editor could see how happy the sisters are at the meetings and how much the Social Corner is to each one. As Foxglove said: "Everyone is so cordial." Whirlwind and Foxglove drove many miles to attend the Christmas meeting and they certainly made many friends there. What a wonderful gift is memory! We can enjoy these happy meetings at the time and think of them forever after. In memory we see the merry group of sisters in Sis Hopkins' sky-parlor up on the terrace, gathered there in honor of Lavender's birthday. As we looked at her we thought: How nice "to grow old gracefully."

Sis Hopkins: We will never forget that day and that good chowder.

Then we recall the jolly time at Sunshine farm when Neighbor Everready's team won the box of candy. The Christmas meeting was very pleasant. The Social Corner had a good year in 1922.

Twice Twenty: Yes, you had the name right. The ride was pleasant, but too short. Hope to meet you again. The poem "Excelsior" was good.

Little Sister: I enjoy hearing you sing. Who would think there was so much music in such a tiny sister.

Roberta: We saw the rainbow around the moon. It was remarkable.

Mrs. Suze: Even the Social Corner page has changed, along with other styles. Last year there were nine recipes for pork cake in one paper. Recipes are seldom seen now.

Kitty Lou: You are right in teaching boys to know the value of money and to earn it. They should also be taught to be honest as long as they live. "Honesty is the best policy."

A good use for newspapers is to spread them on the floor when coming the hair or sewing. It keeps the floor clean.

When exchanging gifts as at Christmas the pen-name should be written on each gift. Wishing each a happy year in 1924.

A WORTHWHILE RESOLUTION

Dear Social Corner Sisters:: Seeing I was prevented by sickness from attending the meeting, I will try and do my bit by writing. As it is the beginning of the New Year, here is a resolution—not a new one, perhaps, to any of us, but none the less worthwhile. Let us check off every one of the three hundred and sixty-five days of the year with a word or deed that will make somebody a bit happier, not letting a day go by during which we have not added in some way to the world's store of gladness. It may be a very little thing, judged by our own standard, but if backed by the sincere, kindly desire to "do something for somebody quick" its influence is not to be measured. A cheery, encouraging word has many times averted a disaster. To hope for the best, believe the best, see the best, that shouldn't be too difficult, once it is earnestly set about. And the one little thing a day for the happiness of others is sure to multiply until the day will seem all too short to hold the kindnesses we shall find to do, because of the reflected joy that will be ours.

It is a little late but I want to thank all the sisters who were so thoughtful and kind as to send me cards in sympathy with me in the loss of my mother.

I want to thank Calla Lily for the sunshine box which she sent to me. It certainly was a pleasant surprise when "Red Clover" brought it to me. It certainly is "nice to be remembered" and it helps to keep up courage.

Wishing the corner members a bright and happy year and may the corner do as much good in the new year as it has done in the past, sincerely

RED ROSE

OUR EXPERIENCE WITH RATS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I have something to write about my brother. When he was a little fellow he wanted some white rats for pets. So one day he came home and asked if he could buy some. Mamma did not like the idea much, but my cousin, who was visiting us, gave my brother fifty cents and said "Buy all the rats you want."

When my brother came back he had three little rats about two inches long. Two of them were black and white, having black heads and sparkling black eyes, and a black stripe down the back. The other one was white with pink eyes. He named the small er of the black and white ones, Punch and the other Judy. The white one was named Pinky, because he had pink eyes and also because he used to have a white rabbit named Pinky.

Now if you ever saw tame rats, you know they are very lively, and soon we had a box with a scrool cover in which our little pets lived. Very often he took them out of the box and played with them, and soon they became quite tame and would come when they were called. They liked very much climbing into the coal bucket, and often get their pretty pink feet very black. One morning when we looked into Punch's box she would not come out.

Well we looked into the box and saw that beneath a pile of paper and rags, which I gave my brother for them, twelve little white mice or baby rats. They were about one inch long and did not have any fur. My brother and I did not want to drown any of them so we raised all twelve. They slept in layers, six at the bottom, six at the top.

Now they were very quick and one day they all disappeared but four. I looked everywhere and finally saw that they were hiding in a pair of rubbers.

In the corner behind the sink are some holes which were once used for pipes to go through. The rats were out playing when I wanted to put them back into the box I could not find Punch.

After looking into the wood basket and coal bucket and all the corners I could think of without finding her, I came to the conclusion that she must have gotten between the walls through the pipe holes.

Punch went away one Saturday and was gone over Sunday, when mother called Monday morning she said: "Who do you think is here?" We said, Who? and she answered Punch.

She was all covered in coal dust and she was terribly hungry. Mother said she went down cellar and saw a little black thing in the corner, and it ran right up to her. Mother would never touch the rats so she got a basket and Punch hopped into it, and holding her away as far as possible, she came up stairs and put her with Judy and Pinky. I took soap and water and washed her after which she looked just like a porcupine. It was very cute to see Judy and Pinky lick Punch's fur, while the little rat tried to hide below the ice box.

Aunt Hattie: I did not think about your reading the Social Corner living way out there in Bloomfield, Pa. You said you always looked for Kitty Lou's letter. Did you know Etherlyn was your niece and you took care of me when I was a baby? So you want to look for mine and as long as you live I think brother will send you the Courier. I am glad you enjoy it.

I want to think a Corner member for my calendar. Isn't it dainty? Wish you all a happy New Year.

ETHELYN.

A FEW QUOTATIONS

Dear Social Corner Friends—Many thanks to the editor for the prize check. They are always very much appreciated.

"To be joyous in my work, moderate in my pleasures; charry in my confidences, faithful in my friendships; loyal to the truth as I see it, but ever open minded to the newer light; to be careful in my promises, punctual in my engagements, candid with myself and frank with others; to rejoice in all that is beautiful and true; to do my work and live my life so that neither shall require defence or apology; to be gentle and considerate toward the weak, respectful yet self-respecting toward the great courteous to all; to seek wisdom from great books and inspiration from good men; to invigorate my mind with noble thoughts as I do my body with sunshine and fresh air; to prize all sweet human friendships and seek to make at least one home happy; to have charity for the erring, sympathy for the sorrowing, cheer for the despondent; to be indifferent to none helpful to some, friendly with all; to leave the world a little better off because of me; and to leave it, when I must bravely and cheerfully, with faith in God and good will to all my fellow men; this shall be my endeavor during the coming year."

"To be thankful for each new day and to put into it and to get out of it all the good I can. To give expecting nothing in return. To help to bear the burdens of others without burdening them with mine. To know enough of sorrow to be able to sympathize; to know enough of sin to direct others into right paths; to be blessed with enough of this world's goods to be satisfied with what I have; to look to nature for my spiritual lessons and my daily sermons; to take care of the present and to let the past and future take care of themselves."

"Make a rule never if possible to lie down at night without being able to say, I have made one human being at least, a little wiser, a little happier or a little better this day."

JEREMY

FINE TIME AT BUCKINGHAM

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wonder if you have kept all the good resolutions you made for this year. Sorry to say I haven't. Tripped up on the second day, but am trying again today.

Didn't we all have a good dinner and a good time Wednesday? And so many of the sisters out! Saw many there that I never dreamed belonged to the Corner, so will try and bring my address book next time.

Chelsea: Did your mother enjoy herself, or did she get a headache from the noise. I'll try to remember and bring your purse Sunday.

Theoda: Do you remember the tulip lace you showed me how to make last summer?

Was looking over some of my mother's old lace samples some time ago and came across that very pattern.

Black-eyed Susie: Didn't get much of a chance to talk together this time, did we? We will do better next month. Wonder if any of the sisters have tried the oil burners in their kitchen ranges. I have one in and think I am going to like it very much. It gives an intense heat and I can get the oven hot in 10 or 15 minutes. Only objection I have is a little smoking when first lighted.

Though a bit late—here is wishing you all a healthy, happy and prosperous New Year. As ever

TRIPLETS. (Jan. 7)

THOUGHTS FOR THE NEW YEAR

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Will write a few lines this week for I wish to express thanks for the prize dollar. I was quite surprised to see my name in the list.

The new year is here and stretching clear and white before us is the untrodden road. Let us try as we travel this new road to do some little thing each day to make some one happy. As William Penn said, "Each day do good with what thou hast, or it will do thee no good. If thou couldst be happy bring thy mind to thy condition." Don't let us be content with doing only our duty, but do more. Our duty is to be useful, not according to our desires, but according to our powers. And so let us be cheerful without regard for the past, with contentment in the present and strong hope for the future.

We shut-ins dearly love the post cards to read the beautiful verses and to think that some dear friend is thinking of us makes one very happy.

Ma of Greene Gables: I love to read your letters. They help me so much.

"There's a help in seeming cheerful,
When a body's feeling blue,
In looking calm and pleasant
If there's nothing else to do.
And things are all awry,
Don't vex yourself without caring;
'Twill be better by and by.

This little verse seemed to me just the one to start the new year with.

WINNIE.

CLUB NO. 1 MEETS JONUARY 9.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Don't forget that Club No. 1 will meet in Willimantic (in the old hall) on Wednesday, January 9. We hope there will be a large attendance as we want to decide what we are to do about the hall. Bring food and dishes as usual.

BEST WISHES FOR NEIGHBOR EVERREADY

Dear Editor and Sisters: I really intended to write before to wish you all a merry Christmas but under the circumstances I know you will excuse me. Not every day in the year does a sister get married. As most of you know mine did Dec. 22nd. It's quite a job anyhow and when it's to be a surprise to all the friends it's some more of a job. Guess it was a surprise all right. How about it Double Fuchsia?

True to her name as ever Neighbor Everready was all dressed ready to go when we called for her. The roads leading to Putnam were rather muddy but we arrived there safely to meet the groom who came on the Worcester train. I'm not going to tell you about him now. I'll only say that Neighbor Everready deserves congratulations. From the station we journeyed to the little stone church on Pomfret Street where the knot was tied—good and tight.

The groom tried to make us think he wasn't at all nervous but I noticed when he was trying to get that bouquet out of the box he was rather shaky. Well, it was a beauty. I felt pretty spiffy just holding it while he placed the ring on the bride's finger. From the church we went to the bride's home where we all did justice to a delicious chicken dinner. There was a big wedding cake made by the bride. It was fine. Think there must be some left. Why don't you call?

Perhaps around the back door you'll see a little confetti. I tried to make up for what all you sisters would have done had you been there. I may have forgotten to mention some of the important points. If I have I'll tell you at the gathering if the weather permits me to attend.

My heart goes out to Chore Boy in the loss of her little baby.

A happy and prosperous New Year to all.

CALL FOR OLD TIMERS TO GET BUSY

Dear Corner Folks—As I have received a number of letters and cards from the sisters asking why I never write any more, thought I would write a few lines and respond. First of all I wish to thank all the sisters who wrote me letters and sent me booklets and cards: Theoda, Balsam Fir, Maple Leaf, Little Maple Leaf, Us & Co., Joan, Calla Lily, Interested Reader, Paula, Saville and Cousin Polly. I hope I haven't omitted any.

Paula and Interested Reader: I think you have mental telepathy alright, and I hope you will send me another reel of brain matter after reading the letter I sent you. I hope you will read it over carefully and later tell me what you think of my plans.

Saville: I was very much pleased to meet you on the car. Sorry your ride was so short. Had not seen you for a long time and was very glad to receive a card from you. Send me another card and give me your street number. Then I will send you a letter I have thought of doing so many times but just didn't know your number. I wasn't quite sure which of the the two homes you were staying at.

Great Grandma: I believe you sent me a Christmas card too. I must not forget you. I think of you daily as you sit in your little "Cozy Corner" and today as I am writing this I am wondering what your busy hands are doing. Is your little geranium still in blossom? It is getting pretty cold for it and if not very careful, I am afraid Jack Frost may catch it.

Paula: Am having lots of fun with my Elgaro. Come over again and try your luck. See if it can beat mine.

Cally Lily: Why so silent, or are you so occupied with that enlarged reception room that you can't find time to write? What has become of Mayfayre, Annette, Maine Lover, Wandering Jew and many of the other first writes. As well as Lucy Acorn and Aunt Hester? Get busy and help hold the fort or else we will be crowded off the Social Corner page, by some of those large advertisements!

Dearie: Where are you? Certainly not frozen up yet as the weather so far has been too mild.

Get busy old timers and write some of the socialbilities we used to see in the corner.

A bright New Year to all.

CRIMSON AMBRLER

SQUASHES NEED COOL, DRY PLACE

Dear Corner: To the Social Corner only which of course has the editor for the head of it I extend New Year's greetings. I certainly feel I am a slacker, it is so seldom I write. The Bulletin comes to the house every day but I am not able to always read it and today I have been glanning over several of the past two weeks and in the lot were two Saturdays and such good letters. Always as I read them there is in nearly every one something I would like to write about or some question to ask or answer. Some of the poetry has been fine. I enjoyed the Blackberry Girl and how true one was recently sent in by Dorinda and one also that I think was in the same issue.

I must tell you of my experience one time in keeping squashes. We had more than a dozen extra good ones, the kind with the hard shells and flesh so dry and yellow when cooked. We usually kept them in the cellar and they would soon begin to decay. We had an empty room up over the kitchen so I carried them all up there. I used the specked ones I had down cellar first. I kept watch of those up stairs and they seemed to be keeping beautifully. Several weeks later I thought I would begin to use them. I took up one and it was so light. I tried them all and they were the same. The insides had vanished to almost nothing so I never tried that again. I imagine it was too warm and dry. I think they need a cool dry place. We have had beautiful ones this year.

Dorindas: I received your splendid letter and will answer it soon. It went to the address then was remailed to me. I shall always be looking for you when I am in the city. Do you go down often?

E. L. M.

HINTS WORTH TRYING.

Dear Corner Sisters: The proper way to fold a man's coat for packing is to lay it out perfectly flat, with the wrong side down. The sleeves should be spread out smoothly and folded back to the elbow until each end of the sleeve is even with the collar. Fold the skirters back and then double the coat over, folding it directly in the center seam and then smoothing it out carefully.

This time of year the hands get rough and red. An excellent lotion and one that is sold for one dollar a bottle is made as follows: One piece of camphor, broken in pieces and put in one-half pint bottle. Add alcohol —about one-half the bottle, and fill the remainder with witch hazel. Let alcohol dissolve camphor before adding witch hazel.

Ammonia Solution: Make your own ammonia. One-half pint druggist's 28 per cent ammonia, four pints water. Method: Place on the table enough clean bottles or jars (with reliable corks or covers), to accommodate the four and one-half pints of solution. Measure out four pints of water and with this half fill each bottle. Caution is necessary in mixing the water with ammonia). I always kneel down beside the table and stoop so to keep my face below the level of the bottles, then fill them with the strong ammonia and cork securely.

Chocolate Pronage: One-fourth tablespoon grated chocolate, one cup hot water, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon vanilla, one ounce gelatine, one cup cold water, one-half pint whipped cream. Melt chocolate in one cup hot water, add sugar, vanilla; add gelatin softened in one-fourth cup cold water; boil for a minute and remove from the fire. When cool, mix with one pint whipped cream. Turn into molds. Serve with vanilla sauce.

Fruit Pudding: Chop fine one-half pound currants, one-half pound seeded raisins, one-half pound candied orange peel, one-fourth pound citron one-fourth pound dates, one pound suet. Mix all together and add one pound of fine bread crumbs, the yolks of seven eggs beaten until light, one tablespoon grated nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon ground cloves, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspon salt, one and one-half cups of dark brown sugar, two tablespoons of coffee, and last the beaten whites of seven eggs. Place the mixture in buttered bowls, cover with parchment paper, tie down well, put in boiling water and boil three hours. This pudding you can make two weeks before Christmas, when you come to serve it steam one and one-half hours longer.

GREETINGS FROM PHOTOGRAPHER.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Pardon delay in not sending thanks to the editor for the Corner prize I won in November. It was truly a wonderful surprise. And I could hardly believe it when I saw my name up in the prize corner. Many thanks.

Keziah Doolittle: Thank you so much for my Christmas card. I was sick in bed at the time, but when the children came in and brought your card and asked, "Mother, who is this card from?" I did have a good smile when I looked at it. And I looked at it many times. It was the second one I ever received from a Social Corner sister. The first one was received seven years ago from Lucy Acorn when my little girl was born. When I am able to go out, shall not forget; I owe you a card. Haven't been able to go out since the second week in November.

Deliah Deal: I sympathize with you as I have been sick a great deal. But you are very fortunate in having kind friends and neighbors. I live some distance from my neighbors and friends. Was glad to see you received so many cards. When one is sick it is nice to have cards sent to be read and looked over. I have all of mine yet that was sent to me while I was in the hospital two years ago. So can imagine just how you felt.

Rainbow: You are always so good to me. And to think of you sending the children and myself those lovely presents at Christmas. Truly I can never thank you enough. Was looking for you to call all day Christmas. Was very sorry to hear of the death of your relative the day after Christmas. Try and come to see me as I have not been able to go out of doors yet.

Ma of Greene Gables: I will try and make myself known to you later. Think you know where I used to live well.

Best New Year wishes to all the sisters.

PLEASED WITH CALENDAR

Dear Editor and Social Corner: A happy New Year to all and a "thank you" to the sister who sent me a pretty calendar. I am very proud of it and have it hung in my living room and every time I look at it I think of the one who sent it. It was certainly very nice of her and I do appreciate being remembered. I do not write to the Corner as often as I should, but I will try and do better in the future.

I always look at the Corner page the first thing when the paper arrives, and I read every one of the letters, more than once, too.

I am planning to go to Hartford next week to attend the State Grange meeting and if I see any one there with her "yellow bow" I'll surely say howdy.

Good wishes for the Corner.

Quality Furniture At Lower Prices!

JUST WHAT IS A BARGAIN? Does it depend upon price alone, or are there other factors as important as price? The discriminating buyer who is never blinded by price alone realizes that without quality price means nothing. The article must be up to the minute in design, coverings or finishes must be in style, and the workmanship and materials must measure up to accustomed quality standards. This is the kind of merchandise we offer you in our JANUARY SALE at prices much lower than the regular low prices for which this store has always been famous. To buy here at a lowered price is to effect a genuine saving on merchandise that will prove its superior quality by giving a generation of service and satisfaction. In this respect, and in many others, OUR JANUARY SALE is distinctly different. Come and profit by its many opportunities.

NORWICH JEWETT CITY

LEDYARD

The Ledyard Congregational Sunday school had a large Christmas tree and held Christmas exercises at Ledyard Center Friday evening, Dec. 28. The exercises consisted of recitations by the pupils and singing by the choir. Mrs. Anna B. Geer and Miss Louise Clark gave solos. Misses Frieda and Barbara Goodenough sang a duet. Rev. Mr. Goodenough, the pastor, delivered an address. The exercises were in charge of Joseph A. Clark, superintendent of the Sunday school. At this time Edwin Reynolds' prize was distributed by Carl Holdridge, secretary of the Sunday school. The late Edwin Reynolds, bequeathed in his will a certain sum of money to the Ledyard Congregational Sunday school. The income which amounts to about $50 annually, to be distributed into five prizes to the five who attend the most regularly in the year. This year the following prizes were given: first prize, divided between Arthur and Ralph Goodenough, who had attended 51 Sundays. They received $10.25 each; second prize to Priscilla Goodenough who attended 50 Sundays. She received $9.50. Third prize to Virginia Goodenough, 47 Sundays, $8; fourth prize to Florence Gray, 43 Sundays, $7.50; 5th prize, Louise Clark, 40 Sundays, $4.50.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS TO CUT DOWN TRAINING QUADS

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The mounting cost of sending recruit players through the paces of spring training trips has resulted in major league clubs deciding to take smaller squads south for the conditioning grind preliminary to the 1924 season.

The cost of a training trip, major league officials said tonight has become an increasingly important item, while the smaller receipts from exhibition games have mellitated against carrying an excess number of recruits.

This spring recruit players who have not at least an outside chance to remain with the club, will not be taken to the training camp at Winterhaven, Fla., Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, said. A squad of 32 or 33 players will report to manager Frank Chance about March 2.

FIRPO'S AMERICAN AGENTS GO TO BUENOS AIRES

New York, Jan. 4.— Hugh Cartland, who with William McCarney represents the pugilistic interests of Luis Angel Firpo in this country, will sail tomorrow for Buenos Aires in response to a cabled summons from the south American heavyweight. Cartland expects to handle Firpo's end of arrangements for two fights scheduled in Buenos Aires, one with Farmer Lodge, an American, on February 10, and the other with Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight champion, on February 24.

Cartland will return to the United States in company with Firpo either late in February or early in March.

OVER 350 ATHLETES WILL COMPETE IN ALYMPICS

Paris, Jan. 4—Three hundred and fifty athletes representing nineteen nations will compete in the Olympic winter sports beginning at Chamonix on the 25th of this month, according to figures available to the French Olympic committee tonight upon the closing of the individual entries.

The complete individual entries from the United States are not yet on hand, but a cable message received by the committee today says they were mailed yesterday.

Plainfield Loses to Chapman Tech

On Thursday afternoon, Plainfield High opened up her basket-ball season losing to Chapman Tech by the score of 35 to 29. The game was played in auditorium of Chapman Tech. At the end of the fourth quarter the score was 28 to 28, necessitating a five minute overtime period. Chapman Tech scored one field goal, and four foul baskets to Plainfield's one foul basket, in the overtime period. Plainfield lost on personal fouls, having 17 personal fouls called on them, 15 of which Chapman scored. On the other hand Plainfield scored thirteen goals from the floor, to Chapman Teck's ten. Gallup was eliminated for personal fouls in the third quarter, and Allard, for the same reason, during the first part of the overtime period. Considering that this was Plainfield's first game of the season, while Chapman had already played six, the Plainfield boys made a remarkable showing, and promise to have a wonderful season. Hewitt and Andrews were the leading scorers for Chapman Tech, each having four goals from the floor to his credit, while R. West was high man for Plainfield, scoring 7 goals from the floor.

Following is the summary:

Plainfield		Chapman Tech
Williams	r. f.	Andrews Hicks
R. West	l. f.	Linkletter
Dorrance	c.	Hewitt
Allard E. West	r. g.	Cruise
Gallup Tyler	l. g.	Beckwith

Scoring: Plainfield. Field baskets R. West, 7, Williams 3, Dorrance 3, Allard, 1, Tyler 1. Fouls: R. West 2, Allard 1. Chapman Tech. Field baskets: Andrews 4, Linkletter 3, Hicks 1, Hewitt 11, Cruise 1.

ITALIAN HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION SIGNS TO MEET CARPENTIER

Marseilles, Jan. 4.—Erminio Spalla, champion heavyweight boxer of Europe, purposes to sail Jan. 10 for Buenos Aires, there to meet Luis Angel Firpo in a bout in February, Spalla told the correspondent today that he was in excellent shape, having been in constant training since his bout with the Roman champion, Mariano Barbarasi, December 1 in Rome.

Spalla's passport arrived this afternoon and he took it to the Argentine consulate where it will be visaed tomorrow. At the same time he will sign a final contract for the bout with Firpo. The Italian fighter will continue his training aboard ship, using as sparring partners the French boxer, Bertal and several other fighters.

According to Spalla he has signed articles for a bout with George Carpentier, to take place in April. He thought Carpentier also would sign. In any case, he added, the winner of the bout in Buenos Aires would challenge Jack Dempsey for the world championship title.

SPORT NOTES

Seattle plans to hold an outdoor horse show and polo tournament this Spring.

The year now begun promises to be made a notable one on the turf by several international contests.

The pioneer polo club in the United States was the Westchester club of New York, organized in 1876.

In its present form hockey dates from about 1883, when a definite code of rules was drawn up to govern the sport.

Ernie Gooseman and Hilly Levine are scheduled to meet in a 10-round contest before the East Chicago A. C. on the night of January 14.

A big ski race in Norway was won by a peasant who covered 32 miles in less than 5 hours, the course lying over hilly ground that presented many difficulties.

The Intercollegiate Hockey Association of Canada, embracing McGill, Montreal, Toronto and Queen's universities, will open its championship season on January 11.

A billiard tournament to determine the New England 18.2 amateur balkline championship is to be held the week of January 14 at George Slosson's academy in Boston.

One of the first rules adopted by the National League when it was organized in 1876 was one prohibiting the pool selling and gambling evil which had wrecked the old National Association.

Several major clubs have cast longing glances at Lefty Grieves, star pitcher of the Baltimore Orioles, but manager Dunn has evidenced no inclination to let go of the tall portsider.

Exhibits at the recent National Dog Show in London ranged from a diminutive Yorkshire terrier weighing two poundos, to a huge champion St. Bernard, which turned the scale at nearly 200 pounds.

Hockey fans of Boston are enjoying plenty of their favorite sport this winter. In one week the teams appearing in the Hub included those of Princeton University, the University of Toronto, Dartmouth College and the United States Olympic team, in contests against the home teams—Harvard, Boston College, Boston A. A., and the Boston Hockey club.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

KEEP DOWN CONTAGIOUS DISEASES IN POULTRY

A post morten examination is an expert examination of the organs of any creature after death for the purpose of determining the cause of the death. On large poultry farms it is usually considered important to make such examination in fowls that die from unknown causes or that die in spite of the treatment that has been given them.

By this means faulty diagnoses may be discovered and the spread of some contagious disease may be avoided. If the poultryman does not feel competent to make a post morten examination of a fowl he should send the carcass to a veterinarian for examination.

Proficiency in the matter of a post morten examination is largely a matter of experience, and the more fowls that are dissected and examined the more expert one becomes. For people who have a liking for this sort of thing it is perfectly feasible to make such post morten examination at home. In order to become competent in this work, however, a poultryman must study symptoms of various diseases and should open and examine as many fowls as possible.

When attempting a post mortem examination the hands should be encased in a pair of rubber gloves. The carcass should preferably be sprinkled with some mild disinfectant before beginning the operation. A sponge containing a little camphor or ammonia may also be provided to cover up bad odors.

As a preliminary step, all feathers may be plucked and the skin carefully examined.

There are several ways of dissecting fowls for the purpose of examining its internal organs. Some draw them in the same way that they would if dressing them for market. A more satisfactory way, however, is to saw the carcass open with a fine-toothed saw, cutting through the flesh and bone of the back on a line from the neck to the tail.

When the two halves of the back are laid down the internal organs will be exposed in very nearly their natural position.

Some poultrymen prefer to disjoint and remove the breastbone and then by pressing back the ribs expose the internal organs. In a post mortem examination the first organ to be examined should be the liver, as this is more likely to be diseased than any other organ.

ONLY NORTHERN GROWN CLOVER SEED WILL DO

The domestic clover seed crop is a failure; the European and South American crops are excellent. The native crop of red clover is about 45 per cent. of that of 1922 and of alsike about 70 per cent. Not only is the yield of native seed low, but much of it is small and shrivelled.

The European clover seed crop is large, of high quality and is selling at low prices. It is estimated that 450,000 bushels of clover seed will be imported. This is enough to sow seventy-five times as many acres as are seeded annually in Connecticut or enough to supply all the northeastern states for this season. What a blessing this large quantity of low-cost, clean, bright, large barry seed might seem to be. Such splendid appearing seed appeals to every buyer.

There is a far less attractive view of our picture. Agricultural colleges in New York, Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ontario and elsewhere have given this matter careful attention. All European clover seed fails under northern winters such as Minnesota. Italian seed completely fails in Indiana and Ohio. From 40 to 60 per cent. of French, German and Chilean seed winter kills as far south as the Ohio valley.

Three farmers in New London county planted test plots with French, Italian and northern-grown American seed last year. In each case the American seed wintered perfectly while there were about 10 per cent as many plants with the foreign seed. Weeds came in where the clover was killed so yields could not be obtained. However, there was a splendid crop of clover from the domestic hardy strain and none from the foreign. The winter freezing and thawing, cold weather without snow in this state are particularly severe on clover. If hardy strains are needed anywhere, it is here.

Seed potatoes are now commonly bought with a certification tag showing origin and quality. Shall we demand less when buying clover seed? Poor seed means the loss of labor in preparing and sowing, loss of seed, use of land and most of all, loss of a crop which would replace high-priced grain.

Good seed may cost a trifle more, it will require greater care in buying. Foreign seed is worthless, small and old seeds are of little value. Why not demand a guarantee that seed is 100 per cent. northern grown and domestic. There are only a few agencies selling with such a guarantee at present.

ITALIAN RED CLOVER UNSATISFACTORY HERE

In October, last, the United States department of agriculture called attention to the fact that the American red clover seed crop for 1923 appeared to be a short one and that therefore it was probable that considerable importations of foreign seed would be made. Present indications are that such importations will be heavy and from widely separated regions of production and therefore will include seed varying greatly in its adaptability to the climatic conditions of different portions of this country. This makes it important for the farmer to consider in the light of available information what kind of clover seed will be best for him to buy.

While the department has not yet accumulated sufficient information through its tests in cooperation with the state experiment stations to make possible a determination of the adaptability of red clover from all the foreign sources, the following points are regarded as fairly well settled.

1. Italian red clover seed is unsuitable for any part of the clover area except the Pacific northwest. Italian seed has resulted in a poor crop or a failure in nearly every trial made by the department, both in its own tests and those made in cooperation with the state experiment stations except in the Pacific northwest. How much Italian seed will be imported is not known and, unfortunately, it is impossible to tell how much Italian grown seed will be offered under some other name.

2. In the central northwest, where winters are severe and the snow cover usually light, northern grown red clover seed only should be used. If that is not to be had, other domestic seed may be used, except that from Oregon, which produces a less hardy plant.

3. So far as trials have been made, the Chilean, French and Northern European seed has given good results in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and in the North Atlantic Coast states. However, where there is trouble from clover diseases, especially anthracnose, the foreign clovers are more likely to lose out on the second crop.

4. In Virginia and westward to Tennessee, where anthracnose is likely to be destructive, an effort should be made to develop local disease resistant strains. At present there is practically no such seed on the market. Under these circumstances seed grown in the eastern United States as near as possible to where the seed is to be used, on Chilean or French seed sown in August rather than in the spring may be expected to give fair results. On suitable land a good crop of hay may be commonly expected even though a second cutting may not be secured.

5. In Oregon, Washington and Idaho all strains have done well, the place or origin of the seed seems to make little difference for these regions.

6. Buyers should insist on knowing the origin of the seed offered, and seed should be purchased from firms or organizations of known integrity and responsibility.

7. It would probably be desirable for all American farmers to use only domestic red clover seed. That is at present impossible, however, and too great insistence on this might lead to an excessive increase in price together with the sale of such imported seed under domestic labels. Wherever imported seed of suitable kinds can be safely used, this course would seem advisable to follow rather than to reduce acreage seeded because of difficulty in securing domestic seed.

William Sheehy, Jr., appointed chief of the Shelton fire department on January 1, succeeding Thomas G. Ward, chief for the past 12 years, has been cited to appear in superior court in Bridgeport on January 11, in quo warranto proceedings instituted by Ward to recover the office.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

News of interest to Norwich people printed in The Bulletin in 1873 is published here in part as follows:

Monday, Dec. 29, 1873—On Saturday as some workmen in the employ of the Mowry Axle and Machine company were unloading a very heavy cast-iron pulley, one of the men, James Gilmartin, was caught under it and badly injured, and it is feared that he is internally injured. The casting weighed about 1200 pounds.

On Sunday morning the roof of Daly's block on High street, Greeneville, owing to a heavy weight of snow, became separated at the peak, the rear half slipping down about six feet on the wall, the front half dropping in the center, thus opening a gap at the peak of about eight feet. The house was occupied by about ten families, all of whom were turned out in the pelting storm. The families, and household goods were removed to safer quarters.

A lady and young gentleman broke through the ice while skating near this city Christmas, and while waiting for help the gallant managed to keep his lady friend's head above water thus saving the jaunty little hat.

Tuesday, Dec. 30, 1873—A very interesting case has been lately before the U. S. circuit court in Chicago, in relation to the infringement by railroad companies of the Tanner car brake patent. James D. Mowry of the Mowry Axle company of this city, is proprietor of this brake and has been prosecuting a suit against the railway corporation having the brake in use, to recover damages, none of the companies having paid the royalties. Judge Drummond of the circuit court has confirmed the decision of the U. S. court in Chicago that the complainants recover damages, and they will recover $63,638.40 with costs of the suit. This brake is the most valuable one in use as it enables the brakeman to apply pressure to each end of the car simultaneously.

Snow blockades are reported on railway lines out of Norwich. On Saturday night the Owl train on the Shore Line road was blocked between Stonington and New London and late Sunday trains sent from either end of the line had been unable to reach it. Since the snow all horse cars have been sojourning at the square being unable to make their accustomed trips.

Wednesday, Dec. 31, 1873—The New England Snow Shovel Co. has established a manufactory in this city in the building of Myers and Bailey on Franklin square and are producing a new kind of snow-shovel superior to all other patents. The patent of the company covers the point and the manner of attaching it to the blade. The old style points were made very thin and, being joined to the shovel in only three places were fragile and liable to wear out after a little use.

John G. Standish, Henry Fuller and Henry Palmer have started a Sunday school in Long Society, Preston, their first meeting being attended by three people, themselves. The school so prospered and since changing their quarters from the little brick schoolhouse to the Long Society church its membership has grown to sixty.

The proprietor of the Lancashire and Yorkshire House has announced that he will serve free lunches tomorrow, New Year's Day. It is expected that he will be kept busy during the greater part of the day and night.

Since the recent snow the average depth around the city has reached 18 inches and sleighing was never better than at the present. The horse railroad company has announced that it will run sleighs over the routes, beginning today.

Thursday, January 1, 1874—The old custom of the New Year's calls is to be revived this season and will be entered into with unusual interest and enthusiasm. Short calls will be made at the houses of friends and compliments of the season will be passed. We have too few of these party old customs left among us to allow one breathing so pleasant and cordial an influence to depart without saying a word for its re-establishment.

The very damp nature of the snow on the ground renders it impossible to clear the sidewalks. The late storm was remarkable in one respect, that is, in the amount of water yielded. Eighteen inches of snow fell, yielding 2.30 inches of water, a rainfall of that depth being unusual. A snowfall yielding that amount is very rarely experienced.

A canary bird owned by a Colchester woman died Tuesday at the advanced age of 26 years. A record of the eggs laid by this bird during its lifetime amounts to a number of thousand.

There have been 450 lodgers at the station house during the past three months.

The little burglary at Norwich Town Monday night cost Henry McNally about $40.

Friday, January 2, 1874—The manufacturing interests in Norwich are getting over the blow received during the panic. Money is once more a circulating medium, in fact as well as in name and the prospects of general business are brightening daily. Taxing large and small together the Norwich factories are sixty in number and are the life of the town. Fully three thousand of our citizens support directly over 8,000 of our population and are dependent upon these industries for their livelihood. Their monthly wages reach a total of $125,000, perhaps a tenth of which goes into the savings banks, the rest, except a small portion towards the maintenance of religion, is spent for family supplies, thus putting into circulation in this community over a million dollars annually. There has been invested in these mills in lands, buildings and machinery over $6,500,000. Large additions have been built by the several mills for their employes. All this adds to the property value of the city, encouraging the development of business and the enlargement of population. A large amount of Norwich capital is invested in mills in towns surrounding the city and the payrolls of these mills reach over $70,000 monthly. A portion of this is spent in Norwich and must be counted in as belonging to the benefits conferred by our manufacturing interests.

William Hartley and John Steiner supplied their friends and patrons yesterday with ox-tail soup, sparerib and sauerkraut at their sutler tents.

Saturday, Jan. 3, 1874—An enthusiastic German ushered in the new year by several salutes from a bell-mouthed musket in front of his residence on Franklin street, but his ardor was considerably cooled when a detachment of the police force appeared on the field of action and demanded an unconditional surrender. Under the impression that the town was being bombarded by the bloodthirsty Cossacks.

The total amount of receipts collected by the customs officials of the state for the year just ended, in New London was $35,688.64.

Although the surface of the river was partially covered with ice yesterday still it was not strong enough to bear any weight. It is not often that it remains open after January 1.

Stonington has the diphtheria and chicken thieves, both diseases creating no little anxiety in that thriving little village by the sea.

VENTS SOVIET DISPLEASURE WITH SECRETARY HUGHES

Moscow, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—Commenting on published extracts from the senatorial report on Russia's debt to America, M. Stekloff, editor of Izvestia, writes in today's issue:

"Secretary Hughes' haughty refusal of M. Tchitcherin's offer to negotiate on a mutual basis now is explained, as behind his melo-dramatic pose Mr. Hughes hides his hopelessness to make out a case against Russia's counter-claims. Mr. Hughes in tends to demand payments from the Russian people for value which Russia has not received from America, but which the American rulers wastefully squandered of their own free will on Russia's account.

M. Stekloff further asserts that the American government's action in supporting Prof. Boris Bahkmeteff, former Russian ambassador in Washington, was absolutely void of legal basis as the soviet government notified the United States that it did not recognize Prof. Bahkmeteff and warned American bankers that all payments on his checks were illegal.

FIRE IN PRESS ROOM OF NEW YORK WORLD

New York, Jan. 4.—Flames, starting from a short circuit in the pressroom of the New York World in the basement of the Pulitzer building, tonight shot up an elevator shaft to the top of the fourteen story building, engendering dense smoke which forced a general evacuation of the editorial and composing rooms in the upper stories.

Working under the difficulty of having to draw lines of hose up staircases, firemen, controlled the fire in an hour and employes of the newspaper returned to their work. Three of the 14 presses in the basement were damaged.

Taking America Off Its Feet!

Overland Success is the Talk of the Country

Great strides ahead—conspicuous leadership—warm words of praise on the lips of people everywhere—all these things focus on one big, vital fact: Overland and Willys-Knight motor cars have the right stuff in them.

The year just ended has been the greatest of all the fifteen years of Willys-Overland history. A great year made by great cars—the greatest in looks, power, action, comfort—and money's worth!

Look at the new Overland Champion, for instance. It brings a quality closed car within reach of every purse. America's first all-purpose car—conceded to be the most useful motor car on wheels.

The price of the Champion—$695—is a champion price. And even if the new Overland Champion did not have the many unique features that make it famous, it would still be a remarkable value at its price. It is the only quality closed car seating more than two passengers ever sold under $700. Its greater value is typical of all the other Overland models.

The Champion and all Overland models have the bigger Overland engine—brute power with extreme economy. Leaders in economy—leaders on the road—leaders in the many satisfactions they bring to owners. See them. Sit in them. Ask for a sample of their performance.

REFUSES FRANCHISE FOR JITNEYS FROM NORWICH TO WILLIMANTIC

The public utilities commission has denied the applications of Theodore A. Marrotte and Louis Belanger, Charles P. Cahill and Frank Lynch and the Connecticut Motor Transportation company for jitney lines between Willimantic and Norwich via Windham Center, Franklin, Lebanon and Yantic. The hearing was held in this city on November 27th with the petitioners present with counsel. The Connecticut Co. and the Central Vermont railroad opposed the granting of the jitney franchises.

Theodore A. Marrotte and Louis Belanger, Charles P. Cahill and Frank Lynch, and the Connecticut Motor Transportation Company filed with the commission on April 24th, October 10th, November 26th, and November 17th, 1923, respectively, written applications for certificates that public convenience and necessity require the operation of a jitney line between Willimantic and Norwich via Windham Center, Franklin, Lebanon and Yantic. The second named applicants specified in a second application filed an alternate route between the same terminal. All of the aforesaid fully appears in the said application on file in the office of the commission.

These applications were duly assigned for a hearing to be held in the City Hall at Norwich, Conn., on Tuesday, Nov. 27, 1923, at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon. Due and legal notice of the time and place of said hearing was given to said applicants, to the proper municipal officers of the towns in and through which the applicants desire to operate and to all common carriers operating over any portion of said route or routes substantially parallel thereto, as fully appears on notice on file in this office. At said time and place the applicants appeared represented by counsel and the Central Vermont Railroad Company and the Connecticut Company were also represented.

At the present time there are operated by the Central Vermont Railroad Company two trains daily each way between Willimantic and Norwich and the Connecticut Company operates hourly service between the same points. The route traversed by these two companies covers in part the route proposed by the applicants.

The testimony that public convenience and necessity require additional transportation facilities between Willimantic and Norwich came entirely from persons residing in Willimantic and the outlying towns along the proposed jitney route. There was no testimony from persons residing in Norwich. Such testimony as was given related to the need of traveling salesmen for a shorter running time between Norwich and Willimantic than the trolley affords, to wit: fifty minutes by the proposed jitney route as compared with eighty minutes by the trolley, and the need for public transportation in the outlying towns of Lebanon, Franklin and Windham, parts of which are not served by either the railroad or street railway. There was no evidence, however, as to any material number of such traveling salesmen, and if the time element for the limited number is to them of vital importance, there is available a taxi or automobile delivery service, at rates, however, naturally in excess of the trolley or jitney rate. It would be unfortunate and against the best interest of the public to destroy or decrease the efficiency of the service of the existing facilities for the accommodation of a limited number desiring more expedited service between Willimantic and Norwich.

While it may be desirable that there should be established an auxiliary and connecting jitney service in the unserved territory, nevertheless none of the applicants was willing to supply it unless he could carry the through traffic between Willimantic and Norwich.

Upon consideration of all the testimony, the commission is of the opinion and finds that public convenience and necessity do not require the issuance of a certificate to operate a jitney between Willimantic and Norwich via the route or routes described above, and accordingly the applications are denied.

We hereby determine and direct that notice of the foregoing be given to the several petitioners and other interested parties by Henry F. Billings, secretary of the commission, by forwarding by mail, postage prepaid, true and attested copies thereof, addressed one each to Marrotte & Belanger, No. 49 High street, Willimantic, Conn.; Charles P. Cahill and Frank Lynch, No. 13 Railroad street, Willimantic, Conn.; The Connecticut Motor Transportation Company, No. 55 State street, New London, Conn.; Victor S. Curtis, secretary, The Connecticut Company, New Haven, Conn.; A. N. Clark, secretary, The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, New Haven, Conn.; J. W. Wardlaw, general manager, Central Vermont Railway Company, St. Albans, Vermont; Board of Selectmen, Town of Franklin, Board of Selectmen, Town of Windham; Mayor and Common Council, City of Norwich; Mayor and Common Council City of Willimantic and due return make hereon.

Dated at Hartford, Conn., the 31st day of December, 1923.

RICHARD T. HIGGINS.
CHARLES C. ELWELL,

MONTVILLE JUDGE FINES LIQUOR VIOLATORS $200

Two violators of the liquor laws fell into the meshes of the state police in Montville this week and gained their freedom after settling bills of over $200, imposed by Justice William Smiddy of Montville, before whom they were brought.

The first offender was Alec Chapnalski of Chapel Hill district, Montville, whose place was raided Wednesday by the state police headed by Officer Fred Caron. Four hundred gallons of mash and two large stills were seized at the Chapnalski farm and confiscated. He was brought before Justice Smiddy in Montville Wednesday night and was fined $200 and costs and given a 30 days jail sentence. Judgment of the sentence was suspended for one year and the case was settled by payment of $329.37.

The second haul of the week was made Friday afternoon when the state police headed by Officer Fred Caron visited the farm of Joseph Patracco in Black Ash Swamp, Chapel Hill district, Montville, and seized a quantity of hooch and plenty of mash.

Patracco was brought before Justice Smiddy at his home in Montville Friday night and entered a plea of guilty to making and selling intoxicating liquor. A bottle of hooch sold by Patracco was displayed but witnesses were not required. Justice Smiddy fined Patracco $200 and costs, the jail sentence of 30 days being suspended for one year. Patracco settled his bill by paying $328.37.

GOOD YEAR BY YANTIC COOPERATIVE EXCHANGE

The Yantic Cooperative Exchange, held its annual meeting at the home of the President Elisha Waterman, last Wednesday evening. The reports of the officers showed the exchange to be in a prosperous condition. The report of the manager showed that 418 tons of grain and fertilizer had been received at a cost of $19,582.34.

The officers were elected as follows:

President Elisha Waterman; vice president, J. S. Sullivan; secretary, George A. Miller; treasurer, Arthur L. Smith; directors, M. J. Shea, A. J. Grandy, Albert G. Avery, James H. Huntington, C. B. Beckwith; auditors, E. S. Abel, Thomas Newman. George A. Kahn was re-elected manager.

County agent Walter T. Clark was present and gave a talk on clover seed and the importance of clover as a roughage.

A general discussion followed in feeding and the milk situation. After the meeting refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Waterman. The evening was very much enjoyed by all present.

Warning About Septic Tanks

The suburban property owner who cannot connect with a city sewer and must provide his own system of disposal is warned to beware of those companies which advertise their septic tanks as "cure-alls" for waste disposal troubles. Many misstatements, and some downright falsehoods, are found in the advertising matter of a number of firms, says the state board of health. Many property owners are greatly disappointed and put to unnecessary expense after installing equipment which has been so grossly misrepresented.

Write to the bureau of sanitary engineering of the state department of health for further information about the proper construction of septic tanks. A bulletin on "Disposal of Wastes" is available. It is fully illustrated and has much valuable formation.

Airplane Over City

An airplane passed over Union square shortly after two o'clock Friday afternoon. It was flying southwest at good speed and was soon out of sight.

MUST HAVE NUMBER PLATES PLAINLY VISIBLE

The state motor vehicle department has requested the police to enforce the provisions of the state law requiring the adjustment of registration markers in such a manner as to be entirely unobscured and the numerals and letters plainly visible at all times.

Stickers calling attention to the requirements in this respect were affixed to 1924 number plate envelopes issued by the department, but indications are that they were not closely observed in many instances. Number plates must be (1) firmly fixed in a horizontal position on the front and rear of the car, with the lower edges at least fourteen inches from the ground; (2) in plain sight at all times so that bumpers and other equipment will not hide any part of them; (3) illuminated, in the case of the rear marker, so as to be legible at a distance of fifty feet during the hours when artificial light is required, and (4) kept clean when displayed in public.

Under the state law, number plates remain the property of the state and no title to them passes to persons to whom they are issued upon the registration of their cars. Failure to comply with the regulation governing the use of them only renders the holder liable to suspension but also to a maximum fine of $50. These regulations were ignored to such an extent during the past year, that the motor vehicle department has requested enforcement authorities to insist upon their proper display during 1924.

If a number plate issued by the department should be lost or the registered numbers become mutilated or illegible, the owner of or the person in control of the motor vehicle for which the plate was furnished is required immediately to place a temporary number plate bearing his registration number on the car, and to notify the department within twenty-four hours and apply for a new plate.

BISHOP DAVIES SUPPORTS EPISCOPAL PASTORAL LETTER

Bishop Thomas F. Davies of the western Massachusetts diocese of the Episcopal church, who was formerly rector of Christ church in this city, has prepared a statement of his belief in the doctrines which the pastoral letter upholds. He credits the modernists with devotion, earnestness and conscientiousness. His statement was made at the request of the Springfield Republican, and is as follows:

"I was not present at the meeting of the house of bishops, held in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 14 and 15 and therefore can speak only from what I have heard. At that meeting there was presented to the bishops a memorial signed by a considerable number of earnest laymen, asking the counsel of the bishops concerning several matters touching the faith of the Christian church, which matters had lately been somewhat controversially discussed. Canon 31, section 2, subsection 8 of the canons for the government of the Episcopal church reads: 'Whenever the house of bishops shall put forth a pastoral letter, it shall be the duty of every minister having a pastoral charge to read it to his congregation on some occasion of public worship on a Lord's day, not later than one month after the receipt of the same.'

In compliance with the request received, a statement of advice and guidance was prepared in regard to questions submitted, and this statement was adopted and set forth by the house of bishops as a pastoral letter. It ought to be said that it was small, though constitutional, in the house of bishops, and it ought also to be remembered that the pastoral letter was adopted unanimously.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 35c and 65c, jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

W. B. A. MACCABEES

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the W. B. A. Maccabees, Norwich Review, No. 38, held Wednesday evening in their rooms at Buckingham Memorial, and Commander Mrs. Rachel Peterson was in the chair. There was the usual routine of business after which the annual installation of officers took place, the work being done by District Deputy Emma Haas of Hartford.

Officers installed were: Commander, Mrs. M. R. Harris; lieutenant commander, Mrs. Clementine Eckstein; past commander, Mrs. Rachel Peterson; record keeper, Mrs. Marguerite Tilley; collector, Mrs. Mary Peduce; lady-at-arms, Mrs. Bertha Schliena; sergeant, Miss Ethel Button; picket, Miss Olive Button; musician, Miss Mildred Hiscox; color bearers, Mrs. Mary Reid and Miss Bertha Wiese; captain of guard team, Mrs. Irene LaPree; chaplain, Mrs. Mary Prodell.

Following the installation there was a social time and refreshments were served. The review finished the year 1923 in excellent order, and it is expected that the new year will be a most successful one for the organization.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham Council, No. 14, Junior Order United American Mechanics, met in regular session at Buckingham Memorial Wednesday evening, with Councilor Howard E. Eddins in the chair. Present at the meeting were District Deputy State Councilor C. J. Cornell and State Vice Councilor Howard B. Marshall of New London, and about 20 members of Roosevelt Council, No. 8, of that city.

Following the regular business session of the council the annual installation of officers took place, the work of installing being conducted by District Deputy State Councilor Cornell. The following officers were installed: Councilor, F. B. Shappee; vice councilor, Joseph Osterby; recording secretary, Ralph W. Chapman; assistant recording secretary, Marvin Hanna; financial secretary, Leroy Brainard; treasurer, Howard E. Eddins; conductor, George McGowan; warden, William Johnson; inside sentinel, Fred Blanchard; outside sentinel, William Chapman; trustee for 18 months, Elmer Lesemann; for six months, Harry Mazowan; chaplain, Elmer Lesemann.

During the meeting there were short addresses by several of the visiting brothers from New London and the visiting installing officers. Retiring Councilor Howard E. Eddins was presented past councilor's jewel, the presentation being made by National Representative J. W. Wellington.

Following the meeting a fine social time and a luncheon were enjoyed. Wives of the members of the order had been invited to attend the social and were given opportunity to learn about the Daughters of America, the ladies' auxiliary to the order. Mrs. Charles Marsden, organizer of New London, spoke briefly, explaining the object of the organization, and after her address there were other short talks. It is likely that a branch of the Daughters of America will be organized in Norwich within the next few months.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequanash Council, No. 11, met at 58 Broadway on Wednesday evening with a good number present. Routine business was transacted and several applications were taken out with a prospect of more to follow. The outlook seems to be for a very busy winter. Election of officers was the main feature of the evening and at the next meeting they will be installed in their respective chairs. After the Salute to the Flag, the meeting closed. At its close, Christmas gifts were distributed to all the members, even the visitors were not forgotten. Pocahontas Della Bailey impersonated Santa Claus, in a very capable manner and had a bright merry word for all, as she called the recipient forward toward the tree, and presented the gift. After the presents had been given out, a buffet lunch was served by Sister Maria L. Button, assisted by Pocahontas Della Bailey. There are more good times in prospect through the winter.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Veterans, held the first meeting of the year at Buckingham Memorial New Year's evening. The meeting was opened by the president, Miss Lillie Wolf. The new officers were installed by Past Department President Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury with her assistant, Miss Lillian Brewster as guide, and are the following: President, Mrs. Genie Evans; senior vice president, Mrs. Alice Brinkman; junior vice president, Miss Gladys Newbury; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Brewster; chaplain, Mrs. Lillian E. Whiting; Council No. 1, Mrs. Annie B. Turner; Council No. 2, Mrs. Lena Pukalus; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackie; secretary, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury; guide, Miss Lillian Brewster; guard, Mrs. Minnie Sullivan; assistant guard, Mrs. Cora Botham; press correspondent, Mrs. Emma Tyler; first color bearer, Mrs. Maud Moody; second color bearer Miss Ruth Brinkman; third color bearer, Miss Sarah Botham; fourth color bearer, Mrs. Hattie Parsons; musician, Miss Elnor Doty.

In behalf of the tent, the new president, Mrs. Evans, presented the retiring president, Miss Lillie Wolf, a past president's pin. Miss Wolf was also presented a couch from the tent, by her sister, Past Department President Atterbury, who made the presentation speech. Although taken by surprise, Miss Wolf thanked the tent in a gracious manner.

A number of Sedgwick Post G. A. R., were present at the meeting which closed with the salute to the flag.

Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the refreshment committee Mrs. Elizabeth Mackie, Mrs. Annie Turner and Mrs. Cora Botham.

GROTTO

Nimrod Grotto members have two interesting events before them in the January meetings, when the first regular meeting on the 7th will be followed by a smoker and entertainment and the second meeting of the month, on the 21st will be for the annual election and installation of officers.

Senator McLean Introduces Petitions

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, Jan. 3—Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut, introduced the following bill and petitions in the United States Senate today:

Bill, granting a pension to James J. Sullivan of New Haven, Connecticut, late of Battery C, 1st Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, Spanish-American War, at the rate of $30 per month.

Petitions from City Savings Bank of New Haven; Automotive Dealers of New Haven; Chamber of Commerce of Middletown; Fairfield County Master Plumbers' Association of Sound Beach; Norwalk Real Estate Board of Norwalk; Chamber of Commerce of Greenwich; Citizens of South Norwalk; Citizens of Canton; and Citizens of Stamford, all in the state of Connecticut, favoring Secretary Mellon's proposed plan of tax reduction.

Petitions from Jared B. Avery camp, No. 29, Sons of Veterans of New London; Wadhams Post, No. 45, Sons of Veterans of Waterbury; Wm. B. Wooster Camp, No. 25, Sons of Veterans of Ansonia; Morgan G. Bulkeley Camp, No. 54, Sons of Veterans of Forestville; Horatio G. Wright Camp, No. 33, Sons of Veterans of Clinton; A. C. Latham Camp, No. 19, Sons of Veterans of Mystic; Colonel Edward Anderson Camp, No. 30, Sons of Veterans of Danielson; Charles L. Russell Camp, No. 26, Sons of Veterans of Danbury and Wadhams Camp No. 49, Sons of Veterans of Waterbury, all in the state of Connecticut favoring the enactment of legislation providing a pension of $72.00 per month for Civil War Veterans and $50 per month for their widows.

PETITION TO CHANGE BROAD STREET SWITCH

The Connecticut Company is to petition the court of common council at the meeting next Monday evening, for permission to locate a turnout on Williams avenue, presumably to replace the old switch on McKinley avenue, known as the Broad street switch.

The company for several years has known that the Broad street switch was too close to Franklin square to anywhere near even up the running time between that point and the city line at the Backus Hospital switch. Another factor that has probably led up to the company requesting a change of location is that when trolleys are on the switch it is impossible for automobiles to pass without going to the left side of the street, going up McKinley avenue.

On Williams avenue it has been figured out, there will be more room for traffic when trolleys occupy the switch and this point is somewhat more central on the run between Franklin square and the Backus hospital switch.

The petition will be received and referred to the proper committee. The committee will report back and set a date for the holding of a public hearing.

WEEKLY BIBLE STUDY HELD AT Y. M. C. A

Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. a group of young men enjoyed the Bible study hour in the dining room of the association.

The topic of the study was "how to make your life really count" and the scripture used was first Thessalonians, fifth chapter, verses 5 to 24, comprising several of exhortations from the Apostle Paul. Among other points brought out in the discussion were the following: We should recognize that there are others whose minds are not as strong as ours, and we should do all we can to help such people. We do not become as much interested as we should be in those who are not so fortunate as we are. While there may be times when we are justified in becoming impatient with certain people, such times are rare. The Christian fellow should never practice the "get even" spirit for we are always the losers when we return evil for evil. The greatest cause of discord, between individuals in the family and among nations is the "get even" spirit; the Scriptures say to "overcome evil with good" works out in the long run and it pays in a great way. While some experience may cause us to have a long face and make us grouchy, generally speaking the Christian should be of a happy disposition; most of the things that make us unhappy never happen. In other words we worry about things that do not exist. No man can be at his best unless he has the habit of prayer; many of the greatest men have been men of prayer, indeed prayer is one of the things that makes men great. We are exhorted to give thanks continually, but we so often neglect to thank God for his wonderful gifts to us; we thank our friends for their gifts but we fail to show this appreciation to God as we should. Though we are urged to "quench not the spirit" we do this very thing too often. The average young man does not "prove all things" but he acts without much thought, and often he regrets his action with sorrow. If there is the slightest question as to whether a thing is right or not, the proper thing to do is to refuse to do it, for "prevention is better than cure" in the moral realm as well as in other matters. We had better displease our friends if necessary, rather than regret an action for a lifetime. The reason that so many say yes, or go with the crowd is because they lack moral courage to say no.

Dance at Uncasville

A New Year's eve dance was held at the home of Norman D. Boynton Uncasville. Seventy-two people of the community enjoyed the evening.

The young folks entertained with a sketch entitled, The Midnight Mock Marriage, also Hamlet and Ophelia (comic. Violin, banjo and piano selections were enjoyed. Refreshments were served to all.

VOL. LXVI—NO. 6 | POPULATION 29,685 | NORWICH, CONN. MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1924 | 8 PAGES—64 COLUMNS | PRICE TWO CENTS

NO. 1469 ADJUDGED WINNER OF BOK $100,000 PEACE AWARD

Selection Made From 22,165 Competitors—The Identity of the Author is Unknown to the Jury of Award, Except One Delegated Member—Authorship Will Be Withheld Until a Nation-Wide Referendum Has Been Taken, Probably Early Next Month—$50,000 is Awarded the Winner Immediately, the Remainder to Be Given Him if the Country Gives the Plan Its Support.

New York, Jan. 6.—The American peace award tonight announced that plan No. 1,469 had been adjudged the best of 22,165 entered in competition for the $100,000 offered by Edward W. Bok, Philadelphia's publicist, for the best practical plan by which the United States might cooperate with other national to prevent war.

In its essence the plan proposes first first, that the United States immediately should enter the permanent court of international justice, endorsed by the late President Harding, and second without becoming a member of the league of nations as at present constituted, should offer to cooperate with the league, under certain conditions, as a body of mutual counsel.

The identity of the author is unknown to the jury of award nad policy committee, except one delegated member. The authorship will not be disclosed until a nation-wide referendum has been taken to determine whether the plan meets with the support of Americans. This probably will not be until early next month.

Fifty thousand dollars is awarded the winner immediately. The rest of the prize goes to him if the country gives the plan its support.

The plan, in brief, as officially submitted to the public by the policy committee, follows:

"I That the United States shall immediately enter the permanent court of international justice, under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

"I That without becoming a member of the league of nations as at present constituted, the United States shall offer to extend its present cooperation with the league and participate in the work of the league as a body of mutual counsel under conditions which:

"(A) Substitute moral force and public opinion for the military and economic force originally implied in articles 10 and 16;

"(B) Safeguard the Monroe Doctrine.

"(C) Accept the fact that the United States will assume no obligations under the Treaty of Versailles except by act of congress;

"(D) Propose that membership in the league shall be opened to all nations;

"(E) Provide for the continuing development of international law."

open discussion of them; and finally that there must be some means of defining, recording, interpreting and developing the law of nations.

Statement of Jury of Award.

The jury of award realizes that there is no one approach to world peace, and that it is necessary to recognize not merely political but also psychological and economic factors. The only possible pathway to international agreement with reference to these complicated and difficult factors is through mutual counsel and cooperation which the plan selected contemplates. It is therefore the unanimous opinion of the jury that of the 22,165 plans submitted, Plan Number 1469 is "the best practicable plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

It is the unanimous hope of the jury that the first fruit of the mutual counsel and cooperation among the nations which will result from the adoption of the plan selected will be a general prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all materials of war.

The Question to Be Voted Upon.

The substantial provisions which constitute the plan selected by the jury of award, and upon which the vote of the American people is asked, are hereby submitted by the policy committee as follows:

I. ENTER THE PERMANENT COURT

That the United States adhere to the permanent court of international justice for the reasons and under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

II. COOPERATE WITH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, WITHOUT FULL MEMBERSHIP AT PRESENT.

That without becoming a member of the league of nations as at present constituted, the United States government should extend its present cooperation with the league and propose participation in the work of its assembly and council under the following conditions and reservations:

Safeguarding of Monroe Doctrine

1. The United States accepts the league of nations as an instrument of mutual counsel, but it will assume no obligation to interfere with political questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state.

In uniting its efforts with those of other States for the preservation of peace and the promotion of the common welfare, the United States insists upon the safeguarding of the Monroe doctrine and does not abandon its traditional attitude concerning American independence of the old world and does not consent to submit its long established policy concerning questions regarded by it as purely American to the recommendation or decision of other powers.

No Military or Economic Force

2. That the only kind of compulsion which nations can freely engage to apply to each other in the name of peace is that which arises from conference, from moral judgment from full publicity, and from the power of public opinion.

The United States would assume no obligations under Article X in its present form, or under Article XVI in its present form, in the covenant, or in its amended form as now proposed, unless in any particular case congress has authorized such action.

The United States proposes that Articles X and XVI be either dropped altogether or so amended and changed as to eliminate any suggestion of a general agreement to use coercion for obtaining conformity to the pledges of the covenant.

No Obligation Under Versailles Treaty

3. That the United States will accept no responsibilities under the treaty of Versailles unless in any particular case congress has authorized such action.

League Open to All Nations

4. The United States government proposes that Article I of the covenant be construed and applied, or if necessary, redrafted, so that admission to the league shall be assured to any self-governing State that wishes to join and that receives the favorable vote of two thirds of the assembly.

Development of International Law

5. As a condition of its participation in the work and counsels of the league, the United States asks that the assembly and council consent—or obtain authority—to begin collaboration for the revision and development of international law, employing for this purpose the aid of a commission of jurists. This commission would be directed to formulate anew existing rules of the law of nations, to reconcile divergent opinions, to consider points hitherto inadequately provided for but vital to the maintenance of international justice, and in general to define the social rights and duties of States. The recommendations of the commission would be presented from time to time, in proper form for consideration, to the assembly as to a recommending if not a law-making body.

Author's Name Not to Be Revealed Until After Referendum

In order that the vote may be taken solely upon the merits of the plan, the policy committee, with the acquiescence of Mr. Bok, has decided not to disclose the authorship of the plan until after the referendum. The identity is unknown to the members of the jury or award and the policy committee, except one delegated member.

THE AMERICAN PEACE AWARD
342 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

If you wish to express a fuller opinion also, please write to the American Peace Award on a separate sheet.

Elihu Root was chairman of the jury of award. Serving with him were: James Guthrie Harbord, Edward M. House, Ellen Fitz Pendleton, Roscoe Pound, William Allen White and Brand Whitlock. A statement accompanying the jury's decision said in part:

Announcement of his $100,000 prize was made by Mr. Bok on July 1, 1923. The food of peace plans immediately began. Conditions of the award were made public on July 23. The seven judges were named September 16. On November 15, the contest closed with 22,165 plans from 23 countries before the jury. The day before Christmas Mr. Root indicated the winning plan.

Mr. Bok's plan was followed by the action last week of Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, in offering $50,000 for a European competition for the best plan for restoring prosperity to the war-stricken continent. Mr. Filene frankly credited his action to inspiration received from the Bok award.

STATEMENT OF JURY MAKING THE AWARD

New York, Jan. 6.—The American peace award brought forth 22,165 plans and many thousands of letters. Since many of the plans were the composite work of organizations, universities, etc., & single plan often represented the views of hundreds of thousands of individuals. The content of these plans is therefore an index of the true feeling and judgment of hundreds of thousands of American citizens.

These plans come from every group in American life. Some are obviously from lifelong students of history and international law. Some are from persons who have studied little, but who have themselves seen and felt the horror of war—or who are even now living out its tragedy.

But among them all are these dominant currents: that, if war is honestly to be prevented, there must be a face-about on the part of the nations in their attitude toward it; that by some progressive agreement the manufacture and purchase of the munitions of war must be limited or stopped; that while no political mechanism alone, will insure cooperation among the nations, there must be some machinery of cooperation if the will to cooperate is to be made effective; that mutual counsel among the nations is the real hope for bringing about the disavowal of war by the open avowal of its real causes and

GERMAN COAL SYNDICATE HAS BEEN RECONSTITUTED

Essen, Jan. 6.—(By the A. P.)—Germany's all powerful coal syndicate whose members made a spectacular midnight departure for Hamburg when the French and Belgian forces invaded the Ruhrland last January has now reconstituted itself here under the name of the Consolidated Association for the Sale and Distribution of Ruhr Coal.

The newly incorporated syndicate is comprised of ninety seven and a half per cent. of its former membership. The Thyssen group and other large operators who at first opposed the new organization entered the alliance at the last moment thereby virtually assuring the association a monopoly on the entire Ruhr coal output. The present working agreement will terminate at the end of the year unless extraneous circumstances call for earlier dissolution.

The new syndicate will again control the entire sale within Germany of Ruhr coal and will permit members to adjust among themselves the question regarding allotments for the foreign markets. There are to be no changes in the existing price levels for the present, it is stated the syndicate leaders believing that the present levels conform with the world market averages. Under the agreement forming the new syndicate the members are pledged to discontinue the independent sales and transactions that have been made since the occupation of the Ruhr.

Among the optimists who believe Germany is sighting daylight ahead is the salvaging of her federal budgets is Dr. Schacht, the new head of the Reichsbank, who declares the nation's household operations during December almost reached the stage of normal.

GERMANY'S FINANCES SHOW SOME IMPROVEMENT

Berlin, Jan. 6.—(By the A. P.)—Germany's finances as reported in the statistics of the ministry of finance covering the last ten days of December continue to reflect a state of convalescence which fills official quarters and the editorial analysts with pride and hope.

Federal revenues from taxation, customs and other sources during the last ten days of December amounted to eighty-seven million trillions paper marks, as compared with forty one million trillions the previous ten days. The November receipts from the federal railways amounted to 200,000,000 gold marks, which is more than three times the amount taken in during October. Both the railways and the post office department are working independent of the government's other departments and no longer figure in the general returns. Both now are operating on a strictly gold basis and promise to become self sustaining at an early period unless the Rentemark or the nation's currency once again are engulfed.

PREPARING FOR FLIGHT OF DIRIGIBLE SHENANDOAH

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 6—Preparations for the flight of the giant navy dirigible Shenandoah to the polar regions are now being actively made at the naval air station here. As soon as favorable weather conditions occur, it was announced today, the ship will be fastened to her huge mooring mast for a period of six days in an effort to determine the durability of the mast and its strength when subjected to a prolonged strain. The effect on the Shenandoah also will be observed.

Commander Frank R. McCrary, commander of the Shenandoah, will select her crew for the north pole flight about May 1. It is expected that the ship will leave here late in June or early in July for Forth Worth the first hop in her long flight.

Commander McCrary who returned from Washington last night said that the plans of Secretary Denby would be followed to the letter.

SNOW IN CENTRAL AND NORTHERN NEW YORK

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 6—Under the rays of a friendly sun, central and northern New York today quickly dug itself out of a heavy blanket of snow which fell during the night to the accompaniment of a sharp drop in temperature.

Ifising temperature was the general rule in this section.

Substitute for the Mellon Tax Plan

Draft by Democratic Members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Washington, Jan. 6—A substitute proposal for the Mellon tax revision plan was made public today by Representative Garner of Texas, on behalf of himself and the other democrats on the house ways and means committee. The high spots are:

Fix normal income tax rates at 2 per cent on amounts of $5,000 and under instead of 3 per cent. under $4,000 as Mr. Mellon proposes and 4 per cent under existing law; 4 per cent. from $5,000 to $10,000 instead of six per cent., above $4,000 as recommended by Mr. Mellon and of 8 per cent. under existing law; 6 per cent. on all amounts in excess of $10,000 instead of 8 per cent under existing law.

Start the surtax graduation at 1 per cent. on incomes from $12,000 to $14,000 instead of $10,000 to $12,000 as proposed by Mr. Mellon and $6,000 to $8,000 under existing law. The rate would increase progressively to a maximum of 44 per cent. on incomes of $92,008 and more as compared with the Mellon proposal for a maximum of 25 per cent on incomes in excess of $10,000 and the present maximum of 50 per cent on incomes of more than $200,000.

Increase the exemption of the head of a family from $2,500 to $3,000 and for a single person from $1,000 to $2,000. The Mellon plan would continue the present exemptions.

Fix the deduction allowed on earned incomes at 33 1-3 per cent. instead of 25 per cent, as recommended by the treasury secretary, and broaden the provision so as to include farmers owning and personally operating their farms and merchants and tradesmen who combine capital and personal service for the purpose of earning income.

Representative Garner in a formal statement outlining the minority's program, made this reference to the so-called nuisance taxes:

"There was no reason to single out one o rtwo of the miscellaneous or nuisance taxes as Secretary Mellon did and propose their repeal without at the same time carefully applying the entire mass of these taxes including those on automobile trucks, jewelry, candy, stamps on notes, etc., and offering the maximum of relief.

"Honest and equitable peace-time taxation is the goal of the democratic party," Mr. Garner said, "the foregoing proposals are in pursuance of this policy. Resting upon sound economics, we believe that they do full and equal justice to taxpayers, large and small, individual and corporate and avoid the extreme view of any class.

"We ask an unbiased comparison of the democratic tax proposals with the Mellon proposals and with full confidence invite the deliberate judgment of taxpayers and of all the people."

INCOME TAX COMPARISONS OF INTEREST TO MARRIED FOLKS.

Washington, Jan. 6.—This comparison of the tax on married persons without dependents under the Mellon plan and the democratic plan was made public tonight by Representative Garner:

PILGRIMS AT GRAVE OF THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Jan. 6—Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, led a band of noted pilgrims to the grave of Theodore Roosevelt today, the fifth anniversary of his death, and there paid tribute to Colonel Roosevelt's gallantry of spirit which he said was his most striking characteristic.

"We who knew him at work," said the governor, "marvelled at the blithness of his spirit under the strain of bitter struggles. Surely in no men of our time but Lincoln did the essential kindliness of a most kindly nature, throughout a lift of such enormous pressure, such absorbing warfare, such venomous attack remain so genuinely unspotted from the world."

77-YEAR-OLD HERMIT FOUND DEAD NEAR RIDGEFIELD

Ridgefield, Jan. 6.—George Washington Gilbert, 77-year-old hermit, who had never been away from his hut during his lifetime, was found dead here today a short distance from the well near his shack, where he had gone to secure his supply of water. Gilbert was a descendant of an old revolutionary family. He made the proud boast that he had never worked in his life, and had never submitted to "petticoat government."

He had been ill for the past several weeks, and during his illness his nearest neighbor, George Knapp, had brought him food Knapp found him dead today.

DUCK HUNTER DROWNED IN THE WARREN (R. I.) RIVER

Warren, R. I., Jan. 6—Thomas H. Dick of Lonsdale was drowned and his companion, Earl Calderwood of Valley Falls, is believed to have perished today when the dory in which they went duck hunting overturned in the Warren river. The body of Dick was tonight identified by a relative who said that he and Calderwood had set out on a hunting trip early in the morning. A hunter's coat was found near the overturned boat, 100 feet from the shore, and is believed to have belonged to Calderwood.

IMPROVEMENT IN HEALTH OF PREMIER LENINE

Moscow, Jan. 6—Contrary to reports in the foreign press that Premier Lenine is visiting a Czecho-Slovakian mud-bath resort, the premier remains in the vicinity of Moscow. It is declared that his health shows improvement.

According to the Petrograd Pravda Lenine recently went hunting, taking in one week, on the first day he returned on the hunting grounds for three and a half hours.

Premier Poincare Re-elected to Senate

Received 794 Votes Out of 810 Polled—Two Radical Socialists Reelected.

Paris, Jan. 6.—(By the A. P.)—One hundred and sixteen seats in the senate were contested for by indirect election today, the senators being chosen by deputies, members of the departmental and war councils and special delegates. The first ballot accounted for 82 seats, but the returns leave the complexion of the senate absolutely unchanged thus far.

Thirty-four seats remain yet for decision on second ballot.

The election of most interest was that of Premier Poincare, who was returned to the senate by 794 votes out of 810 polled.

The industrial regions in Nord and Loire departments, in which the communist campaign was very active, failed to elect any senators on the first ballot, M. Cachin, the communist leader in the department of Nord, and M. Goisky and M. Midol, in Loire ran far behind the other tickets.

Thus three seats, won by the extreme left might indicate some slight movement to the left except for this crushing defeat which the party suffered in the Lord and Loire departments, in which they had placed their hopes.

Five republican union senators elected for Moselle, headed by General Hirschauer, sent a joint telegram to M. Poincare affirming that they would "energetically support the premier's policy in behalf of france and the republic."

The conservative right party carried the departments of Loire, Infegieure and Ille-et-Vilaine, ten seats sold.

The departments of Lot and Loiret reelected all outgoing senators, the six seats going to radicals and social radicals. M. De Monzie, who conducted the preliminary negotiations with the soviets in 1923 and M. Loubet, son of the former president were among those elected in Lot.

POINCARE GRATIFIED BY HIS RE-ELECTION

Rambouillet, France, Jan. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—"I am deeply touched at this mark of confidence which is intended less for the senator than for the chief of the government," said M. Poincare this evening replying to congratulations on his re-election.

"We will pursue the policy of reparations you have approved," the premier continued, "pursue it with stubbornness to a pacific triumph—until the complete execution of the Versailles treaty."

BATTLESHIP ABANDONED WITH SEVEN MEN ABOARD

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 6.—The battleship Louisiana, en route from Philadelphia to Baltimore to be scrapped, was abandoned by her tow during a gale off the Atlantic coast last night and is adrift at sea. Seven men were aboard.

While being towed by the tugs Wood and Peerless of the Wood Towing and Wrecking company the ships were swept by a strong northwest wind which caused the tugs to run for shelter. The Louisiana was left anchored 16 miles southwest of Assateague, but today coast guard cutters and the two tugs were unable to find her.

The cutters Manning and Mascoutin, accompanied by the mine sweeper Owl, searched all day for the Louisiana but tonight there was nothing to show her location. A warning to navigation was broadcast by the coast guard. The navy department said it had been informed that the Louisiana was "adrift."

Washington, Jan. 6.—The navy department was notified tonight that the old battleship Louisiana had been sighted adrift early this morning by the steamship Herbert L. Pratt.

HAYS HAS NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT SHOOTING OF DINES

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 6.—Will H. Hays, titular head of the motion picture industry, has "absolutely nothing to say" about the shooting here New Year's night, of Courtland S. Dines, Denver oil operator, by H. A. Green, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, motion picture actress, he announced on his arrival here late today.

He issued a statement declaring that the motion picture industry "is squarely facing its own problems and will solve them all," and that the "striving for better and still better pictures will be earnestly continued."

Mr. Hays said his visit to Los Angeles at this time was his annual one to the film capital and that he was chiefly interested in the elimination of waste from the industry, and in the establishment of sound business principles in the production of motion pictures.

$1,500,000 FIRE DAMAGE AT CALIFORNIA SHORE RESORT

Ocean Park, Calif., Jan. 6—Damage estimated at more than $1,500,000 was caused by a fire that virtually wiped out the amusement district here today.

The fire was controlled after it had destroyed three piers, hundreds of consessions, several theatres and dance halls and had damaged the municipal auditorium.

Ocean Park, Calif., which suffered a huge fire loss today, is a resort on Santa Monica Bay, about 25 miles from Los Angeles, it has a population of something more than 8,000.

FREIGHT STEAMER SENDS RADIO CALL FOR HELP

New York, Jan. 6—A radio call for help, from the freight steamer Sorino, about 250 miles east of Cape Hatteras, picked up and relayed by the steamship East Side, was received by naval communication today.

Available shipping record show that the Italian freighter Sorrino left Philadelphia, December 22 for Lisbon and Marseilles. She was formerly the British steamship Servian Prince, of 3,145 gross tons.

SHOT HIMSELF DEAD WHEN REPULSED BY GIRL

Portland, Me., Jan. 6.—Ira F. Esty, said by the police to have deserted from Company M, Fifth Infantry, on July 6, 1923, when that unit was stationed at Camp Devens, shot himself through the heart today when Miss Sylvia Duffy refused to take seriously his protestations of love.

He died at her feet.

COLD WAS CAUSE OF MANY DEATHS AND MUCH SUFFERING

Two Persons Were Frozen to Death in Pittsburgh During Saturday Night—A Child and an Aged Man Were Fatally Burned While Dressing in Front of Open Fires—Three Persons Were Burned to Death Near Philadelphia as Result of Overheated Stoves—125 Persons Were Driven to Streets in Zero Weather By Fires in Cleveland.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 6.—Four deaths attributed to the cold wave were reported to the coroner's office today. Two persons were frozen to death during the night and two others, a child and an aged man, were fatally burned while dressing in front of open fires.

The "open fire" victims were Martha Redenbaugh, 2, and August Foershke, 75. The child died later in a hospital but the aged man was so badly burned that he lived but a few minutes after the fire was smothered from his blazing bathrobe.

The body of Gilbert M. Davis was found in an alley near his home. Officials believe he was rendered unconscious by a fall and became a victim of the biting cold.

Neighbors found the frozen body of Mrs. Alice Watters, an aged negress, in the home where she lived alone.

COLD WEATHER HAMPERED ST. LOUIS FIRE FIGHTERS

St. Louis, Jan. 6.—Damage estimated at about $1,500,000 was caused by a fire which broke out in the business section early today and for a time threatened to assume proportions of a conflagration.

The flames gutted a four-story building and damaged the Nugent Brothers department store and several other buildings in the downtown section. Tonight firemen still were directing streams of water on the ruins.

High winds and cold weather greatly hampered fire fighting operations.

THREE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH NEAR PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—Three persons were burned to death in this section today in fires believed to have been started by overheated stoves. The charred bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Harrington were found in the ruins of their home near Coatesville and Michael Bock lost his life in a blaze that destroyed a restaurant building in Bethlehem.

The cold wave, which struck this city last night, sent the mercury down nearly thirty degrees in a few hours. The lowest temperature today was ten above zero, 33 degrees below normal for this date.

FIRES DRIVE 125 PERSONS TO STREETS IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 6.—Close to 125 persons, many of them women and children, were driven into snow-covered streets with the thermometer hovering near zero early today when fire destroyed a home and damaged two apartment houses.

Six adults and five children, driven from their beds by fire resulting from an explosion of a coal furnace, shivered in their night clothing and barefooted in four inches of snow with the thermometer eight below zero while neighbors rescued them from the porch of their home.

This fire occurred four hours after a blaze routed twenty-five families from the Mil-Dar apartment house in Cleveland Heights. Six of the thirty-six suites in the building were badly damaged and residents of the damaged suites were forced to seek other quarters for the rest of the night. Eleven persons, seven of them women and children, also were driven from their quarters when fire swept an apartment house on Carnegie avenue.

SIX MEN HELD UP TWO TRUCKS NEAR STAMFORD

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 6.—Six men, several of them armed, held up two trucks owned by the New York and Massachusetts Motor Service company on the Boston Post road near here late last night, took possession of the trucks carrying a cargo of merchandise valued at approximately $25,000 and escaped. The two drivers, Harry Forest and Harry Hastings, both of Springfield, Mass., were bound by the robbers and taken in an automobile driven by one of the bandits to New York City, where they were found by a power house attendant in an empty lot at 187th street and Wadsworth avenue shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, according to the story told by the police here.

The trucks left Stamford at 10:30 o'clock last night and about 30 feet apart the drivers said. Forest, driver of the first machine, was stopped by the six men whom he took for revenue officers. They tied him up, seated him in the rear of their car and drove ahead to overtake Hastings who had driven past the stalled cars. Hastings was treated in the same manner and leaving two men to drive the truck drivers, the bandits made off with the trucks.

Neither Forest nor Hastings recalled their ride to New York. The last thing they knew, according to their narrative, they were seated in the bandits' car and one of them stood over them with a revolver pointed at them while the other drove the machine.

T. A. Blair, president of the service company, estimated his total loss including the machines at $35,000.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
51 Church Street Telephone 1062

Egbert Bass, 93, of Scotland, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, 225 Church street, Willimantic, Saturday evening. He was to have celebrated his 94th birthday January 29. He was born in Scotland, Conn., January 29, 1830, the youngest son of a family of eleven children. He was practically a lifelong resident of that town coming to this city after the death of his wife in 1913. Mr. Bass married Cynthia Carter of Canterbury in 1855. Eight children were born to them, six of whom survive: Wilton C., of Omaha, Neb., John L. of Scotland; Edgar E. of Willimantic, Mrs. H. L. Putnam, of St. Petersburg, Florida; Chauncey M. of Windsor and Mrs. Robert M. Fenton of this city. He also leaves six grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mr. Bass was a successful farmer for many years. He kept well informed through the reading of periodicals and books in which he retained his interest. About a month ago he became ill, but he retained his faculties to the last.

Lawrence Sassevant, of Jewett City, has been out under bonds of $100 for his appearance in the local police court this (Monday) morning on a charge of not having his automobile registered. The Jewett City man was arrested here Saturday and it was found that his machine bore 1924 registration markers which he had borrowed from a friend.

While making a turn in the road on West Main street, early Saturday evening, Captain Joseph Morrison of this city lost control of his machine when it skidded in the newly fallen snow and was struck by the South Coventry trolley car which was due here at 5:15 o'clock. A fender and wheel on the machine were damaged. Morrison, who agreed that he was at fault, came to the police station to fill out an accident blank for the state motor vehicle department.

After a snowfall of several inches which caused the man with the shovel to get busy on the city streets, the weather settled down to biting cold. From 15 to 20 above in the early evening, local therm meters dropped to just 3 degrees above on the hill section, early Sunday morning. Members of the police department who faced the cold wind all night long were happy when their hours of duty came to end, all agreeing that it was the coldest yet.

W. C. T. U. members held their semi-monthly meeting at their new quarters in the Salvation Army Citadel on Walnut street, on a recent afternoon, opening the session with the singing of the Crusade Psalm. Miss Bowen presided and report of the secretary and treasurer were read. It was requested that the members send cards to Mrs. Barker an associate member, who is a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital. Mrs. McCracken reported that $15 had been turned over to the treasurer from the Medal Magazine proposition. Current Events Mrs. Ford chairman, were given by several members. New Year's resolutions were responded to by Mrs. A. C. Scripture. Mrs. McCracken, Mrs. Metzger, Mrs. Flint and Mrs. Frederickson. Mrs. Stearns read Edgar A. Guest's poem "Team Work" was a fitting closing to the program of 1923 resolutions. The session adjourned with the Mizpah benediction.

The officers of Mary Todd Lincoln Tent, No. 15 Daughters of Veterans were installed last week by Past Department President D. Louisa Atterbury of Norwich, as installing officer and Miss Brewster, also of Norwich, as guide. The officers are: President, Mrs. Minnie A. Mathley; senior vice president, Mrs. Lucy Lynch; junior vice-president, Miss Sadie E. Curley; chaplain, Mrs. Grace Sweet; council members, Mrs. Minnie Mullen, Miss Mabel Payson and Miss Annie Spear; patriotic instructor, Mary Twomey, secretary, Kathleen Colgan; guide, Mrs. Florence V. Williams; guard, Mrs. Brehant; assistant guard, Miss Veronica Jenkins; color bearers, Mrs. Mary A. Meehan, Edith Twomey, Corinne Pickrell and B. Moriarty.

Commander A. P. Benner and two other member of the G. A. R. were guests. A supper was followed by a social hour.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist Church gathered at an enjoyable meeting in the Y. M. C. A. to install officers. An appetizing supper was served and the retiring officers were addressed by the outgoing president, Clyde Larkin. Brief addresses were also made by Rev. F. F. Peabay, pastor of the church. The officers are: Miss Doris Bowen, president; Byron Hawkins, vice president; Alice Peterson, secretary; Clyde Larkin, treasurer; Mrs. Edith Larkin, banner award secretary. Games and a social hour followed. The program for the evening was in charge of Alice Peterson, Elizabeth Peacock and Irma Paton. Dorothy James and Marion Bowen waited on table.

WESTMINSTER

The Holiday vacation was begun in the schools of the town by exercises and a tree in most of them. For some time, Westminster Hill school had been working to produce a program that must be worth 25 cents admission, the proceeds to go for the long-desired victrola. A dainty handwork folder with Christmas greetings dropping from a colored suspended bell pictured on its outer page, bore the following program, executed without announcement with spirit and very evident enjoyment on the part of all concerned:

Play, Our Christmas Tree, school; Getting a Christmas Tree, John Soderberg; song, It came upon the midnight Clear; school, A Christmas Carol, Malzina Margitis; song, The First Nowell, Frances Newton, Isobel Greene, Malvina Marities; Warning to Santa Claus, Isabel Green; Christmas Round, Boys and Girls; The Kitten's Christmas, Clara Green; Play Aunt Jane's Box, Earle MacLeod, Addie Green, Joseph Warren, Frances Newton, Isobel Green, Nick Mitlas, William Santo; Santa Claus Pantomime, Annie Vitzas, Nick Vitzas, Eddie Robbins, Clara Green, Joseph Main; Traffic Troubles of St. Nick, Andie Greene; song, Christmas time, school.

The school-room was very tastily decorated the feature being a large and very beautiful pine Christmas tree. At the close of the exercises, cocoa, sandwiches and cake, were served to the very appreciative audience, after Santa Claus, who had arrived as the affair opened and was present, making occasional communuity gave out gifts from his pack, aided by Miss Kimball and causing great fun by his apt remarks.

More than 70 tickets, a majority of the purchasers being present insured the victrola to the school.

VIOLATION OF THE MANN ACT ALLEGED IN NEW LONDON CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 6.—Steward Lawne of 36 Hudson street, Providence, is under arrest here for violation of the Mann act in bringing Evelyn Foster, aged 17, to this state for purposes immoral. The pair was found at a rooming house on Pearl street, Saturday evening, by Police Sergeant Hammond and Patrolman Augustus Ray. They had been at the rooming house several days. Lawne says he is 30 years old, married, and a fireman by occupation. He declares that his wife is soon to become a mother. Lawne and his wife were boarders at the home of Miss Foster's sister, the latter the wife of a naval petty officer. The latter couple, he says, separated and later re-married, and Miss Foster went to board with them, she being a millhand. Then she lost her employment. In the meantime Lawne and his wife had some difficulties, so he and Miss Foster decided to come to New London and seek work. They didn't find it. They secured a room together, representing that they were a song and dance team, with an engagement at a local theatre. This went on until it became known that Lawne was securing men on the street to go to his room and make the acquaintance of the girl he represented to be his wife, that she might make money to support him and her. The complaint is understood to have come to the police from a chief petty officer here. Then the arrest came. Miss Foster says she does not want to see her paramour again and that she does not desire to be returned to her home. She prefers to take any penalty attaching to her case. She is a slight girl and apparently not one to be engaged in the calling she is following, though Lawne gives her a very bad reputation established in Providence, whether in the hope of protecting himself or not is unknown.

Last night brought the lowest temperature of the Winter, the mercury falling to 5 degrees above zero. All over the city frozen water pipes are reported so that plumbers will be in demand Monday.

Kenomoc Hose company will celebrate its 50th anniversary with a banquet at the Mohican hotel on the evening of the 10th. Invitations are being sent out to city officials and others. The company has a membership that is not exceeded in the fire department of the city.

In the Waterford town court Saturday, Justice Morton fined Antonio Salogub $200 for having in his possession a still used ostensibly for the manufacture of hooch. Tony's outfit was found in the hollow of a decayed tree on the premises, being concealed from view with jute bagging. State Police Officers B. W. Kenneson and Frank Sweikert arrested Salogub and his wife when the discovery of the still was made. Every chance to pay the fine was afforded to Salogub, but he couldn't raise the money and was committed to jail. He had a unique reason for the possession of 20 gallons of wet mash that obviously was intended for booze, saying that he fed it to the cows. Mrs. Salogub also had a reason for the possession of the mash as she declared that she used it in the bath frequently. The Salogubs had a still that was right up to the minute in completeness and this was confiscated with the mash. It is claimed that there are several other stills in use in the town of Montville, but they have yet to be brought to light. The Salogubs resided on what is known as the Miller farm.

The snow, rain and cold weather of Saturday evening made the use of automobiles and bicycles most dangerous. At the corner of Bank and State streets autoists did not know whether they were going around head first or rear first, for the machines skidded on the slippery pavement and many automobiles turned completely around before they got headed in the direction the operator desired to guide them.

City Manager Holt will probably report at the meeting of the city council Monday evening whether the council will recommend the granting of permission to the Atlantic Refining company to erect a gasoline station on the property at the corner of Bank and Tilley streets—on the Keefe property, on which the refining company has an option with the intention of purchasing, the property having been bought for the purpose of establishing this station. The application for the privilege has been made in compliance with all the requirements of the city charter, and the application has been approved by the city manager and the inspector of buildings. These officials recommended the granting of the permission by the council, but Councilor Gregan put up the stoutest sort of an objection. "That would be a terrible mistake," he declared, "for the city wants and needs that corner for its own use, and it will have to pay a stiff price for it if the property passes to other owners now." The director of law has looked into the matter and he holds that the city cannot refuse legally to grant the petition.

Council Gragan now represents that the plan is to widen Tilley street about eight feet by taking the sidewalk on the south side and making it part of the highway, leaving still plenty of space for walks on that side as the buildings are all located far back from the sidewalk. He also advocates the extension of Green street to Tilley street and the opening of the latter street to what is now Perkins Green. He said that what should be done is to secure the Keefe property for the city and the Chappell company equally, as the latter is the owner of the property next south of the property in question and then it can be made use of by the city. Councilor Gragan also has a plan for the abolition of the present Allen truck house and the consolidation of the Allens with the Niagara fire company so that the city may have a hook and ladder company and a hose company in one building, thus saving the expense that now attaches to the maintenance of the two fire houses. All this is in line with the purchase of the Keefe property by the city and also the property on the north corner of Tilley street owned by the James Shiddy estate. Councilor Gragan holds that the improvement under his plan would be the greatest the city has known in many years. It would be for all time and eventually would pay the city manifold in efficiency of the fire department and the streets.

Mrs. Socrates Patterson is considering plans for the erection of a building to displace the structure burned on Christmas morning on State street. The architects are perfecting plans that will admit of either a four-story or a five-story structure on the property and which will cost from $75,000 to $90,000. Mrs. Patterson acquired the property on State street at the death of her husband and she has managed it in such a way that it has proved a good-paying investment. She has now acquired the interest which Mario Cheney had in the property and which she inherited from the Thomas Potter estate. That interest has been associated with the Patterson interest many years, but now the title in the property will be vested in Mrs. Patterson alone.

Harold Peck, son of Nathan Peck, will lose his license to operate a motor vehicle for a time because of his careless driving on New Year's eve when he ran down Mrs. A. Graham Creighton, on Montauk avenue, while she was with others waiting at Gardner avenue to board an up-town car. Peck is 18, and at the time of the accident he was operating the car without having a license to do so. He was speeding and ran into the group of devot that sought to board the trolley car. Mrs. Creighton was the only person injured, but she, it is claimed, was sent to the hospital where she still is under treatment. Judge Prince fined Peck $25 as the prosecutor was not disposed to charge him with extreme carelessness, the complaint on which he was prosecuted, alleging the passing of an intersecting street without reducing the speed of his automobile and with failing to give warning as he went by the street. Judge Prince directed that the commissioner of motor vehicles be asked to suspend the operating license of Peck, if he had one.

Oscar Edgecomb is in Lawrence hospital to undergo an operation. His wife, formerly matron of the Learned Mission, died a year or more ago. The nature of the malady that afflicts Mr. Edgecomb is not known, but it is regarded as serious.

Peter F. G. Reed, a man who escaped from the Rhode Island State Hospital, at Howard, is a prisoner at the police station, charged with breaking and entering the convent of St. Mary's church, Friday, and taking a gold crucifix therefrom. He got in through a rear window and then cut a panel from a door. The crucifix seems to have been the only plunder taken. Reed has been employed at Lawrence hospital for a period of ten days, finishing up his engagement there last Thursday. Whether he was discharged or left voluntarily does not appear, but it is known that no persuasion was used to have him remain at work. Officer Lenahan found Reed on the street and learned that he had a crucifix. He held him up and then the facts came out, Reed claiming that he, being a Catholic and seeing a chance to buy the crucifix, did so, paying 50 cents for it. Rev. Dr. T. M. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's, visited Reed at the police station this afternoon. The clergyman declared that he had no desire to have Reed punished as the crucifix had been recovered undamaged. Telephonic communication with the Howard hospital revealed that Reed had escaped from there Dec. 18. He will be taken back there if delivered up by the New London authorities Monday, when the police court gets the case.

Anthony F. Jordan, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at a local private hospital Saturday, is reported today as resting comfortably.

Mrs. Michael McNamara and daughter, Miss Mary McNamara of Garfield avenue, and Miss Gleason, of Broad street, are visiting relatives in New York.

The Price of Alaska.

An instance of history, little known, has come to light with the publication of the letters of Franklin K. Lane. Prior to the Civil war, Russia had offered to sell the United States Alaska for $1,400,000. In the war the matter lay dormant. When England began to manifest her friendly disposition toward the Confederacy and the north learned from Europe that England and France were carrying on negotiations for the recognition of the southern states, Russia was the only European country on whose friendship the north could rely. Secretary Seward persuaded Russia to make a demonstration, in American ports, of Russian friendship. Her ships of war sailed to both coasts, with the understanding that the expense of this demonstration should be met by the United States out of the contingent fund. It was to be a secret matter. The war came to a close. It was no longer possible to pay for the demonstration secretly, under the excuse of war, but a way was found for paying Russia through the purchase of Alaska. The warrant for $1,400,000 was the warrant for the purchase of Alaska and the warrant for $8,800,000 was for Russia's expenses in her naval demonstration in the behalf of the United States, but history only knows the fact that the United States paid $7,200,000 for this territory, which is now one of the richest portions of the earth in mineral deposits.

There are a good many noughts in the sum total of the world's inhabitants

The Studebaker Corporation of America has appointed Thornton N. M. Lathrop of New London, distributor of Studebaker cars in Norwich and vicinity.

A temporary Sales and Service Station has been established at 118 Franklin St., until our permanent home on North Main St. is completed.

Halton E. Underhill will manage this branch, and the Service Station will be in charge of Spencer W. Moon, both of whom have had extensive Studebaker experience.

We believe that in operating this Norwich Branch, in conjunction with our New London and Westerly Stations, we will be in a position to render Studebaker owners in Eastern Connecticut an exceptional service.

Maurice E. Bridges, 19, residing in the north part of Stonington, was before the town court, Judge William A. Wilcox, on a charge of getting money under false pretenses. Michael J. Shea, nearly fifty and blind for many years, conducts a variety store on Liberty street and was alone when Bridges entered the store to obtain a box of cigarettes for which he tendered a "Brewster's Millions" imitation of a five dollar bill, receiving $4.85 in change. Shea did not like the feel of the bill and when Thomas Cowley entered the store he was asked to pass upon the tender and reported it valueless. Bridges, who is not strong physically and mentally, was brought into court, where he was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $3 and costs, amounting to $12.25, which was paid by Frank Main. The young man is to report once a week for sixty days, as he is placed on probation.

Fred D. Sisson was driving his limousine on the Post road, Saturday night, during the snowstorm. With a passenger on the rear seat he was ascending the hill near the residence of John Maxson. At that time a large auto truck 43-d73 Pa., without chains unable to make the incline was sliding backwards down the hill and collided with the limousine denting its top and side, but broke none of the glass or did not capsize it. The damage was reported to the van driver and the truck proceeded. This was one of numerous near-accidents occasioned by the snow and slippery road. Saturday night.

Two hundred copies of the revised edition of the General Laws of Rhode Island, by a commission appointed for the purpose, a year and a half ago, John S. Murdock, Wayne Whitman and Charles A. Walsh, were distributed last week to members of the legislature and district and other courts of the state. By Wednesday next it is expected that there will be enough copies ready to meet the general demand. An index prepared by Justice John W. Sweeney has been completed and is expected to be ready for distribution in three months.

Fort Mansfield and the grounds of the reservation, consisting of ninety-eight acres, situated at Napatree Point on the strip of beach east of Watch Hill bathing beach, has been offered to the state of Rhode Island for purchase by the federal government. Governor William S. Flynn has offered resolution to the Rhode Island legislature for its purchase at the price of $91,788.65. The option for the state expires February 6th. If the Rhode Island legislature does not entertain the proposition, then the federal government will offer the same to the county (Washington) and the town of Westerly and finally at auction to the highest bidder. An appraisal of the property was made for the federal government recently by Harvey C. Perry, president of the Westerly Board of Trade, Frank W. Coy, a real estate dealer, and Walter C. Hiscox, a tax assessor for the town of Westerly. Fort Mansfield, which attained its greatest importance soon after the Spanish-American war, was abandoned as a fort and left only as a military post in 1921, when the company stationed there were transferred to Fort Terry. The structures at this post have come to a dilapidated condition, through decay and neglect.

At 7.30 a turkey supper was served under direction of Harry Peckham. During the dinner Toastmaster Meikle called on Capt. Harold D. Kenyon, William F. Crandall, president of the corps, and others. Elaborate decorations made the table attractive. Dancing was enjoyed by the 200 guests present from 9.30 to 1 a. m., music being furnished by Crandall-Sutcliffe orchestra. The committee in charge was Archie Meikle, chairman, Benjamin A. Peabody, Jr., J. Henry Burk, Clarence D. Stenhouse and Raymond Mitchell.

In New York, Saturday, Mrs. Muriel W. Williamson, of Philadelphia, a former Watch Hill cottager, and Colgate Hoyt, a New York broker, were married. Mr. Hoyt is the son of the late Colgate Hoyt, former New York railroad man, broker and sportsman, who left an estate of $5,800,000. At the time of Mrs. Hoyt's residence at Watch Hill she was the wife of Jesse Williamson, 2nd, whose arrest occurred while he was building a cottage at the Hill; at that time he was charged with $700,000 embezzlement, and is now serving time in the Pennsylvania state penitentiary.

Region of Caverns.

The Karst is a curious region of calcareous rocks in the neighborhood of Trieste, which has long been famous for its countless caverns, which are more numerous there, perhaps, than any other district of a similar area elsewhere in the world. The results of a careful exploration of these caves and abysses have been published by Boegan. The number included in the chart prepared by him is no less than 347. All of these have been explored and their exact position rigorously determined. Some are dry caverns, some are the underground channels of streams. Hundreds of similar caves exist in the regions bordering on the Karst in Carniola, Istria, Crotia, Dalmatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

An interesting display and one that should have the attention of all sportsmen is set up in a window at Meech's store by the state Fish and Game commission operating through its representative, County Game Warden Charles Letters, of Putnam. There are three cases of mounted birds, all fine specimens, and an electrically operated device that moves cards about, these cards setting forth certain facts as to what the state is doing to protect game and other information incident to the display.

A study of the mounted bird specimens will serve to teach any hunter when not to shoot. Contrary to general belief, most of the varieties of owls found in Connecticut are protected and cannot legally be killed. Only the great horned owl, regarded as a destroyer, may be shot with impunity. One case of birds in the display is made up exclusively of owls. Another case is of shore birds, few of which ever are found in this locality, though they sometimes stray in to coves at certain periods of the year. A third case of mounted birds contains a wood duck, a kingfisher, an osprey and other specimens.

The display was studied with close attention all during Saturday. Frequently some hunter would remark: "I did not know that was protected" speaking of some particular unit of the display, so it was evident that the exhibit is doing the work for which it is intended—spreading information as to birds that cannot be legally killed in this state.

Warden Letters says that the exhibit will be shown later in Putnam, Moosup and at other points in the county.

Each of the birds in the display is ticketed so that all observers may know just what they are looking at.

Once more Danielson has come through a year with an amazingly small record of fire losses—only $1830, total for 27 calls for the services of the fire department, an average of about $65 per fire, this constituting a record that it would be hard to match in New England.

In large measure this splendid showing is due to the speed with which the fire department responds to alarms and has justified many times over such expenditure as was incurred by the borough in motorizing the fire department. While the organization is purely voluntary, though the active members receive some small compensation, the speed with which they get away to fires is not less than remarkable. Many times the big motor pumper is on its way before the alarm has finished ringing in. Numbers of the firemen live or work within a block of the central fire station, and this proves a big asset in establishing the speed of which the department members are so proud.

Chief A. P. Woodward, who has been at the head of the department for more than a score of years, has said many times that minutes saved in getting to a fire and the water pouring into it often determine whether the loss is going to be. An extra five minutes start for a fire may prove disastrous as to handling it without serious loss.

In addition to the service performed in the borough during 1923 the department responded to three out of town calls, lending valuable aid in controlling a big fire in Brooklyn and also in checking the fire that razed through the Hamilton mill at Elmville during December.

Danielson may well be very proud of its fire department. The fine record made in 1923 was no fluke. It simply duplicates other equally good showings made year after year. Circumstances may not allow its being matched every year, but the record is good enough for years back to show that it is normal and not unusual.

The fine new clock set in the sidewalk at its place of business by the Danielson Trust Co. was running Sunday. It attracted a great deal of attention and favorable comment.

Not all these who owe personal taxes accepted the opportunity of paying them by Saturday, the last date before the delinquent list is handed to the prosecuting attorney to collect according to law.

Saturday afternoon and evening's snow-storm did not amount to much, but on its heels there came a cold wave that sent the mercury shooting down to zero and a high wind made this hard to endure.

Gurdon E Withey was a member of a fox hunting party that had the experience of cornering a fox so that he had to swim the Quinebaug river, a feat accomplished with as much grace as these crafty animals display in getting about on land.

A total of 42,000 Christmas seals were sold in Danielson, this being 9,000 more than the best previous record here.

Saturday morning, from his home in Dayville, the funeral of Christopher Campbell, 84, was held with services at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Christopher Campbell, William Reddy, John Holly, James Donovan, Charles Donovan and William Donovan, three latter of Providence. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

District Deputy Kenneth Michie will be in Putnam Tuesday evening to install the officers of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows.

The January meeting of the chamber of commerce is planned for Tuesday evening of this week.

George A. Williams, Mrs. Myrtis Blanchard and George Kent were candidates who took the examination on Saturday for appointment as postmaster at Killingly (Dayville). Postmaster Patrick Riley's appointment expires February 5.

Stonington High school basketball team will be here next Wednesday evening for a game with the Killingly High school team.

Having pleaded guilty to reputation, a fine of $20 and costs was imposed upon Alex Ruxtella of West Thompson after a hearing before Justice Frank M. Bedard in Brooklyn. A quantity of cider and wine was seized at the Ruxtella place about ten days ago.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward has so far recovered from a recent severe illness as to again be able to give attention to his business.

The parish meeting of St. Alban's church is scheduled for Tuesday evening.

Robert W. Boys, formerly superintendent here for the Goodyear mills is highly praised in Fibre and Fabric for the excellence of the new plant of the Farr Alpaca Company of Holyoke, which is described as one of the best mills in the world and has incorporated within it many of Mr. Boys' ideas of modern mill construction and appointment.

PUTNAM

Work on the new electrical generating plant at the Putnam Woolen company is nearing completion. The work involves an expenditure of over $50,000 and when completed will furnish sufficient electricity to run the company's plant, with a surplus. In building the new generator it has been necessary to put in a new water wheel and enlarge the tailrace. In addition to using its water power in the past the company has been compelled to buy electricity. The Putnam Woolen company also furnishes the power for the Waterman Worsted company, the woolen company's lessee.

Mrs. Ida G. Kennedy has resigned in a local newspaper office and will go to New Rochelle this week to keep house for her brother, whose wife died a few weeks ago. Mrs. Kennedy has lived in Putnam for over 30 years and has been identified with newspaper work for a long time.

G. Lawrence Perkins and his brother, Russell Perkins, of Pomfret and New York, sailed on the Acquitania, Saturday, from New York for a trip abroad. They will spend most of their time in Paris, returning home in the early spring. John J. Whitehead Jr., of this city, went to New York to see them sail.

According to figures compiled by City Treasurer Charles H. Brown, the city's debt was reduced $1,698 the past year. The total receipts of the city were $120,431 and expenses $120,255. During the year the following amounts were spent to run the various city departments: Fire department, $11,949; police department, $11,486.36; courts, $1,689.02; highway department, $10,091.71; general expense, $3081.65; interest, $3,191.07; notes, $43,000; bonds $5,000; sinking fund, $1,000; street sprinkling, $1,453.93; street lighting, $8,132.32; sewers, $5,719.33; Marshall street improvements, $4,985.09; grading, curbing and gutters, $1,193.23; lights in city building, $322.68; clerk's salary, $400.01; treasurer's salary, $400.01; janitor, $480.

George Fuller got fuller than he ever was in his life, in fact so full that he did not know where he was, when he awoke in the police station across the river, Saturday morning. He is now in Brooklyn jail for 30 days.

Fuller said his home town is Portsmouth, R. I. He had been working in Willimantic and saved up nearly a hundred dollars for Christmas. He went to Providence to celebrate the holiday and continued his celebration through New Year's and beyond. He when picked up in Putnam, had remaining ninety cents of his hundred dollar roll and a bottle of peppermint from which a part of the fiery liquid had disappeared. The last he remembered was getting on a train in Woonsocket to return to Willimantic. Why he got off the train at Putnam, George does not know, as his memory was a blank after starting out from Rhode Island to come to Connecticut.

Automobiles driven by Guy Zito, a local taxicab driver, and Edmond Gilinas, came together, Friday evening, at the corner of Pomfret and High streets. The Zito car was somewhat damaged but the Gilinas car, a new one, received the greater damage, estimated at $200 or more. Zito was on the way to the Day Kimball hospital and Gilinas was coming down High street. The two cars arrived at the intersection at the same time and the crash followed. A large crowd quickly gathered and each driver was blaming the other for causing the trouble. Zito has been in a number of accidents and has had a car stolen from him. He believes that the jinx is following close on his trail.

State's Attorney Charles E. Searls has made up his docket of criminal cases, the trial of which will begin on Tuesday next to court. The cases assigned for trial Tuesday are: Wilfred LaRose, violation of the liquor. Geo. H. Gregoire of Moosup, who is charged with practicing dentistry without being licensed by the state. Joseph Larrow, Leo Plant and Arthur Randolph, burglary, theft and transporting intoxicating liquor, and Theodore Lepire, Theodore Bouloy and Leo Plant, attempted burglary. These are the young men alleged to have entered the home of Miss Beebe in Thompson and stealing a quantity of wines and liquors from the wine cellar.

Charles W. Chandler, charged with reckless driving and with avoiding responsibility after hitting Neri Coderre, a policeman, in the village of North Grosvenordale one night last summer in which the officer had an ear nearly torn off and lesser injuries.

Alexander Dougherty and Patrick Burke, violation of the liquor law. Sydney Evans, cruelty to animals.

The jury has been summoned for Wednesday and the following cases assigned: Eddie Ostroski of Webster, charged with manslaughter. He is represented by Attorney Joseph Love of Webster: Ostroski is held responsible for causing the death of Al Lungstrom, the North Grosvenordale wrestler, in the early morning hours of a day in the spring of 1922. Lungstrom was on his way to work in Perryville and was riding a bicycle. Ostroski was driving a jitney. The machine and the bicycle collided just inside the Connecticut line at Perryville and Lungstrom was taken to a Worcester hospital where he died several weeks later.

State vs. S. N. Strellewicz, violation of the liquor. Urgel Charbonneau, violation of the liquor. Albert and Anna Kruppowcih, violation of the liquor law.

Somewhere in Putnam there is a small oil stove. It is the property of the city of Putnam, or at least it will be, unless the merchant from whom it was bought will kindly accept its return. An employe of the street department was seeking the oil burner, Saturday afternoon, but up to a late hour it had not been located. The police department knows of the disappearance but is not exerting itself to recover the property. The superintendent of streets also knows that there is a twelfth dozen oil stoves missing from the list of city property, for it was the superintendent who gave the order to one of his men to purchase the stove, to be used at the headquarters at the city dump.

The dump is open for the use of the public three days a week. A man is kept there to see that refuse matter is properly disposed of. For the cold weather a small building was erected to be occupied by the boss of the dump and it was to keep this building warm that the purchase of an oil stove was authorized.

The man sent to purchase the little heater purchased it all right. He took it with him in attending to some other work he had on hand. Somewhere in his rounds he left the stove and then forgot all about it. He even forgot that he had purchased it and went to another store and purchased another one. The fact that a sixth of a dozen stoves had been purchased where only a twelfth of a dozen was wanted, became known when the bills came in. Now the department employe is out seeking his first purchase in order to prove to his superior that it really exists. Meanwhile the office of the superintendent of the city dump is being kept warm by stove No. 2.

Tonight will tell the story as to whether or not any of the present city department heads will be decapitated. Although it is believed that the new common council, which meets this (Monday) evening for the purpose of organization and electing heads of departments, will not use the axe freely, if at all, those in office will breathe easier when it is announced from the council chamber executive session that they are re-elected for another two-year term.

The elective offices include the captain of police and members of the force; prosecuting attorney and assistant prosecuting attorney, city clerk, superintendent of streets, corporation counsel and fire officer. The lack of speculation and discussion and the quietness of the pre-election days is taken as evidence that there will be few if any changes in the personnel of the department officials.

The judge and deputy judge of the city court, who receive their appointments at the hands of the legislature, begin their new terms this (Monday) morning. Judge Mahlon H. Geissler begins his fifth term as judge. He was re-appointed by the legislature without opposition and the conduct of the court during his years as judge has met the approbation of the public. Archibald Macdonald, deputy judge, also acts as clerk of the courts, is also a re-appointment.

JEWETT CITY

Officers Henry Viegard and John McDermott recovered the stolen robes belonging to E. A. Ballou, L. G. Buckingham, Adam Rojaske and Lawrence Cassavant Friday night. Finding a robe belonging to Rojeske in an automobile, led to finding the man who took them all. The robes were found, excepting two, on beds in the home of Emile Bergman, who lives in Meadowbrook Lane. Stephen Duffy, a boarder confessed to the theft of all the robes. One of the robes was found in Stephen Foley's automobile and the other was either given or sold to Alfred Kennedy, of Meadowbrook Lane. Two auto rims, two auto tires and a number of steel traps were also in Duffy's possession. The cases were tried Saturday morning before Judge John Barry. Duffy pleaded guilty and was given 60 days in jail and costs. Andrew Burdick pleaded guilty to theft of auto tools from Adam Rojeski and was fined $25 and costs. Emil Bergman pleaded guilty to concealing stolen property, and was fined $25 and costs. George Cyr, charged with receiving stolen property, pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty and was fined $25 and costs, which he paid. Stephen Foley pleaded not guilty to receiving stolen property, but was found guilty and fined $25 and costs which he paid. Kennedy was charged with receiving stolen property but pleaded not guilty. He was found not guilty and was discharged.

The annual meeting of the Second Congregational church was held Saturday afternoon Rev. H. S. Stephenson presiding. The officers elected were: Clerk, Alex McNicol; treasurer, F. E. Robinson; auditor of collections, Andrew McNicol—auditor of accounts, L. G. Buckingham; auditor of treasurer's accounts, Walter Marshall; deacon for three years, Alex McNicol; the three deacons being F. E. Robinson, G. A. Haskell and Alex McNicol. Mrs. J. C. Hawkins was elected deaconess for two years, the two deaconesses being Mrs. E. H. Hinman and Mrs. J. C. Hawkins. George A. Haskell trustee for three years, the three trustees being F. E. Robinson, E. A. Faust and G. A. Haskell. The three members of the church on the standing committee are Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. E. A. Faust and Mrs. L. G. Buckingham.

Miss Louise Putney of Boston was a week end guest at Miss Doris Mystic.

Dorcas Circle of the King's Daughters is to meet Tuesday evening in the vestry of the Methodist church. A supper at six o'clock is to be followed by the usual meeting and a social time for which an entertaining programme has been prepared. A quilt is to be tied in the afternoon.

Real winter weather finally arrived with snow, wind and exceedingly slippery traveling Saturday night. Automobiles without chains could not get up the Main street hill at the railroad crossing and slid back into cars behind them. Others skidded down the hill, into the gutter. Pedestrians fell promiscuously and every other person at the movies came up the stairs with a white back.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Nuthatch

When winter's snows knee-deep are spread
Upon the forest floor
And snug within the silent bed
Lies most of Nature's store,
As, staff in hand, I wander round,
To read from winter's page,
So blank is it, each sight or sound
Full notice doth engage.

'Tis then' I hear a muffled note,
On penny trumpet blown,
A blast both present and remote,
A nasal, querulous tone.
"Hanh-hanh!" 'Tis surely from the oak.
"Hanh-hanh!" Nay, from the beech.
It is as though some impish cloak
Were hanging over speech.

Or does the frugal little wretch,
The author of the note,
Carry the nut he's said to hatch
Half-buried in his throat?
See, there he goes along the limb,
Marking a zigzag line,
That erstwhile keeps the upper rim,
Then round and round doth twine.

Now up, now down, and now a pause,
With back-thrown head to glance
Abroad, to guard from hostile claws
Or other foul mischance.
Anon he darts into the air,
Full thirty feet his flight,
To seize an insect unaware,
That fluttered on his sight.

Ah, sturdy one! Were all like thee,
As ardent and discreet,
Improvidence and penury
Would soon be obsolete.

—Henry Oldys

Cedar Waxwing

A disembodied whine floats o'er the trees,
As though some canine soul were taking flight—
I lift my gaze—what rigid forms are these
That fall upon my half-distrusted sight?

Has some ironic master of his craft
Impressed this tree to serve his humor's will,
And seized some stealthy moment to engraft
On every limb a sample of his skill?

Like carven things they stand, erect and strange,
Or specimens prepared for some museum,
Or creature turned to stone with "Presto, change!"—
Waiting for some brave prince to come and free 'em.

How sleek they are!—with not a crease or wrinkle,
With handsome plumes above each well turned head,
Bright gleaming eyes, with ne'er a telltale twinkle,
That stare like empty mirrors of dead.

So thinking, on I pass, when suddenly
That homeless note again pervades the air—
I turn my gaze once more upon the tree,
And lo! those forms are gone: the tree is bare.

—Henry Oldys

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAWAKES

Should you ever go deep sea fishing it is quite possible that you will come across some very weird creatures of the ocean. One of these weird creatures who make their homes in the deep waters of the ocean is called the puch fish. One peculiarity about him is that he has an elastic stomach. In the places where he dwells food is not very plentiful and so he has to eat enough at one meal to last a pretty long time. With the aid of his large throat and his elastic stomach, which readily stretches, he can swallow a fish twice as large as himself.

Another weird creature that you may come across is the black groper, who has a mammoth mouth. To look at him one would think he was very liable to turn inside out almost any minute. He stays on the bottom of the ocean, keeps his mouth open and waits for his food to literally fall into him.

Then there is the lantern fish. He has a row of luminous discs along his sides. He resembles somewhat a ship with illuminated portholes. Another fish has eyes that grow on stalks four or five inches in length. Each eye has a tiny lamp that lights the way for him by throwing a long beam in front of him. He lives in the darkest and deepest parts of the ocean and has need for some kind of illumination so he can find his way about.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDEAWAKES

My Trip to Montreal

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written for a long time so I thought I would write and tell you about my automobile trip to Montreal, Canada.

We got our launch ready and started off about four o'clock in the morning. We went through Stafford Springs, Springfield, Pittsfield, where we saw the Berkshire Hills, Albany where we stopped and had our dinner. Then we went through Schenectady, Saratoga Springs, Glens Falls, Lake George, Sachroon Lake where we stayed over night. The next day we went through Elizabethtown, Plattsburg and Rouses' Point. Before we entered Montreal, we had to cross the St. Lawrence river. We were very glad to reach the city for we were very tired and in the need of rest. During the time we were there we went sightseeing. We found that the city was not at all built and at one side there was a very high hill and steps leading to the top. We climbed up the steps and could see the city for miles around. In other places we found the city very crowded with many one way streets. After four days during which we had a wonderful time we started home. We went through the same places we did going there and reached home tired but happy.

The Greedy Daughter-in-Law

Dear Uncle Jed: There once lived a old man who lived with his daughter-in-law. She was very unkind to him. When he ate he spilled things over the table cloth. His daughter-in-law scolded him. One day he broke the dish in which was his bread and milk. His son brought him a wooden dish and told him to sit in back of the stove.

One day he saw his grandson putting some pieces of wood together. The grandfather asked him what he was doing. He said I am putting pieces of wood together to make my father and mother a wooden bowl to eat out of when they grow old. When the father and mother heard this they looked at each other. They brought the old man from in back of the stove and he eat at the table after that.

My Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: My dog's name is Penny. He is a good dog. He is nine years old.

One day little sister was going down to the bridge where my father works. Penny held her back so she would not cross the bridge. A lady thought the dog was going to bite her and went and told my mother.

Has Shepherd Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a large shepherd dog and call him Ready. I think a great deal of him and he likes me, too. Nearly every day he is waiting down the road for me when I come home from school. He won't let anyone hurt me either.

Ready has one bad fault. He chases cats whenever he sees them. He never hurts or bites them, but just chases them up trees or over fences. I tell him he mustn't chase cats, but he doesn't pay any attention to me. I guess he doesn't like them. He catches rats sometimes.

Went to Sunday School Social

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our Christmas tree social We had it last night at the Sunday school rooms. There was a large tree, all covered in snow for cotton, and lighted with red and green electric bulbs.

Every one present received a gift and Santa claus came to distribute them. After that we had candy and played games. We had an entertainment also. I had a fine time.

My Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer I spent my vacation in Canada. The first day we were there my cousin took me to the animal show.

The first prize was a doll won by Mary Allard. The second a hat and ball won by Henry Allard. The third prize was a pencil box won by Emma Lee. I was glad to get home. The next week school began.

Christmas At Home

Dear Uncle Jed: As it has been a long time since I have written to the Wide Awake Circle, I thought it would be a good time to write during the Christmas vacation. I sincerely hope all the Wide-Awake Circle had a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. I was home all day Christmas. We had a small tree decorated. My two sisters, my two brothers and myself all received quite a few useful presents. We had a nice dinner, and spent the afternoon in the house playing and reading. Our father was home with us all day, which made it pleasant for us all. We had a Christmas tree at school.

On Christmas Morning.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about the funny thing that happened on Christmas morning.

Grandma went to go out doors and what do you suppose she saw? A pair of deer out under the apple tree looking for apples. Grandma said she thought that they had come to wish her a merry Christmas.

She put some apples out on a stone for them to eat. I think they were very polite to come and wish her a merry Christmas. Don't you think so?

A Runaway

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about a horse that ran away. Once a man went to the city to sell some vegetables. He stopped at a house. He left his horse outside untied. While the lady who was buying some vegetables was paying him the horse was scared from something and started to run. At the same time the man came out. He jumped on the wagon. The horse started to run faster. The man pulled the reins and so took hold of his tail, which made the horse run faster than ever. The team turned over and the man went under the team. He was dragged along a few feet more when the horse was stopped. The man was bruised badly. The team was not damaged very badly.

Christmas Entertainment.

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to write a story about our Christmas entertainment. We had a Christmas entertainment in school December 19th. Each one said a piece and we had one dialogue, three songs and some folk dances. After this we gave out the presents that were under the Christmas tree. The way we get our presents is to exchange names before Christmas and then we get them a present. I usually give more than one present. We had a big Christmas tree and the school was all decorated. I got four presents, they are a bottle of perfume, two boxes of writing paper and three handkerchiefs.

The Robin's Nest.

Dear Uncle Jed: Last spring a pair of robins built their nest on the limb of our apple tree. In gathering the material the greatest care was taken.

On April eighteen the nest was finished. On the twenty-second the nest contained four blue eggs. I saw her setting on her nest. In May I saw her feeding the young. Four days after I noticed the heads bobbing over the rim of the nest.

They were gaining strength rapidly.

The morning of May seventeen was cool, and a drizzling rain had been falling for some hours. This day happened to be the day on which the little ones desired to leave the nest. I could see but three on the branch. In the afternoon they all flew away.

Knowing that the family would never return I removed the nest from the limb for I wanted to know how it was built. There were about sixty balsam twigs, some one foot in length, interwinned with grass stems.

Then came the yellow clay cup, then the smooth dry soft grass. The whole structure measured about eight inches across the top, three in width and one and one-half inches in depth.

PLAINFIELD

A good delegation of Masons from Plainfield attended the special meeting of Mt. Vernon Lodge, No. 75, F. & A. M. held Thursday evening in Jewett City for the raising of Francis Y. Brown to the sublime degree of master mason by his father, Arthur H. Brown, past master of Mt. Vernon Lodge and worshipful grand master of Masons in Connecticut. The event is witnessed by a hundred and fifty; many of them visitors from various places in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Miss Millicent Disco of Norwich was a guest of Miss Louise Jerome the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Johnson and son recently visited relatives in Natick, Mass., making the trip in their new car.

The new executive board of the Lincoln club is to meet this evening at the home of the president, Alfred D. Ashley.

This community was shocked Saturday morning to read in the Norwich Bulletin of the sudden death of Mrs. Henry T. Arnold of Norwich. Rev. Henry T. Arnold filled a long pastorate in Plainfield, as pastor of the First Congregational church from 1887 to 1907, and Mrs. Arnold was faithful and sympathetic during this long ministry, greatly loved and honored by the people whom she and her husband served so long and well. Mrs. Arnold always kept in touch with the church and people in Plainfield, showing her kindly interest and visiting occasionally in the village, where she had a host of friends.

Mrs. William S. Harvey received a letter recently from Mrs. Arnold expressing an interest in the new missionary organization of the church and it was the plan to have her as a guest of the society at an early date. Many in this community will sincerely mourn the loss of a good, true friend and a faithful and efficient leader of former years and will attend the funeral service today (Monday) in Norwich.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Going to the Snow King

"Well, well," laughed Little Jack Rabbit, "here I am in Lapland," as a little reindeer shouted: "Get on my back and I'll take you to the Snow King."

Then, away they went, amid the whirling snowflakes and after a long, long time, the reindeer stopped at a small hut. The roof sloped right down to the ground and the door was so low that one had to crawl on all fours when going in or out.

In the centre of one great hall sat the Snow King.

The only person at home was an old woman who was cooking fish over an oil lamp.

On hearing from the reindeer that Little Jack Rabbit wished to make a visit to the Snow King, the Lapwoman said:

"'Tis a long journey—over four hundred miles, but the palace of the Snow King is a wonderful sight, and the beautiful blue lights which he burns every night are more wonderful than the colored fires on the 4th of July.

Pretty soon, the little rabbit hopped up on the reindeer, and off he went at full speed. The snow fell, the wolves howled and the ravens croaked, but Little Jack Rabbit wasn't afraid. On and on went the reindeer under the gleam of the blue Northern lights.

Soon the winds blew more fiercely and the snowflakes seemed to come from every direction. Sometimes they looked like armies with spears and guns and sometimes they seemed like small white birds that bit one's cheeks with their tiny bills.

At last the reindeer stopped before the window palace. The walls were made of the drifted snow, and the window panes of thin sheets of ice, and the chandeliers that hung from the high ceilings of icicles that glittered and sparkled till the great halls were light as day.

In the centre of a great hall sat the Snow King, surrounded by a pack of howling wolves. Overhead, black ravens flew hither and thither, and the wind from the North Pole, blowing down the chimney, covered the floor with drifts of snow.

"A cold place," whispered the reindeer, as he neared the throne on which the Snow King sat in state, stroking his long white beard.

"Open a way for my visitors," commanded the King. At once the wolves stopped their howling and separated. Then, slipping off the reindeer's back, Little Jack Rabbit hopped up boldly to shake hands with the Snow King. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Palace

What will easily be the biggest show of the year will be offered the Palace theatre patrons, for starting today will be seen Marty Dupree and her Musical Follies. It has been some time since Norwich has seen a more entertaining offering that this magazine of revues, musical comedies and farces. The show still retains the old favorites including Ben Drohan, the inimitable comedian and the famous beauty chorus. The musical numbers of which there are many contain all the latest song hits, many of which were written especially for this show. The costumes are of a lavish elegance, the settings of a stupendous scenic splendor. Electrical effects that have to be seen to be appreciated. In fact it is the brightest, breeziest, snappiest girl show ever offered at popular prices. There is nothing to offend as the entire show is refined polite and clean all through and will entertain every member of the family. The feature picture is fully a screen classic in which is seen Douglas MacLean in Going Up, and which is considered better than The Hottentot.

While Going Up has one laughing until the tears course down the cheeks, the heart goes pit-apat at the thrilling love story that rides high and far on the plane of romance driven by Douglas MacLean. As the famous author of the popular boon on flying, MacLean makes the role of Robert Street unusually vibrant and impressionable. There is something about the ardent love making of MacLean that endears him to young America. He falls in love with Grace Douglas, charmingly portrayed by Marjorie Daw, an American film favorite, and in order to win her heart and hand, must fly a match race against the peer of all French aviators, Jules Gaillard. Now Mr. Street can write about flying until the cows come home but when it comes to the actual flying he's as much at home in the air as an eagle without wings. Yet love is too strong to keep him down and so up he goes to dizzy heights, performs astounding and amazing stunts with his machine and makes Gaillard, played by Francis McDonald, look like a deuce instead of an ace. Street comes down and his airplane is wrecked by contact with a tree that couldn't hop out of his way, but Street is all right excepting his bedraggled and unkempt appearance. Of course, Grace receives him with wide open arms.

The usual short subjects will add to an already big afternoon or evening's pleasure at positively no advance in the usual popular Palace prices.

WILLINGTON

The funeral of Mrs. James Taylor, 73, who died at the home of her daughter Mrs. Olin Russ at Pomfret, was held at the church, Monday afternoon, Rev. W. V. Allen conducted the services. Burial was in the town cemetery. Mrs. Taylor died from pneumonia. She leaves her husband, a step-son, two daughters and two sons by a former marriage and a sister, Mrs. Fisher.

The Columbian club, under the direction of Mrs. G. V. Smith plans to give a Valentine social and entertainment and the play "A Voice of Authority."

Norman Bligh, who has been waiting his mother and aunt at Holyoke, Mass., returned home Tuesday night.

Joseph Mirth of Wesleyan University spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mirth.

Among the many interesting things, found at Maple Corner in the effects of the late Mrs. Annie Preston, are several bound copies of Godey's and Peterson's magazines, dating back to 1846.

Mrs. Emma Dodge of New York spent New Year's with Mrs. Ida Brown.

Louis Bennett is working at Charles Amidon's sawmill. He was formerly manager of the blacksmith shop.

Miss Dunning, for many years musical supervisor of town schools, writes from New York "You may say this to the dear Willington friends. If my fiddle could only speak, it would ray with every squeak 'Happy New Year.'"

Charles Lyon, mail carrier on Route 1, received Christmas week, thirty-five presents from people on the route, which included an automobile tire, money, cigars, books, etc.

Though the state road snowplow cleared snow from the roads, everything is covered with a coat of ice.

Miss Helen Hutchinson, a teacher in Bristol, has been visiting her aunts, Mrs. Lincoln White and Mrs. Julia Clark.

Rev. W. V. Allen and family will move Wednesday to Deep River, where Mr. Allen has accepted a call.

Charles Lyon purchased the family house of George H. Smith.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Stupendous Show at the Broadway Theatre

It is with pleasure that the announcement can be made that Phil Ott the popular comedian and his musical comedy revue will open a three day run at Broadway theatre, commencing today. Not in many seasons have the critical metropolitan playgoers been so completely captivated by a musical entertainment as by the class of production Mr. Ott is offering this season. A number of well known favorites are in the extensive company that is coming here which is headed by Phil Ott, Joe Doran, Alice Melvil, Irene Finlay, Teddy Lee, Lew Smith, Harry Leff, Billy Mack and many others including the Ott Famous Dancing Kiddy Chorus, a carload of special scenery is carried. This offering is called All Fussed Up, and alone is well worth the price of admission alone.

And more, there will be four superior B F. Keith vaudeville acts that is in a show by itself.

Warner Baxter, Ralph Lewis, Derlys Perdue and Johnny Fox, Jr., are some of the names in the brilliant cast of Blow Your Own Horn, now at the Broadway theatre.

Blow Your Own Horn contains elements to please everyone. There are many moments of tense drama in it, but these are relieved by interludes of howling comedy.

For the scientific mind, the mysteries of the radio are delved into, for the student of psychology, the reactions of personality are pictorially discussed. For an admirer of athletic prowess, there are feats of gymnastics that will take the breath away.

Consensus of opinion is that Blow Your Own Horn is one of the most amusing pictures of the year. It concerns the efforts of a penniless war veteran to make a living for himself and his nine-year-old motherless son. Despite native ability in various pursuits, he fails, first because of his sensitiveness to extol his qualities, but when, upon the advice of a friend, he begins to blow his own horn, he begins to ride the crest of popularity. The various sidelights on the interesting theme of self-advertising afford ample opportunity for rare comedy.

Breed Theatre

Fashion Row, described as the most sumptuous and entertaining of Mae Murray's pictures will be the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Miss Murray has the role of two sisters, one of them a Broadway actress who gives up her stage career to marry, and the other a Russian peasant girl. The arrival of Zita, and the appearance of a man who belonged to Olga Farinova's past, complicate matters for Olga.

Miss Murray's gowns and dances are high-lights of "Fashion Row," while there are many scenes of lavish beauty. Earle Foxe, Freeman Wood, Elmo Lincoln and Mathilde Brundage are in the cast. "Fashion Row" was directed by Robert

BOK PRIZE WAR PREVENTION PLAN.

When Edward W. Bok offered a substantial prize last year for the best practicable plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations, looking toward the prevention of war, it was freely predicted that the plan would be based upon the league of nations, notwithstanding the fact that the verdict in the last national election is regarded as a telling verdict of the people concerning our membership in the league.

The decision of the jury which has considered the thousands of plans submitted is in accord with predictions. The plan is based upon an association of nations, with the present league as a foundation. It calls for the adherence of the United States to the permanent court of international justice and cooperation with the league of nations without joining it until changes have been made therein.

The plan seeks the elimination of articles X and XVI, or such amendment as will overcome objections and replace coercion with moral judgment and public opinion, a strong idealistic force but one that doesn't always get expected results, though we would assume no obligations without the consent of congress. Opening the league to all nations and revision and development of international law by the league are also advocated.

The plan will draw the fire of the world court opponents and the irreconcilables. It will interest those who have been disposed to accept the league with reservations, those who have been favorable to a world association, but such alterations as are proposed in the league covenant and in our cooperation cannot fail to receive the opposition of those who stood with President Wilson against any change whatever.

Endeavor has been made to eliminate features of the league which have proved objectionable to this country. It means giving our moral support to a modified league with our position defined on certain matters, including the Monroe doctrine and with full membership therein intended under the proper conditions. Such a plan for mutual counsel and cooperation might lead to many desirable things internationally. Whether it would prevent war is another question. There's slight prospect of getting the nations to prohibit and prevent the manufacture of war material, and there doesn't appear to be anything to keep a nation from jumping over the traces once it becomes redheaded over some occurrence or question. The difficulty of getting the many nations to the proper state of mind to have the plan produce results must not be ignored. The idealistic cannot eclipse the stern realities. The recent exhibition by Italy tells its own story.

In publishing the plan, which has received the award, this morning The Bulletin, in common with many newspapers throughout the country, provides a ballot on which those who approve the plan in substance, or those who do not approve it, may vote. In such a way a national referendum is being taken relative to this idea. The vote should not be sent to The Bulletin but to the American Peace Award in New York city. The opportunity is provided for a full and free expression. A nation-wide verdict is sought.

COOLIDGE ON TAX REDUCTION.

When President Coolidge lets it be known that he is not favorable to the making of serious changes in the Mellon tax bill it will bring that same feeling of satisfaction to the country that was experienced when Secretary Mellon pointed out that there could and should be a reduction in federal taxation.

There has been unmistakable evidence that the president is conscientiously laboring for the welfare of the nation and he doesn't deviate therefrom when he declares for the Mellon bill essentially as it stands.

The president as well as others realize what sort of a political game is being played and will have no part in it. He stands for the employment of the nation's funds, the money that has been brought to the federal treasury through existing tax laws, for the benefit of that great class of citizens represented under the head of taxpayers. It is a plan in which taxpayers will benefit directly but from which many others will reap a benefit from the effects of reduced taxation upon the economic situation. Instead of increasing taxation, or of continuing the present rate of taxation by turning funds into new and unwarranted channels, the purpose is to give the country the benefit of the relief that is proposed.

There is no wonder that the country is enthusiastic for the Mellon plan and there is nothing but commendation to offer for the firm stand which the president takes in its behalf. President Coolidge is showing the country that whatever others are doing he is not engaged in spending the money drawn from taxpayers for the purpose of building political fences.

Especially since his message at the opening of congress there has been a feeling throughout the country that in Calvin Coolidge we have a man at the head of our government who has the complete confidence of the American people. That confidence is increased every time he stands for the full effectiveness of tax reduction to the people as he has done in behalf of the Mellon plan.

A MERCHANT MARINE TEST.

At all times the shipping problem of this country has been a big one. There has been no attempt to disguise that fact. Efforts have been made in various ways to deal with it in the most effective manner possible. The handicaps have been well set forth and the experience of those handling the ships thereunder could not escape notice.

Different methods of handling the ships have been tried as new conditions have come about and new views have been advanced. Not all recommendations have received approval, notably the ship subsidy plan, but while there has been difficulty in getting desired results from the handling of the ships there has also arisen certain friction among those entrusted with this responsibility.

Inasmuch as it has become necessary to depart from the shipping board makeup as found when Presidge took office, he is con- the wisdom of making a attempt to better conditions surrounding the handling of the ships even though it may not overcome the great difficulty of making ship operations an economic success.

Instead of a commission, in which division of opinion is the forerunner of friction, the president believes that there is merit in the idea of putting the merchant marine under a single head, and it is for that duty that Admiral Palmer has been chosen and placed at the head of the emergency fleet corporation, with the shipping board serving in an advisory capacity.

It is a test in which there cannot fail to be widespread concern. It is a step which approaches the idea that has been advanced of having the merchant marine placed under the control of a cabinet member, the same as the navy, until such a time as it is possible for government responsibility in connection therewith to cease. Admiral Palmer is a man of qualifications for such a post and from whom desired results may reasonably be expected if such a thing is possible.

VENIZELOS' ILLNESS.

The sudden illness of Venizelos after his arrival in Greece must be regarded as serious for those who have relied upon his services in connection with the effort to bring about a new government, or to furnish the advice by which they would be guided in the reorganization of the government.

It is reported that the attack is not a serious one, but if, as stated, it was a heart attack it cannot be lightly regarded. Venizelos is not a young man and there are responsibilities connected with such a duty as he is called upon to render that tax the vitality of the most robust. Certainly there is needed a man in good health and not subject to such an uncertain weakness.

What confidence there is in Venizelos was displayed when he was urged to return to Greece. It was more emphatically set forth at the session of the national assembly when he was all but unanimously elected its president.

Selection for such a position apparently involved the feast of his trowbles on his return to Athens. Opposition developed but it was so small to be negligible, but manifested as it was there was evidenced complications which forecast a warm conflict.

To wrestle with those problems that confront Greece, to guide it in such a way that it can shape its future course with the greatest sense and the least friction is a job for other than a sick man, and probably no one understands that better than Venizelos.

Inasmuch as he is the one man to inspire such great confidence among the Greek leaders and people, it is most unfortunate that he should be stricken at this time, and for the help that he seems in a position to render to that country, as well as for other reasons, it is to be sincerely hoped that the illness is only temporary and not as serious as first believed. For the man of the hour to be eliminated at this time would be deplorable.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The vinegar used for pickling should always be boiled beforehand.

Last on the working parts of the sewing machine may be easily blown out with a bicycle pump.

To clean tin ware — Common soda applied with a moistened newspaper and polished with dry pieces will make it look like new.

To clean zinc — Rub with a piece of cotton cloth dipped in kerosene, afterwards with a dry cloth.

To remove stains or greases from oil paint — Use bisulphide of carbon, spirits of turpentine, or if dry and old, use chloroform. These and tar spots can be softened with olive oil and lard.

To remove rust from steel — Take half ounce emery powder mixed with one ounce of soap and rub well.

Test your roasts with a fork. If juice comes out, it means the roast is ready; if blood comes, it is not.

Milk that has to be kept for some hours before being used should be put in a shallow bowl. If placed in a jug it will turn sour very quickly.

Clean your wicker clothes hampers and baskets by scalding them with boiling hot soda water, then painting over with turpentine and a little sweet oil.

When burning vegetable refuse put a handful of salt into the fire with it to prevent an unpleasant odor.

A cauliflower is best cooked by being tied in a piece of muslin before being put in the pan. This device keeps it whole and white.

OPENS CLOGGED PIPE.

When a pipe from a lavatory basin or a bath becomes clogged with soap, mix a handful of soda and a handful of common salt together and force the mixture down into the pipe. Leave this for half an hour, then pour down a large kettle of boiling water, afterward rinsing the pipe thoroughly with warm water.

WAYS WITH CAKE.

When cutting cake which is iced put your knife in boiling water for a few seconds. You will then be able to cut without breaking the icing.

Icing for cake may be prevented from cracking by adding one teaspoon of cream to each unbeaten egg. Stir all together, then add sugar until as stiff as desired.

MAKES THEM LAST.

If you want candles to last half as long again as usual try the following plan: Take each candle by the wick and give it a good coating of white varnish. Then put the candle away for a day or two to harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running down and so preserves the life of the candle.

EASILY MADE SCREEN.

A fire screen, both useful and pleasing to the eye, is made on a beaver board frame covered with heavy plain material on which is mounted a panel of brocaded ribbon, vividly colored. Metallic ribbon borders the screen, glinting in the light.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To make thick ankles thin, they should be massaged as vigorously as possible. The ankles should be rubbed upwards and downwards and kneaded with the hands with as much pressure as you have strength for.

There are so many remedies for avoiding age! Some say drink water, which lubricates the body, so to speak, and helps it function properly. Some say to sleep early and keep to simple habits, some say to exercise, which keeps the body fit, and others to rest.

And really, you have to do a little of all these things, for all of them are sound.

If the nails have been much abused or neglected it is best to start wearing cosmetic gloves for a few nights (old gloves coated inside with a good cream.) The hands as well as the nails will benefit by this treatment. After that they will only need cream at the time of the manicure, or once in a while at night if the hands have been soaking too much in water.

Convalescent children are the most difficult to take care of, because their youth responds to the "well feeling" more quickly than with adults. Toys should be given them one at a time, and as rewards for going to sleep or keeping reasonably quiet. Food should be served in quaint china, and "surprises" are as much appreciated by the small child as the grown-up. All kinds of simple ideas will amuse an invalid child. A wet sponge filled with canary seeds, with a string through the centre, will hang anywhere, and the small convalescent is able to see it grow into a ball of green feathery leaves.

THE DECORATIVE MAT.

One of the latest fads is the use of the small mat for table, console, or shelf. It is designed to set off a certain particular vase, bowl or framed picture and is made of wide ribbon. There are handsome ones of heavy brocaded velvet, bound with metallic bands and a tassel or two, the binding being attached with glue. Some are round, with ribbon fringe and there are triangles, rectangles, squares, and pointed strips of tapestry ribbons, moires and plaids.

BRIGHT YARN TRIMMING.

This is a season of bright trimmings and gay worsted yarns, which make an exceedingly effective decoration. At a smart entertainment the other day an extremely smart-looking woman wore a simple tailored suit of beige homespun that boasted the bell sleeves. There was no other attempt at decoration and the effect was unusually attractive. The design was in the form of three graduated bands, one-inch, three-inch and five inches wide.

FOR THE BOUDOIR.

The latest touch to the most fashionable boudoir is the antique brass candlestick turned into a little electric lamp. Shades of plaited silk in tones of brown or gold go best with the brass base.

Attractive is a pale word with which to describe the new scent bottles for the boudoir tables. Very tall and slim, they are faintly tinted glass with glass rosebuds as stoppers.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Fans of white ostrich feathers are carried this season with the all-white costume.

Red fox dyed to a vivid orange, is effectively combined with dark green or wood brown suits.

Peasant frocks of jersey or crepe have elaborately embroidered blouses and very finely pleated skirts.

Stunning skating costumes are made of white wool with short jackets and full skirts, banded at hem, collar and cuffs with skunk or kolinsky.

Among the strange bracelets now being worn—and anything seems to be a bracelet today—is one of brightly tinted velvet. Worn tightly around the wrist, the bracelet has a fringe of fur.

The sleeveless arm is wearing a fanciful ornament these evenings. It sometimes takes the shape of a big cabochon set in a slender armlet, or of a jewel with drop ends on plaster chains.

Long scarfs of crepe de chine are being used today with every type of costume. Many of these are hand-painted with big roses or fruits.

The newest turban today is an affair of gracious lines, all soft, but piled fold on fold to make a high crown. The effect is somewhat that of a tam falling gently over one ear.

Very pale colors are noticeable these evenings. Faint pinks and blues contrast sharply with the all-black costumes, the faint colors being relieved by knots, insertions and cascades of metallic lace.

The wide lace bertha, expanding into a deep lace cape, is a feature of afternoon and evening gowns worn here today. In black velvet, with black shadow lace, this mode is especially effective.

There is almost nothing to one of the new evening gowns but a soup silver slip and a wide length of black velvet. The velvet is wrapped tightly around the waist and allowed to drop in a point behind.

WITH BRIGHT YARNS.

One girl seen recently at a smart tea room had on a most fascinating Russian turban of black velvet. It filled the head closely and its only decoration consisted of the Russian eagle done in red, blue and gray wool cross-stitching. There was one in front and at the back, and one on each side. Near by sat a woman in dark blue with a wide band of peasant work edging the bell sleeves and the bottom of her dress. These were in the brightest colors. On another frock was a striped trimming in black, red and bright blue. Looking closely one saw that the stripes were of wool and were crocheted.

BED JACKET EASY TO MAKE.

A square yard of apple green crepe de chine with a square hole in the center for the head to slip through, makes a pretty and convenient garment for breakfasting or reading in bed, or convalescing. The points fall directly in the front, back and over each shoulder, and the edges are finished with Valenciennes lace frills. Two-toned satin ribbon, green and pink, holds the "sleeves" together under the arms, with bows and long streamers.

GOOD BAKING HINTS.

In mixing cake a pinch of soda, when baking powder is used, improves the texture of cake.

When taking a pie from the oven, do not put it on the flat surface of a table to cool, but on a high wire rack. The rack helps to keep the crust crisp.

A useful precaution when baking cakes, particularly where a gas stove is used, is to place the tin containing the cake, which should have been lined, bottom and sides, with white oiled paper, inside another tin, with a layer of sand between the two. This will keep the bottom from burning.

To remove a hot cake or pudding from a tin or mold you should turn upside down and cover with a cloth wrung out of cold water. The contents will slip out in a minute or two. To remove anything cold or frozen reserve the process and wring the cloth out of hot water.

HOW TO TAKE STAIN OUT OF TABLE CLOTH.

To avoid the necessity of laundering an otherwise perfectly clean tablecloth because of the accidental fruit or other stain, carefully slip a folded towel between cloth and table padding, and on this towel place an empty bowl, having the stain directly over the bowl. Pour boiling water through the stain till it fades away. Now remove the bowl, lay another towel on the wet place and iron with a hot iron until nearly dry. Carefully slip out the under towel and pass the iron again over the cloth a few times and it will be as fresh as ever without having been wrinkled or removed from the table.

BASKETRY DESIGN.

A new and extremely effective ribbon, which is welcomed for flat girdle loops, vestees and panels on day frocks, is made on a dull silver metallic base, with American Indian basketry designs woven in white wool floss, alternating with silver figures.

WITH BIB SKIRT.

A handsome Paris gown is of flame velvet, with a plain bodice, and a full skirt sloping up in front and faced with gold metallic ribbon. Across the front at the waistline the skirt has an upstanding bib, faced with the gold ribbon and held with a ribbon sash knotted at the side.

A SILK PURSE.

A handsome under-the-arm bag of black moire makes a coveted gift for a fastidious woman. Three-fourths of a yard of twelve-inch ribbon is required for the outside and mandarin red ribbon makes a pleasing lining. It is made in a straight strip and one end is turned up one-third the length to make the pocket. The top flaps down and fastens with snaps. A short silk cord barely long enough to reach over from one side to the other is provided for the hand to slip under.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

In Chile, where the telegraph lines are owned by the government, nearly all the operators are women, and a large proportion of the clerks in the post offices are also women.

Mrs. Jacob S Miller of Grand Rapids, Mich., possesses documents which tend to prove that she is a lineal descendant of Pocahontas, the Indian maiden who saved the life of Capt. John Smith.

In the opinion of a London magistrate, a great deal of the housing difficulty in England is caused by young girls remaining home with their parents when they ought to be in domestic service.

Three sisters, who have just retired after having directed a select school for girls at Brighton, England, since 1866, are credited with having been the first to introduce athletic sports for girl students.

From a small town in Hungary comes the story of a young girl whose eyes are stated to possess the properties and powers of the X-ray. She can see through anything, and describes the contents of closed boxes, however thick and opaque they may be.

TO CLARIFY FAT.

When pouring hot fat into a basin add a tablespoon of boiling water. This will cause any piece of meat or gristle to sink to the bottom. When set, drippings treated in this way will be found beautifully clean and white.

FOR BRIDGE FAVORS.

For dinner or bridge favors, there are amusing little figures made of strands of wool. One resembles a tiny Columbine, another is a Harlequain, a third reproduces exactly the black and white garb of a Pierrot. These are made on a foundation of wire and are mounted on strands of black wood.

RECIPES.

To one quart of hot riced potatoes add four tablespoons of butter, one teaspoon of salt and the yolks of four eggs slightly beaten. Add hot milk or cream as needed, beat thoroughly and shape, using a pastry bag with a ten-point rose tube attached, in the form of pyramids (roses) on a buttered baking sheet. Brush over lightly with slightly beaten egg diluted with one teaspoon of cold water, and brown quickly and lightly in a hot oven. Serve a rose with each portion of turkey.

Apples en Casserole — Six medium sized apples, one cup of sugar, one cup water, two tablespoons flour, vanilla.

Wash, pare and core the apples and cut them into halves. Place them in a covered baking dish or casserole and pour over them the sugar and water. Sprinkle flour over all, cover and bake in a moderate oven until the apples are soft, but not mushy. About forty minutes are required. Stir the vanilla into the syrup, which is to be poured over the apples for serving.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Christian Dilemma.

Mr. Editor: Although the ordinary reader may find it hard—impossible in many cases—to penetrate the inwardness of the unrest—principally among the clerical portion of our Protestant churches, and may be at a loss to consider, in their complete amplitude, the pros and cons, the charges and counter-charges, between the clans denominated "fundamental" and "modernist", yet we cannot help being interested in the strife and what it portends in regard to our own everlasting hopes and fears, and in respect of our future Christianity for the world at large.

Looking at the wordy contest we read every day, we are prompted very seriously to inquire what it all really amounts to?

If the Apostolic Creed is true, no amount of theologic posturing or argumentive athletics can declare it untrue; and if it be untrue no man is bound to believe it, except, forsooth the men who have sacredly subscribed their names to it, and owe their livings and high distinction because of this covenant.

The argument can well be reduced to this simple problem—Was Jesus Christ what he claimed himself to be? or rather, was what the evangelists declare of him true?

If the first was true, and the latter not imaginative, then no amount of theologic misinterpretation can reduce Him to the level of a common man. If the "virgin birth" was a fact—no ignorant misconceptions in reference to the mystery of it, can do away with the fact.

If the production of a man by ordinary generation can be explained which we believe has not yet been done—then it will be time to give explanation to parthenogenesis—the occurrence of which is not, we believe, unknown to science.

When any wonderful occurrence is explained, then it ceases to be a miracle—and as one miracle is as unsolvable as another, the dilemma of Christianity is, how the elimination of one mystery and the retention of several others can, in the minds of these dissenters, preserve the fabric from demolition, along with their own emoluments in connection with it. This they do not seem to consider. Evidently like the man who sits on the limb of a tree to which he applies the saw.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

In the income-tax returns of married couples must be included the income from their earnings of dependent minor children, however, a credit of $400 for each child under eighteen years of age.

For example John Smith, an artisan, had a net income for 1923 of $2,000 his wife earned $1,500 as a clerk, and two sons, 15 and 17 years of age, earned $600 each as messengers. From the total family income of $4,700 the parents are allowed to deduct a personal exemption of $2,500 plus a $400 credit for each son, leaving a taxable net income of $1,400. If husband and wife file separate returns, the one furnishing the chief support may claim the credit for dependents.

Frequently a minor is "emancipated" or released from parental power. In such event a return is required of a minor (or his guardian) if the minor's net income was $1,000 or more, or $1,000 or more, according to his marital status, or of his gross income was $5,000 or more.

Emancipation does not necessarily involve a breaking of family ties, nor need it be evidenced by a formal act. It may be expressed or implied, general or limited, in writing or oral. When a son supports himself and pays his board at home, there is an implied emancipation; also if a child is in business for himself and the parents exercise no control over his earnings. In the absence of proof to the contrary it is assumed that a parent has a legal right to the earnings of a minor child.

OLD FASHIONED FAMILY REMEDY FOR COLDS, GRIP, PNEUMONIA AND BODY BUILDING

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE BUILDS NEW STRENGTH TO FIGHT OFF SERIOUS ILLNESS.

A Doctor's Prescription. Free From Alcohol and Dangerous Drugs — 66 Years in Use.

Father John's Medicine is a doctor's prescription and was prescribed for the late Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., in 1855.

Father John recommended this prescription to his parishioners and friends, and in this way it became known as Father John's Medicine.

This old-fashioned food medicine makes flesh and strength for all the family and helps to build up energy to fight off cold and grip germs.

Father John's Medicine has a history of sixty-eight years' success treating coughs, colds and throat troubles, and as a body builder. Guaranteed free from alcohol or poisonous drugs.

During the war he served on the Council of National Defense in Washington. Later he was appointed a Commissioner on the United States Shipping Board. His public service also included such posts as member for the United States of the First International Labor Conference, Chairman of the Bituminous Coal Commission in the settlement of the 1920 coal strike, member of the Supreme Economic Council at Paris and member of President Hardings Unemployment Conference of 1921.

Stories That Recall Others

The Widow's Mite Again.

Near the middle of December there came to a home for children an envelope addressed to the matron. When she opened it a dollar bill came out and with it this note:

"Please buy a Christmas present for a motherless little girl. This is from a childless widow."

His Own Idea.

A five-year-old had been reading some poetry in which the line "I would raise the dickens" was used as expressing the feeling of another boy. It made an impression upon the hearer and when his father came home he told him about the word that wasn't nice. Well it was a word I wouldn't use."

"What was it?" asked the father.

"Well" said Robert "a boy said he would go to town and raise the dickens."

After teasing him and trying to convince him that dickens was probably a vegetable to be raised beside his father said:

"Well what is the dickens anyway Robert?" to which the lad replied: "Well it's something that's in your system and you've got to get it out."

Only Four White Elephants.

The one beast that had never been sent out of Siam when I was there last, and has not been sent since, so far as I know, is the elephant.

Though the Siamese do not actually worship the elephant—as is popularly supposed—they hold it in a sort of veneration. And among the superstitious the regard for white elephants does not fall far short of worship, for it is thought that the souls of the forefathers of the king have entered into them.
